"Keep us O Lord, from pettiness let us be large in thought, in word and deed.

"Let us be done, with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking

"May we put away all pretence and meet each other face to face without self pity and without prejudice.

"May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

"Teach us to put into action our better impulses. straight-forward and unafraid.

"Let us take time for all things: make us grow calm, serene, gentle.

"Grant that we may realize that it is the little things that create differences: that in the big things of life we are one.

"And may we strive to touch and know the great human heart common to us all, and O Lord God let us not forget to be kind."

The ladies were then invited to hall where a bountiful luncheon was served, consisting of a salad plate, jellies, cookies, cake and tea.

Mrs. Hough, of Burr's moved a vote of thanks to the ladies of Centre, for their hospitality which was seconded by Mrs. Beuford Peck, of Albury.

Daily Good Deed By Boy Scouts Pleases Maids

Well, girls, if it comes to a question of moonlight and roses, or advice to the lovelorn, the safe thing to do, it appears, is choose a fellow who has been a Boy Scout. There are valid reasons for such a choice.

Five hundred of these manly young chaps stopped over in New York en route to a National Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. They were from Wisconsin and they all put up at the same hotel.

When these Scouts checked out the next morning, the floor maids were just about stunned with surprise. The beds in every room occupied by the boys were neatly made, with the sheets and coverings folded back carefully, the pillows smoothed, and everything shipshape and tidy. Such a considerate demonstration was unheard of. Those floor maids are said to still gape a little when they just think about it.

But this was just routine stuff with the Scouts. It is one of their oldest traditions. "Always leave a camp ground as neat as you found it," is how the motto runs. On the home lot, as it were, that same rule is observed. Clothes are not piled in a heap or left scattered all over the place as though an earthquake or something had struck the room. Nothing like that. The point to remember is that such ingrained habits of orderliness persist to adult years.

Boy Scouts are an admirable lot. In addition to learning how to build a fire, and no end of other useful skills, they are proficient at tying a knot.—Hamilton Spectator.

Field of Work Widens for Women

Halifax, July 9 — (CP) — All signs point to the employment of more and more women in continually widening fields of Endeavor, W. K. Rutherford of Ottawa, director of the National employment service, Saturday told delegates attending the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention. In Canada, he said, single women workers outnumber married women by more than two to one, while in the United States married women workers outnumber the single women.

Women's Institute

STIRLING W.I.

Stirling.—Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison opened their cottage to entertain the Stirling's Women's Institute on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Perry Bronson, president of the Institute, called order and the meeting was opened with the usual exercises. The president welcomed all the visitors.

Mrs. W. West, secretary-treasurer, called the roll which was "What I learned at the District Annual", with 16 members and nine visitors present.

Communications and bills were given and ordered paid.

Mrs. A. Lake reported for the visiting committee.

Other committees were reported as well by Mrs. M. Meggison. Two members were enrolled.

Mrs. L. Rodgers and Mrs. E. Cooke gave generous donations for a sewing day to be held in August in connection with a hot dinner being served in community hall. Sewing will also be done for the "Children's Shelter", Belleville.

Mrs. L. Rodgers was chairlady for the program which proved humorous and interesting.

Patriotic and folk songs were sung with Mrs. H. Rodgers as song leader.

"My favorite recipe", was given and handed in by members for the scrap book also snapshots to be handed in later.

Mrs. E. Cooke gave a splendid demonstration on "canning", the different types of syrups, care of sealers, and the test of various fruits.

Interesting Debate

A debate "Resolved that a business woman makes the better wife", brought to light many outstanding and worthy points.

Mrs. Perry Bronson, affirmative; Mrs. Sue Rodgers, negative. The judges found it impossible to choose the winner as each speaker give her part so well, both were highly complimented on this endeavor which must have taken time and keen thought to collect such valuable points.

Mrs. Searles, member of Pine Grove Institute, and Mrs. I. M. Reid, of Springbrook W.I., gave short speeches with each voicing their appreciation for the invitation to the meeting and how much they enjoyed the program.

The final number on the program was a "Team Contest", 24 questions "What Do You Know", was given with team 1 gaining 24 points and team 2, 23 points. The teams were, 1—Mrs. E. Cooke and Mr. Perry Bronson; team 2, Mrs. L. Rodgers and Mr. Geo. Sarles. A two-pound box of marshmallow candy was the prize donated by the president from which all had a treat.

A ten cent collection was taken by the treasurer and bountiful refreshments served, comprising five different kinds of sandwiches, fruit bread, pickles, jellies, cake and tarts and tea.

At the close of the social hour, Mrs. Carlton Wright most graciously thanked the hostess and committee for the delicious refreshments, program and hospitality.

The intricate art of gravy mopping has given birth to many devices. Patty shells, toast, split biscuits, rice and noodles are no fun to eat alone, but when used to gather in a rich velvety gravy they are exciting eating.

The Persian system is to carve a scoop out of bread. The scoop then serves as fork, spoon and gravy collector all in one.

Since most sauces and gravies are rich, the gravy absorbed should be somewhat plain. A rich golden fricasee sauce or curry sauce, for instance, is best when served with simple boiled white rice.

The bread for toast baskets should be very fresh and sliced thin. The slices should be well buttered on one side and the buttered side pressed into large-size muffin pans. Simply bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees until brown. Place each toast basket on a serving plate, fill with creamed mixture and serve. Both white or whole wheat bread may be prepared in this manner.

Use toast baskets to serve chicken with pineapple and peppers. The chicken for this dish should be cut from a boiled fowl. If you are in a hurry, a young frying chicken may be boiled instead of the fowl.

Chicken with Pineapple and Peppers. —4 Servings

In a saucepan melt 3 tablespoons fat. Add 1-2 cup green peppers cut into 1-2 inch squares. Simmer slowly until peppers are tender. Remove from flame. Add 3 tablespoons flour, mixing until smooth. Gradually add 2 cups of hot chicken broth. If fresh broth is not available, canned chicken broth or water with chicken bouillon cubes may be used.

Return saucepan to flame and simmer 5 minutes. Add 2 cups of cooked boiled chicken cut into 1-2 inch cubes. Simmer 5 minutes. Add 1 cup canned pineapple wedges drained. Bring to a boil. Add salt and pepper to taste.

FATAL CRASH INTO BRIDGE

Arnprior, July 10 — (CP) — Adam Prince, 26, of Barry's Bay, Ont., was killed and Raymond Biernaskie, also of Barry's Bay, suffered minor injuries yesterday when their automobile crashed into the Mississippi bridge on highway 17, six miles east of here. Prince died in hospital here. Biernaskie was the driver, police said.

Quonset Hut Will be Used By New Bank

Edmonton, July 8. (CP)——Edmonton's newest bank, substituting fibre board for the convention marble and with an outside appearance of a giant tin can halved from end to end, opens Monday.

Believed to be the first Canadian bank to operate from a Quonset hut, it will serve as temporary quarters for the main Edmonton branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada on downtown Jasper Avenue.

Erected in the last 1 1-2 months for an estimated $50,000, the gleaming metal hut will be razed in 18 months when a permanent building is expected to be completed across the street on the site of the old main branch.

Going up alongside the Quonset hut is a 15-storey addition to the MacDonald Hotel, Edmonton's largest.

About the only resemblance the hut bears to a bank are the heavy oak doors that customers of the main branch have passed through for 42 years.

The staff of 60 will transact business on 6,600 square feet of floor space, comparable to the bank's former quarters. The building was set on a cement slab 114 by 41 feet with galvanized iron sheets laid over curving girders. The hit is only 26 feet high.

Burglars will need more than a can opener to break in. The large concrete vault is independent of any wall. Even the scratching of a match on its sides will touch off an alarm.

Pressed for room, the builders placed the boiler of the steam-heating unit on top of the vault.

FRUIT PACKING HOUSE BURNS

St. Catharines, July 8. (CP)—A barn and fruit packing house were destroyed in a $15,000 fire near Campden, 10 miles southwest of here, last night. Thirty pigs were lost in the blaze but three bulls were saved. A truck and trailers were also destroyed. The farm, owned by Paul Culp, who is in the air force, is operated by his brother, Harold.

Finland Binds Her Economy To Russia For Next Five Years

By THOMAS HARRIS

Helsinki, Finland, July 9 — (Reuters) —Not without misgiving, democratic Finland is binding her economy to Russia's for the next five years.

The biggest trade agreement ever entered into by Finland has been signed in Moscow. Now, the Fins are busy reading the fine print.

In some ways the agreement is welcomed here because it gives Finland a market for her newly-developed manufacturing. The Finns are happy, too, because Soviet leaders said nice things about them in Moscow, but many people here are asking: "Why the sudden friendliness? What's the catch?"

The agreement calls for trade exchanges of $350,000,000 in both directions for five years. This means that Russia is going to take about 25 per cent of Finland's total exports, compared with only 10 per cent up to now.

Russia has undertaken to buy manufactured goods such as electric motors and light factory plants from Finland. She has even promised to buy three 10,500-ton icebreakers.

These are important undertakings because they will enable Finland to find work for years ahead for the 40,000 men and women now employed in turning out reparations goods for Russia.

Manufactured Products

About one-third of the $230,000,000 worth of reparations goods to be delivered between 1944 and 1952, are manufactured products. To supply them, Finland has had to build new factories and even shipyards.

The Finns feared that these new factories and shipyards would be idle after 1952 with no markets for their output. By taking this output, and paying for it instead of receiving it free as now, Russia has left Finland's traditional exports of wood, pulp and paper free for her traditional markets—the west.

Finland thus hopes her trade will be balanced between east and west, with Soviet Russia replacing Great Britain by a moderate margin as her principal customer.

But, as in all Finno-Russian agreements since 1944, there are vague clauses which could give rise to differences of interpretation, as the Finns phrase it diplomatically, particularly over prices. These are to be fixed each year at current world prices.

Jet Airliner's Historic Flight

The main object of the flight was to obtain accurate fuel-consumption and operating data, and throughout the flight, the pilot and his crew of three were filling notebooks with fuel-flow figures, temperatures, engine revs, heights, and speeds; while, in the body of the aeroplane, a cine-camera was filming a special instrument board nearly all the time.

Many more of these flights have to be done— in good weather and in bad, in the tropics and over the Arctic, in icing conditions and in clear skies — before the manufacturers can say to B.O.A.C.; this is the best way to operate this machine, and these are the distances, speeds, and costs as applied to everyday use on the Commonwealth, and, maybe, the North Atlantic runs.

I think, however, that the flight must also be regarded as an historic one. It was not that the Comet cruised at 500 miles an hour at 35,000 feet— it has done that plenty of times before; it was not that it flew 1,500 miles non-stop—it had already done 2,000 miles. No: the secret of it was that this aeroplane was put on to an actual, overseas-air-line route —London-Tripoli — and it made the journey in roughly three hours and twenty minutes each way, when even the fast, modern, piston-engined air-liners in service use today take eight hours and ten minutes for the single journey.

Here was a real, practical, on-the-job comparison. This was no semi-hush-hush experimental flight from a test airfield, but a public demonstration from passenger airport to passenger airport —in fact, a preview of what the Comet will be offering the ordinary fare-paying passenger in about two years' time, when the production models are built and the 'plane has been tested and tried all over the Commonwealth routes.

Here, then, Britain has something to shout about. It has a fine and economic passenger aeroplane which can slash timetables in half; and, as far as we can see, it is going to do it without competition. To say that the United States Airline operators have been shaken by the Comet is to put it mildly. They were a little worried when they first heard of its specification; but when they saw it at the Fairborough Show, they went back and asked that America should start to design a rival at once. Now, from reports coming in, it appears that it is generally realized that the catching-up process has been left until too late, and that Britain, with luck, should have a world monopoly in a 'plane 200-miles-an-hour faster than its rivals.

One last thing; it struck me, after seeing Cunningham off in the morning, and then seeing him come back in the mid-afternoon, that I spent a longer time driving between Broadcasting and Heathrow than he did in going 1,500 miles to Tripoli.—By Charles Gardner on B.B.C. Overseas Service.

NEW TYPE OF TRAP

Toronto, July 8 — In the next couple of days the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests should have on hand 200 copies of a new type of trap, the Sawyer.

The Sawyer trap, which was invented in England, is regarded as more human than the ordinary steel trap since it kills as it catches. The common spring trap catches the animal by the leg, often breaking it, and holds on with steel teeth until the creature dies.

Trap-making is a business that has been off the route of the march of progress in the past century. The steel trap was invented in the Oneida community in New York State about 100 years ago and it is practically unchanged today.

TO IMPOSE LEVY

Canberra, July 10 —(Reuters) — Australia is to impose a 7 1-2-per-cent levy on wool in the 1950-51 Australian wool season. The levy, effective Aug. 26, will be the first step in laying the foundation for a reserve price scheme.

Aussie Taxpayers Will Contribute In Medical Plan

By LOUIS L. LECK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Australia is still seeking a medical benefits scheme which will satisfy everybody, or nearly everybody.

The scheme proposed by the Labor government last year was boycotted by the British Medical Association in Australia. Certain clauses were held unconstitutional by the high court and the plan died a natural death.

Now Health Minister Sir Earle Page of the Coalition government has outlined another scheme. With only the briefest explanation of it, several sections of the public and the pharmacists are strongly opposed.

The B. M. A., however, has accepted the main principles.

Briefly, they are:

1. Free provision of "life-saving" drugs (undefined, but probably including penicillin, the sulfa-drugs and insulin.)
2. A government subsidy for medical attention insurance.
3. Administration of the scheme through fraternal societies and medical insurance organizations.

Must Join Society

Few details of the proposal have been disclosed, but it is believed a person wishing to participate will have to join a society or insurance organization, paying about 3s (45 cents) a week.

The society, with the help of the government subsidy, will pay up to 90 per cent of the member's medical bills. The remainder will be paid by the member, to avoid a certain amount of abuse and waste.

In addition to his weekly payment to the society, the individual will continue to pay the social service tax, originally intended for the Labor party plan and continued when the plan folded.

Most public protests to the new scheme are based on the idea that the social service tax should be enough to secure the benefits without the need of a weekly insurance payment as well. There also appears to be an aversion to disclosing details of medical attention to fraternal organizations.

The pharmacists are greatly opposed to the plan because, they say, it will give dispensaries run by the fraternal societies an unfair advantage.

Sir Earl defends the scheme on two grounds. He says it is assured the support of the Medical Association. It also emphasizes self-help by forcing the individual to assume part of the cost.

He says his plan will emphasize preventive steps, such as diet and x-ray examinations for the early detection of tuberculosis.

He claims these are more important than pills and potions.

But, as it stands now, the scheme is not going to be accepted unopposed.

STUDY OFF-STREET PARKING

Hamilton, July 7 — (CP) —In an effort to find a solution to the of-street parking problem, the retail section of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce will appoin a small committee to study the matter with the traffic committee. The decision was reached today at a joint meeting of raffic committee officials and retailers.

Unrelenting Campaign Waged To Convert China to Redism

By WILLIAM PARROTT

Hong Kong, July 10 — (Reuters) — Through press and radio, cinema and theatre, in the schools universities and countless study groups up and down the country, an unrelenting campaign is being waged today to convert the people of China to communism

Theme of the campaign is that only through communism on the Russian model can the ordinary people of China achieve salvation.

Reports and broadcasts heard here show that China's 450,000,000 people are daily being urged to follow the leadership and precepts of Soviet Russia and to reject and oppose everything representative of western democracy.

Nor is the message directed only at one-fifth of the world's population which lives within the frontiers of China. Through multi-language broadcasts. It is aimed also at millions more in near and neighboring countries.

In many months of work, the official Chinese communist news agency has said not a single word in favor of the western democracies— and nothing whatever against Russia and her European satellites.

The United States is the chief butt of criticism. China's teeming population is told every day that the United States and her leaders are "imperialisic warmongers" seeking to enslave the fatherland.

Attacked Forcibly

Every aspect of American policy thought detrimental to communist interests is attacked forcibly and bitterly.

In one onslaught, directed against Gen. Douglas MacArthur for banning the communist party in Japan, the agency told its readers that "American troops are propagating the "American democratic way of life in Japan by murder, rape, robbery and violence, looting and black market dealings on the largest scale."

This is typical of the language used in the numerous dialectic assaults on the United States.

Britain is accused of being an American puppet, while her colonial administrations in Malaya and Hong Kong are frequently attacked for aleged injustices to Chinese.

One country coming increasingly under fire is Australia with her "reactionary" government and her "arrogant" white Australian policy. Another recent target has been South Africa, which, like Australia has introduced legislation directed at the communists.

INCENDIARY LIQUID USED

Tokyo, July 10 (AP)— Numerous casualties were reported among Red ground troops caught in the weekend storm of Allied rockets, bombs, machine-gun bullets and —for the first announced time—the jelly like explosive called Napalm.

This incendiary liquid, composed of gasoline mixed in a secret soap-like substance, is carried in belly tanks. The tanks are dropped and explode on contact, spraying flaming gasoline in all directions.

CONVENANT GUARDS GRAVE

Stouffville, July 8 (CP) — An unusual convenant guards the site of a 128-old tombstone on the J. P. Carr farm near here. A dead clause provides that the descendants of the pioneers buried there will have the right forever to visit the grave and to fence off, improve or decorate one acre around the tombstone. But none has ever come.

Sees Production Dairy Products Exceed Demand

Toronto, July 8 (CP) — Gilbert McMillan, president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, said today that increased foreign production will force Canadian dairy producers to depend more and more on the home market for disposal of their products.

Mr. McMillan, recently returned from an international federation of agricultural producers conference in Sweden, said it was becoming "increasingly apparent in many countries that production of dairy products is rapidly exceeding demand."

He said it is imperative that the recently inaugurated campaign to expand the domestic market for dairy products "be prosecuted with vigor."

EGYPT WILL NOT VOTE

Cairo, July 10 — (AP) — Informed sources said today Egypt has decided not to vote for United Nations recognition of red China. Her ballot in the Security Council might have been decisive.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India had intervened personally in an effort to swing Egypt's vote to red China, hoping this would end the deadlock and bring Russia back to U. N. meetings she had been boycotting since January over the China issue.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Headed by the incomparable Charlie Justice, Mr. Softball himself, the Tip Top Tailors, world's champion softball team, will show its wares here on Aug. 3rd. Tips defeated the cream of the American and Canadian crop last year in the world's softball tournament, and bid fair to repeat this year. They are being brought here under the auspices of the Optimist Club of Belleville.

* * *

This starry band of mushball luminaries will face an all-star aggregation selected from the city commercial league sections, under the coaching guidance of Cy. Barriage. The game is scheduled for the Exhibition Grounds at 8 p.m.

* * *

The brilliant colored hurling star of the Toppers, Charlie Justice is rated among the best in the world. Possessed of terrific speed Charlie has probably thrown more no-hitters than any other pitcher in the history of the game. He is not only a mound star of the first magnitude, but can stage entertainment that proves the man's terrific versatility. He is the Al. Schacht of softball in one sense of the word and has been an outstanding performer whereever the Toppers have appeared. To see Justice is worth the price of admission alone.

* * *

Justice, however, is a star among stars. Each member of the Toppers scintillates in his own right, and their precision play is a pleasure to watch. They are worthy world's champions which won the title the hard way. Softball and other sports fans should not miss seeing the famous Toppers in action come August 3rd.

A CREDITABLE PERFORMANCE

Giving a display that caught the eyes of expert trackmen, Garry Schreider came through with a highly creditable performance at the Sports College Track and Field Meet held in Pantry Park over the weekend. Garry, appearing for the first time in topflight company finished second in two heats of the 100 yard dash and third in the semi-finals. He was clocked at 10.3 which was regarded as a first-class performance for a youngster getting his first taste of running in starry company.

* * *

Garry caught the eye of Lloyd Percival, head coach of the Sports College, and will likely train there this winter while attending St. Michael's College. Young Schreider has the natural attributes of a sprinter; is possessed of a fine burst of speed and it is predicted that with proper track coaching and training, will be heard from in the not-too-distant future. Indications of his speed were noticed in a recent baseball game here when he raced in from second base and was breathing down the runner's neck who had been parked on third when he crossed the plate.

* * *

THEY CAN'T DO THIS TO US!

Jerry Mahoney, demon press agent of the Northern Electric Ladies softball team is unhappy. His team which at this moment is parked prettily at the top of the Eastern Section of the Lakeshore Ladies Softball League with seven wins and two defeats, did not get a mention in the Cobourg Sentinel Star's publication of the section standing. As a matter of fact that estimable newspaper did not mention the Belleville gals at all. Grafton is leading the section, it read in the Star — and Jerry and his gals are not feeling too good about the matter. Cheer up m-lad, it will all come out in the wash.

* * *

SIC 'EM!

There is an ominous quiet on the Commercial Softball League front as the rival camps of the Brewers' Warehouse and Howe & Haferman teams ready themselves for action. Tomorrow night will see the battle joined at Alemite Field and already some of the wise boys are wondering if they have acted too hastily. As far as we can judge, the odds favor the Brewers' camp, but there is anything but pessimism in Cy Barriage's headquarters. Both squads predict an out-and-out victory as do their supporters. That remains to be seen. Should be quite a tilt as we understand feeling in running at a high level.

A CLOSE ONE

Picton pulled a close one out of the fire on Saturday when they nosed the Brockville Memos into a fifth-place tie with Batawa in the Central Ontario Baseball League standing. The Church crew won the tilt by a 5-4 score and the win gives them a 6 and 10 standing in the loop. Batawa and Brockville are tied with six and nine. With the Shoemen idle for two weeks due to the holiday season, the Prince Edward County and Brockville teams may pull out in front of the Bata lads.

Boston Fans Whooping it Up For Braves, Now Only 2 Games Out of First Place in National

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The word pennant" is back in the vocabulary of Boston baseball fans and they're not referring to the Red Sox. They're whooping it up over Billy Southworth's Braves.

The third-place Braves today are only two games out of first place in the National League. They have won 17 out of their last 25 games, a roaring .680 clip. June 14 the Braves trailed the pack by 6 1-2 games.

Pitching has put the Braves where they are. In the beginning Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain carried the load. Then Vern Bickford got into the groove and recently Bob Chipman began to click.

The Braves inched to within two games of the pace-setting Philadelphia Phils yesterday as Bickford turned in a brilliant 3-2, 13-inning victory over New York Giants. Bickford limited the Giants to eight hits and only three walks and won out on some daring base running by Sam Jethroe who opened the last of the 13th against Sal Maglie with a double and stole third. One out later Maglie intentionally walked Earl Torgeson, Sid Gordon followed with a grounder to Maglie who bluffed Jethroe back to third and then attempted an inning-ending double play.

The Phils were trounced 7-3 by Brooklyn Dodgers but maintained their one-game edge over St. Louis. The Cards dropped a 3-2 decision to the tail-end Pittsburgh Pirates, Cincinnati Reds took two from Chicago, 6-0 and 6-5.

The pennant race in the American League tightened as Cleveland Indians knocked off the league-leading Detroit Tigers twice, 6-2 and 6-2, in Detroit, The defeats cut the Tigers' margin over the runner-up New York Yankees to three games. Yanks tripped Boston Red Sox 3-1.

Bob Lemon outpitched Art Houtteman to post his 12th victory in the opener. Lemon had a 5-9 lead before Gerry Priddy homered in the sixth for Detroit's first run. The Tigers assumed a 2-0 lead against Mike Garcia in the first four innings of the nightcap but the Indians jumped on rookie Saul Rogovin for three runs in the sixth and added two more in the seventh off Fred Hutchinson to win going away.

Lefty Eddie Lopat scattered nine Red Sox hits to post his 10th victory before 53,097 fans in Yankee stadium. Lopat blanked the Sox until the eighth when three successive singles produced the Boston run.

St. Louis tied Philadelphia Athletics for seventh place by beating Chicago White Sox 4-2 while the A's split a twin bill with Washington Senators. The A's won the opener 6-5 but lost the nightcap 2-0.

Buffalo Bisons Playing Better Under Schalk

By The Associated Press

Buffalo Bisons have won only two International League pennants in 22 years—last season under Paul Richards and in 1936 under Ray Schalk.

Richards, after losing in the post-season playoffs, signed a two year contract to manage Seattle Rainers of the Pacific Coast League. Frank Skaff was brought in as his replacement.

But when the Bisons started poorly this season, struggling in the cellar, Skaff was released. The Buffalo management looked around for a suitable successor, and it came up with — that's right — Ray Schalk, the only man ever to win the post-season pot for Buffalo.

The Bisons still are in last place but, somehow, the sun seems to be shining a bit brighter in Buffalo today. Maybe it was the double victory over the tough Montreal Royals yesterday. But the Bisons, as a whole, have been playing much better since Schalk took over.

The Bisons temporarily spoiled Montreal's bid for second place by taking the five-game series from the Royals 4-1. Yesterday's scores were 8-3 and 3-2.

Toronto conked the league-leading Rochester Red Wings 7-5 as right-fielder Buddy Heslet provided the winning margin with a two-run homer in the eighth.

A five-run blast in the ninth inning by the little Giants broke up a 4-4 ball game. Al Cihocki hit two homers for Baltimore. Gerry Burmeister's ninth-inning single —his fourth hit of the game—won the first game for Baltimore.

Syracuse scored a 9-8 decision over Springfield Cubs in the day's other game.

DIES IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, July 10 — (CP) — Silas (Si) Griffis, elected June 27 to Hockey's Hall of Fame, died here early today. He was 66.

Griffis was forward with Kenora Thistles when that club won the Stanley Cup in 1907. Later he came to British Columbia and was an outstanding defenceman for a decade with Vancouver Millionaires. He was captain of Millionaires' Stanley Cup champions in 1915.

PICTON

Athletics Win Over Brockville By 5-4 Score

Picton — In a tightly-played game of ball which had 500 fans in suspense until the last minute, Picton Athletics defeated Brockville Memos here 5 to 4, Saturday evening. The locals came from behind to win and managed to stave off a determined effort of the visitors in the latter innings. Frank Dyer bore down in the crucial portions and deserved credit for the win. He yielded seven hits and fanned five. Bill Aldrich went the route for Memos and was touched for eight hits. Errors contributed to the downfall of the Memos.

MacDonald and Perry led Picton batters with two singles each. For the visitors, Turner got two singles and Wilford a triple, the only extra bagger of the game which saw some excellent fielding.

Picton scored a run in the second with a walk, batter hit by pitched ball and fielder's choice, after having muffed a golden chance to score in the first. They added one in the fourth when Don Smith's single scored Goyer who had forced MacDonald who walked. They added one in the fifth when Dean and MacDonald singled, Goyer walked to load bases, Huntley was hit by pitched ball to force in a run.

Brockville got their first in the fourth when Proctor walked and scored on Seeley's single. They jumped into the lead in the fifth with three runs. Aldrich singled, Wilford tripled, Proctor safe on an error, Turner singled, Seeley flied out and Proctor scored on throw in.

Picton grabbed the lead in the 8th when Smith singled, Perry sacrificed, Dyer singled, Wardhaugh walked to load bases, Drury safe on fielder's choice with Smith scoring, Dean safe at first when catcher's throw to first was wild, runner scoring.

After an error and a walk let two on in the ninth, Dyer fanned two and MacDonald made a spectacular catch to end the game.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 10 — (AP) — Couple of theories about the so-called rabbit ball:....Red Strader, New York Football Yankees coach who did a little major league catching, says that in basketball they used to spend minutes manoeuvring for a sure two-handed shot. Now every kid who comes along can pop 'em in with one hand from almost anywhere.... In baseball, Red argues organized progams are turning out more well-coached players than ever before....And their main idea is to wallop that ball as far as possible every time....

Pop— A Hit

Billy Southworth, who insists that the ball is a lot livelier than before, adds the observation that a lot of pop flies go for baseball hits these days because outfielders play so far back looking for the long drives that they can't come in for the short ones....

Another Home Run

Did you know that Don Gehrmann, the Wisconsin miler, gives baseball credit for his distance-running ability.... When Peter Bickler recently retired as principal of the grade school Gehrmann attended, Don wrote to this effect: "The start of my running career really dates back to Grant School, where this was the rule of the playground: During lunch hour, the first boy back with the bat and ball and standing inside the diamond had possession for the rest of the lunch period.... I lived just one mile from the school. When the lunch bell rang, I would run home, eat, grab my bat and ball and run back to the playground to save the diamond for my teammates."

American League Ruled 8-5 Favorites to Whip Nationals In All-Star Game on Tuesday

By JOE REICHLER

Chicago, July 10 — (AP)—The American League today ruled an 8-5 favorite to continue its dominance over the victory - starved Nationals in tomorrow's 17th renewal of baseball's All-Star game.

The fact that Vic Raschi, veteran New York Yankee pitcher, will open for the American Leaguers against inexperienced Robin Roberts of Philadelphia Phils has no bearing on the one-cided odds.

The Americans probably would be favorites to win simply because they've made a career out of knocking the tar out of their inter-league rivals in the midsummer and World's Series classics.

Ever since the mighty Babe Ruth blasted his two-run homer to give it a 4-2 victory in the first All-star game 17 years ago, the American League has had the upper hand and now leads 12 games to 4. The National's last triumph came in 1944.

Stout Hold on Public

Despite the big edge by one league, the game continues to maintain a stout hold on the public. A capacity Comiskey Park crowd of 49,000 will watch the teams in action on the same field where the game was inaugurated in 1933. Requests for more than 200,000 tickets were received.

No pitcher is allowed to work more than three innings. Manager Burt Shotton of the Nationals is expected to follow Roberts (10-3) with his own Preacher Roe (10-4) and New York Giants' Larry Jansen (9-5). Roe, the bellwether of the Brooklyn staff, is the only southpaw.

Casey Stengel, the American League's leader, may send in Yankee Tommy Byrne (9-3) in the middle three innings and close with Chicago's Ray Scarborough (8-8). Raschi, who has not allowed a run in six innings of All-star pitching, has won 10 of 16 decisions during the regular season.

Robinson Will Play

Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn and Hank Sauer of Chicago Cubs, who for a time, appeared doubtful starters, will be in the opening line-up for the Nationals. Robinson was out for several days because of a wrenched knee. Sauer, originally snubbed by Shotton, will start, either in left or centre field.

Commissioner A. B. Chandler, reversing his ruling which permitted Shotton to replace Sauer with the Dodgers' Duke Snider, heeded the protests of Chicago fandom. Sauer is the only Chicago player voted on either starting team.

The club owners held their annual mid-summer meetings yesterday at which both the National and American Leagues agreed to scrap the March 1 spring-training deadline. Hereafter all clubs are permitted to send their players south for conditioning whenever they see fit. However, no club can play an exhibition game before the second Saturday in March.

The leagues also ruled that hereafter no barriers can be erected in any park while the season is in progress. This move was made to stop clubs from creating false fences to increase homers.

PETES WIN RUGGED GAME

Brampton, Ont., July 10 (CP) — Peterborough edged Brampton 12-10 here Saturday in a rugged Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association match studded with penalties.

Two-goal scorers were Emmett Creighton, Bob Thorpe, Don Ashbee and Lou Vitarelli for Peterborough; Cam Sheppard, Lew Landess and Archie Browning for Brampton.

Canadian Davis Cuppers May be Better This Year

Montreal, July 10. (CP)—Canada's Davis Cup players are trying to convince themselves that the Australian tennis wizards are not supermen.

Non-playing Captain MacNeil claims that problem has always handicapped Canada in her matches with Australia.

"It's dangerous," says MacNeil, skipper for the second successive year. "We know the Aussies are about the best in the world, but we should forget about that when we face them on the courts. After all they have the same equipment as we have—two arms and two legs. They're not supermen."

The Canadians meet the Australians here next Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the North American tie. Two singles matches will be played the first day, one doubles match the next and two more singles the third.

MacNeil figures the Brendan Macken's victory over Billy Sidwell last year may have erased any phychological trouble suffered by the 27-year-old Montrealer.

"That victory was enough to give Bren confidence to face any of the world's top stars," said MacNeil.

He also thinks that 20-year old Lorne Main of Vancouver, stands a "good chance" to come through with some surprises. Main, playing his second year with the squad, last year took one set from Sidwell in their singles mach.

Rochon, third member of the team, is making his fifth appearance as a Davis cupper. The 26-year-old Montrealer is ranked No. 1 Canadian player and appears to have enough confidence to shake any court jitters.

George Robinson, 31, is the oldest member of the team and the only one who has never competed in cup play. But MacNeil thinks that Robinson's age and Canadian tournament experience should give him assurance.

Barn Doorways

"We read a piece in the paper the other day in which a psychologist with several capital letters after his name made a solemn pronouncement. He said in effect, that men and women have different nervous systems and are therefore constitutionally unable to regard certain of life's problems from a common angle.

This writer is no psychologist and has considerable respect for a man who can pronounce multisyllable words as if they were a part of his everyday vocabulary. But if some psychologist had asked him the countryman could have told him long ago that husbands and wives, and fathers and daughters have widely separated approaches to a common problem. It is regrettable that just when a man gets his helpmeet resigned to her mate's idiosyncracies his growing daughters leap into the fray with awesome enthusiasm.

The situation is aptly illustrated by a barn doorway. A woman just cannot see why a man wants to sit in an open doorway on a rainy June day. But a man knows why. In a broken down but still comfortable wicker rocker he can watch the rain falling on the grassland, cornfield and meadow. A barn doorway in a sanctuary where one can sit and think and get caught up with himself; or one can just sit and feel the goodness of a rain that means more available for Earth's plants. — Ottawa Journal.

MARMORA

Marmora Drops 15-10 Decision To Campbellford

Marmora — Marmora Juvenile Baseball team were unable to subdue their Campbellford opponents in a scheduled home game on Friday evening and lost by the score of 15-10. Possibly it was because the major portion of the team were playing their fourth game of the week that several fielding errors occurred at a time that proved costly to give the visitors a comfortable lead in the third. However, Marmora played resolutely for the remainder of the game to reduce the margin. Best hitters for the winners were Jeffs, Ibey and Darrah. For Marmora hitting honors went to Auger, Dikun and Killian, the latter also starring in the stolen bases. Drummond, while having 11 strikeouts was not quite up to his usual form. McNaughton had nine strikeouts and his offerings proved difficult to connect with until the seventh. It was Marmora's second loss of the season, the first half of which is now completed.

Rowing Club Of Brockville Wins Regatta

(By The Canadian Press)

The Brockville Rowing Club captured nine events to win the Eastern Rowing Association Regatta at Brockville Saturday.

The Blue and White Club piled up an impressive point-total of 73 in winning the event for the first time in eight years. Ottawa scullers, who placed second, won three events for 44 points.

St. Catharines oarsmen also won three events, including the senior open eight, while Jack Guest, Jr., of Toronto Dons breezed to an easy triumph in the senior singles race.

St. Catharines, represented by four crews, won going away in the 155-pound eights, 155-pound fours and the senior eights. In each event the winners were followed by Ottawa and Brockville.

Guest, Etobicoke high school sculler, won the senior singles by three lengths from Frank Tucker of Brockville. Ed Graves of St. Catharines was third.

My Sweetie, a 1,500-horsepower Detroit powerboat, with Wild Bill Cantrell at the wheel, swept all three heats of the 45-mile Maple Leaf International Trophy race on the Detroit River Saturday.

Her fastest time was hung up in the third 15-mile heat when Cantrell gunned the boat 73.362 miles an hour. The race's fastest lap was also won by My Sweetie with a blistering 76.271 miles an hour in the final lap.

Second place was taken by Delphine X, driven by Horace E. Dodge of Detroit. Dodge is the owner of both Delphine and My Sweetie.

Heavyweight boxer Ezzard Charles, recognized by the National Boxing Association as world champion, definitely will lay his title on the line in a mid-August match, his co-manager said Sunday.

But who he'll face and where remain to be decided, declared Jake Mintz.

"We have not decided yet if we'll go against Freddie Beshore in Buffalo next month," Mintz said. "It's up to the International Boxing Club. I'm waiting to hear from Jim Norris and Al Weil (of the I.B.C.) on it now."

The Charles-Beshore fight was postponed twice when Charles came up with injuries. Matchmaker Charley Pinto in Buffalo insisted Saturday that the match has been reset for the third week in August.

Bill Stewart, veteran National League umpire, interrupted the Braves-Giants game Saturday night to charge from the second base area toward eight men who had been heckling him for seven innings from a first-base box.

The incident occurred as Stewart moved from first base to second for a possible play. Suddenly he ran toward the box with the game still on.

Plate Umpire Lon Warneke called time when he saw Stewart dash from the field.

The umpire said later the men had been abusing him with "vulgar remarks" and that by the 7th inning he couldn't stand it any longer.

Jockey Ken Church was honored Saturday at Arlington Park for his heroic act in saving a fellow rider, Dendell Eads, from possible injury last Wednesday.

Stuyvesant Peabody, chairman of the Illinois Racing Board presented an appropriate scroll to the 20-year-old native of Windsor, Ont., and a leading rider at Arlington. Frank R. Warton, a member of the Board, came up with an engraved gold wrist watch. It was the gift of Warren Wright, owner of Calumet Farm, who heard of Church's exploit.

Church helped Eads regain the saddle when Eads dangled perilously during the running of the trial race Wednesday. Church finished second in the race.

R. B. Rucker had a new experience in fly fishing on the Gunnison River Saturday, when one cast yielded him a 2 3/4 - pound trout and a large river bat.

Using two flies, a Royal Coachman and Ginger Quill, on six feet of leader, Tucker made his cast on the river three miles west of here.

Rocking Chair's Day Not Over

The day of that all-important article of home furniture, — the rocking chair — like the day of a lot of other things once considered indispensable is over, and it is a rare sight to see one today. And yet, in glancing through an exchange, we note that a writer says that every home should have at least one rocking chair to promote love of family and richness of friendship. Therefore it is to be assumed, there must be some homes which still retain the rocking chair.

There's something about a rocking chair that's as comforting to a troubled mind as an old shoe to a tired foot, claims Adeline Bullock in the Journal of Living.

Your body settles easily as you rock back and forth. A hurt, an anger, cannot live. It's lulled and soothed and gradually it's gone. Problems that loom huge and close and hard to solve seem to untangle gently as you rock.

Children like rocking chairs, and what a little child likes is usually good. A little girl takes on a look of wisdom, of dignity and sweet maternal beauty far beyond her years when she settles back to rock her baby doll. A rocking chair has the magic power of bestowing on the very young great gifts of gentleness and wise lovingness.

Old people like rocking chairs too. And what old people like, out of years of choosing, must be very good. An old man rocks, and remembers countless things out of the past. His aged weariness and timidity are rocked away. He sways into himself new courage and peace of soul. The rocking chair helps bestow on the old a freshness of spirit, renewed vigor, new hope.

There's something about a rocking chair that makes the whole world a big, friendly place for young and old.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Thousands, to speak conservatively, are awaiting my book on leads. When it is ready I would like to have it contain only one page. On that page should be only one sentence.

The meat of all the rules for leads are in thot one sentence. A player who understands it needs nothing more. With it he can tell the correct lead from any hand in the world.

The sentence comes in three parts, each part separated by a semi-colon. One of the parts tells what to do. The other two parts will tell what not to do. Two don'ts and one do.

The do part, like every rule in Horse Sense, is a mnemonic. It is an easy guide for remembering. It reads: The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts.

Thus, simply remember your winter ensemble and you know the correct order of preference of leads. Top card lead is first; long suit lead is second; short suit lead is the third and last choice.

♥7 5 3
♦Q 8 6 4
♣K Q 10 3

West has a top card lead; the top of his sequence in clubs. He also has a long suit lead, the fourth best of his diamond suit. Also he has a short suit lead, highest of his doubleton spade.

Which should he employ first? The order of preference of leads tell him. Top card lead comes first if youh av e such a lead. Correct opening lead here from west is the king of clubs.

With an order of choice you find yourself knowing other things. If the first choice is used it does not deny having also a second and third choice. But if second choice is used, it denies having a first.

Therefore, if west had led a short suit he would have denied having a top card lead. East would then have had to believe that west lacked a sequence in any one of the other suits.

Rules are breeders of better leaders.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 10 (AP)—The longtime feud between the movies and radio gets another push by a new picture starring Jimmy Stewart.

The flicker is called "The Jackpot" and it concerns an unhappy gent who wins one of those grand prizes on a radio giveaway show. Let Stewart tell about him.

"Oh, he's a miserable guy. The poor fellow lifts the phone one evening and supplies the correct answer for the jackpot. That's when his trouble begins.

"The prize is worth $24,000, but it's all in merchandize. The guy gets 1,000 fruit trees, thousands of cans of soup, a whole side of beef and a deep-freeze to put it in, a pony, a portable swimming pool, the use of a French maid for two weeks, Alan Mowbray to redecorate his house and Patricia Medina to paint his portrait.

Income Tax!

"Then the sad character finds out he's got to pay income tax on the stuff, amounting to $7,000. He's working at a Midwest department store for $4,500 a year, so he's got to raise the money. He tries to sell the stuff at the store and loses his job.

"He tries to fence a diamond ring in Chicago and gets himself arrested. And his wife leaves him because she thinks he's playing around with Patricia Medina. I'm telling you, the poor mug is in trouble."

Naturally, all turns out well in the end, but only after a number of laughs at radio's expense.

MOTORCYCLE RACER KILLED

Portland, Ore., July 10 (AP)—Motorcycle racer Stanley Lattimer, 28, of Vallejo, Calif., was killed yesterday at the Portland Meadows track, the second fatality in as many days on the oval. Saturday, Phillip Moore, Milwaukee, Ore., was killed in a practice run.

Labor Department To Have Exhibit At Local Fair

The Federal Department of Labor, through the local employment office, will have an interesting and attractive display at the Belleville Fair on August 14, 15, 16, and 17 it was announced here this week. The exhibit is one which has proven a great attraction at the C.N.E. and other large fairs across Canada.

Wherever this unique display has appeared, hundred of fair-goers have availed themselves of the opportunity of gaining information regarding labor in all its phases.

Some of the various Labor Department activities featured at this exhibit are —the National Employment service, including information on employment for men and women, job opportunities for youth, the physically handicapped and the older worker; unemployment insurance benefits and contributions, government annuities, labor-management and industrial relations, vocational training, etc. These services are all vividly portrayed by colorful and descriptive display material which tells a story in clear and concise wording.

Officials accompanying this labor exhibit will be in attendance at the fair at all times to answer questions and to distribute up-to-date literature on any one of these topics.

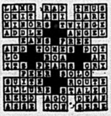
Answer to Saturday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page, and ma said, William, do you realizze the Bockwerths are coming for dinner on Thersday?

The least we can do is to be here to receeve them, pop said, and ma said, What's the menu going to be, that's the berning question. We have not had roast beef for ages and ages, she said.

That's a long time, and yet I know a family who have absilutely never had it, pop said. They're vegetarians, he said, and ma said, Would you recommend a nice chickin??

I wouldn't recommend any other kind, pop said. The last time I was on a farm the chickins impressed me as being extremely insolent, unsociable and opinionated. I wouldn't of recommended a single one of them, he said, and ma said, A roast leg of lamb wouldn't be bad.

I dont doubt it, my dear, pop said. Even whole live lambs are naturelly good. Mary's little lamb must of been a very sweet natured little animal, he said, and ma said, Sometimes fish makes a nice change, but everybody doesn't like fish.

The fish have the better of that argument, because they dont like practically anybody, pop said, and ma said, Oh well, I thawt from the ferst that individual stakes would be the safest thing to have, and that's what it'll be without any ferther discussion.

That proves it, pop said, and ma said, Proves what, for land sakes? and he said, That you were meerly talking out loud to yourself and not consulting me at all.

Oh hush and reed your paper, ma said.

Which he did.

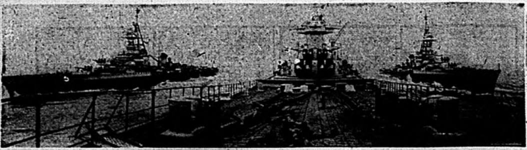
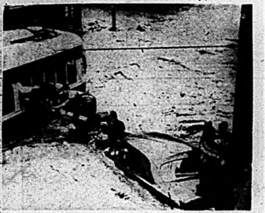
French Army, Navy, Air Force Chiefs in Washington to Discuss American Defence Measures



This remarkable panoramic view of three ships of the French fleet running together was taken during summer manoeuvres off the African coast. The photograph was made from the battleship "Jean Bart" and shows the cruisers Montcalm (left) and the Georges Leygue in close formation. Chiefs of staff of the French army, navy and air force have arrived in Washington for discussion of North Atlantic treaty and military assistance matters. Shown, left, at the National Airport are (left to right) Adm. Forrest Sherman, chief of U.S. naval operations; Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff; Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air force chief of staff; Gen. Charles Francois, French air force chief of staff and chairman of the French joint chiefs of staff; Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman, U.S. joint chiefs of staff; Lieut.-Gen. Clement Blanc, French army chief of staff, and Rear Adm. Marcel Paul Deramond, deputy chief of staff of the French navy. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

FLASH FLOOD BRINGS DEATH, DAMAGE



Three persons lost their lives in flash floods that wreaked havoc in the Pittsburgh area. Dramatic photo shows Mrs. Harry Schiefelbein of suburban Millvale as she was rescued from a stranded street car with the aid of a ladder. Heavy rains flooded homes, snarled traffic and inundated streets. — Central Press Canadian.

COMMONWEALTH DISCUSSES DEFENCE SCIENCE

SHEPHERDED 2,000 OUT OF SEOUL

When the order came to evacuate Seoul, Capt. Viola McConnell, nursing sister from Moncton, N.B., who joined the American Army, took complete charge of getting the women and children out of the city. Although she superintended the evacuation of 2,000 women and children. After she had seen them safely to Tokyo, she went back to Korea with the U.S. forces. She is shown here with a nurse of the Korean army hospital staff. — Central Press Canadian.

BACK FOR MORE AMMUNITION

A variety of headgear is worn by these South Korean soldiers shown receiving small arms ammunition in the fluid battleground of North and South forces. Only 500 U.S. troops are said to be in action so far, and have retired in the face of massive infantry and tank attacks. — Central Press Canadian.

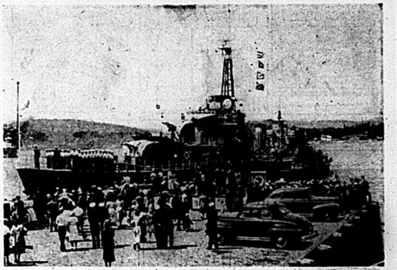
RUSSIAN TANK THAT TERRIFIED KOREANS

This is the Russian tank type responsible so heavily for beating back South Korean forces. It is a T-70, weighs 12 tons. The Soviet army gave many of these to North Korea when the so-called people's democracy was set up. The photo was taken in Korea. — Central Press Canadian.

R.C.A.F. STUDENTS PRACTICE LIFE IN THE RAW

Students taking the special training given by the R.C.A.F.'s School of Survival at Fort Nelson, northern British Columbia, and Cambridge Bay, in the Arctic, learn northland survival techniques the hard way, living out in the open during the three-week course, and sleeping in bush shelters or igloos they build themselves. Flying Officer G. H. Knight of Weyburn, Sask., (in shelter), trims spruce boughs for a rustic mattress, while Flying Officer Tony Hannas of Lamont, Alta., cuts firewood. The two were members of a recent survival course, and the photographer caught them in the bush near Fort Nelson. Purpose of the training is to teach R.C.A.F. personnel how to look after themselves in the northland, in case they are ever forced down. — Central Press Canadian.

RELATIVES, FRIENDS ATTEND DESTROYERS' SAILING



Hundreds of wives, sweethearts, friends and relatives were at the jetties to bid farewells to their loved ones as three Canadian destroyers left Esquimalt for Pearl Harbor. With pennants flying, H.M.C.S. Cayuga goes astern from her jetty and prepares to steam out of harbor. Beyond her bows H.M.C.S. Ontario, who will accompany her for two days, can be seen turning for the harbor mouth. — Central Press Canadian.

SEA ELEPHANT'S ROAR

The sound emerging from this fellow is no kitten's "meow." He is a sea elephant, weighing thousands of pounds, one of the ocean's biggest beasts. He can slither down a walk. One blow from a flipper or a nudge from its trunk-like nose would send a man flying. The Moody Institute of Science has studied these animals and the picture above was made during their shore explorations. — Central Press Canadian.

BATTERED BODY FOUND

San Francisco, July 10 (AP)— Nude and unconscious, an attractive San Francisco secretary, her head battered, was found yesterday on San Francisco's ocean beach. The victim, Mrs. Myrna Stewart, 29, died without regaining consciousness. Police are looking for an army sergeant who was discovered with her but who disappeared moments later.

KEEPER OF HOUNDS ESCAPES

Nashville, Tenn., July 10 — (AP) — The keeper of the bloodhounds at the Tennessee State prison escaped yesterday, but the bloodhounds couldn't track him down.

Charles Lenning, about 30, a trusty serving 12 years for housebreaking and larceny, walked away from his job, guards said.

The hounds picked up his trail, all right. But it led to a dead end — Lenning had got into an automobile. He's still at large.

Six-Day Study Of Religious Problems Begins

Toronto, July 10 (CP)—Leaders of 160,000,000 Christians in 44 countries today begin a six-day study of world-wide religious problems.

In a grey-stone gothic building on the University of Toronto campus, the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches — representing every major Christian denomination but the Roman Catholic Church—will study problems ranging from religious liberty and racial discrimination to Christian judgments on present political and social systems.

The 90-member committee meets annually to act for the assembly of the council, founded at Amsterdam two years ago.

The committee's meeting was opened yesterday with special ecumenical service at Timothy Eaton Memorial Church when Rev. Franklin C. Fry, President of the United Lutheran Church in America, said Christians must take a new "searching, hungering, yearning look at God."

In other churches throughout the city, clergymen attending the meeting preached special sermons. At Grace Church on the hill, Pastor Martin Niemoeller, imprisoned during the Second World War for his opposition to Hitler and who recently attracted wide attention for a statement urging German unity, told an overflow congregation that the real purpose of totalitarianism was to "enthrone man—maybe superman—instead of God."

Urges Prayers For All

In a report to the committee, the council's General Secretary, Dr. W. A. Visser 'T Hooft of Geneva, urged prayers for men and women who have become "the victims of the totalitarian attempt to silence the voice of the church."

He referred specifically to church leaders imprisoned in Hungary and Bulgaria and to church leaders in other eastern European countries and China who "remain loyal to the Christian cause and fight against atheism in its various forms."

The committee will meet until Saturday under the chairmanship of Rt. Rev. K. A. Bell, Anglican Bishop of Chichester, England.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Charlie Reddy walked around examining several completed sculptures. He looked longest at the stylized madonna carved from myrtle wood, then turned, smiling to Stephanie:

"Do I know the model for this piece? It looks like you."

She didn't answer and he saw that her eyes were fixed on a large figure with a soiled cloth drapped over it. Eyes wide, she turned her white face toward him and pointed a shaking finger:

"That over there. Hagar doesn't have a piece that large."

He followed her glance then whirled as she gave a small sharp scream:

The edges of the drape were stained dark red and the floor beneath was wet dark red. You couldn't mistake that color, he thought woodenly. It wasn't paint.

Stephanie had covered her face with her hands and was sobbing jerkily, "oh, it couldn't be Hagar! It couldn't be Hagar! Oh please!"

He forced himself to plod over and lift up the cloth. He had placed his body between the quiet figure on the chair and sobbing girl who stood rigidly in the centre of the room. He looked down at the face which was tilted back and seemed to be staring up at him with enormous sightless eyes. He lowered his eyes and drew the cloth back over the head.

She stood a few seconds, then slumped into Reddy's arms.

Some minutes later, Charlie had carried Stephanie back to the house, revived her and started the coffee dripping. She was on the divan, her hands clenched, trying to think, to feel. He dragged a chair close and sat down.

"I suppose you're afraid it might have been Hagar Blair who punctured Mrs. O'Neill. But forget it, it just isn't logical, she'd have no reason." He eyed her intently. "She wouldn't have a reason, would she?"

Stephanie pressed his handkerchief to her face, muffling her words: "I think she might have. And it's my fault."

He leaned forward. "Stephanie. It's important that you tell me what you know about this. There are two murders now, and that means there's great danger for everyone who's even remotely involved in this."

"Listen Stephanie. When someone commits a murder he or she is not necessarily a dangerous person. The crime could result from an intense momentary emotion—fear, anger, jealousy, any number of things. But when the murderer kills a second time, things take on a very ominous aspect. And we're almost sure both of these deaths were caused by the same person, because of the weapon used."

Stephanie's tears had stopped and she was giving him her attention.

"You may think,' he went on, "that what you know—I'm assuming you know something —is not relevant. But, believe me, anything may be relevant. And I promise that if you confide in me, I'll keep your confidence insofar as I'm able in the interests of justice. You can trust me, Stephanie. And you must, you may be in danger. Just as your friend Hagar is in danger."

At the mention of Hagar's name, Stephanie sat up and swung her feet to the floor. Her blue eyes were wide and very dark:

"Charlie. I'm scared. Where is Hagar? Where could she be?"

He opened his, but there was a sound of liquid meeting flame out in the kitchen and he jumped up and raced toward it.

When he returned he carried a small trey with cups, sugar and coffee pot which he set down on the low table in front of the divan.

He poured. "Can you drink yours black? Better for you."

She nodded, her eyes on his face wonderingly: "How can you be so calm when there's a—when Nellya is—?"

He grinned faintly. "Calm? Who's calm? Usually I can pour a cup of coffee without splashing half of it into the saucer." He mopped it up with a paper napkin. "Here now, take this."

She took the cup and smelled the steam appreciatively.

He settled back in his chair: "I'll have to call the chief pretty quick about this, but first I wish you'd tell me everything, anything you know." He gave her an encouraging grin "better confide cozily over the coffee cups than down in our cold, gray bastille."

Stephanie stared into her coffee then took a trembling sip. She looked somewhere beyond him as she started to speak:

"The first thing you ought to know, I guess, is that my name once was Serenov." Her eyes begged his understanding. "But I am an American. I was born in Chicago. My parents were Russian. And Nellya was my mother's sister."

Reddy stopped drinking his coffee. He put the cup and saucer carefully on the tray. He set his back firmly against the cushions of the chair and folded his hands across his stomach:

"Go on, please," he said."

The amber light from what had been Nell O'Neill's favorite Chinese lamp shone down on the carnelian cameo, on the delicately carved outline of the weeping woman; the pearls and small diamonds surrounding the stone plucked the light and threw it out as a nimbus on the glass table top.

Four men were staring down at the jewel. Chief of Police Peters spoke first:

"Tom," he said quietly, "are you sure you don't want to see the girl and give back the pin personally?"

Tom O'Neill backed away from the group and sank onto a squarish teakwood bench, he clasped his hands and allowed them to hang loosely between his knees.

"Take it out of my sight," he mumbled. "Give it to Nell's niece. She wanted it bad enough to kill Nell for it, didn't she? Well, give it to her."

Charlie Reddy took a step toward him: "Now look here, Tom." He stopped speaking as Chief Peters gestured him to silence.

"Tom," Peters put in patiently, "we've told you the story as we know it, the business of Mrs. O'Neill's theft of the cameo—" he paused as Tom made a belligerent move. "Well, let's say her "appropriation' of the cameo from her sister, who, as you know, was Stephanie Smith's mother. It should be clear that the girl could not possibly have killed her aunt. The time of death precludes that. Mrs. O'Neill died in the middle of the afternoon. Stephanie was at the Three Wishes Shop all day."

Tom's face was set in ugly stubborn lines; he shook his head "Take it out of my sight," he repeated thickly. "Take it away or I'll throw it in the ocean. Give it to her, put it in her murdering hands."

Chief Peters hooked his thumbs into his Sam Brown belt and addressed the ceiling: "Squirrel cage," he grunted. "Two people loose. Town in an uproar. Sightseers all over like ants. Ten-thousand-dollar cameo getting tossed back and forth like a badminton bird." He shook his head in disgust.

"I'll make some coffee."

"Tom," Reddy began, "when did you last see Nell?"

O'Neill shook both fists at Reddy.

"Told you," he sobbed. "Told you yesterday noon. I left her here with Hagar Blair." He bent his head and his tears rained on the floor "didn't see her anymore. Not anymore."

Reddy got up wearily and began to amble around the room. Though it was only a little past midday, Tom had the shades drawn and the lamps lit.

Strolling to the other side of the patio, Reddy paused at the door of Tom's studio then crossed the threshold and glanced around the big room. Rough-hewn, clay-spattered shelves containing a jumble of glazed and unglazed pieces occupied one entire wall. There was a brick kiln in a corner of the room, Reddy walked over and opened its iron door.

Inside, resting on an iron rack were a pair of figurines about 12 inches high and nine wide. The contours extravagantly block-like, seemed to represent stylized female figures, the heads were bent forward in a sleeping or weeping posture. He touched one of them gently, it had a powdery surface. He knew enough about ceramic manufacture to judge that these pieces had been given only their initial firing. Bisque firing, it was called. He decided that possibly Tom had been at work on them when he received the news of Nell's death.

Rambling through the studio, Reddy came upon a large barrel containing liquid clay. Experimentally, he dipped a finger into it—the consistency was like the cake batter he used to sample once upon a time in his mother's kitchen. He wiped his finger on a clay-caked towel hanging over the edge of the barrel.

He stepped back into the O'Neill parlor and found Trotter, Chief Peters and Tom forming a close group. Tom was sipping hot black coffee, holding the cup precariously in both shaking hands.

Peters looked up: "Charlie, no use both of us hanging around here. I want you to check up on Hagar Blair. Phone. Or better yet, take a run over there. If Hagar's present, better bring her around to the station for questioning."

"I was looking out the window and saw you drive up," she explained. "I'm so glad you've come —I tried to reach you by phone all morning. Did you go past the shop."

He followed her into the cheerful atmosphere of Hagar Blair's living room: "Yes, I was worried when I saw the place closed. We've been with Tom O'Neill all morning. Did Hagar get home all right?"

"Of course I came home," a hoarse voice called from the front bedroom. "I'm here, aren't I? What's left of me that is. Come on in and view the remains."

P. P. EVERETT

The Mutual Life of Canada has announced that eight members of its Belleville Branch have qualified for membership in the Company's production clubs on their outstanding records in the club year recently closed.

They are: Messrs. J. G. Jeffery and R. Gamble, Trenton; D. G. Williams, P. P. Everett and W. A. Holway, Belleville; W. N. Hurst, Tweed; C. H. Burr, Picton; and P. C. McGuire, C.L.U., Branch Manager.

Qualification for club membership requires not only the underwriting of a large volume of protection, but, more important, the writing from year to year of "quality" business, that is, life insurance that is continued in force. These two factors, combined with a high personal standard of confidential service to policyholders, earn this recognition for Mutual Life representatives.

U.S. TROOPS FALL BACK TO NEW DEFENCE POSTS

French Assembly Confirms Pleven As New Premier

Member Resistance Party Pleads for Unity in Crisis

He has 50 hours — until 10 a.m. Thursday — to complete his cabinet for Assembly approval. He said he expected to have a cabinet formed by tonight.

Pleven was the second man in a week named to try to end Frances' political crisis. The country has been without a government since June 24 when Premier Georges Bidault resigned.

The new premier pleaded with the Assembly to unite behind a strong government in a time of international crisis.

Pleven had the support of the Socialists, the Movement Populaire Republican, the Radical Socialists and a generous scattering of Independents. The communists formed the bulk of the vote against his confirmation.

Only Beginning

Despite his strong support, Pleven's problems — similar to those which caused the government crisis — are only beginning. The major issue is over increases in minimum wages for low-paid workers.

Political observers say it remains to be seen whether the bitter partisans quarrels break out again when Pleven begins handing out ministerial portfolios. Neither the Socialists nor the pro-Catholic M.R.P. have indicated whether they will participate [illegible] coalition cabinet.

In the debate preceding his victorious [illegible] Pleven told the Assembly: "All Frenchmen realize [illegible] necessity [illegible] uniting under the authority of [illegible] government based [illegible] a majority [illegible] is determined to give an example of [illegible]eadedness, discipline and concern for the country."

[illegible] said he would recommend stepping up France's war budget by [illegible]0,000,000 francs ($250,-000,[illegible]) next year.

[illegible] to Bury Rivalries

Alluding to the Korean war, Pleven pleaded: "In all the great [illegible]acles . . . political men buried their rivalries at the first news of aggression. Can we be the only nation where one hesitates to unite in order to repulse, together, the peril?"

The communist party secretary, Jacques Duclos, digressed from local politics to attack "American aggression" in Korea.

"You lie as easily as you breathe," retorted Duclos.

POLICE PURSUE TWO MEN

CANADA IN CASE OF WAR COULD MOBILIZE QUICKLY

Ottawa, July 11. (CP)—Should Canada become plunged into a full-dress war over Korea, mobilization of her manpower would be fast and smooth compared with that of the Second World War.

Five years after that war's end, much of the framework of the machinery used for directing manpower into military and civilian channels is still in existence. Many of the key men who directed the job are still in government service.

In the last war, everything had to be built up from scratch. But by the end of hostilities Canada had one of the best manpower-mobilization organizations among the Allies.

Key agency in the last war was National Selective Service, which after the opening stages of the war centralized manpower controls under the Department of Labor.

Much of the organization of this agency is still in existence in the form of National Employment Service, which has a network of 300 regional offices across the country. The Wartime Director of N.S.S., Arthur MacNamara, now is Deputy Minister of Labor.

Transition Made Quickly

National Employment Service developed from the Selective Service organization, and still uses many of the facilities and personnel of the wartime body. Officials say the transition back to a wartime basis could be made easily.

Facilities for the placement of technical workers in war industries are in being, while training programs are being [illegible] by the provinces and [illegible] be switched back to federal control in the event of emergency.

Labor-management production committees, a wartime development, are in operation on a scale greater than the wartime basis.

In readiness also is the machinery for the Dominion taking over control of industrial relations in all industries, as was done during the war and the early post-war years.

Jurisdiction in most of the industries was moved back to the provinces in 1948, with the federal government retaining authority in railroads, communications and certain other interprovincial undertakings. This is another field in which control could be quickly returned to the central government.

Two Drowned In Rideau River

Ottawa, Jnuly 11 (CP)—Two persons were drowned and three others escaped [illegible] similar fate when an outboard motor boat overturned at Long [illegible] in the Rideau River about [illegible] miles south of Ottawa Monday [illegible].

In the boat [illegible] them at the time of the accident were Jim Strong, Ruth P[illegible] and Ted Frayne, all of Ottawa. [illegible] three were rescued.

W. G. Burns, occupant of a riverside cottage, heard the cries from the river and swam to the scene. He found Miss [illegible]errier and young Frayne clinging to the overturned boat and urged them to hang on rather than try to swim ashore fully clothed.

HEAD OF HOLDUP SQUAD CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

Incited Others to Stage Robberies is Claim

Montreal, July 11 — (CP) — The ace anti-robbery officer of the Quebec Provincial Police and his assistant will appear in court Wednesday on charges of conspiring to commit and to have others commit armed robberies.

Detective Lieut. Marcel Patenaude, head of the hold-up squad, and Sgt. Gaston Archambault were ordered suspended Monday night by Deputy-Director Hilaire Beauregard pending outcome of their trials.

A third man, Paul Hervieux, who recently was suspended from the force for failing to carry out his duties, also has been arrested on the conspiracy counts. He and Sgt. Archambault will be arraigned today.

Short, bespectacled Patenaude is a former private detective who joined the provincial force seven years ago. Of 17 bank robberies in Montreal during 1949, the squad chief was credited with solving 14 and of nine hold-ups in the district this year, seven have been solved.

Patenaude pleaded innocent and chose trial by judge alone. He was released on two $950 bonds.

Sequel to Charges

The arrests came as a sequel to charges made last February by Charles Emile Poliquin, 28-year-old alleged bank robber who claimed he got "protection" from provincial police.

Poliquin, a Montreal taxi driver with whom Patenaude is alleged to have incited to commit a $4,000 hold-up at a St. Hugues, Que., bank sub-branch, is scheduled to appear for trial at St. Hyacinthe next month on an armed robbery count. The hold-up took place Dec. 2.

Under police questioning, the cabbie claimed he paid protection money to provincial police who never bothered him. A full inquiry was ordered by the Attorney-General's office and Poliquin later retracted the charges.

The three men also are charged with inciting another person to commit a bank hold-up at Rougemont last Dec. 28 and to conspiring between Nov. 1 and Feb. 1 to commit armed robberies at St. Hugues, Rougemont and St. Paul L'Hermite. The latter planned robbery never took place, Beauregard said.

Undermining Stump, This Bulldozer Uncovers 1920 Car

Foxboro, Wis., July 11 (AP) —Farmer Clem Thompson set out to undermine a stump with a bulldozer but scraped metal a few feet down.

At nine feet he uprooted the stump and uncovered an automobile, a 1920 Gardner complete with 1921 Wisconsin licence plates.

Apparently it had been laid away while almost new, as the speedometer registered 3,576 miles and the paint job still is in fair condition.

And how it got buried nine feet down.

PRIME MINISTER OPENS CALGARY STAMPEDE

On a tour of the Prairie provinces, Prime Minister St. Laurent was made a chief of the Plains Indians at Fort Qu'Appele, Sask. The ceremony included the fitting of an eagle-feather headdress as shown here and the conferring of a title: "Chief Wise Leader." Premier Frost Refuses to Meet Paid Official of Association Who is Not Civil Servant

Toronto July 11 (CP) —Premier Frost said today the Ontario Government won't listen to "ultimatums" from employee representatives who are not civil servants.

Refusing to meet with Don G. McMaster, a paid official of the Ontario Civil Service Association the premier waited in vain for a scheduled meeting with association representatives.

Meanwhile, the association executive announced its resignation in protest against the government attitude toward Mr. McMaster, who is not a civil servant.

While Premier Frost was away from the city, McMaster issued a statement in which he indicated that the civil service is prepared to "declare war" on the government on the salary issue and the "inactivity" of the provincial advisory council, a joint board set up some years ago to discuss wage problems.

Premier Frost countered today with the assertion that the government is not going to stand for such an "ultimatum."

"We are prepared to deal with members of the civil service but we are not going to be subjected to ultimatums from outside persons." he said. "The situation can become dangerous when a person outside of the government service can make such statements."

Willing to Negotiate

The Premier emphasized he was willing to negotiate with the civil service at any time. His door was always open to them.

"But not to Mr. McMaster?" he was asked.

"That is not in accordance with government policy," replied the Premier. "We will discuss any problem at any time with the members of the service but not with outsiders. If anything needs changing we will be glad to consider it. All they have to do is come and suggest it.

"We are not making an issue out of anything except the method of approach."

Premier Frost wrote R. C. Johnston, president of the civil service Association on July 5 stating that he would be glad to see representatives of the service.

Set Out Policy in Letter

"In that letter I set out clearly the government's policy of employer and employee relationship, and the joint advisory council system which was introduced in 1943.

"This system has received wide recommendation in the service and the effect of this system on the whole tenor of the civil service including its permanency and rates of pay have been very marked.

To meet rising living costs, the government had instituted a cost-of-living bonus in addition to normal salary increases. The salary schedule was increased. The government was also considering the problem of lower-paid employees.

"I may say that I am prepared to discuss with the representative members of the civil service, the problems of provincial employees," sai dthe premier. "That has always been the case and I have re-emphasized that in my letter of July 5 and I set July 11 at 11 o'clock for such a meeting."

Executive Resigns

The civil service association issued a statement stating that following instructions from the provincial council meeting on May 19, the provincial executive had sibmitted its resignation from the executive.

NEBRASKA FLOOD TAKES FIVE LIVES AFTER 13-IN. RAIN

600 Persons Are Driven From Their Homes

Crete, Neb., July 11 (AP)—The raging big Blue River flood waters rolled downstream today after inundating parts of four towns and causing millions of dollars worth of property and crop damage.

The record breaking flood crest resulting from the run-off of a 13-inch rain at York, 50 miles northeast of here, is expected to reach Beatrice, 25 miles south of here, early Thursday.

The flood, most extensive in the history of York, McColl, Beaver Crossing and Crete, already has claimed five lives, and driven more than 600 from their homes.

The only casualties reported to date were a family group which was drowned in a flash flood near Fullerton, about 100 miles northwest of here. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bogner of Hastings, their two small children and a niece were found dead near the point where their car was washed from the road.

Nine Out of Ten Unmarried Women Work in Britain

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—One of every three paid workers in Britain is a woman.

The same goes for factory workers. In the case of agricultural workers, the woman-to-man ratio is 7 to 1.

Of these, nine out of 20 are unskilled workers, four are skilled, two or three do routine clerical work and four fill higher clerical, technical or professional positions.

These and other facts are contained in a first report on women prepared by the Economic Information Unit of the treasury.

Mrs. L. S. Horton of the Economic Information Unit told The Canadian Press the report had been issued in response to an increasing demand by women's organizations throughout the country.

Wanted Facts

More and more women were clamoring for facts and figures on export, productivity, employment, building and all economic factors with direct bearing on home life.

Created to explain economic problems in clear and understandable language, the unit has worked in close co-operation with the women's organizations, providing much lecture material.

The report explains the part women play in the earnings and saving of dollars. It shows that women form a main artery of industry, productivity, export and, as a natural cycle, the economy of the nation.

In reference to dollar exports, and imports, Canada is mentioned on three pages of the four-page report. Page one says: "The quantity of exports to Canada and the United States has been larger than a year ago, and is still increasing."

Will Try to Stop Invaders' Drive North of Kum River

American Tanks "Mauled" In Brush With Red Armor

Tokyo, July 11 — (CP)—United States troops in South Korea, harried by communist tanks and cunning infiltration tactics, have fallen back to new defence positions at the approaches of Taejon, provisional capital and U. S. headquarters.

A communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the Americans were "continuing their action to stabilize the situation by stopping the North Korean offensive north of the Kum River," the last natural defence barrier to Taejon.

The enemy's closest reported penetration was near Chochiwon, five airline miles north of the Kum River.

At the same time reports direct from the scene of action told of successful North Korean tank actions and of the invaders' skill in slipping through American lines.

One U. S. army spokesman at field headquarters, reporting withdrawal under North Korean pressure "all along our front line," said the communist infiltration tactics were "as good as I have ever seen. They infiltrate by dressing in civilian clothes and move behind our lines at night."

A Reuters' dispatch from the field said American tanks were "mauled" in their first brush with Korean armor.

It said crew members of two tanks which rolled into a rear area said five tanks of their original column were left "twisted and torn" as a result of superior North Korean striking power.

10 Tanks Destroyed

(An Associated Press dispatch from Washington said today that the defence department had reported 10 American tanks destroyed and two disabled in Korean fighting.)

The survivors said that American armor ran into withering fire from opposing communist tanks. One American tank was knocked out by a direct hit. The others were forced into rice fields where they bogged down and were destroyed by the enemy after their ammunition was exhausted.

The battle took place on the main sector of the west Korean front where American troops continued their withdrawal to prepared positions.

Reuters said it is estimated that communist strength in this sector totals 75,000 men, mainly concentrated along the main highway leading to Taejon. They are believed to have at least 80 tanks in support.

MacArthur's communique said that communist activity on the east Korean front also increased "although it still remains on a relatively small scale."

Enemy strength is reported to be increasing near Utchin, an east coast port about 125 miles north of Pusan.

Light bombers and fighters are maintaining their attacks on highways, bridges, railroads and concentrations of ground troops, the communique said.

Washington, July 11 — (AP)—Informed Senators said today they expect a 100,000-man increase in the United States armed forces—at an initial cost of $350,000,000—as the first step in the build-up toward a decisive victory in Korea.

Present strength is about 1,370,-000. The 100,000 figure was reported to have been given to Senate armed services committee members in advance of an appearance before the group today of top military leaders headed by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Bradley and the heads of the services are expected to explain to the Senators why it has taken so long to get heavy equipment and sufficient men into the fighting to stem the southward advance of communist columns.

Draft machinery to produce 20,-000 recruits asked for by the army was in motion, while military leaders sought ships to carry trained troops to back the defence of Southern Korea against invading communists.

Call for 20,000

The defence department said yesterday's call for 20,000 was issued to meet the manpower ceiling approved by President Truman last week. The exact figures that are in the ceiling are still a secret.

Gen. Collins took with him the blue and white flag of the United Nations, which the U.N. presented for MacArthur's use "as Commander-in-Chief of the United forces in Korea."

Defence secretary Louis Johnson, speaking with reference to Secretary Trygve Lie of the U.N., sent a message to MacArthur saying:

The secretary general expressed the wish that this flag be flown at your headquarters until peace is re-established. He hopes the flag will bring the commander-in chief of the unified forces success in the effort he has undertaken on behalf of the United Nations."

It's Just Ten Years Since London Took Brunt of German Air Blitz

By ERNEST AGNEW

London, July 11 (AP)— Just [illegible] years ago the air raid sirens were wailing over Britain.

The first of 50,000 bombs, not [illegible]ing incendiaries, which [illegible] bombers dumped on London in 13 months fell on the cl[illegible] moonlit night of July 11, 1940. It hit an open space, caused no damage, but that was only the beginning.

The war lasted five years and eight months. For 47 of those 63 months London was more or less under attack from the air.

From the dramatic moment at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 3, 1939, when the first false alarm sent Londoners scurrying to air raid shelters, until March 28, 1945—when the sirens sounded for the last time—there were 1,227 air raid alerts in central London. When the war ended, 145,000 houses in Metropolitan London alone had been demolished or made uninhabitable.

Thousands of houses have been rebuilt, so have numbers of damaged buildings, but completion of an ambitious plan for full re-

Two Amputees Try to Get Back in Army

Detroit, July 11 (CP)—Two amputees, both veterans of the Second World War, tried physical and mental examinations Monday in an attempt to get back into the army.

If they pass they will be accepted. The army will accept amputees if they lost limbs in combat duty. Results of Monday's examinations were not immediately announced.

The two men are Harvey T. Grose, 31, whose right leg was amputated above the knee after his tank was shelled at Rheims, and Thomas Schlegel 25, who lost his leg in the Rhineland.

Municipal Self-Insurance Is Advocated

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 11 — (CP)— A resolution requesting the establishment of some form of non-profit municipal self-insurance was passed last night by city council.

The resolution will be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Association, which will be asked to petition the Ontario Legislature for adoption of such a plan.

Failing this the legislature will be asked to provide assistance to municipalities by exemption of municipal equipment from the gasoline tax or by imposition of a levy on insurance corporations to be used as a contribution to wards municipal protective costs.

Girl Sails Frail Craft Across Ocean After Raiders Rob Her Dying Father

Monrovia, Liberia, July 11 — (Reuters) —Terror-stricken Aga Muller, 18, who tried with her father to sail across the Atlantic to South America in a 16-foot boat, cut the anchor and sailed the frail craft single-handed after raiders boarded it off Africa's west coast and robbed her dying father.

At least half a dozen times they were saved by passing ships from the teeth of wild gales as they voyaged from Germany to Ireland, across the Bay of Biscay, along the Spanish coast and south off the west coast of Africa.

TEAMS, SQUADS ASKED TO REFRAIN USING GROUNDS

Organized softball teams and "pickup" squads which have been using the East Hill playgrounds for practice and games are respectfully requested to refrain from using the grounds since it has been taken over by the Recreation Commission as an organized, supervised playground.

The grounds are occupied by children of all ages up till dusk and it is felt the softball games would not only interfere with organized procedure but constitute a danger hazard.

Committee Needs Further $2,000 To Complete Plans

Financing of eight playgrounds being operated in the city by the Belleville Recreation Committee and supervised by the Y.M.C.A., is still the concern of the finance committee chairman, Henry F. Becker, who points out that a total minimum budget of $7,600 must be realized of which approximately $6,000 is now in sight. An amount of $2,000 should still be raised to take care of all emergencies beyond the minimum needs. Contributions can be made to the Bank of Montreal or the Ontario Intelligencer. No. 7 Highway Being Widened At Two Points

Marmora — The improvement of No. 7 highway between Havelock and lock and Marmora focusses at the present time on two spots. Between Blairton and Preneveau, the contractor is widening and straightening a fair - sized section of the highway. Dry drillers have commenced operations on the south side of the rock cut at Marmora. Face lifting of both sides is planned. It is understood that as a result the paved part of the highway will be widened by a foot on each side.

Obituary

MRS. EDITH L. DONALDSON (North Park Street.)

Mrs. Edith L. Donaldson, 44 North Park Street, widow of James Donaldson, died in the Kingston General Hospital on Monday evening after an illness of fifteen months' duration.

The late Mrs. Donaldson, who was in her 85th year, was born in Thurlow township and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Leslie. For a few years She resided near La Riviere, Manitoba, but the greater part of her life was passed in this city and vicinity. In her younger years she was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and took an active part in the work of the women's organizations in connection with the congregation. She also was a valued member of the choir for some years and also acted in an able manner as leader of the Bible Class study. Later Mrs. Donaldson became a member of Bridge Street United Church and when age and health permitted she attended the services there. In the regard of many friends Mrs. Donaldson held a high place.

Mrs Donaldson was twice married, her first husband being W. H. Swales, a prominent merchant in Western Canada. He died many years ago. A son James Swales, predeceased some years ago.

Surviving her are one sister, Mrs. Charles (Gertrude) Anderson, Carrol, Manitoba; three brothers, John Leslie, La Riviere, Manitoba; Allan Leslie, Montreal, and William Leslie, Belleville.

MRS. AGNES BURKETT

Mrs Agnes Burkett, wife of Mr. Patrick Burkett, died at her home, 36 Hillcrest Avenue, Monday afternoon. She was in failing health for some time.

Born in Maynooth 71 years ago Mrs. Burkett was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Shields. Twenty-seven years ago she came from Maynooth to make her home in this city. She was a member of St. Michael's Church and also a member of the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving her are her husband; one son, John Burkett, and one daughter, Miss Estella Burkett, both at home; five sisters, Mrs. B. Gaffney, Mrs. John Finnegan, both of Marmora; Mrs. Michael Cannon, Mrs. Willian Rouse and Miss Teresa Shields, all of Belleville.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE ALAN VERNON CAMPBELL

The funeral of Alan Vernon Campbell, late residence, 28 Great St. James' Street, was held Monday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Canon J. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church.

The bearers were Joseph Semain, James Hay, William Drury, Jack Clarke, Robert Cook and Len Fry, all of whom are members of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association.

At the graveside "The Lament" was played by Pipe Major Jamie Clarke.

ANAF Darts Team Defeats Lakeview To Retain Trophy

The darts team of Branch No. 201, ANAF in Canada here, threw back the challenge of the Lakeview, Toronto Branch team, defeating them 6-0 and retaining the ANAF Provincial Trophy. This is the second time the Belleville veterans have defended their title, they having turned back the Kitchener branch team a few weeks ago.

Included in the Belleville team were Lionel Lefalvre, Dick Burns, Stan. Melbourne, Bill Ford, Joe Samain and Norman Mills. The guests were entertained in the branch clubrooms following the games.

Burned Girl Still Remains In Grave Condition

The condition of eight-year-old Mae Dawn Scrimshaw, who Sunday evening was critically burned when a flaming automobile inner tube dropped on her, is still very grave, it was learned today.

Dr. J. H. Bateman, the little girl's physician, stated that approximately 95 per cent of the girl's body was covered with burns, most of them third degree. About the only part of her body not burned were the soles of her feet and part of one leg.

The accident occurred as the girl was watching her brother repair an inner tube. Liquid cement had been poured on the tube and a lighted match applied to speed drying. The cement exploded and in throwing the tube from him the boy accidentally threw the tube on his sister.

Some Firms Regain Right to Use Mails

Ottawa, July 11 — (CP) — A post office department official said today that some Toronto brokerage firms have regained their right to use the mails. The postmaster-general last March banned use of the mails to about 12 Toronto firms and about 80 individuals employed by them.

He ruled stock promotion literature sent out by the companies was intended to deceive or defraud the public.

The official said there has been no general lifting of the ban. Mail rights were restored to those who gave assurances that they will not again put the type of literature which led to its imposition. He could not say how many have regained their rights.

Request of Hospital Board For Free Utilities Services Turned Down by Commission

Request of the hospital board of governors for the Public Utilities Commission to provide free utility services to the Belleville General Hospital was turned down today by members of the Commission at their regular monthly meeting.

In turning down the request from the hospital, the Commission pointed out that regulations governing the operation of the Utilities would not permit the provision of free utility services for any institution. The Board will be informed by letter of the Commission decision in the matter.

Re-laying of Mains Approved

Re-laying of water mains to provide more water pressure for fire protection at the Stephens-Adamson plant was approved by members of the Commission. Utilities Manager O. H. Scott was authorized to approach the Ontario Cheese Producers with the view of their bearing a share of he cost of installation of the new main. The Ontario Cheese Producers plan to erect a new cheese storage building in the area south of the C.P.R. track and may require quantities of water for cooling purposes.

Utilities Manager Scott pointed out that although the cost of laying a new main to the Stephens-Adamson plant was estimated at about $5,000, the Utilities would receive no greater water revenue.

The McFarland Woodenware Company on Sidney Street, has also asked that water pressure at their plant be stepped up but no action was taken on the matter.

Fire Protection

The possibility of costs of providing water for fire protection through some other manner than from the general water rate was briefly discussed at the meeting.

Mr. Scott noted that the plant and mains necessary to provide fire protection was twice as large as that required for domestic and industrial use. At the present time this cost is recovered through hydrant rental and from the general rate. This system in many instances was unfair to a business requiring large quantities of water but which had a low assessment.

In some municipalities a direct charge against assessed property is made to meet the costs of providing water for fire protection, it was stated.

Water Sources in Thurlow

It was reported at the meeting that work was well underway for extension of water services along several streets in Thurlow township, principally north on Foxboro Road, on Park Street and in the Herchimer Ave. district. New water mains to be laid in these areas this year amount to 5,800 feet.

The Utilities manager also brought to the attention of the meeting request from the Chamber of Commerce that transformer poles at the rear of stores on the west side of Front Street be moved to provide better parking facilities. It was pointed out that it would be costly to move the poles and with the possible exception of one or two installations it would not be feasible to move the poles at the present time.

There was a full attendance at the meeting with Chairman F. S. Follwell and commissioners Mayor H. J. Allin and F. R. Wotten, being present.

Girl Knocked To Pavement As Car Hits Curb

A young girl was knocked to the sidewalk suffering bruises to her leg and shoulder, and minor damage resulted to the front of a grocery store, when a tire blowout caused a car to mount the curb and crash into a grocery store front at the corner of Bleecker and Station Streets.

R. James Watson, 191 Station Street, was driving west on Station Street, when as he attempted to turn south on Bleecker his right front tire blew out, causing him to lose control of the vehicle.

The car mounted the curb knocking Miss Loretta Dafoe, Brassey Street, to the sidewalk and then crashed into the Collins Groceteria store front.

Kiwanians See Travelogue Of Maritimes

An interesting technicolor travelogue of the Maritime Provinces, featured the program of the Belleville Kiwanis Club at their regular weekly luncheon meeting held Tuesday afternoon in Kiwanis Centre.

The film, produced and distributed by Imperial Oil Limited, delved extensively into the history of three eastern provinces revealing at the same time their great possibilities as tourist attractions.

Dr. John Clarke was installed as a new member by Past Lieut.-Governor Cliff Baragar following his introduction to club members by Milton Davison.

Stu Robb outlined the new club project, the "Kiwanis Family Nights," to be held each Wednesday evening at the local Drive-in Theatre, commencing tomorrow evening.

Vacation School Held During Week At Christ Church

Canon Rev. J. Grant Sparling conducted the fifth and closing worship and church instruction period for the Christ Church children's vacation school this morning. At this service Mrs. Arnold Caldwell, registrar, presented the children to the rector to receive their attendance records.

For the past week about sixty children, four to seven years have assembled at the parish hall each morning. The recreation and games have been under the supervision of Mrs. L. Blaker and Miss Ann Bryant.

Mr. Charles Staples, incumbent at Roslin, has conducted the family living stories and dramatizations.

Handicrafts of various types were provided and supervised by Mrs. A. Bongard assisted by Mrs. C. Fuzzen, Mrs. F. Portlock, Mrs. Query and Mrs. C. Shappee.

The Bible lessons were taught, dramatized and illustrated by Mrs. W. A. Simmons, Mrs. L. Blaker, Mrs. J. Grant Sparling and Mrs. H. W. Hollomby, who was also in charge of all music for the school.

Friends of the school provided cookies for the refreshments and David Simmons was general assistant for all departments.

On Thursday, Inspector J. Clair Hayes visited the children and talked to them about the safe crossing of streets to prevent motor accidents, the dangers of pop guns and matches.

Mr. F. Beeby, people's warden, brought greetings from the parish and explained his particular office in the church.

The staff, parents and children feel that the vacation school has been most valuable and plans are now under way for a similar program in 1951.

New British Move To End Fighting Says Newspaper

London, July 11 — (AP) — The Daily Express today reports a new British overture for Russian aid in ending the Korean fighting was in the making. There was no immediate official comment on the report.

The Express says Britain's Ambassador in Moscow, Sir David Kelly, in a future interview with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko "may put forward detailed proposals by which Russia could co-operate in ending the fighting in Korea."

The Kremlin last week declined to take action on a British request relayed verbally by Sir David that Russia intercede to halt the Korean fighting.

The Express says the British cabinet is consulting with the United States, France and other governments about proposals to be made to the Russians. The newspaper adds that any proposals made to Russia would stress

"That any action must be taken through the United Nations."

"That North Korean forces must withdraw to the 38th parallel" — the pre-fighting boundary between North and South Korea.

Pay Highest Taxes Yet Told They Can Pay More in UK

London, July 11 — (AP) — Britons, groaning under the world's heaviest taxes, were told last night they can pay more—and may have to.

The warning was given by Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to House of Commons suggestions from conservatives that tax gathering has reached its limit.

Sir Stafford agreed he has reached "near the limit of direct taxation on incomes."

"But that does not mean," he added, "that we have reached the limit of taxability. There are indirect taxes, death duties, and many other ways by which taxes can be raised.

"If it were the question of an emergency the situation would be quite different."

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our most sincere thanks and appreciation to the nurses and staff of Belleville hospital for the kind attention of Dr. Beattie and his assistants, for the lovely cards, flowers, fruit and visitors while in hospital and during Mr. Wood's convalescence at home, also for the kindness of our loyal neighbors and friends who helped in every way with our farm work and for the substantial sum of money collected by Messrs. Henry Winn and Arthur Waud-by from neighbors and friends, the Sunday School under the direction of Mr. Crisp who visited us with a movie projector and the Sunshine Girls' Club. Thanks a million, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood, R. R. 1, Shannonville. J11

Crop Picture Is Promising

Spring grain, fall wheat and corn are making excellent progress and recent rains have improved pastures.

Throughout southern Ontario, particularly, a brisk demand for dairy cattle by United States buyers is reported.

Egypt Announces Support of West In World Struggle

Cairo, Egypt, July 11 — (AP) — Egypt today announced her support to the west in the world struggle against communism. She called North Korea's attack on South Korea an act of aggression and said she approved the United Nations decision denouncing it.

But a carefully-worded statement by Foreign Minister Mohamed Salah Eddin Bey maintained the Nile kingdom's refusal to support the U.N. security council's decision to use action in Korea.

Salah Eddin outlined the new Egyptian position at a press conference. Observers considered his statement a careful retreat from Egypt's previous "plague-on-both-your-houses" attitude toward Korea.

The other six Arab states earlier broke away from Egyptian leadership to give qualified support to U.N. Korean policies. Egypt has been criticized throughout the western world for her absention from the council decision. Soviet papers praised her stand.

Salah Eddin repudiated Russian support in a two-fisted attack on communism, saying: "I hope the western powers succeed in their efforts to stop the communist menace." Asked if that included Korea, he said: "Everywhere."

Salah Eddin then reiterated the reasons Egypt abstained from supporting the U.N. action in Korea. By implication he stated these were retaliatory.

Without mentioning Palestine, he charged the U.N. has "an easy-going attitude and even takes decisions helping aggressors" in the middle east.

The big "imperialistic" powers take the same attitude, he said, but declined to clarify the relation between these two points and the Korean issue.

GATHER FOR TRIP TO ENGLAND

Montreal, July 11. (CP)— A group of 50 schoolboys from every part of Canada gathered here today to begin a six-weeks tour of England as guests of Garfield Weston, Canadian-born British biscuit manufacturer. The boys, ages 15-17, sail tomorrow from Quebec aboard the liner Franconia, returning late in August.

BATTLE OF THE PARKING METER

A test case in the unique situation arising from parking tickets will be aired soon in Santa Monica, Calif. Principals include Betty Newell, Bob MacDonald and Motorcycle Officer Bob Clark, shown as Clark wrote out violations for the pair, who both own small cars and park them in the same space for a nicked in the meter. Their lawyer thinks one nickel is legal if both cars fit, so the court will have to decide. — Central Press Canadian.

Strachey Offers Apology for Some Of His Remarks

London, July 11. (AP)—War Minister John Strachey apologized today for some of the things he said about the Schuman plan in a speech ten days ago at Colchester.

"I particularly regret," he told the House of Commons, "If any expressions which I used are felt by M. Schuman and his associates to reflect in any way upon their motives."

Strachey was the first speaker in a debate demanded by Conservative Leader Winston Churchill, who insisted the minister's remarks should have a full airing in parliament.

The Labor Party sent out a hard and fast order for its members to attend . the session to bring its full working majority of six to bear against any attempt at a vote of censure, even of a technical nature.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, first speaker for the Conservatives, served immediate notice that Churchill and his followers would not accept Strachey's explanation of his Colchester speech as "satisfactory."

Prime Minister Attlee said he had a talk with Strachey about the Colchester address and "I told him frankly I thought he had made mistakes in his speech."

Attlee said Strachey was "completely in line" with government policy "insofar as he dealt with the features of undemocratic supra-national authority." He added:

Colts Stampede, Young Man Killed

Hawkesbury, July 11 (CP) — William G. Arnold, 22, was trampled to death Saturday when 14 colts stampeded on his father's horse-raising farm near this town, about 60 miles east of Ottawa.

Two other men—John Stokalko and Donat Brault—were cutting a colt from a group and had succeeded in catching the animal when the rest of the horses went berserk and charged.

Stokalto and Brault were not injured.

One Major Strike Ends in Britain, Other One Grows

In London striking meat delivery truck drivers and food handlers decided to end a 17-day unofficial walkout after leaders told them the union had promised to speed negotiations on the wage claims that brought the men out.

In central Scotland, however, miners in 10 more coal mines today went on strike forcing the coal-wage strike picture back on ground gained yesterday when 2,000 of 14,000 striking miners returned to work. More than 15,000 miners now are idle at 60 mines.

The London meat strike, which has kept London on a scanty canned-meat diet for two weeks despite the efforts of troops called in to handle orders, ended today at a mass open air meeting.

Remanded Week On Dangerous Driving Charge

Cornwall, July 11 — (CP) — Ross Ellis of Toronto was released on bail of $800 cash or $1,500 property when he appeared in magistrate's court here Monday on a charge of dangerous driving. Ellis is the alleged driver of a truck owned by Z. Wagman of Toronto which figured in an accident involving two other vehicles on highway two, 22 miles west of Cornwall Sunday night.

James Godfrey of Ajax, driver of an eastbound car transport, died in his flaming cab when he crashed into the ditch after an attempt to avoid collision. Two pessengers in another transport escaped uninjured.

Ellis was arrested by provincial police after a 25-mile chase. He will appear in court July 17.

Korean Sidelights

New Delhi, July 11 — (AP)— An emergency session of India's Parliament to discuss the Korean situation was called for July 31, a government spokesman announced today.

Cairo, Egypt, July 11 (Reuters) — Self-styled "Prince and coming Messiah" Ahmed Kamel, a clerk in the Cairo Electricity Administration, announced today that if those responsible for the Korean war do not order a cease-fire by 10 p. m. tonight "they will be punished by God."

Berlin, July 11 — (AP)— The Soviet - licensed news agency ADN said today that Kim Il Sung, communist North Korean leader, has urged all Koreans to wage a "life or death war against the American aggressors until victory is ours."

Sydney, Australia, July 11 — (AP) — The Royal Australian Air Force in its first combat report of the Korean fighting claimed destruction yesterday of two North Korean tanks, nine vehicles and a rail truck.

A communique issued by RAAF headquarters in Melbourne added that the Australian Mustangs damaged two trucks, a powerhouse and a bridge and carried out attacks on North Korean troop positions.

Announcing the communique, Air Minister Thomas W. White said plans had been completed to expand all branches of the R. A. A. F.

Rome. July 11 — (AP) — Communist-led workers quit work for an hour in the city and province of Rome today in protest against "American aggression in Korea." Tram and bus workers were exempted from the strike order and the walkouts were not noticed in the eternal city.

Tokyo, July 11 — (Reuters) — Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida told reporters today that the Korean war was having a good effect on Japanese morale. American action had convinced the Japanese people the United States would defend Japan in an emergency. The Japanese diet will convene a two-week extraordinary session tomorrow during which the prime minister is expected to give his government's attitude to the Korean crisis in a policy speech.

One-Man Force Guilty of Refusing Night Shift Work

Jamesburg, N. J., July 11 (AP) — The Jamesburg borough council early today found the borough's one-man police force "guilty" of refusing to work the midnight to 5 a. m. shift.

Harry L. Hubbs, the suspended chief of police, testified in his own defence for more than two hours last night, telling how hard he had been working for his $42 weekly salary.

He owns his own police car and his own billy club and even has to help the dogcatcher, he said.

A grandfather and veteran of the First World War, Hubbs was tried and convicted by the council of the borough — 35 miles southeast of New York — on four specific charges:

That he absented himself from duty without just cause; refused to report for duty despite orders from a superior; failed to obey a schedule of working hours; and refused to appear at a meeting of the council's police committee.

There was no announcement of what penalty would be imposed.

Bring in Bill To Abolish N.Z. Upper House

Wellington, N.Z., July 11 — (Reuters) — A bill to abolish the legislative council—was introduced tonight in the house of representatives.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland said the bill provided for the upper house to go out of existence Jan. 1, 1951. Members of the outgoing council would be paid no compensation.

The legislative council's 25 members are said to be predominately pro-labor. It is a non-hereditary body appointed by the governor-general. When a move to abolish it was made 40 years ago it precipitated one of the longest and fiercest political controversies in the dominion's history.

But up to the present there has been little fuss about the new bill, introduced by Holland's conservative government.

The bill, if passed, will amend the New Zealand Constitutional Act to provide that general assembly will comprise the governor general and the house of representatives.

W-C C. G. Ruttan Deputy Director Air Operations

Ottawa, July 11. (CP)—Appointment of Wing Cmdr. C. G. Ruttan, 34, of Toronto and Belleville, as deputy director of air operations, was announced Monday by R.C.A.F. headquarters.

A native of Hamiota, Man., he joined the air force in 1938 after graduation from Brandon college. He served overseas and completed his second tour of operations as commanding officer of No. 415 (night torpedo-bomber) squadron.

On his return to Canada in 1945 he was stationed at air force headquarters and later in Toronto on the directing staff of the R.C.A.F. staff college there.

Haul Sgt. Bray Up Gorge Bank

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 11 — (CP)— Police hauled Sgt. Earl Bray 20 feet feet up the almost vertical Niagara Gorge bank last night after he became marooned while coming out of the gorge depths on a rope.

He had gone down the embankment with two other men to investigate a wrecked car, stolen from William Knight of Stamford.

Bray suffered burns to his left hand from the rope on which he was climbing out of the gorge. He clung to another perilous perch until another rope was tossed over the side of the bank to him. He fastened the rope around his waist and the rescue was carried out without incident.

POPE ADVISED TO REST

Vatican City, July 11 — (AP) —Pope Pius has been advised by his physicians to go to his summer palace in the Alban Hills near Rome a month earlier this year, and the pontiff may leave the Vatican this weekend, Vatican sources reported.

The heavy strain of Holy Year ceremonies and audiences, plus Rome's intense early summer heat this year, reportedly prompted the decision of Papal physician Dr. Riccardo Galeazzi Lisi, Vatican sources said. The 74-year-old pontiff appears fatigued, they

World Council of Churches Prepares Korean Statement

Toronto, July 11 (AP) — The Central Committee of the World Council of Churches today tackles preparation of a statement on the political issues in the Korean situation.

The 90-member policy-making committee of the World Council which embraces about 160,000,000 church members in 44 countries of all major Christian Confessions except Roman Catholicism, meets in closed session on the Korean question.

The privately-expressed views will be heard by a sub-committee which will draft the statement. The statement then will go to the full committee for open debate, probably Thursday.

The Central Committee, holding its annual meeting here, ends its sessions Saturday. The eventual statement will be the most significant Christian viewpoint on the Korean situation which possibly could be expressed apart from that of the Roman Catholic Church, because the council is the largest international body of Protestant and Orthodox faiths.

Asked to Issue

The Central Committee last night was asked to issue a statement by the commission of the churches on international affairs, an agency of the World Council and the International Missionary Council.

Today's closed session was agreed upon because some committee members felt that their views should not be reported for security or other reasons, delegates indicated.

Membership of the Central Committee and the World Council penetrates iron-curtain countries.

The Central Committee yesterday unanimously elected Bishop Eivind Berggrav of Oslo, 66, primate of the Lutheran Church of Norway, as one of the six presidents of the World Council.

Bishop Berggrav, who led Christian resistance in his country during the German occupation, succeeds the former Lutheran Archbishop, Erling Eidem of Uppsala, Sweden. Archbishop Eidem resigned last week because of advanced age.

WRENS NEST IN BATHING SUIT

But when he went to get it the next morning he found two wrens had chosen the suit for a nest.

Court postponed his swimming trip. Yesterday four fledglings were hatched.

Meanwhile, Court bought a new bathing suit.

RED TRAIN BLASTED

Smoke shoots skyward from a North Korean supply train after it was set ablaze, just south of Pyongyang, the communist capital, by navy carrier planes. The aircraft were from the combined American and British fleet. — Central Press Canadian.

BLOOD CLOT DISCOVERY

Liege, Belgium, July 11. (AP)— A blood clotting which keeps you from bleeding to death may be a cause of one of man's worst killer diseases—hardening of the arteries. This possibility was described today by Dr. John Duguid of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, to the first international conference on gerontology—the science of what happens when you grow to old. A blood clot to stop bleeding is made mainly of fibrin, a chemical in the blood. Hardening of the arteries may be started by fibrin's forming deposits inside the artery, Dr. Duguid said.

Soviet Organ Says War Started to Ward Off Depression

Moscow, July 11 (AP) —Trud, organ of the Soviet Trade Unions charged today the United States started the war in Korea to ward off a depression through war spending, and to try to frighten millions of "peace partisans."

It said that millions of Soviet citizens who have signed the Stockholm peace petition are demanding an end "to the criminal venture of the American war mongers" in Korea.

(The so-called peace petition, an appeal to outlaw the atomic bomb, was drawn up at a meeting of the communist-led partisans of peace at Stockholm last spring.)

Trud said the United States would use the Korean war as an excuse to introduce fascist labor laws in the U.S.

Pravda Charges West to Form W. German Army

Moscow, July 11 (AP)— Pravda charged today that the Western powers have ordered formation of a permanent West German Army of 30,000 men.

It said former Nazi officers of all ranks were arriving in the West German capital of Bonn to lead the army.

The West German government, fearing an attack from the East has asked the Western Allies for permission to set up a central West German Federal police force of 25,000 men.

The request was turned down June 22, but following the outbreak of the Korean war, the United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy, said the occupation authorities were willing to consider the request.

He said "no military implications are involved" in the proposed police force.

INCREASED GOLD AND DOLLAR RESERVES

Reserves of gold and U. S. dollars in Canada and the sterling area have increased considerably during the last three months. Last week, (July 5), announcements by Finance Minister Abbott and British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, revealed that dollar reserves in Canada and Britain have jumped $63 million and $438 million respectively since March 31 of this year.

These figures are proof that the drastic devaluation measures and import restrictions adopted by Canada and the sterling countries to reduce the drain on their dollar reserves are meeting with success.

In November 1947, Canada's reserve supply of American dollars had dwindled to less than $500 million and the $1,255 million total for June 30, is the largest surplus that has been accumulated since that time.

There are several reasons for Canada's improved dollar position. Devaluation of the Canadian dollar and the premium on U. S. funds had the dual effect of stepping up the flow of American risk capital into this country and discouraged the large scale transfer of dividends from Canadian branches to American parent companies. At the same time, Canadian exports and gold shipments (which are not included in commodity trade figures) to the U. S. have been consistently higher since devaluation.

Britain acts as banker for the sterling block which includes all the Commonwealth countries (except Canada) and other states such as Egypt, Burma, Iraq and Iceland. The June 30 balance of $2.4 billion is the first time since devaluation of the pound last September that Britain's sterling reserves have risen above the $2 billion mark which the British government committed itself to two years ago as the absolute minimum safety level. Since devaluation, the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves have increased by $1.1 billion.

Britain's increased dollar earnings are a reflection of increased demand for raw materials and other sterling area products in the U.S. During April, May and June sterling countries collected $180 million more for goods sold to dollar countries than they paid out for imports from the so-called hard currency area.

While this is welcome news to both Canada and Britain, it will be still more satisfying to Canadian farmers and manufacturers when Britain can spend as well as earn more dollars. In this connection, it is encouraging to note an item in the London Times which states, "The British government has authorized the importation of the maximum supply of newsprint likely to be available from Canada this year, and has decided to purchase 37,500 tons of Canadian newsprint in the first half of 1951."

THE WEATHER'S CHANGE

The heat, the inexorable companion of summer, is with us again, and long and plentiful are the moans of anguish as grimy citizens wipe their brows. It seems to be the nature of the beast that he must gripe and carp about the situation, even when he knows that he cannot do a great deal about it.

The old army saying was that if you weren't griping about something, you weren't happy, and so citizens find something to gripe about, whether it's the heat or the lack of it. For every person who thrives on the hot rays of the sun, there seem to be five whose lives are made miserable. The noise is deafening as the five drown out the one satisfied sun-lover. The same is true in the winter time. For the five who snuggle down into their overcoats, swathe their feet in flight boots, wrap heavy mufflers around their necks and cover their ears with bright red muffs, there is one person who thrives on cold air.

Winter or summer, the one person who thrives on the elements makes the sufferer's lot worse. Fans, cold drinks, tropical clothes and tree shade go for nought when the irrepressible type slaps the sufferer between the shoulder blades and booms "Isn't this lovely weather?"

There ought to be a law.

COMPLICATION OF MODERN LIFE

We have long had a profound yearning to get hold of a package we can merely rip open, just like the good old days.

Even — if necessary — to have the contents fall where they may, says Hamilton Spectator.

We admire the ingenuity and care that has gone into the miniature red guiding strips and punch holes, and delicately inscribed instructions that tell us where to start and how to go about it, but we feel we are not alone in ending in frustration and a rip that usually creates chaos.

Modern packaging, like a lot of super-efficient gadgeting, is bent on chastising the tyro. If it goes much further it looks as if some kind of course for impatient openers will be essential. Even the squirting grapefruit was never so vengeful as these products of technical know-how.

GRADUATION FOR PARENTS

When he came his father said
To the mother, still in bed:
"Life for us is very different going to be.
We've a glorious dream to share!
Starting now, we must prepare
For the triumphs he may bring to you and me.

"When he's five years old, we know,
To a school he'll start to go,
And later on a high school

Though it now seems far away,
There's his graduation day
At the college where our son we hope to send."

That was many years ago.
Sitting near, with eyes aglow,
They watched him in his cap and gown of blue.
"His commencement!" friends were told,
But for them a dream of old,
That began when he was

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 11th., 1930

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K. C., of this city, was elected a member of the council of the Ontario Historical Society which met in this city recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Silvester of Los Angeles, California, are visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Silvester, Yeomans St.

Mrs. Richardson and children of Pittsburgh, Mass., are visiting her aunt, Mrs. M. Latta, Yeomans Street.

The Rev. G. F. Denyes, S. G. Nay, Everett Rankin, John Baskerville, Miss Eva Mitchell and Miss Dorcas McCoLough, all of Manitoba, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Denyes. The party had been attending the convention in Toronto of the International Religious Educational Council. The Rev. G. F. Denyes preached in his old home church at Zion Hill on Sunday.

30 YEARS AGO

July 11th., 1920

The Boy Scout Camp will be located at Moira Lake this summer. W. H. Finkle and W.A.S. M. Hayes will be in charge of the boys.

A provincial engineer was in the city yesterday and conferred with members of the local Board of Health with regards to the condition of the water in the Moira River. Samples of the water were taken from the river near Lazier's mill and will be tested.

Mrs. Greenwood left for her home in Welland today after visiting her daughter, Mrs. Garn E. Dobbs, Yeomans St.

Mrs. G. H. Horn and granddaughter, Miss Gertrude Church, of New Liskeard are visiting relatives in the city.

40 YEARS AGO

July 11th., 1910

The city council has been requested to extend the street watering service over a larger area during the Old Boys' Reunion and will undertake to do so.

The Secretary of the Old Boys' Reunion has secured several pictures and photographs of old scenes and of old residents of Belleville, which are now on view at the Reunion Office opposite the post office. The officials will be glad to secure more pictures and will take good care of any pictures loaned to them.

Mr. Bernard Fraser of Montreal is visiting friends in town.

50 YEARS AGO

July 11th., 1900

Some fine bass were caught in the bay near the bay bridge last evening.

The 15th. Battalion will parade this evening with both bands.

The I. O. O. F. Band of this city will take part in the Orange demonstration at Cobourg tomorrow.

Mr. Geo. E. Fax of this city, popular singer and entertainer, will take part in a concert at Norwood tomorrow evening.

Ald. W. W. Chown and Mrs. Chown are spending a few days in Montreal.

Dr. J. J. Kelly, formerly of Belleville, now of Sydney, Australia, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. G. G. Thrasher, barrister, of Stirling, was in town today.

Emmanuel Church Sunday School Picnic to Twelve O'Clock Point was well attended today.

HOUSES AND HOMES

Architects report that great improvements have been made in American homes in the past five years. Even despite the set-back caused by a few unscupulous builders who threw up expensive, poorly-built homes constructed of inferior materials, families, living in new houses enjoy comforts and conveniences virtually unknown a decade ago.

In the kitchen, properly placed units save literally miles of walking each year, while dish and clothes washers, garbage disposal devices, and improved stoves and refrigerators make preparing of meals easier. Heating units are smaller but more efficient; insulation and new types of windows save fuel.

Thousands of architects, engineers, and manufacturers are working to produce better houses. But what we really need is to have millions of people working to produce better homes. The roof over our heads is important, but not nearly so important as the people under it and their relationship with one another. Juvenile delinquency, adult crime, divorce, drunkenness, mental illness—all of these can often be traced to unhappy family life.

Not everyone can improve houses, but everyone in a family can improve a home. No technical training is needed. Consideration for others, generosity, unselfishness, co-operativeness, honesty, and reverence can remodel a place to live and make it a real home.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BASEBALL UMPIRE

The baseball umpire is always in a hot spot, but without him our great game of baseball would lose much of its contestant inspiration. In the first place they are a grand lot of men whose judgment is usually accepted without question. And this is as it should be, just as a judge in the court has the final word.

There are errors made at times, as is natural, for umpires are human; the same as each one of the players. They cannot afford, however, to be anything but neutral and just. It is their business to be fair. They often lean backward to be so. They must be alert and accurate in their rulings, and in all but rare occasions their judgment and decision are acccepted. They give wholesome respect to the game.

Praise the umpire, I would say, at every opportunity. Give him his just due. The game wouldn't be the fine thing that it is without him. His profession is a worthy and commendable one. I can never sympathize with that player who disputes his decision.

One of the finest and ablest, as well as most interesting, broadcasters of baseball games, is "the old redhead," Red Barber. I like the praise that he is forever taking the opportunity to give the umpires. He is helping hundreds of thousands to admire and respect these men, as they deserve. His brief sayings, from time to time, climb right into the heart!

Instead of jeering the umpire, praise him! He has a difficult job and often a dangerous one. He is essential to the game. He helps tremendously to round out the game so as to make it move smoothly, and according to the accepted rules. His eyes are riveted to but one spot when a decision is to be made. That is his only concern of the moment.

It is inspiring to have days in which outstanding baseball players are honored for their skillful work over the years, as a mark of appreciation for their entertainment to millions of "fans". I would like to see many of the old stalwarts, among the umpires, so honored. It would meet with universal approval, I am sure.

Mackenzie's Column:

United Nations Praised for Stand Taken in Crisis

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

It's too bad that it has taken another war to put the United Nations on its feet, but it's a grand thing that the peace organization had the courage to stand up to its obligations when the crisis came.

The forthright and fearless manner in which the U. N. has met Moscow-sponsored Northern Korea's aggression against her sister state likely saved the organization from the fate of the League of Nations.

And it did take two-fisted courage for the Security Council to pursue its rightful course in the face of fierce opposition from the powerful communist bloc headed by Russia. Failure to stand squarely up to the Korean issue would have been a wide - open invitation to more aggression.

But, says somebody, this action has further emphasized the division of the peace organization into two blocs — the reds and the democracies. The Russian bloc might withdraw from the U. N. altogether.

That is a contingency which must be faced. Should it happen the democracies probably would label it "regrettable" — but a lot of 'em would smile when they said it and they would carry on.

Speech Recalled

You will recall that last April 27 the former president of the United States, Herbert Hoover, made a speech in New York calling for the scrapping of the U.N. and the setting up of a new one with the communist countries shut out. He declared the need was great for a dynamic "new united front" against "creeping red imperialism."

This proposal by Hoover has come to be known as "Hooverizing the U. N." Should the Soviet bloc now walk out in anger, it would achieve the same result. Whether Moscow will pursue such a drastic course is a matter of speculation.

A good many of the U. N. delegates are happy that Russia was not represented in the Security Council meeting which ordered a cease fire in Korea June 25 and the withdrawal of the invading North Korean troops. Because of the Soviet absence the order rolled through without hitch. Of course Moscow claims that the action was illegal because of the presence of Nationalist China — but legal or illegal, it is working.

Russia hasn't bolstered her stock in the U. N. any by her manoeuvres. On the contrary, she is stimulating defensive preparations in the camp of the democracies.

Prime Minister Hailed by Visitors And by Heavens

Calgary, July 11 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent was hailed last night—both by thousands of Stampede visitors and by the heavens—as he officially opened the annual Western show. Just as he began his address, hail began to pelt him on the stage, and then a cloudburst swept over the exhibition grounds.

However, the Prime Minister gamely finished his address. Mayor Don MacKay tried to keep the show going by leading a damp sing song. The replica of the big cake sent from Edmonton for Calgary's 75th birthday party was whipped off the infield before it got too soggy.

As the crowd of 26,000 pushed its way out of the enclosure, threats of panic appeared as people gasped for air in the dense throng, and small children were crushed.

St. Laurent declared the Stampede had become a national institution, "and it is our common pride in these national instititutions, our sports, our arts, and in the stability of its political institutions—and hail storms —that is the very foundation of our national development."

Dead Americans Had Hands Tied, Shot Thru Head

Near the Front in Korea, July 11 (AP)— I saw two dead American soldiers Monday who had been shot through the head. Their hands were tied behind them.

The two soldiers lay just off a main road which carried traffic supplying front-line fighters. They had been there since Monday morning, I was told later by infantry officers.

These officers said three Americans had been tied and shot in the head but I saw only the two bodies.

(Yesterday, American Lieut. D. C. Gates reported that seven American soldiers, their hands tied behind, had been shot to death by North Koreans. There was no indication whether the three reported today were some of those, or additional atrocities.)

I found no one who witnessed these slayings. Based on what was known of the fighting at this point early Monday, the belief was held generally that the soldiers riding in a jeep in the morning mist, suddenly found themselves only 20 yards or so from a North Korean tank.

With the tank guns raised upon them, they jumped out and surrendered.

21 Persons Killed In Plane Crash

Casablanca, French Morocco, July 10 (CP)—Investigators said today they believed a sudden unexplained failure of the plane's lights caused the crash yesterday of a French plane in which 21 persons died. The plane crashed soon after it took off from Casablanca airport.

After the blackout, the pilot tried to land but the left propellor hit a hill, and the plane caught fire, investigators said.

REPORT WHEAT PROSPECT GOOD

Prospects of a good 1950 world wheat crop are reported by the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. Wheat supplies remaining in the four major exporting countries — the U.S., Canada, Australia and Argentina — continue to be substantially above last year and European wheat crops may exceed those of 1949, the report states. Estimated supplies remaining at June 1 this year in the above four countries totalled 781,000,000 bushels, compared with 657,000,000 a year ago. Here, a Canadian wheat farmer and his wife stand in the midst of a bountiful crop near harvest time. — Central Press Canadian.

MY OPINION OF KING TOOT

A Shady Cove reader—I bet that will keep 99 per cent of our readers guessing—thinks my somersaults are fine, but has never heard my opinion of buckwheat pancakes.

That reminds me. On March 3, or maybe it was the 2nd of March, I dropped in for a look round the Museum of Egyptian Antiquities in Cairo where several huge galleries are filled exclusively with treasures from Tutankhamen's tomb. Or so they say. I make no affidavit, but if they had driven me to the museum from the creaky old roost known as Shepheard's Hotel behind a spanking team of giraffes I'd still say there is no such animal. But then, I suppose I'm skeptical of a good many things in which most people and most good doctors believe—for instance that digitalis is a heart tonic or has some magic power to keep a damaged or failing heart working well, or that ra-bi-es (prounced ray-bi-ease) occurs in man.

As for the digitials legend—it is these things and many others I had learned in medical school. But in practice I failed to find any substantial evidence to corroborate the beliefs and what is more, I have never met a doctor who was convinced beyond reasonable doubt that he or she has seen a case of ra-bi-es in man.

As for the digitails legend—it is as credible as it was when the old woman of Shropshire imparted to Dr. William Withering her knowledge of the use of foxglove for dropsy. That was 175 years ago. In any case of dropsy if the patient improves with rest and general treatment, the circulation usually improves at the same time or shortly afterward. Old timers noticed this and inferred that the foxglove (digitalis) used for the dropsy improved the function of the heart. Thus in the course of time digitalis became "a heart tonic" I would suggest where the drug may be used as a heart tonic" I would suggest that an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex be used instead.

But buckwheat pancakes, the genuine, old-fashioned, yeast raised pure buckwheat pancakes, while perhaps not apocryphal do seem virtually extinct west of the Mississippi. It is still possible to get buckwheat flour from the Birkett Mills in Penn Yan, N.Y.

To the best of my recollection —yeast-raised 100 per cent buckwheat pancakes served in stacks of three by the endless chain system, with gobs of butter and plenty of maple syrup unadulterated with corn syrup and other cheap substitutes, unboiled coffee brewed after the recipe in the red book, make the A No. 1, top, nourishing, satisfying, balanced, unequaled breakfast for people who work, play or get a reasonable amount of exercise daily. Besides being smacking good to eat, yeast-raised 100 per cent buckwheat pancakes give one a good ration of a nutritional factor which the ordinary namby-pamby breakfast conspicuously lacks, namely vitamin B complex.

That's my opinion of buckwheat pancakes.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Circumcision

Is it necessary or advisable to circumcise a baby if the foreskin is tight? (R. N. W.)

Answer—Circumcision is advisable only when foreskin is so tight as to interfere with urination or daily cleanliness.

B-Complex and Wrinkles

At 55 I have too many wrinkles around the angles of mouth. Is there anything I can do about it? (Mrs. H. T.)

Answer—Yes. Boop your riboflavin intake. This is one of the componen's of the vitamin B-complex formerly called vitamin B2 or G. Richest food source of it is milk—fresh, whole, skim milk, buttermilk, evaporated milk, or any of the cultured milk beverages you like, and any and every kind of cheese. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Cosmetic Blemishes. More truth than poetry in the association of milk drinking with school-girl complexion.

Birthmarks

What causes birthmarks? Are they inherited or caused by some shock to the mother. (C. G.)

Answer—Cause unknown. I regret to say so, because it will give a lot of ignorant, superstitious persons the impulse to embroider their old wives' tales.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

According to veterinary science, there is a certain amount of feeble-mindedness amongst animals. Now and again, a nit-wit dog or horse is born, though the incidence is not as great as amongst the human species. The reason for this is that it is a little harder to recognize mental defects in an animal. For example, many people hold the view that all cows are simple.

Yet in a litter of pups, there are all the degrees of mental agility that you will find in a family of human beings, some bright, some dull. Every breeder of sporting dogs, for instance, knows that in every litter you will find one or two dogs that are intelligent enough to absorb training. The rest are dopes. The good-looking ones might be developed as show dogs. What is left become pets. Just the same as in a human family.

A cocker spaniel with whom I am acquainted is a pretty fine demonstration of the heights of intelligence and the depth of dopery to which a dog can aspire. He is about five years old, and long ago he learned how to tell when his master and mistress were about to go out, leaving him alone in the house; a situation he detests. Whenever these clues come to him, he gets out into the large garden. And there, grinning maliciously away at the foot amid the bushes, he awaits developments. It used to take his master and mistress anything from ten to twenty minutes to catch him.

They discovered, however, a way to beat him, at the game. Whenever he retreats to the foot of the garden, the master leaves the back door open, goes to the front door, opens it softly, rings the front door bell loud and long; and then re-opens and closes the front door loudly.

This proves too much for the cocker. Up he races from the garden and in the open back door, to see who has come. The mistress is hiding behind the kitchen door, and slams it.

Trapped! The dope.

Errors Pave Way For Hastings Win Over Motors

Trenton —(Special) — Four Trenton errors in the last of the ninth, enabled Hastings Legion to break up a five all tie and score three runs to defeat Weese Motors 8-5 in a Trent Valley Softball League Game at Bayshore Park Monday night.

The loss still left Trenton in a first-place tie with Frankford, as the Merchants were defeated by Campbellford last night 9-5.

Both pitchers went the distance and each gave up six hits. Chevrolet hurler Ernie Curtis struck out 10 and walked two. Jack Crawley on the Hastings mound fired the third strike past six Trenton hitters and walked four.

The Weesemen failed to back up Curtis' six hit pitching and made a total of ten errors while Hastings played tight ball and only miscued on one.

Hastings opened the scoring in the third, scoring twice. Lou Carswell hit a round tripper for the garagemen in the fourth with nobody on and Norm McCue's boys tied it up in the fifth when Ivan Istead rapped out a double to score Frank Miron.

Take Lead In 6th

In the sixth, Hastings took the lead again when Morley Richardson hit safely into centre field and Chevrolet centre fielder Miller fumbled the pick up for a three base error. The Legionnaires picked up three more runs in the seventh as Trenton booted three more easy drives.

Trenton tied the score in the seventh on runs by Frank Miron who hit safely and moved around on a Hastings error, then Joe Scott slugged a long two-bagger to score Istead and Miller.

Murray Fife, Hastings first baseman, was the fastest man on the base paths and stole home from third when Chevrolet catcher Whitley was holding the ball and waiting for him.

Third sacker Beavis collected a single and a triple in three tries for Hastings and centre fielder Morley Richardson came up with two singles in five trips to the plate.

Trenton's best men at the plate were Joe Scott and Ivan Istead who each connected for a double and Lou Carswell who hit a one run homer.

Umpires Joe Semaine and Lou Istead were really on the spot in the last of the ninth when Ivan Istead blooped a Texas Leaguer into short left field and Hastings centre fielder Phillips made a shoe string catch. In making the catch, Phillips made a head first somersault but came up holding the ball. After consultation and the usual jeering from both teams, the umpires agreed that Phillips had made the catch.

Recreation Week Brings in $3,500

Trenton — (Special) — Recreation Week proceeds netted the Recreation Commission $3,500, Treasurer N. Bingeman announced Monday. The returns from a Legion Chicken - Smoker have not yet been received and there are still some outstanding accounts, said Mr. Bingeman.

"Very good," is how Mr. Bingeman described the results, although he hopes to see even bigger and better Recreation Weeks in the future as the Commission gets more experience.

A canvass of Trenton industries and merchants for funds has not yet been completed, but it is expected that final results will be known in another week or so.

The first effort of this kind, Recreation Week was held from May 22 to 27 and featured a week long series of entertaining events staged both in Trenton and at No. 6 Repair Depot and RCAF Station, Trenton.

Formerly, the Recreation Commission obtained its funds entirely from money contributed by local industries and merchants and grants from the town and province.

CHINESE RELEASE SHIP

Hong Kong, July 11 — (AP- — The Chinese Nationalist Navy released the 7,000-ton British steamship Kefalonia July 7 near Formosa, a radiogram from the ship's captain said today.

Captured Budgie Is Belligerent, Who Owns Him?

Trenton—Some sad Trentonian has lost a budgerigar. In case anyone is not exactly certain what a budgerigar is, it might be a good idea to clear up the confusion and let everybody know the creature in question is commonly known as a budgie.

Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Fullerton, 16 Bay Street, heard a slight commotion in the tree in front of their home and on investigating, discovered the disturbance was being caused by a small green and yellow budgie.

With some difficulty Mr. Fullerton managed to capture the bird, because the bellicose budgie viciously attacks anyone trying to handle him. On Monday morning, Mrs. Fullerton took the belligerent bird to Kerr's Flower Shop on Dundas Street East. Now, the budgie is in a cage at the flower shop and at present is staging a hunger stike.

Unfortunately, the bird has not sufficient vocabulary to tell his finders to whom he belongs but according to Mrs. Kerr, the budgie is about two years old. Mrs. Kerr also reports that unless the bird decides to take some nourishment within the next 24 hours it will be a dead duck (or in this case, budgie) as she says this is the maximun length of time the birds can live without eating or drinking.

Mrs. Kerr was obliged to put the bird in a cage by itself because it is of such a touchy disposition that it shows a tendency to spar with other budgies in nearby cages.

The budgie has a bright yellow green breast and four black spots on a bright yellow throat. Its wings are mottled brown and yellow. Ownership of the bird can be determined by the identification number on its leg band. Anyone claiming the bird must produce the bird's registration number.

2ND THURLOW

Section 2 Back In Second Place Of Tennis Loop

Section 2 of the Quinte Tennis Club moved back into second-place in the Bay of Quinte Tennis League last evening as they nosed out Section 1 of the Quinte Club three matches to two. Results of the play are:

Men's doubles: Con Moolenburgh and Alec Cunningham, Quinte 2, defeated Tom Bunnett and Toomey Black 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

Ross Cass and Alf Wilkes, Quinte 2 beat Wally Ives and Les Digby, Quinte 1, 7-5, 6-1.

Mixed doubles: Madge Cowley and Dan Cowley, Quinte 2, downed Jo Gist and Ted Shreeve, Quinte 1, 6-0, 6-3.

Barbara Ketcheson and Charles Tucker, Quinte 2, lost to Eve Robbins and Dick Morden, Quinte 1, 6-3, 6-3.

Ladies doubles: Lois McIlraith and Phyllis Coles, Quinte 1, defeated Jeanette Webb and Jean Green, Quinte 2, 6-4, 6-1.

MOTHER OF TWO IS MISSING

Galt, July 11 (CP)— Police announced today that Mrs. Graham Nairn, 21, has been missing from her home since July 6. She has two children, age 4 months and 22 months. Mrs. Nairn is 5 feet 5 in height, weight 174 pounds and fair complexion with slight scar on her forehead. No reason is known for her disappearance.

MARMORA

Darrah Pitches One-Hitter to Down Norwood

Marmora— Norwood switched their postponed home fixture with Marmora to the latter's grounds on Monday evening to lose by 11—2. Darrah on the mound for the winner was in fine form, allowing only one hit. E. Spencer who started for Norwood was relieved by Kelly in the third inning. Dikun, Augur and Killian got two base hits for their team which yielded runs. Scott for Norwood and Hickey for Marmora made spectacular catches in deep right field. Although the venue of play was changed at short notice, a fair sized crowd viewed the encounter.

Teams:—

FRANKFORD

Frankford Hands Campbellford An 8-0 Defeat

Frankford Merchants handed Campbellford an 8-0 shellacking on the Frankford diamond before a large crowd. Frankford sent Rogers, their newest pitching acquisition from the now defunct Stirling team, and he promptly turned in a one-hit shut-out.

Frankford sprayed hits all over the place from the first pitch, and only a bit of sensational defensive play by Campbellford prevented the score from being much higher. However, this win did not change Frankford's standing, as Trenton dropped Wooler, thus retaining the first-place tie in the league.

Archbishop of York Urges Pact to Outlaw Nuclear Bombs

York, England, July 11 (AP)— The United States and Britain should jointly make a "direct approach" to Russia to gain agreement on outlawing the hydrogen and atomic bombs, the Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, said today.

The Anglican prelate told the York Diocesan Conference that "discussions if not negotiations, should be recommended; they are more likely to succeed while America is overwhelmingly superior in her possession of nuclear weapons.

"Such discussions might fail, but if they do the position could hardly be worse than it is at present."

RUSSIANS RELEASE WAGONS

Berlin, July 11 (Reuters) — Russian authorities today released 12 of 22 West German mail car wagons which they seized Sunday night at the Soviet zone checkpoint at Marienborn.

The cars reached Berlin this morning. The other 10 were believed to have been allowed to go to Hanover, in the British zone.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

Bayside W.M.S. Presents Gift to Departing Member

White's District — The Bayside Woman's Missionary Society entertained the members of the Sunbeam Mission Band and Baby Band and their mothers at their July meeting at White's Church on Wednesday afternoon.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. C. Rush who opened with the children's hymn, "Jesus Loves Me," with Miss Mary Rush as pianist.

The scripture reading was given by Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson. Mrs. Rush read a letter of thanks from the Rev. J. Joblin, a former pastor, for the card of sympathy received from the W.M.S. following his bereavement.

Mrs. Filyer was called to the front and an address was given by Mrs. Rush and on behalf of the members of Bayside W.M.S., Mrs. Leonard Young presented Mrs. Filyer with a small gift. Mr. and Mrs. Filyer are leaving soon to make their new home in the Toronto district.

Mrs Filyer responded graciously, thanking the ladies for their kindness and also the ladies of the Woman's Association for their gift.

Mrs. Glen Meyers assisted by Mrs. Floyd Dudley, arranged games for the Mission Band with the winners receiving prizes.

Mrs. Young chose games for the Baby Band and smaller Mission Band members. The winners received prizes.

Refreshments were served by the ladies.

S.A. Woman Officer Among Last Whites To Leave S. Korea

London, July 11. (CP)—A Canadian woman Salvation Army Officer, Ada Irwin, probably was among the last white women to leave South Korea after the invading communist forces crossed the 38th parallel.

Salvation Army International officers said today Miss Irwin "elected to watch developments" and stayed in Seoul, South Korea, until June 28. She flew to Tokyo just before Seoul fell.

Miss Irwin is in her 50's, it was stated here, and come from Victoria, B.C. She served at Salvation Army training offices in Toronto during the war.

The information was received from commissioner Herbert Lord, 60-year-old British Salvation Army officer believed to be still in Seoul.

P. M. OPENS BIG SHOW

Calgary, July 11 — (CP) — A cowpuncher named Lou was right in there Monday in the biggest, most colorful parade you ever saw.

The cowboy named Lou — otherwise Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent — was there at the front in cowboy suit, waving down from the seat of an old-fashioned driving carriage to tens of thousands of people who lined the streets six deep for blocks.

Monday night Mr. St. Laurent formally opened the stampede by confession that in recent weeks he has fulfilled two boyhood ambitions. In Chicago recently he drove a railway locomotive. Monday he put on those cowboy clothes and drove in this cowboy show.

2ND THURLOW

Departing Teacher Honored by Parents, Pupils With Gift

2nd Thurlow — Parents and pupils of S.S. 4 Thurlow, invaded the school at the close of the term and tendered their teacher, Miss Cline, a surprise, prior to her leaving for her home in Saskatchewan.

Community singing was enjoyed after which, Miss Cline was given the seat of honor, and Patsy Thompson read an appropriate address, expressing regret of her departure.

On behalf of the pupils, Doris Thompson presented her with a silver sugar and cream set and tray.

Miss Cline graciously thanked all for the lovely gift which she will cherish. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

Shannonville — The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Doxtator on Wednesday afternoon last with 25 members and visitors in attendance.

The president, Mrs. L. W. Scott, welcomed all and read a beautiful poem entitled "Christ Had Compassion."

Two quilts were reported finished, and linings were kindly donated by the secretary, Mrs. Damon Hinchey. Gratitude was expressed to those who had helped in making the quilts, by the president. The quilts are ready for packing as well as those given by the Red Cross, to be sent to Manitoba.

Mrs. Scott announced that a School for Leaders would be held in Whitby from August 28th to September 1st. Thanks were extended to Mrs. Doxtator for her kindness in opening her home for the meeting. After welcoming all, Mrs. Doxtator took charge of the worship service.

Mrs. Orval Stratton gave a reading about Miss Kimo showing the work and educational activities this Chinese girl was able to accomplish. This was followed by three members reading passages of Scripture: Mrs. Claude Clarke reading from Luke 4; Mrs. Everett Stratton from John 2; and Mrs. Lorne Uens from Matthew 25.

Mrs. John Craig, an enthusiastic worker for missions, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, in Belleville, gave a reading, "Foreigners are Queer," which had been written by a Chinese. Mrs. Craig made a stirring appeal for special prayer on behalf of the Korean missionaries and Christians, while Mrs. Scott emphasized the need of givings, and prayer for the people in their time of need.

Mrs. L. E. Mills, one of the most faithful and capable workers since the W.M.S. was organized in Shannonville over 61 years ago, was present at the meeting. As she will soon be moving from Shannonville, Mrs. Doxtator, on behalf of those present, presented her with a beautiful boquet of flowers, for which Mrs. Mills graciously expressed her appreciation.

Following the close of the meeting, Mrs. Doxtator and her assistants served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

CLAIMS TROOP MOVEMENT

Hong Kong, July 11 (AP)— Independent newspapers in Hong Kong claimed today that Gen. Lin Pao's Chinese communist troops are moving to Manchuria at Russian direction to support the North Koreans.

The newspaper Sing Tao Jih Pao said 10,000 of Lin's Fourth Army, now stationed in South China, is headed north. Other Hong Kong papers said part of Lin's fourth also is being sent to the border of French Indo-China.

The dispersion of Lin's forces has been reported previously. Most reports have said, however, that his troops were moving to the southeast coast of China to attempt invasion of Nationalist Formosa.

RAWDON

Mrs. W. B. May, Mission Band Sec., Addresses Meeting

Rawdon — On Wednesday last Mount Pleasant Woman's Missionary Society Auxiliary entertained the members of the Mission Band and their leaders, Mrs. Herbert Smith and Mrs. John Mulheron, the members of the Baby Band and their leaders, Mrs. Frank Spencer Jr., and Mrs. Ross Jeffs, and several mothers of the community.

There were 13 W.M.S. members, 13 adults and over 30 children in attendance.

The service opened with quiet music by Mrs. John Holmes. The president, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, welcomed the guests. A brief devotional was held and prayer offered for the missionary, Miss Hazel Heffren.

The president read the financial report with over $35 for June. A letter of thanks was received from Mrs. John Hay, who has been ill. An invitation to visit Bethel W.A. on July 14th was accepted. The next meeting will be held at the church on August 9th. Keyword and scripture beginning with "A."

Roger Smith and Raeburn Scott gathered offering and each band received $1.55 while the envelopes were for the W.M.S. The president read a poem "The World Title."

Baby Band

Mrs. Ross Jeffs read the names of three children who had graduated from the baby band and presented them with their certificates. These were: Gail Scott; Dianne McAdam and Ralph Reid. She also read the Baby Band roll of 25 members and seven life members.

Lola McConnel read the minutes and 14 Mission Band members answered roll call. The three graduates were given a hearty welcome to attend Mission Band and carry on their work for missions.

Gail and Paul Jeffs, with Mrs. Bill Jeffs as accompanist, sang, "Jesus Loves Me"; Eleanor Smith read, "The Best Text, Love One Another;" Carol Sharp, with Mrs. Burton Sharp as accompanist sang "He Loves Me, Too;" The Visser girls sang a Dutch hymn and Mrs. Herbert Smith gave a Bible quiz.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Percy MacMullen (a former member of Belleville presbyterial) introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. W. B. May Belleville, secretary of Mission Bands for Belleville presbyterial.

Mrs. May said, "Our Mission Band of today is our auxiliary tomorrow, the past years have been filled with success, but the keynote of the future is "advance." She stressed that more Bands are needed.

The speaker explained to the children how the money in their Easter pink envelopes would be used at Battle River Hospital, at Manning, Alberta, in the Peace River District. Some of this money will also be sent to Trinidad. She asked everyone to read all the lovely "thank-you" letters found in the May Monthly. All were asked to remember Korea, at this time, in prayer.

Mrs. May told of the Chinese magazine "Happy Childhood", and how it came to be published. She also told of the gifts of dolls and toys and games sent to Matheson Hospital in the North Bay district.

Appreciation Voiced

Mrs. John Mulheron voiced thanks to Mrs. May for her message of interest and to the W.M.S. for their hospitality, after which Gail Scott presented Mrs. May with a bouquet or red roses.

Mrs. Thrasher thanked the Mission Band for their program and also their speaker.

Each Baby Band mother brought a wrapped gift. Mrs. Frank Spencer Jr., was in charge of their disposal which netted the Baby Band $5.

The W.M.S. members served sandwiches, cookies and lemonade, and all enjoyed a social half hour.

W.A. Members Hostesses to Six Visiting Societies

Burrs.—A large group of ladies gathered at Burr's United Church on Wednesday afternoon, when local members of the W.A. were hostesses at tea to six visiting societies.

The president, Mrs. Clifford Hough presided and was joined on the platform by the six visiting presidents namely Mrs. L. Gray, of Crofton, Mrs. C. Calnan, Victoria Mrs. C. Vanclief Centre; Miss M. Lont, Ameliasburg; Mrs. W. McFaul Hillier Guild and Mrs. Ray Ferguson of Bowerman's.

Mrs. H. Hall extended a warm welcome to the visiting ladies after which a program of readings and music afforded agreeable entertainment. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses:

ACTRESS UNDERGOES KNIFE

The fact that northern cows give more milk than southern cows is not due to the sinister influence of Jeff Davis, but to the fact that southern cows have smaller thyroid glands. The smaller glands may be caused by the warm environment or may be due to hereditary and diet factors. Studies are afoot to develop the thyroid glands of southern bovine belles in the hopes that they will produce more milk.

Milk and cream dishes, hot or cold, seem to be the most tolerable in any hot climate or season. Chilled cream soups, seafood stews with milk or bowls of fresh fruit ice cream just seem to naturally fit any bill of fare in warm months.

Cheese fondue is a light baked summer dish that provides dairy food values in butter, milk and cheese. The fondue should be served quickly after it is removed from the oven in order to enjoy it at its peak of flavor.

Best cheese for this purpose is aged American cheese with a sharp flavor. The soft bread crumbs called for in this recipe can be made by rubbing unsliced two-day-old bread over grater or else cutting bread into cubes and then breaking it with finger tips.

Preheat oven at 350 degrees.

Melt 1-4 cup butter or margarine. Add 1-4 cup finely chopped onion, 1-4 cup finely chopped green peppers and 1 clove of garlic chopped fine. Simmer slowly until onions turn yellow. Add 1 small can of deviled ham or 1-2 cup finely chopped boiled ham. Mix well. Set aside.

Scald 1 cup of milk. Remove from flame. Beat 2 egg yolks well and add to milk. Add 1 cup soft bread crumbs and 1 cup grated sharp American cheese. Stir well. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Beat 2 egg whites until stiff. Fold egg whites into bread crumb mixture. Fold ham mitxure into bread crumb mixture.

Turn into a greased baking dish or individual baking dishes. Sprinkle with paprika. Set in a pan of hot water. Bake 40-60 minutes or until a silver knife inserted in centre of fondue comes out clean.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her husband sulks for days at a time—over nothing

There is nothing more maddening to live with than a pouting partner—a husband or wife who subjects the other half of the family to recurrent exhibitions of the sulks.

Obviously, of course, anyone who indulges in anything of the sort has never outgrown his childhood. Mature men and women simply do not act that way. But if one is married to a grownup child, the going can get tough.

One of my correspondents writes me that she has put up with this sort of thing from her husband for many years. Both are now in their late forties. When they were first married, her husband's pouting spells only lasted two or three days. Now the long years of practice have made him so expert that he can keep it up for a week at a time.

The most baffling thing about her problem is that she has never in all the years of her marriage, been able to discover any reason for these silent grouches. "The spells seem to come all at once," she says. "He may get up in the morning ready to blow up, and if he can't find anything else to fuss about, it will be only that I have bought an extra can of milk, or he will sit down at the table and get mad because the plates and things are too close to him. When he acts like that, you know what's coming: probably six or seven days of pouting. I've coaxed, pleaded, done everything I can think of, with no results."

To top it all off, when guests come to the house, the husband can't bring himself to treat them decently, if their visits happen to coincide with a period in which he has decided to sulk.

Now even though such infantile behavior could scarcely be excused for any reason, it might possibly be charitably explained on the score of ill health. But it seems hard to believe that there could be any physical cause that has remained undiscovered for 25 years. It is far more likely that this man, in common with all the rest of the world, has days when he feels, as the old saying goes, "all out of sorts", and has never developed the self-control to conceal the fact and go about his business as usual.

Anyone who behaves like a child should be treated like a child, and modern baby doctors agree that the best way to handle such childish displays of temper is to ignore them. To coax, plead, or try to persuade either child, or childish man or woman, out of an ugly mood, only serves to intensify it, by giving the ill-tempered one a lot of satisfaction out of the attention he thus receives.

I suggest that this wife try this plan, since the years of coaxing and pleading have got her nowhere. If she and the older son of whom she speaks, simply act as though the husband and father were not there at all when he retires into the silence, he may, in time, get less satisfaction out of it, and so give it up.

Fashion Flashes

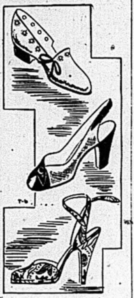
NOT SO many printed crepes around this year. Instead there are filmy fabrics printed in soft colors and designs. Sheer silk, starched so that it resembles silk organdie, is being featured by one house. The bodice is slim, the skirt flared crisply. The prints are mostly of the soft, indefinite floral variety in blues, soft violets and green on white.

IT'S A BIG SEASON for sensible beach and play togs, designed for the youthful, active type. Black and red striped wool jersey is used for brief shorts and a turtle neck midriff top—sleeveless, and closing in back. Over the shorts goes a black denim apron, stitched in red, made up of two enormous pockets on a band that ties in back.

IT'S NICE to have rayon jersey with us once more, made up into wearable frocks that travel well and always look nice. White rayon jersey with an all-over fine diamond check in thin black makes a softened shirtwaist dress with push-up sleeves. Black jet double-buttoned closing below casual collar and black patent belt.

IT'S A GOOD IDEA, if travelling, to take along several ribbon or velvet bound cage veils in lieu of hats or to wear with little hats of the soft beret or pillbox type.

Fashionable Footprints



Shoes for many occasions

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Here are three footsteps along fashion lane. First is a nice little shoe for sports clothes, a soft number fashioned of Panama straw with punched eyelets at the edge and green stitching all around, set off by a green leather bow. Colored linen with cocoa beige suede trim and heel is used for a pretty spectator sports shoe. Heavy crepe in gay multicolor makes a delightful dressmaker sandal designed summer sheers. Other details with an eye to wear with dark are the small cut-out at the toe, a small platform and a twisted around and tied ankle strap.

GOOD MANNERS

Dealing with the girl who asks personal questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently a grand and charming girl has come to work in our office, and we are all delighted with her . . . except for one habit she has of asking personal questions. My mother trained me with a rod of iron about this, never to ask personal questions, always to remember that personal things about a friend (or relative!) were none of my business. Therefore this particular characteristic in this girl maddens me, and I see red when she asks me personal questions. And the few other girls in our office feel about the way I do about this girl's inquisitiveness. What do you advise we do about it?

Betty H.

Please don't be too hard on this "new girl in the office" . . apparently she's a fine girl and perhaps she's asking questions because of feeling self-conscious and awfully "new" and is trying to find some answers for her guidance to become one of the group.

However, it is, as you say, "maddening" to have people ask personal questions . . . and it is a problem to be polite and at the same time have enough wisdom and quick thought to sidestep answering the questions, or at least answering them directly. That's a social knack. . .some people are very adroit about it, others have the gentle grace of humor that is very effective. Stalling for time is good, too. . .hesitatingly saying, for example, "Let me see . . . let me see . . . what did I pay for this dress? I remember thinking at the time that perhaps it was too much of a luxury for me, but if you like it, perhaps it wasn't." Or, "I promised my sister I'd never tell what her salary is . . . you know how sisters are, they love their secrets!"

On which side the bride?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a bride walks up the aisle to the altar, on which side of her father should she walk?

2. And on which side of the bridegroom should she stand when the ceremony is being performed? My opinion, in the discussion we are having about this, is that the bride stands at the groom's right, and the maid of honor takes care of the bride's train and veil when the bride turns.

M. H.

1. Customarily the bride walks on the right of her father as they proceed to the front of the church.

A woman and her wrap in a restaurant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a woman dines with a man in a restauarnt, is it proper for her to check her coat, or is it considered better for her to take it with her to the table? Lately I've seen several women checking their wraps as their escorts checked their hats . . but I've always thought this isn't correct.

Alma N.

Might the answer to your observation be that the women were dining in a place where there was dancing, and they checked their wraps for greater convenience? Whether or not a woman checks her wrap depends on her preference, but most women leave their wraps over the back of their chairs. However, sometimes in the evening when a woman is going to dance she does prefer to check her wrap.

Bridesmaids may wear simple earrings at wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The bride-to-be would like to give her bridesmaids earrings as attendants' presents. Would it be correct for the bridesmaids to wear earrings at the wedding?

M. D.

Yes . . . but the earrings should be of a conservative type, customarily simple, round pearls, small or of medium-size. In other words, the earrings must not be so dramatic in design that they take attention from the ensemble.

Bare-Top Dresses 'Done to Death'

Tweeds and bare-top evening dresses often show up at the same party, and "both look terrible," said Mr Shoup as he showed his fall collection here.

His recommendation is a simple dress-and-jacket ensemble—the dress low-cut, if desired, for possible dancing later—in a rich, dark fabric.

Incidentally, Mr. Shoup predicted a swing back to the covered-up look in evening dresses, even to long sleeves. The bare-top has been "done to death," he said.

ESCAPE SERIOUS OUTBREAK

Toronto, July 10 — (CP) —So far this summer, Ontario has escaped a serious poliomyelitis outbreak Health department officials said today 16 cases have been reported, compared with 69 at July 10 last year. Dr. J. T. Phair, deputy health minister, said this year's total is "not much over the level normalcy."

BEAUTY

Filling out the two-slim figure.

Rounded slenderness, that's the ticket! A light covering of adipose tissue on the feminine frame is attractive and serves a good purpose because it conserves body heat. The over-active lightweight is likely to run herself ragged, expending too much nervous energy, thus suffering from fatigue that brings on a trail of good-looks griefs.

Clothes and beauty fads reflect the spirit of the times, and figures are molded to fit the clothes. When women became interested in outdoor sports, the boyish shape became a frenzy. To be the gamin type was the ambition of every girl. Manners changed, too. With skirts above the knees, the universal leg show was on.

Along about that time the reducing mania flourished like a house afire. How to delete tonnage was the favorite topic of conversation. Even the skinnies were afraid to eat a man-sized meal lest they take on a few extra ounces. It was plain gooffy.

A [illegible] life is the foundation of health and good appearance

Now the idea is to develop the normal figure, slender but with pleasing curves. The emaciated one is as much out of the picture as the plumpie. The waist must be slim, the bust high, and firm, hips graceful. The stringbean figure does not qualify.

Miss Skinny must add more sweets, fats and starches to her diet. These food elements will put fat on her ribs, and they are energy-builders. She should have a cooked cereal, with cream and sugar, every morning for breakfast. Three or four eggs a week are necessary. For the calcium content, she should drink a quart of rich, creamy milk a day. Milk is not just a beverage, it is a food.

All kinds of fruit are helpful. They are rich in cellulose that stimulates the functions of the digestive motors. The citrus fruits contain vitamin C, of which our slim friend is probably in need.

Protein does repair work; so dinner should include meat. Vegetables are important if the diet is to be balanced. If appetite is lacking, exercise in the fresh air will create it.

It is during sleep that nature does her repairing and building work for us. Nine hours are not too many and a rest period during the day is advisable for the woman who chases at full speed to attend to domestic duties. A calm, well-organized life is the very foundation of health and good appearance. Hurry and fatigue not only deplete one's resources, but they stamp the mark of tension on the face.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THIS IS A "MUST"!

Coach "Speedy" St. Louis of the Belleville Cubs rubbed his chin stubble reflectively, yet he wore an overall air of confidence over the outcome of Wednesday night's tussle with the undefeated No. 6 Repair Depot nine.

The youthful Cubs who have taken on a new lease of life since they started their win streak a few weeks ago are cockily confident, too. They feel that if their form holds good they can take the measure of the doughty air crew, despite the latter's more or less imposing record in the Belleville and District Baseball League.

They have been smashing the bejabers out of the offerings of opposing pitchers, all and sundry during their rise to the second slot in the loop ladder while the veteran hurlers "Cuffer" Noakes and "Chuck" Barriage, aided and abetted by the starry work of "Gabby" Moynes have kept the foes' hits and runs to a minimum.

Moynes, the quiet modest youngster, who has more than passing possibilities as a flinger was Coach St. Louis' logical choice for Wednesday's all-important tussle, but he developed an eruption, or a boil, or something on his leg, and had the pesky thing removed yesterday. It is quite likely he will be able to start, and if he is in the form that has characterized his hurling in his last three starts, the hard-hitting airmen might find it difficult to poke the pill past the infield.

On the other hand, the Sixardee team will not be pushovers. The Cubs will need their batting and fielding eyes and all their inside knowledge of they are to turn back the loop-leaders. Seven members of the team are hitting better than .300 with Hastings topping the crew with an average of .522. Gibson and Ellis are rapping the ball for over .400 with Maracle, Christie, S. Ellis and Racicot boasting over .300 in the batting column.

So it should be quite a tussle when the teams clash tomorrow night in Exhibition Grounds, and there should be a good crowd on hand to give the youthful Cubs some support. They have been playing heads-up baseball for some time now and judging from their last half-dozen appearances are rounding into one of the best teams in the league. Game gets under way at 8:30.

THIS IS IT!

The game that has been the talk of the mushball rialto for the past few months, and has caused severe strain on sports friendship not to mention a few marital relations is being played tonight at the Alemite Field. While the odds favor the Brewers slightly, the Howe and Hagerman Plumbers are confident they can take the measure of the Sudsmen. Just who will be handed the mound chores, is not known at time of writing but we'll go out on the limb far enough to venture that it will be Lum Carson for the foam dispensers and youthful Bobby Hunter upholding the pitching prestige of the pipe-fitters. Interest is running high and it is quite possible the largest crowd of the softball season will be on hand to view the proceedings. Game at 6.30.

DON'T MISS THE BASEBALL SCHOOL!

Present indications point to a large turnout at the baseball school being conducted here next week by the Philadelphia Phillies at Exhibition Grounds. At the moment, Campbellford, Cobourg, Wellington, Picton, Tamworth, Kingston and Napanee have telephoned this desk that they will be represented, and no doubt a large number of youthful players from other sections of the district will put in an appearance.

Dale Jones, who with Pat Coglan, Phillies' coach, are conducting the school, telephoned yesterday from Kirkland Lake where another school is now in progress, and said that things are in readiness for what he hoped would be the biggest school of the Canadian tour. He had had, he said, excellent reports of prospects from this section of the county and held high hopes of signing a few youngsters on the dotted line of a Philly contract.

The school will get under way at 10 a. m. Monday morning and last through Thursday inclusive. It will start daily at that time and last through till 3 a. m. without a pause. Players between the ages of 16 and 22 are invited to attend the school at no cost to themselves, and any that are selected for the Phillies will have the cost of transportation to and from the school refunded.

Young players should not miss this opportunity to get expert instruction and coaching. And a few coaches and managers should be on hand. Players not selected this year will have the benefit of the advice and teaching of major league baseball experts, and everybody will be in a position to learn something. It is an opportunity for all concerned to learn something now about baseball and no young player should pass up this opportunity.

There'll be no shenanigans; no referee-baiting in Memorial Arena Friday night when handsome Timmy Geohagen the Pride of Ireland and Fred Atkins, of Australia, meet in their return match. For the management decided after last Friday's tilt to bring in a third man of the ring who will stand for no tomfoolery and who ends an argument with a right hook to the loquacious one's jaw. He is Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, well known as a wrestling arbiter, and who settles talk-hungry pachyderms with a firm but effective fist.

Geohagen and Atkins finished their brawl last week outside the ring and Referee Bunny Dunlop promptly disqualified both gladiators. Geohagen was not satisfied; Atkins never is and the result is, Jack Sharkey, a couple of wrestling jets will be seen in action in the semi-final when Pat Flanagan and Rapid Ray Villmer tangle in what should be one of the speediest bouts ever seen here. Both are fast, clean wrestlers. Billy Stack and Jim "Goon" Henry meet in the opener.

Pacific Coast League Remains Triple 'A' Loop

Chicago, July 11 (AP)—Clarence (Pants) Rowland, President of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, has been rebuffed for the sixth time in his crusade to get his circuit major league status.

"No" means nothing to this indomitable baseball pioneer who was born 62 years ago at Platteville, Wis., the son of a railroading father.

He presented his request to the major league officials yesterday and got the inevitable answer.

"I'll be back again next year," said the sparkling-eyed veteran. "We don't intend to continue as a kindergarten for the major leagues. We'll gain major league ranking eventually, and I think I may live to see it."

"They haven't the foresight—or perhaps its just selfishness—for starting a third major league" Rowland declared.

Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler professed that he has nothing against a third big league.

"But the Pacific Coast simply cannot handle it financially," he said. "It would take something like $80,000,000 over a 10-year-period to build the coast league into a major league circuit. The parks aren't big enough and attendance just wouldn't support a major league operation.

Golfing Prowess Of Tiny Toddler Amazes Experts

Rhyl, North Wales —(CP) — Bobby Logan, who touched a golf club for the first time nine months ago, has already startled members of the Rhyl Golf Club with his amazing feats.

Big, strong men, just taking up the game, have even threatened to toss their sticks into the ash-can after watching Bobby perform. Off the tee, Bobby invariably gets his drive straight down the middle, often beyond the 100 yard mark, pitches to the green with a backspin and explodes out of a sand trap. In fact he has scored a five on a 260-yard, well-trapped hole.

So what? Well, Bobby has something to brag about for he is very much of a wee toddler — just two years and nine months old.

Slightly under three feet tall, Bobby has learned to use his sawed off clubs, a hickory driver and light weight iron, with eyebrow raising precision. He turns out every morning for practice, at present confined to two holes.

Bert Southcott, the club professional, says Bobby's hitting power is quite phenomenal. "His drives, averaging around 60 to 80 yards are all carry and follow a correct trajectory. I think the secret lies in his wrists which are exceptionally strong for an infant.

Daddy Jimmy Logan, former Ayr United Football player, also thinks he has a champion in the making.

Montreal Royals Lead Attendance Figures in Loop

New York, July 11 — (AP) — Montreal Royals, perennial leaders in the International League baseball attendance, are pacing the triple-A circuit again this year at the halfway mark.

In 43 games the Royals—Brooklyn Dodgers' No. 1 farm club—have played to 234,063 paying customers, an average of 5,443.

Next best is Baltimore. The Orioles, who have climed from fifth to second place during the last few weeks, have seen their attendance boom along with their winning ways. Nick Cullop's crew has attracted 201, 617 fans in 39 games for a 5,170 average.

Rochester—leading the league—is the third member of the 200,000 club. The Red Wings have drawn more people than Baltimore—206, 639—but also have played more home games. Consequently their average is lower—4,592.

Jersey City, once a rich loncation, now is the circuit's 'lemon." The little Giants, while playing good ball for third place, have attracted only 53,717 for 35 games, a 1,535 average.

Newark, only a few miles from Jersey City, had to relinquish its franchise last season because it couldn't cope with the television broadcasts from nearby New York's three major League ball yards. The "TV bug," obviously, is biting into the l'il Giants pocketbook, too.

Toronto, a seventh-place outfit, is fourth in average attendance, with 4,337. Springfield, which replaced Newark, is fifth with 3,172.

Buffalo's last-place Bisons have managed to place sixth, while Syracuse is a shade behind in seventh. Buffalo's average is 2,182; Syracuse's 2,122.

The league as a whole, has drawn 1,146,838 in 312 games. That's a 3,676 average.

Willingdon Cup Team Strongest Squad in Years

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario's bid to retain the interprovincial team golf championship and the Willingdon cup lies in the hands of a four-man squad considered one of the strongest to represent the province in years.

Picked after a series of test matches, it is headed by 32-year-old Nick Weslock of Windsor, ranked as Canada's No. 1 amateur golfer last year. The others are 21-year-old Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, veteran Jack Nash of London and Jack Amell of Toronto.

They will leave by air Wednesday to defend the title at Saskatoon July 15 and attempt to bring Ontario its 11th triumph in the annual competition.

This year's Ontario team is a mixture of youth—in Kesselring and Amell—and experience—in Weslock and Nash, who have been two of the top golfers in the province for years.

Golf officials see Kesselring as a coming star and they expect Amell, a sound, steady player, to emerge as a top tournament contender on the basis of the improvement in his game this year.

All but Amell have played on previous Ontario Willingdon cup teams. This is the seventh time Nash has made the squad and the second time both Weslock and Kesselring, twice winner of the Canadian Amateur Junior Championship.

Two Ontario golfers sank holes-in-one in the last two days.

Graham Dey of Owen Sound, Ont., dropped his tee-shot with a six-iron shot Monday on the 135-yard fourth hole at the Owen Sound Golf and Country Club during an inter-club match with golfers from Port Elgin and Southampton.

R. Proctor scored his ace Sunday on the 17th hole of Toronto's Humber Valley course. He did the trick with a No. 5 iron on the 164-yard hole.

Silas Seth (Si) Griffis, once known as the "fastest big man in hockey," is dead.

The 66-year-old hockey great, recently elected to Canada's hockey Hall of Fame at Kingston, died in Vancouver Monday after an illness of several weeks.

Si was a maker of hockey history, starting out from a small town, Rat Portage, Ont., now Kenora on The Lake of the Woods, where he also made a name as an oarsman.

He started his brilliant career in 1900, playing rover in the seven-man game of that time and then cover point, and his dazzling speed and left-handed stickhandling took him to the top of early day hockey.

He was born in the Kansas hamlet of Onaga, and later moved to St. Catharines, then to Kenora, 150 miles east of Winnipeg.

Griffis played in many Stanley Cup series. He moved to Vancouver in 1906, retiring from hockey in 1911 when the Patricks opened the Pacific Coast League. When he left Kenora the citizens presented him with a purse of gold. He had been offered a handsome home if he would remain there.

Playing defence for the Vancouver Millionaires, a fabulous collection of rough and ready players, he was a 60-minute man on the ice.

They love him in Detroit, they think he's great in Cleveland, but in his home town of New York middleweight champion Jake Lamotta is rated with poison ivy.

The champion is cast strictly in the villian's role for his 15-round title fight with Italy's Tiberio Mitri in New York's Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

Maybe it's because most of Jake's best fights have been out of town. He beat both Ray Robinson and Marcel Cerdan in Detroit. Maybe it's because of some erratic performances in New York maybe because it's his cocky attitude when he steps into the ring.

Whatever it is, Lamotta says: "I'm going to show 'em."

"They can call me a lot of things, but they never can say that I can't fight. I want to keep that title more than anything I ever owned in my life. I'm going to keep it."

Honeymooning Willie Pep put his marriage ahead of a 10-round boxing bout scheduled for Monday night, and thereby drew a suspension from the National Boxing Association. The fight was cancelled.

At the time Pep and his bride were perfecting marriage plans, the little boxing stylist was supposed to be in Washington training for a bout with Tommy Bell of Youngstown, Ohio. He never showed up.

Dick Attlesey of southern California carcked the world record for the 110-metre high hurdles Monday night with a time of 13.5 seconds.

The six-foot four-inch athlete bettered the world mark by two-tenths of a second. The old mark was held jointly by Fred Wolcott of Rice and Spec Towns of Georgia.

Toronto Leafs Split Twin Bill With Buffalo

By The Associated Press

Don't say "home run!" to Baltimore's Irv Medlinger. It might scare him to death.

The Oriole righthander had enough of baseball's "big hit" last night. Springfield gave him the full treatment—four homers in four innings—while winning 6-2.

But when the fourth-frame smoke cleared, Springfield had a 5-2 bulge, 4,646 Baltimore fans were disconsolate and Medlinger was taking a shower.

After Les Peden doubled, Bob Thurman lit the big firecracker—a 420-foot blast over the centre-field wall—and Specs Klieman was rushed in. Play was halted in the seventh because of rain.

Bill Moisan held the Orioles to five hits to pick up his fifth victory. The loss was Medlinger's seventh, compared to six triumphs and it also dropped the Orioles three full games behind the League-leading Rochester Red Wings, who were idle.

Buffalo and Toronto split a doubleheader. Buffalo, behind Charlie Harris' four-hitter, captured the second game 7-1 after Toronto took the seven-inning opener 3-2. Johnny Mayo's long fly with the bases full in the seventh inning scored the winning run in the opener.

Montreal and Rochester were idle.

WHISLING SWANS NEST

Hamilton Tigers Win Their Sixth Straight Game

The Tabbies won their sixth straight Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game Monday night, and decisively. They defeated the former second-place occupants, Brampton Excelsiors 13-6.

The win moved Tigers up into a three-way tie for second with the Brampton club and Peterborough Petes. Owen Sound Crescents remain well ahead of the pack.

Hamilton jumped into an early lead, sparked by two first-period goals by captain Blain McDonald. From then on they were never headed, with tricky Stu Scott and Jack Dorney sifting through the crumbling Brampton defences for four goals each.

HAVING TOUGH TIME

Toronto, July 11 (CP) — Students are having a tough time finding summer jobs. The National Employment Service said Monday a record 3,081 young people remain unplaced in Toronto, although the employment picture as a whole was described as "quite strong."

Raschi, Roberts Will be Starting Hurlers in Game

By JOE REICHLER

Chicago, July 11 (AP)— Yankee Vic Raschi and the Phils' $25,000 bonus baby, Robin Roberts, clash today in the 17th renewal of the all-star baseball game at its Comiskey Park birthplace.

Although the fans' dream game has become a managers' nightmare, a sellout crowd of 49,000 is due at the Chicago White Sox ball park by game time. The first ball is to be pitched at 1.30 p.m. CDT.

The National League, trailing 12-4 in games, is a 9-to-5 underdog. It may sound like 49,000 to 1 when manager Burt Shotton's name bounces off the public address system horns.

Shotton, Brooklyn manager, is on the hot seat with Chicago fans because he tried to keep the Cubs Hank Sauer out of the starting line-up. The fans, who voted Sauer into third place among the outfielders with more than 700,000 ballots, won out in the end when Commissioner A. B. Chandler reversed an earlier ruling.

Sauer, normally a left fielder not voted for his defensive skill, will be in centre.

Sauer, the innocent bystander in the 'rhubarb' said: "I'll play any place they want me to. I'm not mad at anybody. I'm only a little fish in the big show."

Will Ease Headache

Steps are being taken to ease the headache of the all-star pilots in future. This probably will be the last time the game will be played under conditions that have existed since naming of the players was returned to the fans in 1947.

Another likely change will be naming of one pitcher from each club in the league by the acting manager. As it is now, the pilot could name all eight from the same club if he chose.

Manager Casey Stengel of the American League stars, after naming Raschi to pitch the first three innings, was having trouble concerning his further pitching alignment.

It was felt, however, that Casey would use Detroit's Ted Gray in the middle three innings and finish with Chicago's Ray Scarborough.

Like Stengel, Shotton was reluctant to name the hurlers who will follow Philadelphia's Robin Roberts on the mound for the Nationals.

Except for Yankees Joe DiMaggio and Yogi Berra, all players are in good physical shape. DiMaggio, who pulled a leg muscle in Sunday's game and Berra, who aggravated an old leg injury in the same game, are not seriously injured and are expected to play.

New Manager For St. Thomas

St. Thomas, July 11 (CP)—Goldie Whitfield, business manager of St. Thomas Legion of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League, announced Monday that Tommy Irwin, former big leaguer with Cleveland Indians about 14 years ago, has been appointed manager.

Irwin replaces Eddie Atzrott who has returned home to Buffalo where he will undergo treatment on an ailing arm.

The new manager will be in charge when St. Thomas journeys to Galt tonight for a game previously postponed.

HAD MAURADERS BEGGING FOR MERCY

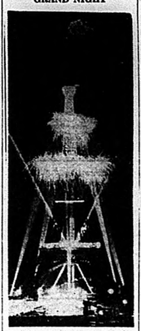
GRAND NIGHT



A thing of nocturnal splendor is the famed Eiffel Tower of Paris, France, as a 10-minute fireworks display blooms from all three platforms. It was part of the "grande nuit" (grand night) celebration. — Central Press Canadian.

Imperial Vets Must Apply Before July 31

Ottawa, July 10 (CP)—Veterans Minister Gregg announced today eligible veterans of British and Allied armies with 20 years' residence in Canada may receive war veterans' allowance payments retroactive to April 1 if they apply by July 31.

The allowance payments are made to veterans who can show need and meet other qualifications. British and Allied veterans were brought under the plan by legislation adopted at the last session of parliament.

Mr. Gregg said applications received after July 31 will be considered as from the day they are received in district offices of his department, and retroactive payment to April 1 will not be made.

PICTON

Ramsay Paints Lose to Army By 6 to 2 Count

Picton — The Collegiate ground was the mecca for a large crowd of softball fans Saturday night, when Ramsay Paints team from Belleville played an exhibition with Picton Army. The ack-ack boys scored a 6-2 victory in a snappy game. The visitors did not hit the win column until the eighth when they tallied two. Army scored one in the third, two in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Young hurled nice ball for Belleville with Jack Reid relieving him in the fifth. Brown was on the receiving end. Smyth pitched running ball for Army with McLean behind the plate.

$10,000 FIRE LOSS

Cornwall, July 11 — (CP) — Fire of unknown origin destroyed a 16-room farmhouse on the north bank of the St. Lawrence River five miles east of Cornwall Saturday. Loss was estimated at $10,000.

It is believed the blaze broke out in a summer kitchen at the rear of the home. Cornwall fire department was credited with preventing spread of flames to nearby cottages and barns.

Prelim Fighters Supporting Main Bout Not Named

New York, July 11 — (AP) — It's no secret that Jake Lamotta of the Bronx will meet Tiberio Mitri of Italy in a 15-round bout tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden for the world middleweight title.

But what the customers will get for a supporting card is confidential stuff.

"We do not intend to sabotage our card by naming our prelim fighters," said a spokesman for the International Boxing Club.

The I.B.C. and the Boxing Managers Guild are feuding over television revenue. The spokesman said that if names were announced, the managers might attempt to persuade the boxers to withdraw.

The preliminary bouts will be announced Wednesday when the principals weigh in at noon.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Your game goes to seed and your pair courts a cleaning whenever your lead is made without meaning. Each card you send out tells what you have got or speaks like a shout of what you have not.

In their order of preference, leads follow tops, longies, shorts. Thus, if you lead from a short suit, you deny having a permissible long suit lead or a top lead. A long suit lead denies a top.

There are three kinds of tops. One of the three classes of tops is the sequence top. The sequences are K Q J or K Q 10, Q J 10, or Q J 9, J 10 9 or J 10 8, 10 9 8 or 10 9 7.

Notice in a sequence that the two highest are in rotation and the next card is either touching or one step down. From any sequence the correct lead is the highest; that is the topmost; that is, the top.

Thus, if you lead the king, partner assumes you have the Q J or Q 10. If you lead the queen, partner assumes you have the J 10 or J 9 and that you do not hold the king.

WEST EAST
♣Q J 9 2 ♣A 8 6 4
SOUTH
♣K 7 5

The opening lead from west is the club queen. Sitting east, you look at dummy north and your own clubs. You know from this that west holds the jack and nine of clubs and club king is in south.

How do you know that south has the club king? If west had the king and queen he would have led the king as top of the sequence. It is thus obvious. Conduct yourself accordingly.

Times are when a partner may lead a queen when it is not the top of a sequence. How can you tell when he does this? If you see the jack elsewhere or the ten and nine elsewhere. This indicates that partner is desperate for a better lead.

Avon Jewellers Lose to Bakelite In Last Frame

Art Peever, the peerless pinch-hitter, did it again last evening, crashing out a ninth inning pinch double for two runs to pull Belleville Bakelite into an 8-8 tie with Avon Jewellers and setting the stage for Earl Cousin's game-winning home run as the plastics crew overhauled the wilting Jewellers in the final frame to snatch a 9-8 victory.

It was the same old story for Avon. The Jewellers, after erecting a comfortable lead in the early innings, slowly faded to be overhauled and crushed in the final frame.

Avon came up with four tainted runs in the top of the first frame by putting together two walks, two errors, and Connell's double to right field.

Bakelite hustled back to the attack in their end of the first, collecting three runs on three singles, two walks, and an error. They tied the score with a lone tally in the second on two singles.

Avon hurler McBride, batting in the clean up slot, led off the third inning with a home run. Connell, Roy Reid, and Roy Miller, singled and Arch Bellis doubled to account for two more runs. Connell poled out a home run to centrefield in the fifth with no one on for the Jewellers' final run.

Game-winning Run

Earl Cousins, Bakelite catcher, scored in the fifth and eighth for the only Bakelite counters and then came up in the bottom of the ninth with a tremendous blast to right centre field for the game-winning run.

In the fateful ninth, with one away, McBride walked Lucas and Littlejohn. Art Peever, who has been making a habit of distinguishing himself in relief roles, came up with a slashing double to centrefield to score Lucas and Littlejohn. He was nipped trying to take third. Cousins then put the game away with his home run.

McBride went all the way for the losers, walking six, striking out three, and being nailed for nine hits and nine runs as his mates booted the ball seven times behind him. Burtch copped the win for Bakelite, walking four, striking out four, and giving up 12 hits for eight runs.

Connell led all batters with a homer, double, and single, in three tries. Peever with a single and a double in two appearances was best for the winners.

Line ups:—

Belleville Loses To Petes 6-3 In Soccer Game

Peterborough—The first of a Belleville soccer eleven to the city created a good impression with the local fans Saturday evening when UE defeated them 6-3 in an Eastern League match on King Edward Park before a large attendance.

Belleville lost the toss to start and were minus a player against the full quota of the local team. Willis broke up a Belleville raid to feed Murduff at centre forward, and he let Strong head the ball into the net. Within a minute Gemmell got the equalizer on an individual effort. UE replied with a steady combination and Boyd registered with an oblique shot for the UE second goal. Gemmell again came into the limelight with smart dribbling to bulge the rigging with a rising shot. Encouraged by their success Gemmell and Barclay forced the issue for the former to rattle the crossbar with the custodian out of position. A faulty clearance by the visiting netter allowed Strong to get the ball on the run to centre across to Willis, who made the count read 3-2 for UE.

Goalie Brilliant

On resuming, Blaker, Belleville goalie, made spectacular saves from Duffus and Featherstone. They came back into the picture again with a systematic attack that had the UE full-backs in a quandary. Lane, Belleville, conceded a penalty kick that Jimmie Craig failed to register from the spot. Immediately Strong broke away fast to find the corner of the upright. At this point Scott, Belleville, had to retire through an injury. Strong enacted the same performance on the next visit. Barclay and Gemmell reduced the count a few minutes later to make it 5-3, A last-minute dash by Featherstone resulted in Willis connecting for the final goal.

Belleville — L Blaker, goal; F. Terry and R. Lane, backs; S. Scott, J. Cathcart and J. Williamson, half-backs; T. Barclay, A. Gemmell, R. Alexander, and J. Cox, forwards.

UE — J. Hutchison, goal; S. McCann and J. Craig, backs; H. Steel, S. Willis and H. Latham, half-backs; R. Strong, A. Boyd, S. Murduff, A. Duffus and A. Featherstone, forwards; sub, E. Downer.

Refreee—Jack Adams.

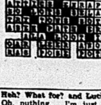
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on my frunt steps with Puds Simkins, waiting for something to happen, and Lucky Leroy Shooster, stopped going passed, saying, Hay, if you 2 guys walk around to the market with me I'll give you each a 3rd of whatever I find, in case I find anything, and you know how lucky I am.

Which he is, always either finding something or elts having something gave to him by somebody he never saw before, and me and Puds said Okay and started to walk around with him, and all of a sudden he stopped, saying Heck, darn it.

What, why? I said, and Puds said, What's a matter? and Lucky Leroy said, I forget what I'm suppose to be going for. My mother is in a hurry for it, too, so whatever it was I'll get heck if I go back and ask her to repeet it, heck, he said.

Oh boy, here's the time we cawt you when you're not lucky, I said, and Puds said, Sure, oh boy, we're the lucky ones this time. We'll go back with you and watch you getting heck, he said.

I dont think it was lemmons, Lucky Leroy said. It mite of been bread, unless maybe it was butter, heck. I dont want to bring back the wrong thing, because that would make her still madder.

Which just then some man tipped his hat to some lady on his way coming tords us, and he had the baldest head I ever saw, exactly the shape of a egg, and Leroy said, Now I know, it's eggs.

And he said to the man, G, thanks, mister, and the man said, Heh? What for? and Lucky said, Oh, nuthing, I'm just being polite.

Well, now I've heard everything, the man said. Here's something to remember me by.

MARMORA

Orange. Lodges Hold Unique Service

Marmora — A service, unique in the annals of Millbridge, was that held in the Anglican Church there on Sunday afternoon, to which Orange Lodges of No. 2 District, Centre Hastings, paraded. In attendance was County Master John B. Hagerman. A number of past county pasters, district master Gordon Moffat and Grand Lodge Oficer Richard Sanderson, of Havelock. On parade were approximately 60 members of the L.O.B.A. as well as about 80 members of the Order.

The service was conducted by Rev. T. H. Good, who gave an appropriate discourse on allegiance to the ideals of Protestantism, choosing as his text, "Take fast hold of instruction 4:13. Thou hast given a banner to them that fear Thee that it may be displayed because of the truth. Psalm 60:4.

The lessons were read by Past County Master W. J. Cottrell and Mrs. J. McCaw, chaplain of Millbridge L.O.B.A.

Mrs. Harold Lloyd of Bannockburn, officiated at the organ and with George Wiley and Mrs. Bert Simpson, made up a trio which rendered "Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

The church was filled to the door and others in the grounds heard over a loudspeaker system.

Following the service, they paraded to the Orange Hall, where they were briefly addressed by Rev T. H. Good; County Master J. B. Hagerman, District Master Gordon Moffatt and Past County Master W. J. Cottrell, and Mrs. Garnet Davidson.

Lodges represented were Havelock, Tanner, Springbrook, Eldorado, Nickle, Marmora, Millbridge and Queensboro. L.O.B.A. lodges on parade were Millbridge, Madoc Eldorado, Queensboro and Marmora.

MARMORA

Levelling Ground For High School

Marmora —Levelling of the grounds upon which Marmora's new high school will be erected, has started. The St. Lawrence Construction Company has the contract for the erection of the building. Notification of the approval of the by-law authorizing the same, was received by Reeve Vincent M. Lynch on Saturday. The project occasions the removal of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fluke, to another site.

GIRL SAILS FRAIL

Then the African raiders came. They boarded the Berlin from canoes with "offers to help." But when they saw Muller's condition they brushed Aga aside and seized blankets, food, fuel and other stores.

Fearing they would return later Aga cut the anchor—it was too heavy for her to lift single-handed—and headed the Berlin seaward again.

Paul Muller died that night.

Aga eventually beached the boat farther south, along the Liberian coast. Now in Monrovia, Aga is wondering: What next?

She may go to Weymouth in Dorsetshire, England. Herbert Bell, shipyard engineer who lives in Weymouth, Monday night cabled the British Consul at Monrovia, offering to find a home for Aga. The girl stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Bell at Weymouth some months ago when the Mullers' craft put in there briefly.

IT'S JUST TEN

construction of the capital will not come for at least 15 years, perhaps more. The country can't afford it.

Serious discussions about the rebuilding of the city started in 1942. By 1943, two plans had been drawn up by Professor Patrick Abercrombie, 65-year-old professor of town and country planning at the University of London.

They covered:

1. The rebuilding of greater London— the whole mass of built up streets, including the outer suburbs.

2. Metropolitan London, or the administrative County of London, the inner area.

3. The City proper, the square mile that encloses the Bank of England, the financial district and the Lord Mayor's headquarters.

Broadly, Abercrombie's plan for greater London calls for construction of eight satellite towns on the outskirts and the creation of a "green belt" for open space and recreation.

For the County of London his plan calls for a relocation of streets and arterial highways to relieve growing traffic congestion, elimination of sub-standard housing, more parks and the prevention of the intermingling of industry and housing.

Both plans are under way now. The time of their completion is highly problematical.

"For one thing, the cost will be gigantic —in the billions of pounds," says an official of the London County Council.

By mid-1952 the council says it either will have rebuilt, repaired or completely replaced all the 145,000 houses destroyed or damaged in the six metropolitan boroughs of Westminster, Holborn, Stepney, Poplar, Lewisham and Wandsworth. But docks still line the Thames and no tunnels have been dug under it. And few of London's many squares have been redesigned in accordance with the plan.

GATE CRASHERS REACH OBJECTIVE

Opposes Alleged Anti-U.N. Stand On Korean Issue

Hamilton, July 10 — (CP) — Donald P. Ellis, Hamilton alderman and a member of the United Electrical Workers Union, local 504, said today he would call a mass meeting of the 4,500 employees of the Canadian Westinghouse Company, Ltd. to protest the union leadership's alleged anti-United Nations, pro-communist stand on the Korean war issue.

"Petitions are being circulated, and practically everyone is signing them, against the stand taken by the leadership of the union," Ald. Ellis declared. He added he had heard some union members were "signing out" of the union.

The alderman said he would discourage such resignations, but instead seek to oust the union's leaders.

The U. E. Union has been oust-

PICTON

Open Air Service Of International Character Held

Picton—An international open air service attracted more than 150 persons to Kimball's Point, near Cronk's ferry, on Sunday. Minister of the Northport pastoral charge of the United Church of Canada, Rev. Carson Duquette, conducted the service under a willow tree at the water's edge, a bright warm sun flooding the area and the wind-tossed waters of the Bay of Quinte. The minister spoke on the topic "What Doth the Lord Require of Thee?"

Rev. Donald C. Amos of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, conducted a baptismal service. Lawrence and Robert Warren were the names given the young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clow. Brock Stackhouse was also baptized and received into church membership.

Spoke in Gaelic

Representing Scotland, Mrs. Oliver led in the Lord's Prayer in Scotch gaelic. Representing the United States, Gilbert Hough, brought greetings. Mrs. Gilliland of Toronto represented Ireland and Mrs. Joe Collier, England. Mrs. Graham sang in German and repeated the Lord's Prayer in that tongue. Mrs. C. Duquette sang "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," in French.

A choir representing the circuit, led in the music under the direction of Mrs. Fred Kotchapaw. Duets were given by Mrs. Theodore Hackett and Earl Demille, and Mrs. Vanley Kennedy and Mrs. Burton Lyons. A trio of Bob Wallwork, Colin Kotchapaw and Brock Stackhouse also sang at this unique and inspiring service.

Orangemen Attend Baptist Church For Divine Service

Picton—The Orange Order parade to the Baptist Church, Sunday morning, was a largely attended and colorful event. Led by the Lions Club band of Toronto, members of Boulter L.O.L., L.O.B.A. 487, juvenile lodges and L.O.B.A. 1150, along with representatives of other lodges paraded from the hall to the church and later through the town. The church was filled to capacity. An inspiring sermon was delivered by Rev. Raymond Holley.

Among those in attendance was R. W. Bro. Jamieson, who for the past twenty years has been Grand Secretary for the Province of Saskatchewan. Local Orangement go to Trenton to celebrate the Glorious Twelfth.

Teen-Age Film Star Goes Back to Stage

London, (CP) — Sally Ann Howes, teen-age British film star, is going back to repertory theatre —to start all over again.

After only one year's run, the Rank organization allowed the option on her £50,000 ($155,000), seven-year contract to lapse due to a financial crisis in the film industry.

With only one week's stage experience, Sally hit the headlines as child star of "Thursday's Child". Later she played in "Pink Sring and Sealing Wax" and "The History of Mr. Polly".

After making "Honeymoon Deferred" for an independent company, Sally has no further immediate film commitments.

"So I decided to start learning my job and the best way to do that seemed to be to start in Rep," said Sally, the daughter of the star Bobby Howes.

It's a long step down, but Sally's not downhearted.

Bears Can't Get Meat, Vegetables, Don't Like Milk

Junagadh, India, July 11 — (Reuters) — Fourteen bears in the zoo pace their cages and curse their luck at having to make do with milk when they want meat.

Local slaughter houses have closed to mark a Hindu sacred month and there is a shortage of meat from other sources.

Vegetables also are "off," due to local dysentry troubles, and so the zoo was forced to turn to milk.

But the lions — there are five of them — have steadfastly shunned the stuff, knocking away pails of it with contemptuous flicks of their paws.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Hagar, clad in her usual sweater and slack was propped against pillows on the chaise longue, a furry-looking cover across her feet, an icebag on top of her head secured by a red-ribbon.

"Not often I get bashed on the head with a pottery jug." Hagar slapped the couch indignantly. "Right in my own shop. Hardly got my britches in the door when I was felled like an ox."

"What time was this, Miss Blair?" Charles Reddy asked.

"Oh, call me 'Hagar.' I've just come to realize that life can be very short. What time? About 7 o'clock, I think. I'd just got back from Dana Point. I was out cold afterward for a couple of hours."

"She phoned me around 10," Stephanie put in. "Right after everybody left here. I went right down in a cab and brought her home."

"This thing's turning into a nightmare, Reddy," she told him between puffs. "Murder right in my own backyard. Literally. Who did it, d'you think?"

Reddy stared down at his chromium lighter: "I may as well tell you the truth, Miss Blair: There are some who think you might have.

She snatched the icebag from her head: "I? Think I might have? Are you crazy? I can prove I didn't, I can prove I wasn't any where around?"

"Can you?' Reddy's face looked hopeful."How?"

"I was at Dana Point yesterday afternoon—at Doheny Park, to be exact. Drove down there to meet somebody."

"Who?"

"Well, like Stephanie's already told you, I went over to see Nell yesterday about the cameo. Nell got nasty and we took to yelling at each other. Just about when we'd got to hair pulling, this phone call came for me."

"Who'd know you were at the O'Neills."

"Go on please."

"Well, this voice on the phone, a man's voice, told me that if I'd meet him at the barbecue pits in Doheny Park, he'd tell me something important about the cameo and about Martin Falter's murder. I was to meet him at 4 o'clock. It takes about an hour and a half to drive up there, so I left Nell's right away. About 2:30 that was."

"That's right. I was. But we didn't get anything settled and I went out mad as hops, and walked up and down the beach until I cooled off. Then I had a cup of coffee at Mike's and went back."

"Then you got that phone call and drove down to Doheny Park, but the fellow didn't show up?"

"He did not. I waited until 6 o'clock."

"Did you see anybody at all down there?"

"No. Places like that are pretty well deserted this time of the year you know."

Reddy rubbed his nose reflectively: "It adds up to this Miss Blair. Mrs. O'Neill was killed in your studio, possibly with one of your sculpting tools, and you can't prove your whereabouts at the time of the murder. You can't even prove you received that phone call."

"Why I can too" Hagar's face reddened indignantly, "Nell was right there when I—" her voice faltered and stopped.

Reddy looked glumly down at his shoes, then sighed and got up from his chair: "Just a few more quick questions, Miss Blair Did Nell ask you to come over and discuss the cameo?"

"Yes she did. Phoned me about it."

"Do you remember where the O'Neill phone is situated?"

"And do you remember whether you took your purse with you when you went out to answer the phone?"

Hagar screwed up her face concentrating: "Let's see. . .No! No I didn't. That's it. While I was out of the room, Nell stole my studio key from my bag. That's how she got into the studio."

"Maybe you're right."

Reddy dug into his coat pocket and brought out the silver box: "Here's a little trinket that may brighten things up a little. Tom O'Neill ordered that it be turned over to Stephanie."

Stephanie stared at him in disbelief while she stretched out both hands for the box.

He grinned at her. "We may borrow it later on for use as evidence, but, for now, it's yours."

He turned to leave. Stephanie handed the box to Hagar and walked with him from the room.

Alone, Hagar stared thoughtfully at the box. Almost gingerly then, she pressed the lock and the lid flipped open. She picked up the cameo and the unlocked pin snagged on the velvet cushion, pulling it up from bottom of the box. As she tried to straighten the pad. Hagar made mental note to glue it down firmly once and for all. The cushion was now wedged in a slanting position, she worked at it with a hairpin and pried it out. There were those numbers again, engraved clearly in the bottom of the box.

Hagar was examining the numbers, once more considering their possible purpose, when Stephanie returned to the room.

"He's gone," she announced. "Don't worry, Hagar, he'll look out for us. Wasn't he wonderful to bring me the cameo?" She came to lean over Hagar's shoulder, "What are you looking at?"

"These numbers. See, engraved in the bottom of the box: Ten dash, four. Eight, dash, two. And, underneath six."

"Might think so, except for this six down here all by itself. Or, it could be some kind of jeweler's code. Probably nothing important anyhow." She placed the cameo flat on one palm and stared at it: "Pretty bloody process, getting hold of this thing—maybe it's jinxed like the Hope diamond."

"Let me have it Hagar. I'll try again to open it."

"Be nice if you could. Can't you remember how your mother used to open it?"

"I seem to remember," Stephanie mused as she pressed the frame experimentally "that one of these pointed sections must be pushed down to spring the lock, but I've tried all 12 of them and nothing happens."

Hagar leaned back on her pillows "I wonder why your mother wouldn't consider selling it when she knew it could mean the difference between feast and famine for her little girl."

"My father told her never to let it out of her hands. It was their most important possession, he said, it would insure our future. Mother wouldn't part with it because she kept thinking father might still be alive."

"You don't expect him to appear, do you?"

"Oh, no. I've been sure for a long time that I'm completely alone in the world."

Hagar grinned at her. "Except for me. And don't forget your friend Charlie Reddy, he's very much in the picture, if I'm any judge."

"Mr. Reddy —Charlie—is very nice," Stephanie said primly.

"Oh pot! You'd better open up those eyes and take a better look if that's the best you can say for him. He's smart, he has a good sense of humor, and he's perishingly handsome. Wish there'd been somebody like him camped on my trail back about 20 years ago. I wouldn't be such a dried up old prune now if there had been." She wagged a warning finger: "Better look sharp, girl, and grab him before summertime comes along and all those long-legged bronzed blondes start parading the boardwalk."

Hagar glanced significantly at Stephanie's underpinings: "Let me tell you something: if he's like most men, he won't even realize you have an intellect until he learns to take your dimples for granted."

Stephanie tilted her small nose then her eyes slid obliquely to Hagar and she broke into laughter.

Hagar gave a gratified chuckle "and let me give you a bit of information I picked up once under a haystack. . ."She stopped abruptly and stared at the cameo: "Hey look there at the pin."

The cameo had opened in Stephanie's hands. Both women stared at it.

Hagar spoke first: "What did you do? Do you remember what you were doing to it when it opened?"

Stephanie's hands seemed frozen on the pin, her two thumbs were resting on two of the points of the gold frame at opposite sides of the centre.

Hagar hopped off the couch and leaned tensely over the girl's shoulder: "Don't move your hands girl, until you get their bearings! Look carefully now: one thumb is one the second point down from the top, left side, and one is on the second point up from the bottom, right side. Just suppose those 12 points on the frame are numerals on a clock dial—you'd be pressing 10 and 4. Remember that—10 and 4. She raced to her desk, "I'll write that down 10 and 4."

She scribbled the numbers and handed it to Stephanie who accepted it without lifting her eyes from the cameo.

"Now," began Hagar jubilantly "we can—what's the matter? Oh! Your folks—I forgot to look at their pictures. I was so excited." She peered down. "Mmm. Uh-huh. Your mother, there, very beautiful. Handsome father, too. Distinguished. Even with that mustache. I can see his resemblance to you. That's probably why Nell never recognized you, you look like your father's side of the family. He looks like some pumpkins, badges and medals all over his jacket. Military man, I suppose?"

Colombia Speeds Relief to Areas Stricken by Quakes

Bogota, Colombia, July 11 — (AP)— Colombia sped relief today to the rich-coffee growing section 230 miles northeast of here where 270 persons were killed and 40,000 left homeless in earthquakes Sunday.

The government, Red Cross, newspapers and private organizations rushed food and medical supplies to the stricken area. An air lift was set up to carry doctors, nurses and troops to 10-hard hit towns.

Cold and heavy rains hampered relief work.

Electric power failed and people groped through darkness searching for loved ones or just wandered aimlessly.

Images of Saints were set up in shattered squares and grief-ridden persons knelt before them for hours.

Hundreds of victims were living in parks and tents.

Troops buried the dead in makeshift graves to avoid an epidemic. They stood guard to prevent looting of the shattered towns of Arboledas, Cucutilla and Salazar, where destruction was heaviest.

COAXED DOWN FROM SILO

Graettinger, Ia., July 11 (AP)— A creamery worker who had perched for nearly 24 hours atop a 32-foot silo was coaxed down Monday. He was identified by Deputy Sheriff T. J. McCaffery as George Torrence, 35, the father of four children.

Ed Herke, a neighbor, talked to Torrence for an hour and a half. The man finally consented to climb down when promised he would be taken to see his family.

Three Canadian Ships Turned Over to UN

Destroyers Made Available at Once To U.N. Force

urpose for Police Action Korea Only - - St. Laurent

Ottawa, July 12 (CP)— Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today that three Canadian destroyers are being turned over to the United Nations for service in Korea.

"No time will be lost in having them sail to Korean waters," he said.

He said the destroyers, due at Pearl Harbor at 3 p.m., EDT, today, will get orders to proceed to Korea, "just as soon as despatches can reach them," by radio.

He said: "we have been informed by the U. N., that our three destroyers would be very useful in Korea and we are advising the U.N. at once that they are being made available as part of the U.N. force."

He said the destroyers will "go on from Pearl Harbor just as fast as steam can carry them."

"There will be no time lost except for refueling."

Not For General Use In Pacific

The Prime Minister emphasized that the destroyers are being made available for U.N. police action in Korea only and not for general use in the Pacific.

He was asked if the ships already have orders to proceed to Korea.

He replied that they would get their orders just as soon as dispatches could reach them.

Mr. St. Laurent said the exact way in which the warships will be used will depend upon Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is appointed supreme U.N. Commander for Korea.

External Affairs Minister Pearson is expected to elaborate on the Prime Minister's announcement in a press conference which he has called for this afternoon.

The destroyers are the Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan. They sailed from Esquimalt, B.C., last week.

U.S. SOLDIERS URDERED ON TTLEFIELD

Britain's 'Gambler of Century' Suicides, Handpicked Victims

London, July 12. (Reuters)— John Hugh Rowan, Britain's "gambler of the century", is dead by his own hand.

Known to every racehorse bookmaker in the country as "The Old 'Un", the 82-year-old Rowan was found hanging from a hook in a London hotel early this week shortly after he had phoned the valet and said:

"Will you come along to my room in 20 minutes? I want you to untie something for me."

The man who once placed £70,000 on a horse that came in at 13-8 left one last communication to a London bookmaker, "take care of my funeral."

Rowan used to bet in tens of thousands of pounds and lost more than he won.

How did he meet his losses? With his death the mystery was solved.

Many never complained to the police for he handpicked them and knew they would rather lose money than face the publicity which prosecution would mean.

He did not always get away with it. In 1903, soon after leaving his native Australia, he was sentenced to three months imprisonment for loitering with intent to practice "the confidence trick". In 1926 he was given six months for trying to swindle an American tourist out of $14,280.

Luck finally deserted him. At a recent meeting he was seen to put five shillings on a horse.

"It had better win," he said. "It's my last",

ESTIMATE KOREAN WAR CANNOT BE WON UNTIL FALL

High Officials Worried Over Magnitude of Fight

Washington, July 12 — (AP) — Foreboding over the magnitude to which the Korean War may expand touched some high officials at United States defence headquarters today.

The spectre of hordes of "volunteers" from Russia and China to aid the North Korean Army gave rise to the feeling in the high command.

But even aside from this potential situation, there were estimates in other well-placed quarters that it might take until next fall to win in Korea — even if Russian or Chinese communists do not take a hand.

This timetable was reported to have been predicated on several factors, including:

1. It will be better to take the Korean campaign at a deliberate, careful tempo than to push it for a quick finish at a possible high cost in casualties with resultant bad reaction at home.
2. The North Koreans are tough fighters. They have fought for the Russians at places like Stalingrad, and for the Japanese. They fought viciously to the end — few or no prisoners were taken from among the Koreans.
3. It took three months of campaigning in Okinawa to win over Asiatic fighters.
4. The North Koreans have the advantage of short supply lines through protected inland routes.

Three Weeks of Bad News

Military mentors cautioned that perhaps another three weeks of bad news, of more falling back by American and Korean forces, should be expected before the build-up of strength begins to pay off.

The concern evidenced privately in some quarters was that if North Korea's communist friends in Russia and China start sending in hundreds of thousands of 'volunteers' the conflict may swell into a prolonged, major - scale war even though the theatre remains confined to that part of the Far East.

So far, battle-front reports reaching Washington have made no mention of Russians being captured. But some officials though such reports could be expected, at any time.

Whether or not the "volunteers" are reaching front lines, U. S. defence officials have evidence that behind the front the North Koreans' campaign is being planned by able Russian staff work.

Moreover, the quality of North Korean material has been excellent — superior tanks, good artillery well fired. The North Korean air equipment has been second-line, but within the last two days there have been reports of Yak-15 jet fighters. These fighters are old by present standards, but are the first North Korea jets to appear over the front.

Korean Sidelights

All Australian planes returned safely.

Hong Kong, July 12 —(Reuters) — The Dutch destroyer Evertsen arrived here today from Indonesia on the way to Korea. First Dutch contribution to the United Nations forces fighting the North Koreans. She will sail tomorrow.

Madras, July 12 — (AP) — India's Socialists voiced support today for United Nations action in Korea but expressed disapproval of "unilateral American intervention in Formosa."

In a resolution passed at its eighth annual conference here, the All-India Socialist party said also that mediation of the Korean war "even at this late hour is both desirable and possible." It urged the Indian government to adopt a "positive policy" on mediation.

Tokyo, July 12 — (Reuters) — The first Distinguished Service Cross of the Korean campaign has been awarded posthumously to Col. Robert R. Martin, of Toledo, O., for "extraordinary heroism against the enemy," Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The citation said Martin had "organized and personally led rocket-launched (bazooka) and grenade attacks against enemy tanks and infantry at a range of 20 yards during an encounter, July 8."

Enemy Ride Like Ghosts Out of Fog, When One Killed Twenty Take His Place

By TOM LAMBERT

With The American Forces in Korea, July 12 — (AP) — A bitter, beaten little band of American soldiers sprawl in exhaustion on a sunny Korean hillside this afternoon—weary survivors of one of the most savage battles fought by Americans in the Korean war.

Their bitterness was more pronounced than their exhaustion, which was almost complete. They talked of encirclements and infiltrations.

"You can't fight two tank-equipped divisions with .30 calibre carbines. I never saw such a useless damned war in all my life."

Two days ago this handful of soldiers was part of a sizable unit. In a morning-long battle with North Korean tanks and troops yesterday they were whittled down.

Many of the original group are in the hills after a plunging rush from their encircled positions. But many of them—wounded and dead alike—are in North Korean hands or territory.

The battle began two days ago when the unit pushed off to attack the reds who were battering another American outfit. The unit moved up and dug in.

The reds were in front, to the day at about 5:30 a.m. The communists rode ghostlike out of a deep ground fog, which shrouded everything but flashes of their automatic weapons.

"Every time you would kill one, about 20 would come up to take his place," said Pte. Freddy Pickens of Columbus, Miss.

Overwhelmed by hordes of communist soldiers, the Americans retreated. Some Americans estimated an entire regiment attacked them.

Berserk Man Kills Hotel Baker, Shoots 2 Others

Pittsburgh, July 12 (AP)— A berserk watchman, screaming "I get even, I get even," killed a baker early today as he made breakfast biscuits in the fashionable hotel Schenley basement, then stalked upstairs to the lobby and pumped bullets into two other hotel employees.

Alfonso W. Morano was killed by a single shot from a 32 calibre revolver. He died as he dropped an egg yolk into the biscuit batter.

Five other bullets, fired wildly at Morano, missed.

"I shoot them," police quoted Omogrosso as saying. "They caused me trouble. They always make faces, make lot of smart remarks about me. I get even. I get even."

Omogrosso is to be arraigned today on a homicide charge.

PROTEST ROAD CONDITIONS

Sudbury, July 12 — (CP) — Sudbury and district Chamber of Commerce has registered an official protest with Ontario Highways Minister Doucett over road conditions on Highway 17 east of Wahnapitae, 15 miles east of here.

In a telegram sent Tuesday, the minister was told automobiles, many owned by United States tourists, were bogged down in gravel spread during road building operations.

BEARDED MYSTERY MAN SOUGHT BY POLICE POSSE

Alleged to Have Mutilated Horse, Calves

Thessalon, July 12 (CP) —Civilian volunteers today joined Provincial Police in their hunt for a bearded mystery man who has terrorized surrounding farm communities for the past week.

Mayor Campbell Cork, president of the Thessalon Chamber of Commerce, said that an organized posse will be on hand any hour of the night or day. He also issued an appeal to all residents of the town to be on the lookout for the fugitive.

The search for the mystery man began Monday after he is alleged to have mutilated a horse and two calves for food on the nearby farm of Harry Gavin.

Yesterday a horse owned by Fred Carlson of Ansonia, six miles north of Thessalon, and a calf owned by Tom Bronson were mutilated in the same way.

Residents of the area who claim to have seen the man describe him as having a beard and wearing old clothes.

Thessalon is about 50 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

Two men picked up for questioning by Provincial Police Tuesday night were later released.

More evidence to substantiate the theory the mystery man is being forced closer to town because of hunger has been discovered. A farmer reported to police that he found bloodstains on the rear bumper, fenders and lights of his car.

Closer investigation uncovered tiny pieces of flesh in this area where a horse or other animal apparently had been tied to the vehicle and forced to undergo torture.

Earlier, two other farmers reported that their calves were tortured.

MAY ADD HALF-STRIPE

London, July 12 — (AP) — Prince Philip is expected to add a golden half-stripe to the sleeve of his Royal Navy uniform Sunday.

It will mark his promotion from Lieutenant to Lieutenant - Commander. Promotion will be automatic as Philip has completed 8 years service.

The promotion will bring the husband of Princess Elizabeth a pay raise of six shillings (90 cents a day. He is expected to go on leave soon before taking command of the frigate Magpie.

Sex Hormones Making Old Persons Younger and Healthier Says Doctor

Hormones have brought startling results in about 50 men and women, all older than 65 and some as old as 90, Dr. William B. Kountz of St. Louis Mo., told the first international conference on gerontology today. Gerontology is the scientific study of old age.

Women long past the change of life began menstruating again after receiving the female sex hormones estrogen and progesterone, Dr. Kountz reported.

The living cells of the uterus or womb in such a woman again became like the cells of a healthy young woman, Dr. Kountz said. The cells of the membranes in the hose also changed back to become more like those of a young person.

Patients felt better and often became more active physically and mentally. The tissues in their bodies received more nourishment. Men receiving the male sex hormone testosterone showed similar improvement.

"This is just the beginning," Dr. Kountz said. "If we can return the uterus to normal function, then some day we will be able to do the same with an aged heart—perhaps using other hormones.

"Hormone studies are being made by groups of scientists at Washington University and infirmary hospital, St. Louis. Some patients have been treated as long as five years. So far there has not been any sign of a cancer or other diseases from the use of hormones. The amount and use of hormones is adjusted carefully to the person's general health picture.

"Good diet is another part of the treatment. Only a few of the 50 patients have died so far and these deaths were not due to hormones. Autopsies showed that their body organs and tissues were getting an increased blood supply and nourishment."

Striking rejuvenation in rats—their heart, kidneys, and livers made young again—was reported by Dr. Vladimir Korechevsky of the Oxford gerontological research unit in England.

This also was done with sex hormones, but in huge doses.

There were two bad effects the doctor warned. Some rats developed heart diseases and a few others got tumors of the liver similar to cancer.

Ground Fighting Intense Around City of Taejon

Australian and American Planes Pound N. Koreans

Tokyo, July 12 (CP)— Fierce ground fighting was reported today on the approaches to Taejon provisional capital of South Korea, as American and Australian aircraft hammered with good results at invading North Koreans.

Field dispatches from advanced American headquarters in Korea said American troops, earlier reported to be digging in along the south bank of the twisting Kum River, were involved in "particularly intense" action.

An American officer said the North Koreans, under incessant aerial attack, continued to "exert pressure all day" on sectors held by both American and South Korean troops.

The trend of the fighting was not mentioned but the defenders have been regrouping south of the Kum. A Reuters dispatch described the river as a "line of no retreat."

The officer said steady aerial pounding has stopped North-South traffic on the enemy side between the front and the strategic area behind his lines.

Scattered with Vehicles

"We have reports the main highway south from Seoul is scattered with burning vehicles and wrecked bridges," he told an Associated Press correspondent.

One sign of the effectiveness of Allied air strikes is the diminishing artillery fire from the North Koreans, he said.

Australian Mustang fighters, using a South Korean base to refuel and rearm, turned in their best performance of the war a communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters credited them with knocking out eight tanks and five trucks.

Reuters reported four American battalions are in the Chonan-Chongju sector north of Taejon. The agency said the communists were estimated to have two or three divisions there.

Chongju lies just north of the Kum, MacArthur reported that South Korean troops between Chongju and Umsong, about 13 miles farther west, had made a planned withdrawal to the Pogang River, which flows southwesterly into the Kum about 18 miles north of Taejon.

Put Ashore

(A correspondent of the Literary Gazette said North Korean naval landing parties had been put ashore in force along the east coast.)

Possible Steps To End Korean War Being Taken

Washington, July 12 — (AP) — The United States government was reported today to be following with deep caution as well as intense interest the progress of Anglo-Soviet talks on possible steps to end the Korean war.

The next move appeared to be up to Russia, followin gthe talks yesterday between deputy foreign minister Andrei Gromyko and Britain's ambassador to Moscow, Sir David Kelly.

It was assumed that Sir David, responding to an earlier opening left by Gromyko, had given some indication, if not a concrete proposal, of the kind of action the west would like Russia to take to help bring the Korean crisis to a close.

Diplomatic informants said that it was too early to tell whether the Soviets are really manoeuvring to help end the conflict or whether they are simply encouraging a hope that they will do so, while the actual fighting continues to go in favor of the North Korean communists.

Britain and the United States have been in close touch with developments and presumably agree on further steps to be taken. These points are understood to be basic in their position:

1. On the chance that a settlement of the Korean question can be approached through direct contact with Moscow, they will make every effort to explore the possibilities through the current talks.
2. The urgent need is to stop the fighting and get North Korean communist troops to withdraw north of the 38th parallel, across which they launched their attack 2 1-2 weeks ago.
3. If and when a settlement becomes possible as a result of the informal talks, the proper forum for working it out is the United Nations Security Council.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 12 (CP) —Synopsis: In Eastern Ontario, where scattered thundershowers occurred during the night, skies are beginning to clear this morning. Over Northwestern Ontario rain is falling in advance of a disturbance which will move eastward across the northern regions today. Elsewhere the weather is sunny warm and humid.

Cooler air is flowing southward in the wake of the disturbance over Northern Ontario and will cover all regions by Thursday evening.

Thursday will be cloudy and cool in northern regions. In the south showers and thundershowers will accompany the advance of the cooler air.

NO INQUEST ON LITTLE GIRL

No inquest will be held looking into the death of Mae Dawn Scrimshaw, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myles Scrimshaw, South George Street, who died this morning in Belleville General Hospital.

The Scrimshaw girl was severely burned Sunday evening while watching her brother repair an automobile inner tube which they intended taking swimming with them. Liquid cement became ignited and the girl's clothes caught fire causing third degree burns over nearly 95 percent of her body.

We've often heard of people losing diamond rings, wrist watches and eye glasses, but how a person can walk away and leave his store teeth behind has not been explained.

But some frequenter of Victoria Park did just that little thing yesterday with result that the store teeth turned up at the local police station unharmed. Apparently some persons had been resting in the park and had taken out his upper plate for greater comfort and then walked away and left them.

Later the teeth were picked up and turned over to police who are holding them for their rightful owner.

Maj. Honeychurch Takes Over Corps Of Salvation Army

"Real westerners from the west," Major Herbert Honeychurch, his wife and two children have arrived from Vancouver to take charge of the local Salvation Army Corps. They have been in Belleville since Saturday.

Major Honeychurch, previous to his charge in Vancouver, was with the War Services Department of the Army, as Senior Auxiliary Supervisor with the troops at Nanaimo, B.C. The major says that although this is the first trip for any of them into Eastern Canada, he is very favorably impressed. "We like Belleville very well," he said. "It seems like a nice city and everybody is so friendly."

The Honeychurches have two children, Patricia, 10 and Kerrie, six.

Cooke Clan Holds Family Reunion At Huff's Island

Last Sunday the weather was ideal for the Cooke family reunion held at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanna, Huff's Island, when 50 members of the clan assembled for the joyous occasion and to join in the fun for all. Mr. John Cooke, who was chairman for the day, called the gathering to order, and expressed his pleasure at the number present, and extended a cordial welcome to visitors far-away, who included: Mr. and Mrs. James Johnstone and son, James and daughter, Mrs. S. Moore, of Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. James E. Cooke, Don and Gary, Fresno, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hoffman and sons, David and Dick, of Port Colborne; Mrs. B. E. Blom, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. George E. Clarke, Mrs. May Stewart, Miss Josephine Butcher, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Parker and son, Douglas, all of Toronto.

A two-minute silence was observed in memory of those who had passed on during the past year.

Several prizes were given, including that for the oldest member of the clan present, which went to Mrs. May Stewart; to the youngest member present, John Carl Hanna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hanna, of Belleville; to the one coming the longest distance, Mrs. James Cooke, of Fresno, California; to the oldest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnstone; to the newest bride, Mrs. S. Moore; to the fattest woman, Mrs. James Johnstone and to the fattest man, Mr. Vernon Hoffman.

Swimming and boating, with candy and balloon scrambles filled in the afternoon, and were greatly enjoyed by all. The guessing contest was won by Mr. Duncan MacGinnis, of Nova Scotia, and the treasure hunt by Mrs. Donald Cain. Soft drinks and ice cream were served during the afternoon.

The races included, little girls' race, won by Charlene McGuire, Linda Cooke, and Molly McGuire; little boys' race, Larry Truman, Douglas Parker, David Hoffman, and Dick Hoffman; sack race, Donald Cooke; three-legged race, Jack Hanna and Jim Johnstone, Jr.; boys' running race, Jim Johnstone, Jr.; married men's race, James Johnstone; married women's race, Mrs. B. E. Blom, and Mrs. James Cooke; thin women's race, Marlene Cooke; and young men's race, George Clarke.

After all had partaken of bountiful refreshments which included a birthday cake in honor of Mr. James Johnstone's natal day, with all joining in "Happy Birthday to You", the delighful afternoon came to a close.

A vote of appreciative thanks was extended to the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. John Hanna and to the chairman, Mr. John Cooke, for their hospitality and splendid sequence of the day's events.

It was unanimously decided to make the reunion an annual affair.

FALLS 20 FEET

St. Catharines, July 12 (CP) — Ronald MacDonald, 12, of Grantham township, was shaken up when he fell 20 feet from the top of a lock on the unused third Welland canal to the dry bottom. The injured boy was taken to hospital for examination.

Dr. Ralph Vandervoort Addresses W.I. on Child Dental Growth

Rawdon—Mrs. John Kane was hostess on Thursday last to River Valley Women's Institute with about 25 in attendance. Two new members joined, Mrs. Glenn Morrow, and Mrs. Reg. Coombes.

Mrs. Don Donohoe presided for the afternoon and the meeting opened as usual. The roll call gave interesting accounts of the birthplace of the members. Mrs. J. L. Donohoe presented the financial statement. The new programs were passed around. Plans were made for the picnic at noon on August 3rd at Bird's Beach, Oak Lake, with Miss Eleanor Bush, convener of the sports committee.

A letter was read re a holiday at Guelph. Five pieces of the luncheon set were disposed of and there are four pieces left for sale to W.I. members.

Messages of thanks were read and the conveners were asked for one minute reports of their departments. A parcel of 15 pounds of sugar will be shipped soon to Abbott's Leigh, Bristol W.I., England.

The program was prepared by Mrs. Harold Morgan, Historical Research convener. Miss Eleanor Bush delighted with two piano solos "Sweet Suspense", and "A Trip to Niagara." Mrs. Percy Utman read "Coming Home", and Mrs. George Heasman, "The School Pony."

Dr. Ralph Vandervoort Guest Speaker

As this was Young Mothers' Day, the guest speaker, Dr. Ralph Vandervoort, Stirling dentist, gave a educational lecture on "Development of Children's Teeth." He advocated a "Health Unit" for Hastings County, where the aim would be "prevention of teeth decay and keeping the child's mouth in a good state of health at all times."

So often dental diseases affect the health of the individual and a good educational program is needed to combat tooth decay. A dental health officer would be included in every unit and he would be able to detect trouble at an early stage.

Scientists are busy studying tooth decay, especially in children and they say the principal trouble is the tremendous consumption of sugar and other carbohydrates in this highly civilized world.

Tooth Decay Increasing

At present in Canada dental decay is growing six times faster than dentists are able to treat it, and the general public stands in great need of education on this subject.

One hundred years ago the average sugar consumed yearly was eight pounds per person and in 1948 every man, woman and child in Canada averaged 140 pounds person of sugar and 95 bottles of pop. A bottle of pop contains four and one half teaspoons of sugar. Tons of sugar are used yearly for beverages.

It is definitely known that tooth decay roots mainly in fermentable sugars in food, candy and soft drinks. Some of this sugar lodges between the teeth and in crevices or hollows in the teeth. Bacteria, always present in the mouth, rapidly transforms it into acid which attacks the teeth. Some children are born with a natural immunity to this germ in the saliva and they go through life with good strong teeth, but these people are few in number.

Saliva Acid Reagent

Nature has provided a measure of defence in saliva, which tends to neutralize acid. If people use very little sugar this suffices but for those who indulge in quantities of sweets, it is woefully inadequate. Carbohydrates are common in pie, cake, candy, and if children were given less of these and less pop their tooth decay would be greatly reduced.

Dr. Vandervoort explained the three stages of tooth development showing how teeth are formed early in life and that is why an attack of measles or scarlet fever greatly affects the growth of permanent teeth.

At 14 months the child should have its first baby molar and this should be left until 10 years of age. He gave a splendid demonstration by the use of artificial teeth which gave the mothers a graphic picture of the growth of their children's teeth.

Slides

Following the lecture, Dr. Vandervoort presented a set of slides depicting various X-ray pictures showing how the roots of the baby teeth are closely connected with the new forming tooth. If a child loses its teeth too soon, various other troubles develop. It is advised that children have regular dental check-ups beginning at three years of age and so prevent many cavities. Dr. Vandervoort told the mothers that proper diet is essential in order to have good, sound teeth. The projector and screen used were on loan from Dr. Cornett.

Mrs. Ed Heasman voiced thanks to the guest speaker for the instructive lecture and slides.

After the close of the meeting, the lunch committee served refreshments.

Mrs. Harry Vandervoort expressed thanks for hospitality and for refreshments.

Favor Transports Travel on Road Half Mile Apart

Cornwall, July 12 (CP)—A coroner's jury yesterday found no one criminally responsible for the deaths of Robert Seaver, 29, and Ross Devitt, 18, both of Cornwall, in a highway accident near here June 20.

Both men were crushed to death in a cab of a transport which crashed into the rear of another transport parked beside the highway. Driver of the parked vehicle, Clair Millross of Cornwall, escaped with minor injuries.

Forgery, Larceny Charged Over Dog Race Tickets

Chelsea, Mass., July 12 (AP) — Domenic Giangrande, 35, was held for the grand jury yesterday because he hadn't enough faith in his ability to pick a winner at the Wonderland dog track.

Police testified that Giangrande bought two tickets on the No. 1 dog in a June 5 race and erased the numbers to be ready to stamp on the number of the winning dog.

The No. 1 dog won, however, and Giangrande had to stamp that number back on his tickets, police said.

That's when he was arrested on charges of forgery and larceny.

THERE ARE TWO GOOD REASONS FOR THESE SMILES

51 Building Permits Issued During June

A total of 51 building permits representing a construction value of $202,855, were issued at the city hall by building inspector J. W. Holley during the month of June.

Twelve of the permits were for the construction of new residences; 30 were for alterations; five were for commercial construction and one institutional.

Major construction during the month was the erection of storage facilities by the Trinidad Leaseholds Ltd., on South Front Street at a cost of $30,000. Storage capacity was for 30,000 gallons.

The one institutional permit was for the construction of a new chapel on Dundas Street, East, on the site of the former city old people's home.

British Movie Future 'Black' Say Producers

London, July 12 — (AP) — Britain's movie makers stepped up their output of pictures last year but the future looks black, the British Film Producers Association reported today.

In its annual report the association said British studios shot 81 first feature movies in the 12 months ended March 31, compared with 71 the year before.

Several studios closed recently because they were running in the red, the association said.

This factor, plus "the strained circumstances in which film production generally found itself, must inevitably mean fewer British films for 1950-51," the report said.

GROUND

Reuters News Agency reported that huge transport planes were streaming into Taejon airfield with men and materials to strengthen American troops which have taken up new positions south of the Kum River.

The meandering river is the last natural barrier before Taejon, 15 miles south by road. The city has been American advanced headquarters. It is on the main South Korean rail line from the southeastern supply port of Pusan.

O. H. P. King, Associated Press correspondent, said advanced American headquarters had planned to pull U.S. troops back of the Kum if necessary. The river, while only 200 yards wide at some spots, offers a natural line of defence.

King said headquarters believes it can make a stand there until enough men and supplies arrive for a counter-attack.

American engineers had mined the modern bridge across the Kum and the highways to the north. King did not say whether the bridge had been blown up.

Too Quiet on Front

Today began quietly on the Korean western front — "too quiet" in the words of a field headquarters spokesman. Then, in mid-morning, a tank-led attack flared up against Chochiwon about 60 air miles south of Seoul, the communist-captured South Korean capital.

Red mortar and artillery fire pushed the American defenders back four to seven miles to the broad Kum River. The withdrawal was orderly.

It was the same story on the central front. The reds advanced five to 10 miles there, MacArthur's communique said, presumably around Chinchon, about 50 miles southeast of Seoul, where South Korean forces are fighting.

In Chungju area, 30 miles east of Chinchon, a new enemy division appeared. It is the 15th North Korean Division, MacArthur's communique said, "apparently assembled and trained in the extreme north of North Korea."

"It is reported to have a large number of Koreans who previously have been fighting with the Chinese communist forces in Manchuria," the communique said.

TORONTO STOCKS

Base metals and western oils, which sparked yesterday's advance, showed almost a full list of minus signs, though losses were moderate for the most part. Minor losses also marked the greater number of industrial changes and golds reached a new low point since 1943.

In the industrials, papers, utilities, steels and liquors were weak, while foods showed some signs of strength.

Bell Telephone, Brazilian and C.P.R. lost fractions in utilities; Algoma picked up ¼ in steels and Steel of Canada lost ⅛.

In metals, Smelters, Nickel and Noranda were all off fractions. Only Highland Bell and New Calumet clung to the plus column.

Bralorne, Dome, Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger, Kerr Addison, Sigma, Teck-Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves sagged in senior golds and the great proportion of the juniors were either unchanged or down.

RUMOR BRANDED ERRONEOUS

Ottawa, July 12 (CP) — D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau today branded as "completely erroneous" reports that tourist entry into Canada through Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is being restricted.

"These reports apparently originate in the American midwest," said Mr. Dolan in a statement, "and we have learned that tourists from many parts of the United States are being deterred from crossing into Canada at Sault Ste. Marie as a result."

He said the Sault Ste. Marie Chamber of Commerce in the neighboring city of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., has had inquiries from tourists about possible difficulty in entering Canada at that point.

FIRE TUGS AS PROTECTION

Hamilton, July 12 — (CP) — Two fire-fighting tugs used in Halifax Harbor during the war will be available for waterfront protection to industrial plants bordering Hamilton Bay in case of fire or explosion, it is stated in a report to be made to the fire and jail committee of city council tonight.

PROWLER SENTENCED

Kitchener, July 12 — (CP) — A nocturnal prowler who crawled into two occupied beds at the Y.W.C.A. last week today was sentenced to one year definite and one year indefinite.

Alexander Norman Shelley, 26, of Kitchener was convicted on a charge of housebreaking with intent to commit an indictable offence and on two charges of indecent assault on two girls. He was given six months each on the latter charges, the sentences to run concurrent with the term for housebreaking.

SEARCH FOR GUNMAN

Ingersoll, July 12. (CP)— Police today continued their search for a gunman who early yesterday attempted to break into the Beaver Lumber Company office and exchanged shots with police as he fled.

Shortly after the gun battle two men were picked up in a truck at Tillsonburg and held for questioning. They were later released.

U.S. AIRLINES TO FLY AID TO WAR ZONE

Seven U.S. airlines will help ferry U.S. troops and supplies to the Korean war zone, according to a Defence Department announcement. While withholding details on how many planes will be used in this gigantic airlift plan, it was stated that all flights, as shown on map, will take off from bases in California. The chartered planes will use the Central Pacific route via Hawaii and also the Great Circle route through Alaska and the Aleutians, according to the plans. — Central Press Canadian.

RETREAT IS ORDER OF THE DAY

Barefoot and tired, South Korean troops and refugees are shown crossing a bridge that was blown up by retreating forces, as they fell back in the face of the advancing enemy. Engaging in first tank versus tank engagement of the war, the Yanks were forced to withdraw 10 miles to "prepared positions" and abandon some newly-won defences northwest of Taejon. — Central Press Canadian.

Poachers Plunder Scottish Streams of Salmon, Trout

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — Organized commercial gangs, employing commando tactics in raiding the famed salmon and trout rivers of Scotland, have aroused the government to action.

Charges in the House of Lords that poachers were using explosives, poison and electrical devices to extract rich catches from well-stocked streams, brought prompt assurance from T. Fraser, undersecretary of state for Scotland, that new legislation would be introduced to meet the situation.

Under the existing law, poachers are liable to a maximum fine of £10 ($31) or the equivalent of the price they get for a couple of good-size salmon.

Mr. Fraser told a questioner in the House of Commons, that the government would base its new legislation on recommendations made by a special committee of inquiry. Its major proposals call for a sharp increase in penalties, and nets, widened rights to search and a provision compelling dealers in salmon and trout to keep records of their purchases.

Attacking the new type of poaching as a "disgraceful, growing evil," Lord Strabolgi, a labor peer, told the upper house that the technique has been delevoped since the war. It was being practised, he said, by gangs of "unscrupulous, well-to-do people without morals." They came in their cars from the big cities to denude whole stretches of water.

Must Stop Racket

Lord Balfour of Inchrye said the entire Brotherhood of Anglers was agreed something should be done immediately to stop the racket.

"What we are up against is nothing less than commando raids on the rivers of Britain," he said.

The method followed by the modern type of poacher was to send a confederate on an early morning reconnaisance, fishing legitimately with a rod. His job was to find where the fish were running. Then a raid was staged under the cover of darkness, when men came out in fast cars—pretty desperate at times—carrying explosives and chemicals. For the small risk taken, the profits were enormous, Lord Balfour said.

He told of one experience where the poachers took £953 worth of fish in one night. The poachers, he said, were caught but got off with a fine of £15. The regrettable fact was that the damage had not been confined to the fish taken. All fish life in the river had been destroyed for five or six years by the indiscriminate poisoning of the water.

THE SILVER DOLLAR

A new and interesting slant on the tourist trade from the United States is revealed in methods being used in Niagara Falls and St. Catharines to attract visitors. Some little time Niagara Falls obtained permission to advertise a "silver dollar scheme" whereby American tourists were persuaded to part with their U.S. dollars in exchange for a Canadian silver dollar and ten cents.

The response to the scheme was so good that the St. Catharines Chamber of Commerce has obtained permission to put the plan into operation. It is not explained how such a great success of the plan was made — wouldn't the Americans spend the dollars anyway?

We are surprised that the fruit belt of Ontario should have to turn to quick schemes to attract tourists. Surely the beauty of Niagara Falls and the natural attractions of the St. Catharines district should be enough to bring visitors in, without promising them silver dollars.

The ironic part of the plan is that these same silver dollars are seldom seen in Canadian business. So it probably is just as well that some use has been found for the silver discs. One objection is that if the fever spreads, the tourist game will take on more of a commercial tinge than ever before. It may be all right in the fruit belt, but we'll stick to our lakes and fish for attractions here.

A JULY NIGHT

In a "July Night" an editorial writer in the Ottawa Journal describes the evenings and nights at this time of the year. He says:

"There's a strange, mysterious feeling of depth and richness to a July night. This is especially noticeable immediately after a shower when the soil is moist and the foliage of dust-stained grasses and leaves is washed clean. There is a pleasant, distinctive fragrance in July darkness after a cleansing rain that one never notices any other time of year. July stars are bright, perhaps all the more so to human eyes because many major constellations are in other areas. Hercules and Bootes are high in the heaven, but Cassiopeia is circling low.

"July nights are memorable because they combine a feeling of Nature's push toward maturity with satisfying music and earthly sounds that deeply stir one's feeling. Corn is stretching upwards fast and acorns are swelling in their shallow saucers; first planting of potatoes is ready in the warm darkness of rich humus; garnet-red raspberries are hanging thickly in sunny woodland glens.

"There is elemental night music while fireflies stage their dot and dash lantern ballet above lawns and gardens. Cicadas sing in the warm darkness and their thin, altoish notes scratch softly against the blackness. Night hawks' hollow booms carry far as they dive earthward; the sad, clear calls of whippoorwills come from pasture ravines and the sweet tones of cowbells sound from the night pasture. For only a brief time, says the pessimist, can man sit and feel the richness of a July night. A deeply satisfying experience, says the optimist, to be in tune with Nature's pulse in the heart of summer."

EYES NOT FAST ENOUGH

"As modern men of science prepare machines which will be able to travel faster than the speed of sound, knotty problems are arising — including the inability of the human eye to function properly while the body is travelling at a speed of 1,500 miles an hour," says Fort William Times Journal.

Men have previously marvelled at the speed with which the human eye can spot something and transmit the message to the brain. Now scientists say that speed is not sufficient to meet the requirements of airplane travel at supersonic speeds.

An officer of the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine reported that if two aircraft were meeting head-on at a speed of 1,800 miles an hour, they would crash together without either pilot having seen the approaching plane. He said this was due to the fact that the combined speed of the converging aircraft is faster than the ability of the human eye and brain to register the object in the line of vision.

At a mile-and-a-half, he said, the pilots' reactions would be too slow to avert a crash even though their eyes and brains registered the situation.

Present supersonic aircraft are being fitted with electronic devices which can react faster than man to control the plane, he said.

Canada will observe Navy Day on October 7th., and it is announced that the day will be marked each succeeding year on the first Saturday in October. The next Sunday will be known as "Battle of the Atlantic Sunday" in honor of the noble dead who fought and gave their lives in the Second World War.

October is a month with rich memories for the British peoples for it marks the great naval victory of the great national hero Admiral Horatio Nelson.

Tired of warfare, hot or cold;
Weary of disputing;
Sick of scandals being told,
Pillaging and looting.
Tired of bickering and strife,
Something cleaner wishin';
Needing hours of care-free life,
I go fishing'!

Tired of murder and divorce,
Wreck and conflagration;
Tired of hearing language coarse
Used for condemnation.
Tired of persons who betray
High or low position;
From all these to get away,

Mr. Thomas Hanley left today for Brockville where he has the contract for the woodwork in the new drill shed.

Mr. Charles Kyle has returned home after a trip to the Old Country.

Mr. William Hogg of New York City, and Miss Nellie Hogg of Toronto, are visiting their mother in this city.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOD CAN MANAGE AND DOES

A boy in a certain religious household is in the habit of talking about "breaks". Life flows along merrily if you get "the breaks," but if you are unlucky enough not to get them, then there is nothing to do but to take life as it comes and like it.

The father of the boy often says "Son, don't speak about 'breaks' in this household. Please substitute for that word "breaks' the word 'providence.' We in this house—including yourself if you could only look down into the bottom of your heart—believe that God is in charge of the world and that He either causes or permits to occur everything that happens. So forget about 'breaks' and begin to think a little about 'providence'."

Magic, fortune-telling, Ouija boards, betting, stock speculations, etc. are all tied up with the idea that life is fine if you get good "breaks" and miserable beyond description if you don't.

Religion, on the other hand, is built on the firm conviction that we never get "breaks" either good or bad, but that the world lies in the hollow of God's hand and that whether we are conscious of it or not, He has everything definitely in control.

Life has poise, balance, purpose when we believe this. The people who wait for "good breaks" are restless and anxious almost to the point of despair. Religion puts something solid in a man's life. If God is at the centre of his universe, He knows that "come wind, come weather," nothing can overwhelm Him.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is a type of motorist who does his or her thinking en route. That is, on the city street, they suddenly slacken speed and poke along at fifteen m.p.h. while they make up their minds.

On the busy down-town streets, if they happen to be husband and wife, or what is more common, a couple of ladies, they come almost to a stop as they lean and stare at the shops while struggling towards some sort of a decision. Meantime, traffic behind them has to share in their indecision. Sometimes you can get a string of uncertainty a block or two long, all helping, in a profane sort of way, these good citizens to make up their minds what to do.

On the highways in the country, you can also see people making up their minds while occupying the right of way. They slow down. They speed up. Then they almost come to a stop. Then all of a sudden, they put on a furious burst of speed. You can practically follow the argument pro and con. It sometimes comes to the point where the husband at the wheel puts his arm out for a left-hand turn, while his wife puts hers out commandingly for a right-hand turn.

It is in their motor cars that our Canadian citizens give the greatest assurance as regards any trend towards communism or any ism requiring unanimity and whole-hearted cooperation.

Motoring reveals, as nothing else, in our social system does, the rugged individualism and damn-all-to-you spirit of Canadians.

If some poor comrade is trying to emerge from a side street, the rest of us put on speed to block off his exit. If it says no parking, we park. Where it says double parking prohibited, we double park as a matter of principle. As naturally as we breathe, we cut in, cut out, chivvy, twist, beat one another to the jump wherever possible.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

The Wild Week

Calgary, Alta.—Come Monday Calgary begins its annual summer madness known wide and far as simply "The Stampede."

Since, at that time, we'll be somewhere in the lone Saskatchewan prairie I've been loping around the town getting a sort of preview of the particular week of hell that's going to bust loose in these parts.

The wheels are already beginning to turn. First of some 50,000 tourists begun streaming in from the United States, Bolivia, Australia, Honolulu, Bermuda and other unlikely points and including Liaquat Ali Khan, of Pakistan, Prime Minister St. Laurent, Gorgeous George Drew (who should look pretty sweet in the 10-gallon lid they have reserved for him), a bevy of cuties from Hollywood to carry on the bareback tradition established in former years by Sally Rand and Gypsy Rose Lee, and less flambouyant visitors who will wear a little sign saying "I Am a Visitor" thus ensuring them of the greeting "Howdy, Stranger!"

About 450,000 customers, a good percentage of them wearing bright silk shirts, will ogle a 23-year-old, brown-eyed Junior Farmer named Eileen Beckner, of Carstairs, this year's Stampede queen, and the world's top bronc riders, calf ropers, steer decorators, chuckwagon drivers, wild steer riders and wild cow milkers, most of whom look under-nourished and spend their spare time reading western stories or comic magazines.

Also on view over the 77 flat acres on Calgary's south side, entered through gates of imported spruce, will be 10 tepees full of Black Feet, eight of Sarcees and three of interpreters, daily horse racing with pari-mutuels, a display of Alberta's agriculture wealth and Alberta housewives' preserves dancing girls and the famous chuckwagon races.

It is a week in which a great number of Calgarians decide to slip away for a quiet holiday some place else.

The Classic

Yesterday I went out to the stampede grounds to have a talk with J. Charles Yule, the taciturn old gentleman who runs the spread and we talked mostly about the chuckwagon classic, or the Rangeland Derby as it is formally called.

If we weren't so far behind schedule in our cross-country trip, we'd surely stay to see this event. Even those un-Calgarian Calgarians, who assure you that when you've seen one bronco-buster you've seen 'em all, admit that the careening chuckwagons never pale.

They've changed a lot since the first race in 1923. Lloyd Lewis, who drove in that original race, says the top prize money then was $15. Now it comes up to $7,500, second only to the King's Plate in Canadian stakes. Recalling the first of the races, lean, leathery Lewis says: "I'm like the old-timer of 1880. He can take you down the Bow River and show you where he swam the river that spring and the bush he grabbed to get out of the water. But ask him what he did with this afternoon's paper and he doesn't know.

"Still, that day I won't forget. Pete LaGrande was driving the team against me. We made a good getaway from the infield and came down the stretch in front of the stand with mud flying 30 feet in the air. And did that stand respond! That was my first real thrill in a chuckwagon race ,when the stand all came onto their feet at once."

Plus Thrills

Charlie Yule say the idea originally came from the chuckwagons that drew up in front of the grandstand to serve barbecued sandwiches from the cook stoves. One day a couple of the boys had an impromptu race to a choice location. An institution was born.

The original race was from a standing start, once around the track, then into the infield to unhitch the four horses and start a fire in the stove. First outfit to show smoke won the money. Today it's considerably more complicated and with a set of Marquis of Queensbury rules.

Way it works now, four wagons take part in each heat. They're lined up beside a set of two barrels with the cook's stove on the ground at the rear of the wagon and the fly and poles set up as a shelter. A horn blows and everything explodes in action. Four outriders load the gear aboard the wagon, the driver whips his team into a figure-eight turn through the barrels and through a narrow gap into the track.

They say that when the outfits come down the stretch with the hooves pounding and the wagons bucking and bouncing, the drivers up on their feet fighting the reins, and the dust foaming back into the faces of the hard-riding outriders and everybody whoopin' and hollerin' it acts like a double vodko.

You'd think everyone would be exhausted by this kind of thing, but Charlie Yule says there's always one final exciting moment as the big show closes: They announce the dates for next year's show.

Letters to the Editor

Sunday Milk Delivery

I am writing re the delivery of milk on Sunday. Is it necessary? Is the attitude selfish? Should not our delivery men have a day of rest, to say nothing of the faithful horses that also need rest?

In other cities, Toronto, Hamilton, Peterborough, Kingston, in fact most of the cities do not have Sunday delivery. I heard one say "Belleville is the only place where they have Sunday delivery of milk the year round."

I think it would be the wish of most of our citizens to make a change and accept a plan of no Sunday delivery. Cannot something be done immediately in this matter and give "fair play" to the faithful men and their horses?

An Interested Citizen

Covered Garbage Trucks

The citizens of this city must be proud of their garbage system! They gather up the rubbish at one end of the city and distribute it very generously as they motor through the streets to deliver it to the dump. When they reach the dump there must be very little left on the trucks, but our city streets are nicely decorated with the filth they gathered up from house to house, and the people who object to the trash on their lawns have to gather it up and put it into the garbage cans again.

The Chamber of Commerce has placed receptacles for trash on the down town streets in order to keep the city clean so why can't the city co-operate by having covered garbage trucks to handle this trash?

Must Accept Major Reverses For Some Time

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Most of us, I imagine, are reading the war news from Korea with mixed emotions — with vast pride in the gallant job being done by the allies against tremendous odds, but with grave anxiety over how long it may take to overcome those odds.

This is exactly the situation which we should expect in this early stage of the operation. Under huge handicap we are undertaking to counter the carefully planned aggression of a powerful and well-trained army, fully equipped with up-to-date weapons by the Russians.

Therefore, we accept with regret but understanding resignation when we are told that the North Korean communists have flung the American line back in the strategic Kum River region of South Korea. It was a blow of great strength, powered by an estimated 80 Russian-made tanks, some of which were 60-ton giants.

We can sum up the position roughly by pointing out that the Kum River has been the Americans' major defence line north of the city of Taejon—Central South Korea — which has been a United States field headquarters. Gen. MacArthur gave us a useful interpretation in his communique yesterday, when he said:

That's it — a stabilizing operation. And that's the sort of thing which we must expect to continue for a long time while we are mobilizing military strength and getting it on to the fighting front in Korea. The western Allies will meet with many crises like the present one while reinforcements and equipment are being rushed from distant points to South Korea.

In the next few weeks, while additional troops and equipment are arriving in South Korea, we are going to encounter some tough going. However, we must accept this as the natural trend at this stage — a trend which our military chiefs expect will improve progressively until the tide turns and we sweep on to victory.

PILE PROPHYLAXIS

Dentists are fond of the term prophylaxis. It means the act of guarding against, preserving from or preventing disease.

Some experts maintain that a newspaper health column should be limited to one or two syllable words, short sentences and short paragraphs, for, they argue, it is not worth printing if readers with the I.Q. of a moron—intelligence no higher than that of a normal twelve-year-old child — can't understand it.

Opening a new paragraph even though still following the same line of thought, I have had some experience corresponding with and talking to newspaper readers and, believe it or not,—I hope you don't take my animadversions upon your stupidity, credulity etc., too seriously—it is my firm conviction that the average I.Q. of newspaper readers is 16 to 18 years. So I am confident that most readers know what I am talking about when I offer advice under the title of pile prophylaxis. At the same time they will pardon me for taking time out to quote Webster's definition of the word for the benefit of our moron readers. Remember, folks, the authorities estimate that approximately one in every 6 of us is a moron or perhaps an imbecile. Remember also that millions of men and women of fine character and moral conduct are morons.

Now that will do for the elucidation of terms. One of the characteristic symptoms of internal piles is a constant sensation as of fulness and distension in the lower bowel region. Being an inveterate reader of testimonials, and quack bait the pile victim readily infers that a good physic or perhaps an enema under a fancy name is just what he needs. If the physic or enema seems to bring even temporary relief, the poor geek is duly impressed. So when the sensation of fulness and distension recurs later in the day or next day of course the poor geek repeats the physic or enema, and so on until the use of physic or enema becomes a habit hard to break.

Of course the effect of physic or enema in any case of internal piles is to increase the congestion and aggravate the trouble. By no specious or pseudo-scientific reasoning about "toxins," "waste products" and the like can the most persuasive charlatan show that physic or enema does anything but harm in such case.

Indeed the Yankee wiseacre habit of taking laxatives, physics or enemas in the childish belief that this unnatural interference with the autonomic or automatic control or regulation of the bowel will somehow rid the "system" of poison, toxins, and all that silly old almanac hokum—this typical Yankee wiseacre habit, I say, is one of the two main causes or predisposing factors of internal piles.

Autonomic means self-governing. The entire digestive function is so controlled and requires no more "watching" or "aid" than does the function of the heart and blood vessels. These autonomic body functions are most efficient when let alone. Whether you're sure your trouble is internal piles or not, if you depend at all on physic or enema it will do you no harm to send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for the booklet. The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Arsenic Spray Residue

You told how to remove traces of arsenic left on fruit, salad greens etc., by spraying to kill pests. (Mrs. J. W.)

Answer — Ordinary washing may fail to remove some of the arsenate of lead. Washing with 1 per cent solution of hydrochloric acid will more thoroughly remove it. To prepare the solution mix a pint (pound) bottle of official Dilute Hydrochloric Acid 10 per cent with nine pints (pounds) of water. This dissolves arsenic residues which will not dissolve in water or soapy water. Rinse in clear water to remove the acid.

Salt and Water

Why do people who perspire freely have a white stain on their clothes? Is it an acid condition of the system? If so, how... (P. H. M.)

Answer—If it washes out it is probably just plain salt—sweat consists practically of salty water. It it does not wash out it may be controlled by the application of pure vinegar or 2 per cent solution of dilute acetic acid in water once daily to the affected area of skin. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet on Excessive Sweating.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE WONDER OF LANGUAGE

There is no more interesting study than that of language. Just go back in throught to the earliest of primitive languages. They must have been very crude indeed, but those who lived at that time understood one another to the extent that they got along all right.

As the span of history was unfolded, however, the language between human beings grew into something that stimulated the imagination. Being separated from each other though, the different tribes and collections of peoples began to form their own language for living and understanding, until today we have dozens of languages, all of them expressive and really wonderful.

These many languages of ours interpret each nationality, or group of people, and their talk personalizes them. In our present advance in civilization it is unfortunate that there is not one universal language, so that all might think in terms of accord and co-operation. The wonder of these different languages, however remains, and as we learn to think and talk in the language of another people, they are revealed to us on more common ground.

Even the English language has gone a long distance, in its borrowings from other languages, toward creating formations of words and expression, so that our reading of it increasingly stimulates us to better expression of this language ourselves. Even so comparatively recent a writer as Shakespeare, and the translators of the King James version of the Bible, have given us a heritage of composition that all of us can profitably take as a model. Their beauty and simplicity are outstanding.

One has only to read that brief Gettysburg Address of Abraham Lincoln to realize how a few well chosen words can be grouped together, when the sentiment and substance come from the heart, as those of Lincoln's did, to produce a composition of great beauty and immortal prose.

We can materially improve our own expression, and the handling of words, by studying the best published writings of those whose work has lived and stood the test of time. Often an original work loses some of its charm in its translations, though often it is improved, even by losing some of the author's characteristic expression. We should read such works anyway!

It took 18 years of research to make Johns-Manville Rock Wool Batts the finest home insulation money can buy.

Today's outstanding J.-M. Longfibre Super-Felt Batt is tough, strong and light in weight. Firmly felted, it will not crumble or fray and is of uniform thickness throughout. It has square cut edges that ensure a snug, tight fit between joists and rafters. When installed in vertical or sloping spaces, it will not "settle" leaving thin spots and voids. Important too, J-M Batts cannot burn, rot or decay.

For new construction, insist on J.-M. Longfibre Batts — for existing homes, specify J-M "Blown" Rock Wool. For details, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto — or see your nearest J-M dealer.

Trenton Bright With Color As Orangemen Celebrate 260th Anniversary of Boyne

Trenton (Special) — Gaily decorated cars with orange streamers flying and Orangemen decked [illegible] in their full regalia were [illegible]ving in town this morning for the 12th of July celebrations taking place here today.

It is expected that about 35 Orange lodges will be represented as invitations have been accepted all the way from Kingston to Oshawa.

That old expression it always rains on the 12th of July" was true again this year, as there was a slight shower early this morning. However according to the latest weather reports, the weatherman promises clear skies and plenty of sunshine for the rest of the day.

The parade will form up at Hanna Park and proceed up Phillips Street to Dundas, then down Dundas to the Gilbert Hotel, and up King to Dufferin, down Dufferin to Dundas and back to Hanna Park.

This afternoon there will be booths and games at Hanna Park and tonight, there will be a street [illegible]e downtown.

[illegible]njamin Lodge, Belleville, will 'walk' here today along with the majority of lodges in the Belleville, Trenton district, and other branches of the Orange Order from Little Lake, Colborne and Cobourg. 'Walks' are also taking place in Napanee and Madoc today.

Benedict Proctor Beat Scrappers In Softball Loop

Trenton—Two Benedict Proctor pitchers held Zigman Scrappers to four hits as the Silvermen swamped the Scrappers 23-7 in a six and one half inning Industrial Softball League game at [illegible]hore Park Tuesday night.

[illegible]ee handled the hurling duties on the Silvermen's mound for four innings and gave up four hits while walking one and striking out five. Bill Mitts took over from Free in the fifth and held the Zigman team hitless for the next three innings as he struck out four and walked seven.

Benedict Proctor collected a total of 16 hits which included doubles by Free, Hartman and Miller, a triple by Bill Mitts and a homer by Bill Chesher in the first frame.

Chick Chouinard started on the mound for the Scrappers and stayed five and two third innings. Chouinard was tagged for 13 hits while Turner who relieved Chouinard in the sixth with two away gave up two singles and a double.

The Scrappers picked up their four hits, a pair of two baggers by Reid and singles by Williams and Yurex in the first two innings and were held hitless for the rest of the way. However the Scrappers managed to score three runs via the walk and error route.

In the miscue department, the Scrappers booted six while the Silvermen fumbled three.

48 Young People From Tennessee Pass Thru Town

A bus and station wagon load of "Young Farmers and Homemakers" from Tennessee passed through Trenton yesterday on their way to Perth and Ottawa. There were 48 young men and women in the group which represents Young Farmers and Homemakers clubs throughout the entire state.

The Young Farmers and Homemakers from Tennessee are on a 12-day tour of Canada and the United States, four days of which will be spent in Canada, "visiting places of historical interest and observing Canadian customs and agricultural methods."

Crossing over at Windsor, the tour continued through southern Ontario and last night, the Tennesseeans were guests of the Perth Junior Farmers' Association and billeted in private homes in Perth.

Today, they will go to Ottawa and after visiting various points of interest in Canada's capital, the tour will return to the United States via the Thousand Islands Bridge and continue through New York State to Niagara Falls and then back to the home state of Tennessee.

Fairmile T. O. Leaves

The Fairmile Training Craft, PTC 721 left Trenton dock this morning. PTC 721 tied up Monday night and was unable to leave yesterday as the Belleville bridge across the Bay of Quinte was out of order. The second Fairmile naval craft to dock here in recent weeks, PTC 721 is on a one week training cruise out of Kingston. The ship is under the command of Lieut. Windover.

Former Minister Visits

Rev. George D. Campbell, accompanied by Mrs. Campbell and daughter Isobel, of Keswick, Ontario, were in Trenton Tuesday. Mr. Campbell is a former minister of Grace United Church.

Sunday School Picnic

ANGLICAN PICNIC

Madoc — More than 200 young [illegible]e representing the Sunday Schools of Millbridge, Bannockburn, Queensboro and Madoc villages of the Madoc Anglican Parish gathered to enjoy their annual picnic at Crystal Beach on Wednesday afternoon. Under the guidance of Mrs. Morley Nickle and Mrs. Leo Heyworth, ladies of the various groups helped to serve a splendid cold luncheon at the noon hour, after which the races were run off.

A sudden shower in mid afternoon failed to dampen the spirits of the young or old and a bright sun soon dried the grounds for the remaining sports events. A sumptuous array of refreshments beckoned all back to the picnic tables and the afternoon terminated with a flock of tired but happy children returning home by bus and car.

Appreciation of all is expressed for the wonderful success of the outing to Rev. T. Harvey Good, rector of the parish, Mrs. Nickle and assistants for their untiring efforts and to William Hawthorne, Jr., proprietor of Crystal Beach, for the use of his grounds and bathing facilities.

DUCHESS NOT REMEMBERED

Los Angeles, July 12 (AP)—The first husband of the Duchess of Windsor, Earl W. Spencer, Jr., left his entire estate to his widow Lillian. Filed for probate yesterday, his will made no mention of the former Wallis Warfield, whom he married in 1923. They were divorced in 1927. Spencer, who died at 61 in Coronado, Calif., May 29, left an estate worth "in excess of $25,000," his lawyer said.

WILL BE MARRIED

Hollywood, July 12 (AP) — Peggy Cummins, the British actress who came here to play the title role in "Forever Amber" but was replaced because she was "too young," is engaged. Miss Cummins, 24, said yesterday she will marry a London business man, Derek Dunnett, 29, in London next October.

COURT ORDERS RELEASE

Bombay, July 12 (AP) —A high court yesterday ordered the release of 25 top-ranking Indian communists who have been in prison for the last two years for alleged activities prejudicial to the state. The court ruled that the detention orders under which the communists were jailed were technically faulty.

TOBACCO CROP DOWN

Washington, July 12 (AP) — The United States Agriculture Department has forecast a burley tobacco crop of 499,188,000 pounds, more than 60,000,000 pounds less than was produced in 1949. This drop accounted largely for the two-percent drop in the forecast for all tobaccos —1,932,000,000 pounds. Production a year ago was 1,970,000,000 pounds.

Mrs. F. Farnsworth Addresses Cannifton Women's M. Society

Cannifton — The July meeting of Cannifton W. M. S. was held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Williams, with a good attendance of members, associate helpers, and visitors. Mrs. Williams opened the meeting, and extended a cordial welcome to all present.

Reports were read by the treasurer, Mrs. Empson, and Mrs. Brenton, secretary. Mrs. Madden gave a splendid reading on "Christian Stewardship", and Mrs. Mills conducted the worship service, taking for the Scripture reading, II Chronicles, 7:12-22,—"Why is the world in such confusion and unrest?" We pray for peace and security, yet it is withheld. Is not verse 22 the answer to these questions? "Because they forsook the Lord God of their fathers, which brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on other gods, and worshipped them. Therefore hath God brought all this evil upon them."

An appropriate solo was rendered by Mrs. C. Matthews with Mrs. A. Boyd at the piano.

Mrs. Williams introduced Mrs. E. Farnsworth, stating that nearly all knew her as she and the late Rev. E. Farnsworth were on the circuit seven years.

Mrs. Farnsworth, in her talk, remarked that Dean Inge of England, once said, "If you do not believe that as a nation we are soft, lazy, and self indulgent, just look at the figures man spends on alcohol, tobacco, and betting; and women on dress and cosmetics." This is true, even in our time", added the speaker.

Strong drink is the great enemy of Christianity, of missions, at home and abroad, of the church the home, and everything that is good.

The meeting of over 5,000 women in Massey Hall, Toronto, last November, to look into the problem of social drinking, was a great education of public opinion, and gave expression of the alarm of Ontario women over the drink evil. "The Ontario Women's Council" and the "Home and School Association", have asked the Ontario Minister of Education for a course in alcohol education in the schools.

Following Mrs. Farnsworth's message, some timely messages and readings were given by Mrs. McGuire, of Belleville; Mrs. Brenton; Mrs. Mills, and Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Williams extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. Farnsworth for her inspiring address, and to all who had assisted in any way.

Mr., Mrs. H. A. Donald Of Frankford Mark Golden Wedding

A family reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Stickle, in Frankford, on the occasion of the golden wedding anniversary of Mrs. Stickle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Donald, of Frankford.

Guests included the couples' other seven children: Mrs. Frank Vanclief, of Consecon; Mrs. Albert Weese, of Lakefield; Mrs. Richard Derry of Eldorado; Mr. Colin Donald of Frankford; Mrs. Walter Abram of Holloway; Mr. Andrew Donald of Consecon, and Mrs. Olga Donald of Frankford.

The only one of the 35 grandchildren not present was Bill Stickle, of British Columbia. All of the nine great grandchildren were present.

Friends of the family came to congratulate the couple in the afternoon and evening.

The couple were born and married in Haliburton County, later moved to Holloway, and Frankford.

Both are in good health and still continue to lead a busy farm life.

WEDDINGS

MAIZE—RICHARDSON

Trinity United Church, Cobourg, was the setting for the marriage of Barbara Jane Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Richardson, Cobourg, to Mr. William Phillimore Maize, son of Mr. J. W. Maize, Toronto. Dr. W. P. Woodger conducted the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white nylon tulle over pink taffeta. The bodice was of white Chantilly lace over pink organdy and the bouffant skirt ended in a short train. Her fingertip veil was of blush net and she carried a bouquet of pink and white sweetpeas, carnations and bouvardia.

The bride's sister, Mrs. David Anderson, Brigden, was matron of honor and Miss Anne Nicholson, Belleville, the bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in ankle length dresses of pale pink organza over taffeta. They carried deep pink straw baskets filled with pink daisies; wore matching clusters of flowers in their hair.

Dr. Paul Hutz, Toronto, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. David Anderson, Brigden, and Mr. Ted Hill, Hamilton.

THOMSON—HOARE

Summer flowers, white wedding bells, and pink and white streamers tastefully decorated the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kerr, Belleville, for the marriage of Muriel Edith Hoare, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hoare of Hilton, Ont., to Andrew Peter Thomson, of Merritton, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Thomson, of Belleville. The Rev J. G. Hornsby of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, officiated.

The wedding music consisted of the Wedding March from Wagner's "Lohengrin" with "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because" being rendered before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charmingly gowned in white brocaded satin, fashioned with molded bodice, long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in lily points over the hands, sweetheart neckline, and full skirt. Her lace-trimmed veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a pearl encrusted headdress, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Little Carol Hoare, of Lindsay, and niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a dainty frock of pale blue nylon over taffeta, and carrying a nosegay of pink roses and lilacs.

Mr. Richard Thomson, of Belleville, was groomsman.

Following the reception which was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kerr, the bride's mother, wearing light blue with navy and white accessories, and corsage of pink roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in apricot with navy accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses, the young couple left for Ottawa and points east.

For travelling, the bride chose a blue ensemble with navy accessories and gardenia and lily-of-the-valley corsage. They will reside in Merritton, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were present from Lindsay, Odessa, Hamilton, Osgoode, and Clarence, Ont.

GILHOULLEY—DORIAN

Recently at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, the marriage of Catherine Helen Dorian, youngest daughter of Mrs. Edward Dorian, and the late Mr. Dorian, to Francis Michael Gilhoulley, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gilhoulley, of Belleville, was solemnized by the Reverend Father Charles Baker.

The young couple will reside in Belleville.

KIMMERLY—BADGLEY

Melrose United Church, Melrose, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday, July 8, at 2:30 p.m., when Helen Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Badgley, of Shannonville, became the bride of Harold Norman Kimmerly, of Selby, son of Mr. Fred Kimmerly and the late Mrs. Kimmerly. The Reverend L. W. Scott, pastor of the church, officiated before a background of delphiniums, Canterbury bells, and ferns.

Mrs. Charles Bates provided the wedding music, and Miss Betty Bates, soloist, pleasingly rendered "Because" before the ceremony and "Through the Years", during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her Victorian bridal gown of white satin featuring a sheer yoke and bertha collar outlined with lace and seed pearls. The full skirt was fashioned with a scalloped peplum edged with pleated lace. Her three-quarter length veil of tulle illusion fell gracefully from a crown of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of Butterfly roses and stephanotis and satin-edged French lace.

Mrs. J. M. McFarlane, of Shannonville, and sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss G. Huffman, of Corbyville, was bridesmaid. Both wore nylon net over taffeta, embroidered with silk applique, the former in pink, and the latter in blue. Matching mitts and wide-rimmed headdresses completed their costumes. They carried crescent bouquets of blue carnations and orchid gladioli, intermingled with delphiniums.

Four-year-old Shirley Pascoe, niece of the bride made a charming flower girl, demure in her floor length frock of pink, dotted Swiss organdy, daintily trimmed with Valenciennes lace. She wore a flower bandeau and carried a miniature bouquet similar to that of the other attendants.

Mr. Earl Kimmerly, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were, Mr. Earl Badgley, brother of the bride, and Mr. W. Kimmerly, brother of the bridegroom.

The wedding dinner was held at Golden Acres Inn, where the bride's mother, in grey and mauve figured silk, with white accessories and corsage of mauve gardenias and roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's sister, who wore a gown of navy and white figured sheer, with corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to the United States, the bride wore a pink sheer ensemble with white accessories and pink corsage. Upon their return, they will reside at the bridegroom's farm, Selby, Ontario.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Unsought advice has her worried

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 18, and very much in love with a boy who is in service. I have never been out with anyone else, and neither has he, for nearly seven years.

I work in a factory, and the girls I work with are always telling me that if I marry this boy without ever going out with anyone else, I'll be sorry. They also say that he ought to go out with other girls, too. He has been away now for over a year, and nothing has changed between us. We're as much in love as we were before, even more so.

I want to do what is best for him, even if I have to be hurt myself. But I know that if I should marry him, I would never be sorry. I realize that 18 is very young to get married, and so does he, and we are willing to wait awhile. We have everything in common, and we love each other very much. Are we wrong in not going out with anyone else? —G. L.

Dear G.L.: Pay no attention to what the girls who work with you say. When a boy and girl have been going together as long as you two have, and still feel the same about each other, it's a pretty good indication that they are very well matched.

If you are so happy in each other's affection, and neither of you feels like going out with anyone else, I see no reason why you should. It would be an entirely different matter if you had been going together for only a few months, or even a year. You must know each other well enough by this time to be pretty sure of how you feel, and that is all that matters. Don't let anyone talk you out of a relationship that has lasted so long.

Used to hate him—now she's interested

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For about five years I have known a boy who is now 17, and I never could stand him until last summer. He used to kid me and make fun of me, and I used to have smart answers. I guess I hated him so much I finally got interested in him. At one time he liked me, but now he doesn't know I exist.

I would like to know how I could get him interested in me again if possible, or at least get him to be good friends with me. I am 15.—L.

Dear L.:

It is rather smart of you to suspect that your dislike of this boy focused your attention on him so much that you began to get interested in him. It is entirely possible that this might have been so.

In any event, your best chance of getting him to notice you in a more friendly way is to let him see that you are a girl whose company both boys and girls enjoy. Lots of girls make the mistake of thinking that in order to interest a boy, they must concentrate on letting him know that they think he's wonderful. It's much more effective to behave in such a way as to make the boy think you are wonderful. The way to do that is to be friendly with everybody, have good times with everybody, and be a good scout all around.

FAIL TO SETTLE

New York, July 12 — (AP) — A mediation session yesterday failed to settle the 29-day strike of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) against the New York World Telegran and The Sun. The strike began June 13 over a wage dispute, shutting down the paper.

6 ideas for menu variety!
(Clip 'em! Try 'em! You'll enjoy 'em!)

1. FRUIT JUICE MAYONNAISE for fruit salads: Fold ⅓ cup Hellmann's Blue Ribbon Real Mayonnaise into ⅓ cup cream, whipped. Add 2½ tbsps. icing sugar, 1 tbsp. fruit juice. It has to be Real Mayonnaise to s-t-r-e-t-c-h this way!

2. SANDWICH LUNCHEON: Put slice cheese on slice bread, spread with smooth Hellmann's Blue Ribbon Real Mayonnaise. On another bread slice, arrange cooked egg slices, dill pickle slices. Press bread slices together. It's grand-tasting!

3. NEW ZEST FOR HAMBURGERS! Spread them with Hellmann's Blue Ribbon Real Mayonnaise before you broil or fry them! Only Real Mayonnaise (containing no starchy filler) is rich enough to double for cooking fats.

4. SOUP FLAVOR-FLOURISH: Add Real Mayonnaise to your favorite soups. It imparts a delightful extra flavor—and creaminess. Hellmann's Blue Ribbon is the top-selling Real Mayonnaise!

GOOD MANNERS

The problems of relatives . . . . "For better or for worse"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a family problem. Please help me to settle it. My husband and my oldest sister had an argument. Her son heard about it, and he insulted my husband, in front of [illegible] large group of his friends. A few days after this, they found out that there was no truth in what they had heard my husband had said. But my nephew never apologized to my husband, and of course I think my sister should have made him apologize for the sake of respect for my husband.

However, now there is a real problem also in the fact that my nephew is getting married, my son is to be an usher at his wedding, and my husband does not want to go either to the shower (which is for both women and men) or to the wedding, because he feels that my nephew, who is 23 years old, is old enough to know right from wrong and should have apologized to him.

My husband says that I should go to the shower and wedding if I wish to, but of course I don't w[illegible] to go without him. I've as[illegible] him that I know he is right, but beg him please to go for my sake. I've also promised him that we will leave early, going only to the wedding and dinner, not staying to the reception following. My husband and I love each other very much indeed, we have been married over twenty years, and never have an argument about ourselves. . . . only about his family, and now about mine. And even if I thought my husband was wrong in his family discussions, I always did what he asked me to do.

He knows that I am writing to you and he says he will do whatever you say. . . but personally I don't think he will change his mind because he will think that you will take my side of the argument and advise that he should go for my sake. However, I do wish you would tell us what you really do think about our going to [illegible] shower and wedding. And th[illegible].

S. R.

Of course your husband should go with you. . . be your ever-gallant, ever-lovin' escort. . . . should go to the shower and, most importantly, to the wedding. Assure him that you and I are not two women ganging up on him, but that, naturally, we don't want to have you appear unescorted-by-your-husband at such an important occasion as a wedding in your family, with your son and his in such a dramatic position as usher. Of course you would be miserable going alone . . . tell him you would be just as miserable going alone as he would be on a similar occasion in his family.

Assure him, too, that he is not the only husband, or the first one either, who has felt aggrieved by someone in his wife's family. . . that supremely important phrase in the marriage ceremony, "For better or for worse", must and indeed does apply to relatives on both sides, as well as to other t[illegible] in wedded life, and that, like you, he must be understanding and forgiving. That way life is easier. . .it's no fun to be a martyr he is sulkingly being, no fun for him and desperate for you.

Tell him you want to be proud of him, proud and happy to be with him . . . that you'll be miserable to have to explain to your relatives that your good husband is "at home sulking". After all, what happened was mighty small and insignificant compared with the great and memorable occasion of a wedding in the family, an occasion when all unpleasantness must be put aside and happiness and co-operation brought forth to contribute to the happiness of the bride and groom and all those others most intimately concerned with the should-be-joyous occasion. I'll be cheering for you. . . I hope you both go and both have a wonderful time!

Who buys the flowers?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are making our preparations for our marriage, to take place very soon. Who buys the flowers for the bride and the maid of honor? Also there will be two ushers in church and four bridesmaids. Who buys the flowers for the bridesmaids, and who the boutonnieres for the ushers?

Question-er.

The groom buys his bride's bouquet . . . also her going-away corsage . . . and a corsage for his mother and his bride's mother. He also supplies boutonnieres for his best man, ushers, his father and the bride's father. But it is the bride's family who plan and pay for the flowers for all bridal attendants—maid of honor and bridesmaids.

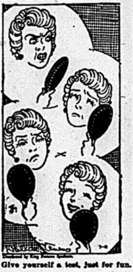
BEAUTY

It is all done with mirrors.

When you lay on the synthetic blush and when you arrange your hair before the looking glass, you have an idea that you know pretty well what you look like. You have facial poise at these moments, may feel that nature has not short-changed you when dealing out pulchritude. You don't realize that you have many different faces, that each face registers emotions, takes on high lights or shadows.

Give yourself a test, just for fun. Stand before the mirror. Tell yourself that you are good and mad about something. Feel mad. Let anger rage within you. Your teeth will be clenched together; your lips will be tightened; frowns will appear between your eyes. You'll look like a thunder cloud. Can that be you? Never again will you let your angry passions rise.

Now feel sorry for yourself. Tell yourself that fate has given you an unfair deal. You have more troubles than anybody else in the world. You wish you were dead. What a face you have now! Eyes dull. Mouth drawn down. Tissues sagging along the jawline. It is a revelation.



Give yourself a test, just for fun.

Now you are to think of what you would like to say to that woman you don't like. Something slick and smart that will put her in her place. You get a mean look in your eyes; the lids do a little half-squint. Perhaps your mouth twists a little. That creature in the mirror can't be you. It must be somebody else. Surely you never, never look like that.

Now you are going to indulge some pleasanter, prettier, more heartening play-acting: You are going to imagine that your best feller has arrived with gifts—a bouquet of roses, a box of candy, a diamond necklace and maybe a mink coat for you. You register joy and rapture. Your eyes sparkle; lip ends lift; your head is high, figure erect. Nice baby! You look sweet because you are happy. Keep that pose! Get acquainted with yourself at your best appearance and rejoice!

Your face can make you look young and it can make you look old, according to the expressions it assumes. Pleasant emotions speed the muscles upward; unpleasant ones send them downward. As your countenance is ever in the making or the unmaking, you cannot afford to indulge in ugly or distressing thoughts.

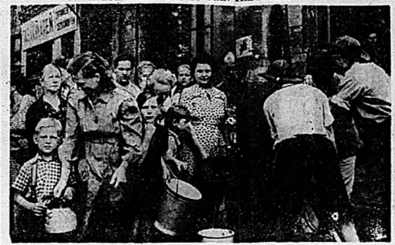
WEST BERLIN HAS TO MAN THE PUMPS



Carrying buckets, saucepans and kettles, women of West Berlin line up at a fire hydrant to get their day's supply of water after the communist sector of the city sealed off eastern water main supplying water to the west. It was the second utility cut in four days. The Easterners had previously cut off electric power from the west. Eventually western authorities hoped to supply enough water to take care of everybody. — Central Press Canadian.

MADOC

Madoc — St. Peter's Woman's Missionary society held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. Field Allan on Friday last with a good attendance. A Psalm and prayer were given by Rev. M. W. Heslip and a special tribute was paid to a former member and president. Mrs. E. West who passed away during the past week. All present stood while prayer was being offered.

During the business period, the expense treasurer reported that a bale valued at $100 was being sent to the supply secretary and two quilts were given to a very worthy cause. Two mission band girls are being sent to the church summer camp.

The topic was taken by Mrs. D. Kernahan. Mrs. Allan Johnston told why the work progressed in the mission fields of Korea and the work being done by Koreans in Japan. Mrs. Kernahan dealt with the church, Sunday School, Bible School and medical work being done in Japan. Mrs. Donohue told of work that was done following the war.

Major J. E. Sutcliffe,
Toronto, says:

"This NEW Blue Sunoco is really something! I average 20,000 miles a year, and I find that with Sunoco gasoline I can drive a big car at light car cost. 10 Gallons of this new fuel should be enough to make any driver a Sunoco regular."

New High
ANTI-KNOCK POWER
Hills seem flatter . . . miles shorter!

New High
ALL 'ROUND PERFORMANCE
Like extra horse-power under the hood of your car!

New High
VALUE FOR YOUR MONEY
Improved performance means increased value for your gasoline dollar.

MAKE THE 10 GALLON TEST AND FEEL THE DIFFERENCE!

For best results, don't dilute NEW BLUE SUNOCO with other gasoline. Wait until your tank is nearly empty—then put in 10 gallons of NEW BLUE SUNOCO.

Compare it! Feel the difference!
We believe you'll never go back to ordinary gasoline!

PERFORMS DIFFERENTLY BECAUSE IT'S MADE DIFFERENTLY!

CANADA
DOLLAR

Riverside Cemetery Begins Path Back To Original Beauty

Shannonville—The beautifully situated Riverside Cemetery at Shannonville was, on Saturday, the gathering place of many men and women who are interested in restoring it to its former beauty, when the "Quinte Woman's Institute" kept it in such good shape. They built a road encircling the cemetery and artistically arranged cedar shrubs, of globular shape on either side.

For ra few years it has been neglected but new interest has arisen and many are determined to restore its beauty.

During the week much work was done by the owners on several plots. Several of the plot-holders did not know of the plan, and were not present. In the near future at a convenient time for them, it is hoped others will join in this community work and work on their own individual plots.

The interest is gratifying and many money donations have been received.

Plans for the future are being discussed. Come and assist in these plans.

Following the busy afternoon refreshments were served by the ladies in the United Church Sunday School Hall.

WHEN U.S. DOLLARS CROSS YOUR COUNTER

Canada's U.S. purchases must be paid for in U.S. dollars

HERE ARE POINTS TO REMEMBER:

It is good business to accept U.S. currency whenever it is tendered in the course of trade.

When you accept U.S. currency you are required to allow the official rate of exchange of $1.10 Canadian for $1.00 U.S.

You will be credited by your bank with the official rate of exchange — $1.10 Canadian for $1.00 U.S. — on any U.S. currency that you deposit.

You are free to make change, if requested, in U.S. currency for a non-resident tourist who has tendered U.S. currency in payment for a purchase.

U.S. currency must not be paid out to anyone in exchange for Canadian currency.

U.S. currency must not be paid out in change to a Canadian resident, even though the latter has tendered U.S. currency in payment for a purchase.

Resignation of War Secretary Strachey Demanded by Three Papers in Scathing Editorials

U.S. ARMY NURSE

London, July 12 — (CP) — Most British newspapers agreed editorially today that War Secretary John Strachey should resign.

Three conservative newspapers —The Daily Telegraph, The Daily Graphic and The Glasgow Herald —joined the liberal News Chronicle in calling bluntly for his resignation.

The Times (independent) said Strachey's choice would seem to lie between observing more faithfully the obligations of his high office, "or else to recover the full freedom of speech in one obvious way."

The Manchester Guardian (liberal) wondered whether Strachey is not, "for all his high gifts," becoming a liability to Attlee.

The Yorkshire Post (conservative) also was critical. There was no comment from the Daily Expess, which usually opposes the government, or from the Daily Herald or Daily Miror, which support it.

The editorial comment came as a sequel to last night's debate in the House of Commons on the language used by Strachey in a speech on the Schuman plan. Strachey said his reference to a "plot" referred to a conservative attempt to defeat the government, and not to the Schuman plan.

12,000 Workers Defy Return Of King Leopold

Charleroi, Belgium, July 12 — (AP) — Factories closed and about 12,000 workers marched through the streets here today chanting "Down with Leopold" and "Abdication."

Today's strike in this coal mining area originally had been called for all of the French-speaking Walloon part of Belgium, but socialist leaders postponed the general walkout.

A regional union closed the many engineering works aound Charleroi, however. A union spokesman said about 50,000 workers walked out. There was no violence but plenty of noise.

Brief Fire Breaks Out in War Office Basement

London, July 12 (AP)— Fire broke out in the basement of the War Office today from an unknown cause.

Dense smoke filled two underground stories which were used during the war for bombproof offices.

The War Office reported the fire started among "film apparatus" stored in the basement.

CLEANERS WANT BONUS

Rome, July 12 —(Reuters) — Street cleaners today went on strike here for a special "Holy-Year bonus." They claimed that Holy Year festivities are making more work for them.

New Flooding In Nebraska By Heavy Rain

Omaha, July 12 (AP)—An eight-inch downpour brought new flooding to Nebraska today.

The state safety patrol said six feet of water surged over a main highway near McCook, Neb., at the Kansas state line.

Considerable crop damage was reported near the little town of Danbury, Neb. The patrol said the eight-inch rain was concentrated near Danbury.

A flood crest, born of runoff water from the weekend rains, roared down the Big Blue river toward the southeastern Nebraska city of Beatrice. Rising at the rate of about seven inches an hour last night, the Big Blue was expected to crest today at 25.5 feet.

WILL DEFEND TITLE

Montreal, July 12 (CP)—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the Little Rock, Ark., traveller who won the Canadian Open golf championship at Toronto last year, is coming back to defend his title at the Royal Montreal Club Aug. 24-27, the Royal Canadian Golf Association announced today.

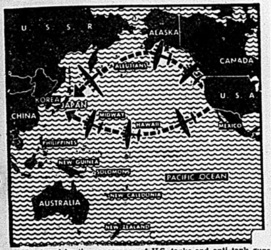
RAPID EXPANSION

In three years of operation, Trans-Australian airlines have established 13,400 miles of domestic air routes.

ATTACK ACTRESS' HOME

Los Angeles, July 12 (AP) — American Airlines, which claims that actress Constance Bennett and her husband, Air Force Col. John T. Coulter, owe $4,340 for plane tickets, has attached the couple's Beverly Hills home.

U.S. AID HAS SPARKED SOUTH KOREAN ATTACKS



Heartened by the appearance of U.S. tanks and anti-tank guns, the South Korean infantry, according to U.S. reports, is now fighting well. These four riflemen are typical of the South Korean forces wearing non-descript clothing and, judging from their expressions, unafraid of the fighting ahead. — Central Press Canadian.

PRAIRIE FARMER FACES ANNUAL ORDEAL BY HAIL

Winnipeg, July 12. (CP)—The Prairie farmer, worm, wind and drought problems apparently in hand, faces the almost-annual ordeal by hail.

His yearly gamut of natural enemies starts before he sows his seed and ends only when the grain is safely tucked away in the elevator. But the spectacular standout among the menaces is the round ruin from the skies during July and early August.

The hail season this year has started off with a bang.

Stones an inch in diameter blasted a six-mile-wide swath through the Hefford and Blaine Lake Districts of Northern Saskatchewan. Loss ranged from 50 to 100 per cent.

Avonlea and Bengough in south-central Saskatchewan report scattered claims as high as 100 percent, and seven southwestern and central districts say 30 claims for 100-per cent insurance have come in. Swift Current in the southwest had 50 claims.

The Alberta Hail Insurance Board, a government-backed agency which writes about 75 per cent of the business in that province, estimates that 200,000 of 16,000,000 acres have been hit and damage varies from light to 100 per cent.

Weekend hail in the south—worst-hit portion — damaged wheat and beet crops. Winter wheat—much of it in the head —was feared battered beyond recovery. Beet crops at Reymond and Magrath and canning crops at Magrath suffered heavily.

Crops Slashed

Far north at Fort St. John, B.C., just west of the Alberta border, crops were slashed by the worst hail storm ever recorded in that area. Farmers were reported planning to plow under what had been promising fields of grain.

Claims paid by insurance companies do not reflect total losses, since many farmers do not insure and most protect only part of their crop—and that for only a portion of its value.

But the Alberta Board in 1947 paid $1,767,000 in claims. The figure usually runs about $400,000.

Agricultural experts say the west's 67,000,000 acres sown to crops is too big an area to have its over-all yield greatly affected by hail. It slashes long, narrow strips in fierce, brief storms.

But to the farmer, a gambler by necessity, it can mean that he has cultivated, seeded, fought weeds and grasshopper and prayed for rain and warmth, only to face ruin.

Home Building Reduced by Lumber Prices

London, Ont., July 12 (CP)— Increase in lumber prices is having the biggest effect on veterans home building in the Windsor area, Robert Pawley, district superintendent of the Veterans Land Act, said today after a conference of regional officials from most of Southwestern Ontario.

"Reports from the men in the various areas showed that the biggest price rises were in the Windsor area, where some curtailment of construction is noticeable," Mr. Pawley said. "I expect this is due to the higher lumber prices prevailing in the Detroit area."

Elsewhere in Southwestern Ontario little effect is evident as yet, Mr. Pawley said, although it may come before the fall.

FIRE NEW GUIDED MISSILE

Washington, July 12 (AP) — United States army ordnance experts yesterday successfully fired a new guided missile, named the "ordcit," about 50 miles into the air at White Sands proving ground in New Mexico. The army said it is the first American-designed and American built supersonic missile guided from the ground.

QUEENS RECEIVES DONATION

Kingston, July 12 — (CP) — Queen's University has received a gift of $2,500 from Hield Brothers Ltd., of Bradford, England, through the company's Kingston branch, university officials announced Tuesday.

STAMPEDE STARTED WITH FLOURISH — THEN CAME RAIN

CALGARY EXHIBITION STAMPEDE PARADE MOTORS

The parade of high stepping, baton twirling girls was over, Prime Minister St. Laurent had officially opened the Stampede, the big show was under way. Then came the most torrential downpour Calgary has ever seen at stampede time, and 26,000 spectators rushed for the exists. The rain is attributed to Indians, who, refused free admission to the grounds, staged a "rain dance." Above is part of the parade that opened the show. — Central Press Canadian.

Foreign Office Receives Full Report on Talks

London, July 12 (Reuters) — The Foreign Office announced today that it had received a full report of yesterday's talks on the Korean war in Moscow between British Ambassador Sir David Kelly and the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei Gromyko.

It refused to comment.

Asked at a press conference whether another meeting between the two men could be expected, a Foreign Office spokesman said he could make no statement whatsoever. The United States and French governments had been kept informed of Sir David's meeting with Gromyko.

He could not say whether Britain had offered ground forces to the United Nations for use in Korea.

Though other official quarters also refused to comment on Sir David's latest move, there were indications that he would have another meeting with Gromyko.

At a previous interview, the Soviet minister asked for elucidation of Britain's request to the Soviet government to co-operate in bringing about a peaceful settlement in Korea. These explanations were, it was presumed, given by Sir David last night.

In addition to the United States and French governments, the Dominion governments are being kept informed about the Moscow conversations and will be notified of any further steps that may be taken.

Man Already Charged Faces Another Count

Toronto, July 12 — (CP) — Pat Marino, 23, already charged in a $20,981 payroll robbery, was charged last night with armed robbery of a suburban bank.

Police reported three bank employees picked Marino out of a lineup of 12 men as one of two men who robbed the Dominion Bank branch at Glencairn and Dufferin streets of more than $2,000 two weeks ago.

Marino, Pat Italiano, 21, and Kenneth Grimley, 19, are charged with armed robbery, shooting with intent to maim and car theft in connection with the payroll robbery at Acme Farmers Dairy last Friday.

REPORT INCREASE

Prague, July 12 — (AP) — Czechoslovakia reported today an increase in her favorable balance of trade.

The official news agency said that in June the country exported 128,000,000 crowns—$2,560,000 in United States funds—worth of goods more than she imported.

SMALL CITY

Winnipeg was inaugurated as a city in 1873, with a population of only 1,664.

Queen of the stampede, chosen at the opening, was Eileen Berkman of Carstairs, Alta. — Central Press Canadian.

Elderly Sisters With Their Cats Are Evicted

Halifax, July 12 (CP) — Two elderly sister, were found in the squalid attic of a four-storey house yesterday. With them were more than a dozen cats of all sizes.

One of the flat's three rooms was crammed with papers from wall to wall. City workmen led by Bailiff John A. Barber had to wedge through the doorway and scrambled over the tightly-packed bundles to carry out an eviction notice.

Ill and emaciated, one of the women had to be taken forcibly from her Garret abode, crying shrilly as workmen carted bundles of papers away to be burned.

The cats—14 of them—ranged from toms and females to litters of kittens. Most of them lived in the room filled with papers. They were the pets of both sisters.

The place was plagued by rats, one sister said, and workmen taking effects out of tre attic complained of lice and fleas.

Friends found them temporary lodging.

Parcel of Eggs Explodes in Face And Hits Ceiling

London, July 12 — (Reuters)— Gerald Nabarro, a Conservative of Parliament who is being bombarded with dozens of rotten eggs through the mail, made a distracted appeal today to the donor housewives — 'Stop it, please.'

One consignment exploded in his face and hit the ceiling, he said.

The housewives are trying to help him prove his charge in Parliament last week that their July egg ration is reaching them in "an aged, musty and squiffy condition."

In Parliament Nabarro was told by Frederick Willey, Minister of Food Parliamentary Secretary, that he had been "misinformed."

Penniless Seaman Learns in Institute Of Inheritance

Montreal, July 12 — (CP) — Daniel Tormey, unemployed and penniless Irish seaman, walked into tne Montreal Sailors' Institute this week and found that he had inherited some money.

Rev. William McLean, institute chaplain, said the money was left by a brother. "We have no idea of the size of the legacy," he said.

Are East Germany's Red Police Moving to Pressure Points on Communist Fronts

Berlin, July 12 — (AP) — Are detachments of East Germany's communist "people's police" army off to the Korean war or to some other communist pressure point — like the borders of Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia?

These questions arose in Berlin and East Germany today as reports multiplied that many of these trained troopers had been dispatched from their barracks and training centres on "special assignments."

Germans who claimed to have observed the movements said the troopers moved out were supplied with new field-gray uniforms.

Recent dispatches in West Berlin's anti-communist press have claimed that Soviet satellite countries were preparing "international brigades" to fight with the communists in Korea.

(The people's police are a force which has been branded by the Western Powers as an illegal Soviet-sponsored army trained with infantry weapons and tanks.)

Some Germans here said any German recruits probably would be sent to the Balkans if the Kremlin planned a cominform attack on Marshal Tito.

The Yugoslav press has in recent weeks reported unusual military activity by its cominform neighbors.

The American high commission's newspaper "Neue Zeitung" here claimed that the communist people's police now were also receiving paratroop training under instruction of Russian officers.

King George VI Gets Tax Rebate As Trip Postponed

London, July 12 (Reuters) — The King is to be given a £2,800 tax rebate because he cancelled his trip to Australia and New Zealand two years ago.

The money was sales tax paid on clothes which the King had bought for himself and for those going on the trip with him. The tour was cancelled because of the King's illness.

A treasury official said it was felt that the King had been asked to go abroad as a public duty, and as circumstances prevented his going it was unfair that he should be asked to pay tax on things which were not to be used.

Four Men Convicted In Counterfeit Plot

New York July 12 (AP) — A Federal Court Jury convicted four men yesterday in an unsuccessful $3,000,000 international counterfeit plot. They were accused of being members of a ring that planned to switch $3,000,000 in bogus United States currency for genuine money in the treasury of Cuba.

RENE PLEVEN

Following a broad centre-of-the-road policy, French Premier-designate Rene Pleven (above) has announced his new cabinet would seek to bind all party groups to a workable compromise. Pleven's primary concern will be to find additional resources for proposed new expenditures.— Central Press Canadian.

STRUCK BY POST

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—Bertine A. Hall, 67, came home from work yesterday and lay down on a hammock. His weight pulled loose a 12-foot porch railing which struck him on the head. He was pronounced dead at hospital.

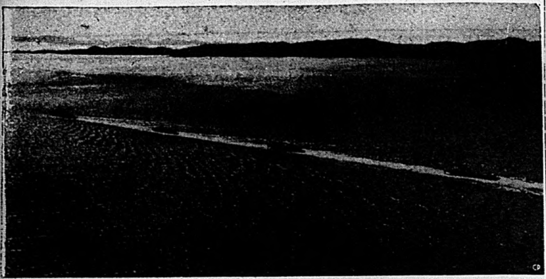
KOREA-BOUND??



Canada's contribution to the United Nations force in the Korean war are three destroyers, seen shortly after leaving Esquimalt, B.C., last Thursday. Leading the flotilla is the cruiser Ontario which escorted the smaller ships for 750 miles of their voyage to Pearl Harbor, where they will be available for action in Korea. The destroyers, left to right, are Cayuga, Athabaskan and Sioux. — (CP Photo.)

CABOOSE PAPOOSE

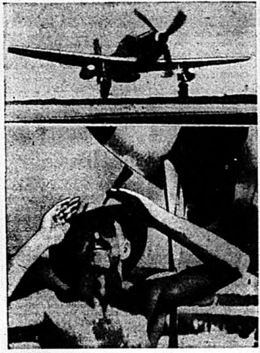
WORLD COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

Geoffrey Allen, left, Anglican bishop from Egypt, and Dr. Leslie Cooke of the Congregational Union of England are two of 90 delegates attending the central committee of the World Council of Churches, held in Toronto for the first time. The committee, with representatives from 44 countries, will study religious liberty and world-wide religious problems during the one-week meeting. — (CP Photo.)

NORTH PREMIER RUMORED FLED

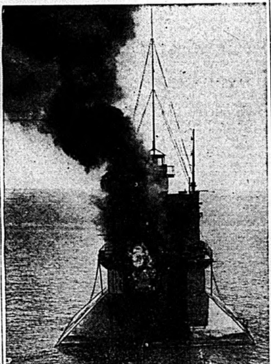
There are widely differing opinions about Kim Il Sung, above, premier of North Korea. According to Soviet newspapers, Kim has been appointed commander in chief of North Korean forces. But refugees from North Korea say that Premier Kim fled to the Siberian border after U.S. Superforts bombed his capital, Pyongyang. The North Korean refugees headed south after rumors spread that the Allies had landed on both coasts of North Korea in a giant pincher movement. — Central Press Canadian.

AUSSIE MUSTANGS PROVE THEIR WORTH



U. S. infantry fighters had a ringside seat in a battle near the Kum River in which Australian Mustang fighter planes teamed up with U.S. fighters and bombers to smash a communist column. The Aussie pilot, above, is about to take off in his Mustang, top, for the battle front. The propellor-driven Mustang has been found to be more effective than the speedier jet planes in strafing of ground troops. — Central Press Canadian.

LIGHTHOUSE BURNS



Gasoline-fed flames killed two men and gutted this Lake Erie lighthouse off Point Pelee. The blaze was started by an explosion during the loading of galosine from the supply ship Grenville. Killed were William Moore, 64, keeper of the steel and concrete lighthouse, and Dowsley Kingston of Prescott, an inspector for the Department of Transport who was travelling on the ship. — (CP Photo.)

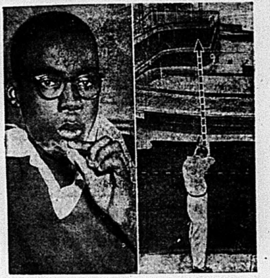
CREW OF THREE ESCAPE WHEN SUDDEN EXPLOSION WRECKS LAUNCH

Explosion and fire demolished a 65-foot boat at Port Dalhousie Ontario, but the three crew members escaped uninjured. They informed the owner, but police and others thought they had perished and searched area for two hours. All that remained of craft were a few chunks of unrecognizable wreckage on the surface of Lake Ontario, shown. Safe are J. MacNicol, 38; C. G. Irwin, 54, and C. Minor, 50, all of Port Colborne. They were blown into the water by the sudden blast. — Central Press Canadian.

TRUMAN ORDERS ARMED FORCES EXPAND

President Truman has authorized the armed services to use the draft to meet manpower needs in the Korean emergency. The move was announced by the defence department on recommendation of the joint chiefs of staff. Here, waving a farewell to relatives and friends, these U.S. soldiers board the military sea transport service vessel, General Nelson M. Walker, in San Francisco. They are en route to the Far East to aid Americans already fighting in Korea. Shoulder patches indicate they are airborne soldiers and air force men. — Central Press Canadian.

14-YEAR-OLD BOY ADMITS KILLING



The Fourth of July mystery killing of Bernard L. Doyle, 54, in the New York Polo Grounds, was solved when Robert Mario Peebles, left, 14, confessed to police that he had fired a .45-calibre pistol from the rooftop of his home at the time Doyle was shot. At right, a detective illustrates how Peebles fired into the baseball park stands (arrow). Police officials say that the only charge that could possibly be placed against the youth in connection with the shooting of Doyle, is one of juvenile delinquency. — Central Press Canadian.

POPE'S NEPHEW OPENS AIR ROUTE

The first Italian air service between North America and Italy was inaugurated when officials of the U.S. and Italian governments landed at International Airport in New York after a flight from Rome aboard a 300-mile-an-hour airliner of Linee Aeree Italiane. Among the passengers were Prince and Princess Marcantonio Pacelli, shown here, nephew of Pope Pius XII and president of the airlines. — Central Press Canadian.

AMMUNITION TRAIN BLASTED AT PYONGTAEK, KOREA

This is the first original photo showing extent of damage to the railroad station and an ammunition train at Pyongtaek, Korea, after heavy bombing and strafing by North Korean red troops. Reeling under a massive tank-led assault, United States soldiers pulled back from their lightly held defence lines around Pyongtaek for more than 15 miles. Red forces overran Pyongtaek and reached Chonan in their southward drive, and are now reported massing north of Taejon for a thrust through mountains and paddy fields. — Central Press Canadian.

6 DEAD IN ONTARIO BUS-AUTO CRASH

Six persons were killed — one young family entirely wiped out — when their automobile crashed head-on into a bus north of Bradford, Ont. Patrick Patterson, the driver of the bus, said the vehicle was thrown into the path of the passenger car by a dump truck which sideswiped it. But "rolled over the car," said Patterson. Young family killed in car were Charles McClay, 36; his wife and son, James, nine, of Toronto. Others dead are Lyle Reddick, Toronto, driver of the auto; Marjorie Davis, Norwood, and Robert Davie, Toronto, sister and brother of Mrs. McClay. Bodies of three of the victims are shown where they were hurled by impact of the crash. — Central Press Canadian.

Spencer Kiltie Band Leads Annual LOBA LOL Church Parade

Also participating in the parade were members of the new Girls' Juvenile Lodge, "Pride of Marmora," Marmora J.O.L. 34, the L.O.B.A. lodges of Havelock. Stirling, Eldorado and Madoc and the following Orange Lodges, Tanner L.O.L. 509, Springbrook L.O.L. 442, Wellman's Corners, L.O.L. 172, Nickle L.O.L. 285, Eldorado L.O.L. 517, Cooper L.O.L. 253, Stirling L.O.L. 110, Havelock L.O.L. 326 and Blairton L.O.L.

The service was conducted by the Rev. George D. Young, B.A., B.D., who directed the thoughts of the large congregation to lost opportunities of Protestantism. The choir sang as the anthem, "Land of Hope and Glory". Attending the service were two Grand Lodge officers in the persons of Right Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman, of Springbrook, and Right Wor. Bro. Richard Sanderson, of Havelock, also County Master John B. Hagerman, of Tanner L.O.L. and a number of past county masters.

Following the service, the parade returned to the Orange Hall where short speeches were made by visiting members of the order.

OPERATED ON SUNDAY

Cooksville, July 12 — (CP) — Roy Barker, proprietor of a local dance hall, was fined $25 Tuesday on two charges of operating a dance hall on Sunday contrary to a Toronto township by-law. Police said they had found couples dancing in the hall on two Sundays.

LUCKED CARTRIDGE

George Irwin, resident of this Toronto suburb, was digging in his garden Monday night when his spade struck metal. It was a buried armour-piercing shell. Police said the projectile was harmless and lacked a cartridge.

How to Find Water Without Digging

Whitesburg, Ga., July 12 (AP) — Which comes first, the water or the well?

Whitesburg officials asked the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a $50,000 loan to build a water system. They proposed to dig a well and build a tank.

But the R. F. C. said it must be assured of a water supply before granting the loan.

APPROVE IN PRINCIPLE

Toronto, July 12 — (CP) — Board of Control Tuesday approved "in principle" conversion of cattle barns in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds to provide three artificial ice rinks. Original plans to install the rinks in the automotive building were discarded after the boad inspected the proposed site.

FELL INTO SHAFT

Rock Springs, Wyo., July 12 — (CP) — Albert Stone, 27, of Rock Springs, was trying to recover drilling equipment from a 1,100-foot air shaft Tuesday when he disappeared in the depths of the well.

The shaft is about two feet in diameter, just big enough for passage of a body.

At a depth of 385 feet it narrows to 20 inches in diameter.

It was believed impossible he could still be alive but grappling hooks were lovered in an attempt to save Stone.

GIVEN TEN DAYS

Whitby, July 12 — (CP) — Willis Connors of Brooklin, Ont., was sentenced Tuesday to 10 days in county jail on a charge of drunken driving. Court ordered his car impounded and his lecence revoked for six months. Connors was arrested following an accident here June 24.

Allocation Plan For Steel Likely In Near Future

New York, July 12 (AP) — The Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, said today "a new voluntary allocations plan for the steel industry is likely in the very near future."

The Commerce Department the publication said, "is preparing to form an iron and steel industry advisory committee — possibly this week."

It added the group would "work closely with government officials to insure speedy action on military orders and fair distribution of tonnages available for non-military uses."

The action was described as part of plans under way "to back the United Nations' fight in Korea with the biggest steel potential in the history of the world."

"War goods includes a great deal more than guns, tanks, planes and ammunition," the Iron Age said. "Orders for freight cars, trucks and trailers, pipelines, lockers and many other items will also be turned out ahead of civilian goods."

Steelmaking operations this week were placed at 96.5 percent of rated capacity, with some companies hard hit by vacation schedules.

Signs of stabilization were reported in the scrap market, although the Iron Age steel scrap composite fell 59 cents to $37.08 a gross ton.

Starling Beneficial Eats Beetles, Bugs

Washington, July 12 — (AP)— The starling is not a complete no-good as birds go, says the Smithsonian Institution, which has been looking into the situation. It said:

"Everywhere the starling has gone, especially in cities, it is regarded as a nuisance because of its objectionable flocking and roosting habits . . . it is in some respects a highly beneficial species."

TREE-PLANTING PROGRAM

The government of Alberta intends to plant 10,000 trees in the province in the next 25 years with the help of farmers.

Humble Doormat Becomes Important Fashion For Fall

New York Designers have startled visiting fashion editors with their "doormat coats," made of a heavy fussy fabric in dark gray or deep tan neutral colors, worked into greatcoats that should be equal to any Arctic winter.

Omar Kiam of the House of Ben Reig opened his show today with one of the bulky items in a deep charcoal gray, lined in bright plaid taffeta. It is a greatcoat cut full enough to wrap the figure like a cocoon, with big raglan sleeves cuffed at the wrist flaring collar that can be turned up over the ears, and a general swashbuckling air.

Kiam showed also an almost endless series of "little black dresses," slim, svelte, dramatizing the curves of the figure—the kind that every woman feels she must have in her wardrobe. All are cut on simple sheath lines, with drapery or other accent at bust and hips, and trimly nipped waistlines.

Highlights in the collection also are a series of short formal dresses, ballet length or shorter, with bouffant skirts, can-can ruffles and bare tops.

200 DELEGATES EXPECTED

Simcoe, July 12 — (CP) — Nearly 200 delegates from Canada and the United States are expected to attend the opening sessions of the 77th annual convention of the American Poultry Association here today. The association claims to be the oldest livestock organization on the North American continent.

Aylmer Baptist Church Burns, Loss $300,000

Aylmer, Ont., July 12 (CP)— The Aylmer Baptist Church burned to the ground early today in a spectacular $300,000 fire believed to have broken out in the organ loft.

The brick and wooden structure was a mass of flames within a few minutes. Although the Aylmer fire department made a fast run to the scene, they were held back by the searing flames at the front of the building.

Three hose lines were played into the back of the building with the assistance of the Aylmer RCAF station fire truck and crew, but little could be done to stop destruction of the building.

WANT MINIMUM WAGE

Ottawa, July 12 —(CP)— A boost in Civil Service basic rates of pay to a minimum of $1,800 a year was sought Tuesday by the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada.

The request was made by Fred Knowles, National Secretary of the organization, in a letter to Finance Minister Abbott.

Basis for the request was the fact the official cost of living index at June 1 reached an all-time high of 165.4, more than five points higher than the figure of Oct. 1, 1948, when Civil Servants receive their last pay increases.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If you take the word of those erudite sports-writing gentlemen of Gotham, Arthur Daley of the Times and Dan Parker of the Mirror, the middleweight title fight between Jake LaMotta and Tiberio Mitri, of Italy, scheduled for tonight, has all the ring attraction of Mickey Mouse squaring off with Gargantua. Not comparatively speaking, but with as much pugilistic background and qualifications as the famous comic strip character and the giant of the jungle.

* * *

Parker waxes satirical in his columnar comment on the bout. Says he:— "Interest in the LaMotta-Mitri bout is at fever heat if we settle for the temperature of a frozen haddock suffering from deep freeze fever. The I. B. C. publicity department has employed a brand new dodge in an attempt to stir up interest in this strictly family affair. Postcards signed by Mitri have been sent out to Italian - Americans, urging them to come to the Garden and root for him. The card will admit the bearer without further charge, after he has paid the standard box office price.

* * *

Tiberio, undefeated in 52 professional fights of which three were draws, has speed, a powder-puff punch and a beautiful wife with a wonderful build. If he can lick the veteran LaMotta, washed up though he may be in a legitimate contest, then Mussolini won the last war. Mitri appears to be an easy target for body punishment, which is Jake's second best specialty. Those who bet on him to beat Billy Fox know what his best one is. All the ballyhoo has been aimed at creating the impression that LaMotta doesn't stand a chance against this virtually unknown. If he was that good, Jake, assuming he wants to keep his title and isn't willing even to loan it to Tiberio for the 75 days he'd have to wait for a return match, wouldn't have accepted Mitri as an opponent even handcuffed. And here's hoping Jake won't be, Wednesday night.

* * *

A report that someone had placed a bet on the middleweight title bout yesterday was turned over to the keeper of Kings Park, on the theory that it might serve as a warning that an inmate had escaped. LaMotta was a 7-5 favorite Monday, the two-buck bet referred to having knocked the price down from 11 to 5. The real betting of course, won't take place until Wednesday in the cool of the evening.

* * *

Mr. Daley, who usually knows whereof he writes, gives out with: ". . . The best part of this boxing bout is that it will not have radio or television. Not a bad idea. This really should be kept secret . . . Who is LaMotta? Who is Mitri? A careful study of recent press clippings reveals that each gladiator has a beautiful wife, and bewildered bystanders can't help wondering whether this is a boxing bout or a Mrs. America contest. It's very distracting."

* * *

"Mitri is the European middleweight champion. His debut here was against Dick Wagner, a light-heavyweight of no consequence, and the Italian didn't slay the customers with his skill. Perhaps he had stage-fright, as he claims. But on the strength of one bout in the United States he hardly rates getting a whack at the championship and La Motta."

* * *

"La Motta", Daley goes on, "had never been as much as knocked down when he was mysteriously knocked out by Blackjack Billy Fox, a synthetic knocker-outer of a lot of clay pigeons. Then he lost to Robert Villemain, who never could hit worth a lick, even though our Jacob received the decision. The Bronx Bull, by the way, is the only man in history who ever made progress while running on a treadmill.

* * *

"These two brilliant exhibitions, one a suspicious knockout and the other an erroneous victory, incomprehensibly entitled him to a shot at Cerdan for the middleweight crown. The Casablanca Clouter grievously injured his shoulder at the very start and the Bronx Bull had great difficulty in outpointing a one-armed man. As Bill Heinz described it: "La Motta licked one half of Cerdan."

* * *

CUBS' CLAWS SHARP!

The St. Louis Cubs, Belleville that is, are fit and rarin' to go for tonight's all-important tussle against the league - leading Sixardee nine at the Exhibition Grounds. The airmen have yet to meet defeat and have no intention of breaking their all-win record in this battle with the Cubs. The city team, however, has other ideas and will pull their best baseball tricks out of their war-bags in an effort to tab a loss on the high-flying Sixardee lads. Moynes will likely essay the task of stopping the visitors while either Ellis or Mahoney will attempt to stifle the Cub bludgeons. Game gets under way at 8:30. Don't miss it.

* * *

BACK AGAIN!

As usual, Fred Atkins is most disdainful of his wrestling opposition. However, the overbearing Aussie may be making a big mistake which will back-fire right in his sour kisser by sneering at the prowess of Timothy Geohagen, the outstanding Irish grappler who will tangle with Atkins in the main mat event at the Memorial Arena on Friday night.

* * *

While there is no question that Atkins is a terrifically formidable ring personage, what with his powerful physique, knowledge, experience and rugged style, there is still the prospect that he might succumb to Timothy's "Irish Sleeper" hold, the same way that many other strong opponents have done. Should this be the case, it will be a deeply chagrined and surprised Atkins who will leave the ring come Friday night.

* * *

Howe and Hagerman's three-run rally in the top of the eleventh broke up a spine tingling pitchers' duel last evening as the Plumbers wrenched a 5-3 victory from Brewers Warehouse in one of the better Commercial Softball League "A" games seen this season. One of the largest crowds since opening day, saw the previously undefeated Brewer's suffer their first reverse of the campaign as the determined Plumbers from Howe and Hagerman climbed back into a first place tie with them. The Plumbers victory tightened up the league race considerably.

In the nerve shattering overtime stretch, Howe and Hagerman got the first break. Doyle led off the eleventh with his second single of the night. Ed Donovan walked and then Marty Fitzgibbon lofted one to centrefield which Halsey let slip through his fingers to load the bases. Halsey's overthrow at third let Doyle score as Donovan and Fitzgibbon moved up. Spafford popped out to third and Don Adams flied out to left field with the runners failing to move up. Harry Wardhaugh then connected for a double to left field to plate Donovan and Fitzgibbon with the insurance runs. Amo grounded out second to first to retire the side.

Hurlers go Route

Veteran Lum Carson of the Brewers and youthful Bob Hunter for the Plumbers went all the way in a scintillating pitchers' battle that was set off by the neat defensive work of both teams afield.

Both teams toiled through the first five innings with each pitcher giving up just two hits and no runs. Then in the top of the sixth, with one away, Doyle started the ball rolling with a single to right field. He went all the way to third on Donovan's blast to centre field and came home when the relay from second base went through third. Donovan languished on second as Fitzgibbon and Spafford popped out to the infield.

The Plumbers added another run in the seventh on the alert base running of catcher Don Adams. Adams led off with a single and stole second. Then when Wardhaugh popped out to the third baseman, Adams came down behind the play to steal third. He romped in on a fielder's choice as Amo grounded out second to first.

The Brewers struck back for a single run in the bottom of the seventh on singles by Halsey and Locke and an overthrow by centrefielder Amo on Locke's single. They sent the game into overtime with a tying run in the eighth as pitcher Carson scored on singles by Hurrie and Goyer.

Lum Carson pitched good ball in defeat walking two, striking out one and giving up nine hits for five runs over eleven innings. Bob Hunter racked up a well-earned victory walking one, and that one intentionally, striking out one, and giving up nine hits for three runs.

An outstanding feature of last night's game was the errorless work of the rival first basemen. Locke of the Brewers had nineteen putouts while Marty Fitzgibbon had eighteen putouts for the Plumbers.

Canadian Cup Race Postponed Until August 11

By The Canadian Press

Officials of Toronto's Thorncliffe raceway announced Tuesday that the $15,000 Canadian Cup race will be contested Aug. 11. Originally Canada's richest harness-racing event had been scheduled for Aug. 9.

Officials said the change was made because the Canadian Cup would have conflicted with the renewal of the Hambletonian at Goshen, N.Y.

The purse of $15,000 is the largest ever offered for a harness race in this country. It equals the largest purse ever posted for the King's Plate, the premier event in the Canadian running-horse game.

Entries for the Canadian Cup were closed March 21. Forty-one horses were named for the event, feature of the inaugural 42-day meeting at Thorncliffe.

Among the entries was Jerry The First, which won the $50,000 pace at Santa Anita. Almost 50 per cent of the horses named are owned in the United States.

Third-baseman Alex Garbowski hit his first home run of the year for Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night to give the Leafs a 5-3 exhibition game victory over the parent Philadelphia Phillies of the National League.

The Phillies played without Puddinhead Jones, Jim Konstanty and Dick Sisler who were in the major league all-star game lineup at Chicago Tuesday.

Bob Baker, undefeated Pittsburgh heavyweight, ran his victory string to 17 straight Tuesday night as he scored a technical knockout over Bill Weinberg of Boston in 1:29 of the fourth round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Zevic Arena in Pittsburgh. Baker weighed 202, Weinburg 210.

Canada will enter 15 to 25 Jewish athletics for the first time in the third MacCabiah games in Israel Sept. 25-Oct. 9, Jack Klein, chairman of the Canadian MacCabiah committee, announced at Montreal Tuesday.

The ten-round non-title fight between lightweight champion Ike Williams and welterweight George (Sugar) Costner, scheduled for Tuesday night at Shibe Park in Philadelphia, was postponed for the second time because of rain.

The fight, together with three other ten rounders, originally was scheduled to be held Monday night.

Billy Thompson, 134, Tuesday night retained his British lightweight championship by outpointing Tommy McGovern, 133, is stablemate, in a 15-round bout at Stoke-on-Trent.

The Fairview Athletic Club said it has made arrangements to hold the fight on the new date regardless of weather. If it rains, the 10-round bout will be shifted to Memorial auditorium.

Mighty Fine won the $5,000 Saratoga two-year-old trot, featured Grand Circuit event at Saratoga Raceway, in 2:23 2-5 over a heavy track Tuesday night.

Orioles Within Two Games of Top Position

While the Rochester Red Wings continue to lead, Baltimore Orioles were the most talked - of team in the International League today. A six-game winning streak has boosted Nick Cullop's crew to within two games of the Red Wings.

What is more, the Orioles stand an excellent chance to pick up more ground tonight. They will entertain Springfield's fifth-place Cubs in an abbreviated doubleheader. The first game will be the completion of last night's second game of a doubleheader, halted after eight innings because of rain.

Baltimore has just to hold a 7-5 lead in the ninth and it will gain a half-game on Rochester. The Red Wings, meanwhile, will be tangling with Montreal's tough Royals, currently in fourth place but still a big factor in the pennant picture.

The Royals bounced Rochester 5-4 last night. Ronnie Lee was the winner in relief.

Baltimore edged Springfield 4-3 in an eight-inning opener, Johnny Kerns providing the difference with a home run.

Syracuse and Jersey City were rained out.

Schoendienst Biggest Hero As National All-Stars Win First Game of Series Since 1944

These are the names on everybody's lips following yesterday's 14-inning 4-3 victory by the National League over the favorite American Leaguers "in the greatest of all 17 All-Star games."

Manager Burt Shotton, Enos Slaughter and Ralph Kiner also sparkled as the victory-starved Nationals won for the first time since 1944.

Schoendienst was the big hero, of course. It was his home run in the top of the 14th that broke up the three-hour and 19-minute struggle—the first extra-inning affair in All-Star competition.

"I'm going to end this thing right now," he told teammates Walker Cooper and Murry Dickson as he selected a bat. "Watch me hit one into the upper seats."

The scrawny-looking 160-pounder from St. Louis who hit only three home runs all season in 73 games. In 1946 he went through the season without hitting any.

Schoendienst, a personal Shotton pick because of his defensive wizardry and his ability to fill in at either second, third or short, was batting righthanded against southpaw Ted Gray of Detroit. He is a switch hitter. It was his only time at bat during the game.

Near-Perfect Ball

Jansen pitched near-perfect ball in a five-inning tenure, the longest National League stint by one pitcher since Lon Warneke hurled four innings in 1934. He allowed only one hit—a handle-hit single—and struck out six men in shutting out the American Leaguers from the seventh through the 11th innings.

Blackwell came close to matching Jansen's performance, holding the American Leaguers to a lone hit in three shutout innings. The long, lean Cincinnati righthander sent the near-capacity Comiskey Park crowd of 46,127 home limp from exhaustion when he wound up things by forcing the great Joe DiMaggio to slap into a game-ending double play.

Nearly all of the National Leaguers who appeared in the lineup covered themselves with glory. There was the brilliant catch by Slaughter of Walt Dropo's second-inning clout that appeared headed over the centrefield wall. There was Kiner's home run that tied up the game in the ninth inning.

Shotton Brilliant

It's impossible to overlook Shotton, the abused pilot. Booed unmercifully at his pre-game introduction for his intended benching of Hank Sauer in favor of his own Duke Snider, Shotton redeemed himself in the eyes of the fans with his strategic moves.

Criticized for placing Kiner second in the batting order, Shotton proved he was right when Ralph blasted his ninth-inning homer. Had the Pittsburgh slugger been in sixth spot as Shotton had him in the original line-up, Ralph probably never would have had another chance to hit. Not even Shotton's severest critics could question his pitching selections.

Two Glittering Catches

Not even unfortunate injuries to Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio, two of the American League's brightest stars, failed to dim the happiness of League President Ford Frick and company.

Williams, who made two glittering catches to take two hits away from Kiner, bruised his left arm in the first inning when he banged into the left field wall to haul in a Kiner smash.

"The pain shot up my body with every step I took," he said. "But I couldn't stop running, I knew it meant the ball game. I'm afraid I won't be able to play tomorrow."

Williams, a .450 all-star hitter in seven previous all-star tilts, almost emerged the hero again. His fifth-inning single scored Larry Doby to put the Americans in front, 3-2.

Six Pitchers Used

Gray was the fifth of six American League pitchers. The other homer also was charged to a Tiger hurler — righthander Art Houtteman. The National's first two runs were scored at the expense of starter Vic Raschi of New York Yankees. The others—Cleveland's Bob Lemon and Bob Feller and New York's Allie Reynolds—pitched scoreless ball.

Before Jansen took over the Nationals used Philadelphia's Robin Roberts and Jim Konstanty and Brooklyn's Don Newcombe. Roberts, the starter, gave up one run in three innings. Newcombe was tagged for two in two. Konstanty, Jansen and Blackwell shut the Americans out in the last nine innings.

The day's receipts of $126,179.51 was a record. After expenses are deducted, the cash goes to the players' pension fund.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, July 12 — (AP) — Mr. Inside (The guy who knows everything) reports: ....That James Clark, Philadelphia trucking magnate and boss of the football Eagles, and Les Osterman, who owns the Bristol, Conn., club in the Colonial Baseball League, apparently have joined forces in an effort to buy Philadelphia Athletics.... Osterman's dough comes from a big chain of men's clothing stoes, but this definitely isn't a walk-up-a-flight-and-save-five-bucks proposition.... More likely he hopes it will be two pairs of pants for every seat in Shibe Park.......

Shorts and Shells

Bill Klem, who is under orders to take things easy, still manages to take in a little Florida-International League baseball now and then in Miami. The Miami manager, Pepper Martin, has so far refrained from picking on the umps in Bill's presence....Stanley Williams, flashy baylor end, has a "good luck" shirt (ancient army model) which he wears to the dressing room before every game.... Coach George Sauer plans to use Stan both on defence and offence this fall. The shirt will be merely offensive.

Burt Shotton Vindicates Self Before the Fans

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, July 12 — (AP) —The little man in grey slacks, white shirt and polka-dot tie stepped out of the dugout.

He beamed for three minutes, just standing there, as if waiting for his picture to be snapped. Then came a rippling of applause.

Shotton, manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, replaced his cap, stepped jauntily back into the dugout and directed the senior league's All-Stars to a sparkling 14-inning 4-3 victory over the American League All-Stars.

Never in the history of the mid-summer classic had there been such adverse reaction from fans when a manager was introduced in pre-game ceremonies.

The boos came from the Chicago crowd because several days previously Shotton had tried to replace outfielder Hank Sauer of Chicago Cubs, and the fans' starting choice in the country-wide poll, with his own Brooklyn player, Duke Snider.

After the game the happy Shotton said:

"I stood out there long enough with my hat off to let them get all the booes out of ther system. I wanted to win this game in the worst way—and with the kind of players I had I couldn't fail."

He yanked Sauer and sent in the Cubs' Andy Pafko. He did this in face of his aim to start Snider, who eventually was inserted as a pinch hitter in the 12th.

Nationals Jubilant

The Nationals were jubilant after winning for only the fifth time in the all-star series.

But you would have thought the cocky, jesting American leaguers were the victors. There was no gloom in their quarters.

Joe Mimaggio was the only dejected player in evidence. He ended what may be his last all-star assignment by hitting into a double play to close the game in the 14th round. Trying to run it out, the Yankee clipper aggravated a groin injury suffered Sunday against Boston Red Sox.

Veteran observers agreed that the 17th all-star game, the first one to be carried into extra innings, was the greatest ever played. It had the pleasing combination of excellent pitching, thrilling hits (when they came) and sensational circus catches in the outfield.

It also had Burt Shotton —the booed boss who thoroughly vindicated himself and won the hearts of the fans before he was

Jake Lamotta Bucks Double Jinx in Fight

By MURRAY ROSE

New York, July 12 — (AP) — Middleweight champion Jake LaMotta bucks a double jinx tonight when he defends his title against unbeaten Tiberio Mitri of Italy in Madison Square Garden.

The last three middleweight kings, Marcel Cerdan, Tony Zale and Rocky Graziano, all lost their crowns in their first defences. All three were favored to win.

LaMotta is a 5-7 choice to capture the 15-rounder in his first defence since he won the championship from the ill-fated Cerdan.

But Jake firmly maintains:

"It's not going to happen to me.

"This title is the thing I've always wanted and I'm going to keep it a long time."

This observer thinks that the jinx is going to strike again.

Jake, at 29, appears to be over the hill. He's taken plenty of punches in his 10 years of pro battling, and has slowed down considerably. He fights in 15-second flurries, hoping to get the officials' nod with his short, eye-catching bursts.

Fast with Hands

The handsome, well-built invader throws a hard left jab, has a good right-hand punch, and has supreme confidence in his ability to take Jake.

"I'll wear him down," said the bull.

Only Second Fight Here

This is only Mitri's second fight here but he'll have most of the anticipated crowd of 12,000 cheering for him — the home folks don't go for Jake.

Jake has lost 14 fights, won 77 and drawn two. Mitri has 49 victories and three draws on his record in five year of pro fighting.

LaMotta will get 45 per cent and Mitri 15 per cent of the net gate. The fight may gross $75,000 at a $15 top.

PROBE THEFT OF $90

Chatham, July 12 — (CP) — Chatham police are investigating the theft of $90 from the clothing of Albert Barnes while he was working in Holy Trinity (Anglican) Church Monday. Barnes left the money in his dress trousers in the vestry after changing to work pants.

SUDDEN DEATH IN RAIL CRASH

Lying in the aisle of a wrecked coach of the Santa Fe Railroad's streamliner El Capitan is the body of a woman. Behind it are the bodies of two more victims of the collision between the El Capitan and another streamliner, the Kansas City Chief, near Monica, Ill. Ten persons were reported killed and 75 injured when, witnesses said, the mail coach of the El Capitan suddenly left the rails and swerved into the Chief. —Central Press Canadian.

Opening Date Of Local Fair Only Month Away

With the opening date little more than one month away, the local Fair Board is getting all "geared up" for the Belleville Exhibition which will be held on August 14-15-16-17. No effort is being spared to make this year's exhibition the finest in the history of the local Agricultural Society.

Fair Secretary Erle S. Denyes states that already over 200 prize lists have been mailed out to exhibitors throughout the province. Entries have started to pour in from points as far as Kitchener.

Prizes for horses and in other sections of the fair this year have been increased and directors are going all out for a colorful horse show in front of the grandstand, afternoon and evening.

With automobile production again at full swing and with competition returning, this year's fair will feature an automobile show to be held in a large tent. It will be the first time an event of this kind has been held.

Monday, the first day of the fair will be "Children's Day" when all rides on the Conklin Midway will be reduced for the benefit of the kiddies. Children will be admitted free to the grounds on all four days of the fair.

For the entertainment of the grandstand customers, Hamid's Shows, direct from New York City, will play in front of the grandstand with thrilling acts each afternoon and evening.

Keen interest is being displayed by Belleville merchants and salesmen, and encouraged by the large number of patrons visiting the fair, are taking advantage of the opportunity of displaying their products. All space in the buildings and outside has been taken for some time.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 12 — (AP) — Richard Greene stepped into the Anglo-American actors' tiff today, but admitted he may get slugged from both sides.

The controversy started with British protests against Irene Dunne going over to play Queen Victoria in a U.S.-sponsored film. A week ago, the British Actors Equity Association urged a ban against Americans playing British characters in films made in Britain. The blast arose over portrayals by Richard Widmark and Gene Tierney in a current picture.

Hollywood answered that it has never discriminated against foreigners here and that many British citizens have played Americans in Hollywood films. Most notable example: Vivien Leigh as Scarlet O'Hara.

Viewing the fracas, Greene remarked: "I can see the reasoning of both sides.

Outlook Dismal

"You have to know conditions in the English industry. The best production outlook has been dismal. When I was over there last, eight studios closed up entirely. Only a small percentage of the actors have been working, stars as well as featured players. Naturally they resent it when an American comes over to take the role that an English star might have played.

"I can understand their anger over an American playing Queen Victoria, who is one of our great figures of recent history. I would expect the same resentment if I were to cast as Daniel Boone over here. I would look pretty silly talking with an accent and having a coonskin cap dangling from my head.

Ludicrous Pictures

"Before the war, we were submitted to many 'English' pictures made in Hollywood. They showed the England of hunting prints, an England that didn't exsist. We found such pictures ludicrous, if not insulting."

On the other hand, he added, "I can understand the reasoning of American companies. They go over to make pictures that will sell at the box office in the U.S. To do that, they need stars.

"I would say that there are only a handful of English stars—perhaps a few more— who mean anything in Topeka or any other American town."

The comic is shaping up his own show for the fall. That should help enliven the coming season, which promises to be the most competitive in the young industry's history. Such stars as Fred Allen, Eddie Cantor and Groucho Marx have been mentioned as probable starters in the TV field.

Colonna severed his professional life with his old sidekick, Bob Hope, two years ago and has been doing mostly theatre dates since. The split was a friendly one.

Notes 'N' Stuff

Jimmy Cagney says "A Lion Is In The Streets" will be his next picture. This in spite of the fact that it has the same Huey Long theme of the prize-winning "All The King's Men." Jimmy goes to his home at Martha's Vineyard in New England after he finishes his hoofing in "The West Point Story" He'll stay there until called to westle with "Lion."

Burt Lancaster will take to the road to exploit his latest picture. Unlike some stars who merely say "hello" on such trips, Burt will go all-out. He'll even perform his acrobatics on city hall flagpoles, if necessary, he says.

Nominated for the least-inspired film title of the year: "Texans Never Cry."

SEEK FEDERAL AID

Chatham, July 12 — (CP) — Owners of property on King St. between Sixth and William Sts., alarmed at the collapsing of piling forming the retaining wall of McGregor's Creek at the rear of their holdings, Monday night decided to seek federal aid.

Both the city council and the Federal Property and Works Department have disclaimed responsibility.

NBC WINS ROUND

Hollywood, July 12 — (AP) — NBC has won a round in the talent tug-of-war of the networks by luring the Ed Wynn television show away from CBS.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If hunger with partner is lurking, her mind on the game is not working. Whenever you lead she pays it no heed to see if the coffee is perking.

The sequences are K Q J or K Q 10, Q J 10 or Q J 9, J 10 9 or J 10 8, 10 9 8 or 10 9 7. Always lead the top of a sequence. Thus, the lead of an honor admits the card below and denies the card above.

If you lead the jack, partner assumes you have the 10 9 or 10 8 and that you lack the queen. If you lead the ten, partner assumes you have the 9 8 or 9 7 and lack the jack.

In desperate circumstances you may be called upon to lead the jack when you lack the ten. How does partner know that it is not the top of a sequence? By watching the cards he can get a look at.

If the ten is in dummy or his own hand, he finds it out without delay. Or he may not discover it until later when the declarer shows up with the ten. Or when he finds the nine and eightspot elsewhere.

NORTH
WEST ♣J 5
EAST ♣K 8 3 2
SOUTH
♣Q 9 6 4

West leads the club jack. In the east seat you see the ten in dummy north. Right away you know that the jack lead from west is not from a sequence. It is from an otherwise worthless suit.

Consider, then, what west must be showing by this lead of a jack. If he had four cards or more he would have led a fourth best. Thus do you know that west has less than four clubs to start with.

He must have started with a club suit of three cards or two cards or one card. Although this information is not always valuable, there are times when it is taken out of the game in some way or other with sound rules. A partner should not be looking out of the window.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop stretched himself comfortable in his private car, saying to ma, Do you realize that is the first evening this week that we've spent quietly home?

We haven't even spent this one yet, touch wood, ma said. At any minute the telefone may ring with another unexpected invitation that we can't possibly refuse, she said, and pop said, then by gollies if it rings we'll let it ring.

William, I think that's a splendid idea, ma said. We simply wont anser it. We'll sit here like stone images till it makes up its mind that nobody is at home. Really, I mean really, sometimes I think the telefone is a diabolical invention that makes modern sivilization darker than the dark ages, she said, and pop said. We'll show that telefone company who are the slaves and who are the masters.

And pritty soon the fone started to ring and pop and ma kept on sitting there as if they didn't even hear it, pop saying, This is wonderful, we're free. The full force of pitiless science is being expended to rout us out of peace and quiet, and we're not being routed an inch, he said, and ma said, "Isn't it thrilling? Thousands of electrical impulses are nashing their teeth in vain, she said.

And it kept on ringing and ma said, Oh dear, just for a change it may really be some message we wouldn't want to miss for werlds. I hope not, she said, and pop said, Now dont weaken, though of course it's possible that just by the irony of Fate we're ignoring it at the wrong time.

I cant bare it any longer, ma said, and she quick went to anser it just when it stopped ringing and nobody was on the other end, and ma said, We're in the bottomless pit of progress and there's no escape at either end.

HALLOWAY

Halloway.— The Kum-Double Club of Halloway United Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen on Thursday evening. The program was under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roth.

The meeting was opened by singing favorite hymns. Mrs. Coleman Townsend read the scripture lesson and a poem was read by Mrs. Ed. Emerson entitled "Gratitude". Prayer was then offered by Gordon Roth and the president, Mr. Ed. Emerson then took charge.

An invitation was accepted to visit Rev. and Mrs. Gilbert for the next meeting at their summer cottage.

Several people were called upon to tell of their most exciting and embarrassing moments, which caused much fun. Rev. Gilbert closed the meeting.

Mrs. Roth staged a Bible contest. After which refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Knott and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Knott, of Rochester, N.Y., recently called on Miss Bessie Spencer.

Mrs. Earl Snider was pleasantly surprised recently when Mrs. Andy Cranston and Mrs. Dick Cranston and girls, called in the afternoon with gifts and birthday cake, to honor her on her birthday. In the evening all attended the circus in Belleville.

A number from here attended the dance and stage show by Wilf Carter in Belleville, on Thursday night. All reported a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ketcheson and Ann of Guelph, called on Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend and boys, and Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Townsend spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Treverton.

HOW TO GET QUICK RELIEF from sore, PAINFUL PILES

A Candid and Honest Discussion on a Delicate Subject

IMPORTANT! Here is frank information — in non-technical language—regarding an annoying, painful, often embarrassing physical condition which now afflicts countless thousands — you, perhaps, among them. Far too frequently this condition, at first superficial in itself, can be Nature's warning of more serious trouble to come. We believe everyone who suffers from this condition owes it to his or her own personal comfort to read the statement below. LEONHARDT PROPRIETARIES, LTD.

Since the dawn of civilization, medical men have been fighting a ceaseless war — to save lives and to conquer dread diseases.

When they discover a new "miracle" drug or surgical technique, the news rings round the world! Yet all the while, other "unsung" men of science are working equally hard to relieve suffering caused by less dramatic, "everyday" maladies. Among them is perhaps the most painful of all — piles!

A Subject Seldom Discussed

Pile sufferers are burdened with a double hardship. They yearn for relief, but hesitate to seek it because of false pride and embarrassment. Yet to the man or woman who knows the agonizing torment of itching, burning piles, the truth about their trouble may mean a world of difference in business efficiency, in social pleasure, in good looks and vitality!

What Causes Piles?

Piles are not a primary ailment. Conditions which cause them never originate in the parts affected. At first, piles are simply inflamed and distended "varicose veins" in the delicate membranes of the rectum. A common cause is hepatic congestion (torpidity of the liver) which results in ordinary, everyday constipation.

How Piles Develop

As the liver function slows down, blood flow from the lower bowel to the liver is retarded and small rectal veins swell with blood. Then, usually, constipation starts. Hard, clogging masses form in the lower bowel — irritating and bruising the distended rectal veins. Blood stagnates in and bruised areas, until the tiny veins become greatly inflamed, lumpy, horribly painful.

This agonizing pain aggravated by constipation, is "self-perpetuating". The constipation adds to the itching, burning pain and soreness—which in turn increases the constipation — which then tends to further enlarge the swollen veins until they become pile tumors. If this vicious circle is not broken, there is only one choice — chronic piles or the surgeon's knife!

Why Face This Choice?

Decide now to break this vicious circle! Many others have done so, thanks to an able professional man who, more than 50 years ago, began an intensive study of piles — their cause and effect. Knowing that piles are caused by congested conditions inside the body, he wisely searched for an internal medication that would relieve hepatic congestion, stimulate bile flow, gently ease constipation and improve circulation of the blood in the lower bowel — thus helping Nature herself promote a healthier condition in the sore, painful areas where piles are found. Finally, in his own practice, he devised a formula of medically-proven elements — small tablets taken by mouth — which showed amazing results in 86 out of 100 cases that came to his personal, professional attention!

Sufferers Acclaim Hem-Roid

He gave his formula the trade name of Hem-Roid — using it first in his own practice, later supplying it to friends and acquaintances. In 1904 he sold the formula and name. Since that time, millions of packages have been bought by the public throughout the world — and countless satisfied users of Hem-Roid testify to its quick, efficient action.

Accept This 10-Day Offer!

Naturally — long-standing, neglected cases of piles may call for a doctor's advice. But for average pile conditions, we know nothing better than Hem-Roid to give you the relief and results you want. To prove it, we make this special 10-day offer!

Now from any drugstore, get a package of Hem-Roid — 60 tablets, 20 full days treatment — at the amazingly low price of $1.50. Use the tablets exactly as directed for 10 days. If at that time you are not delighted with results you get, just return the package with unused tablets to your druggist for full refund of the purchase price! You risk nothing — and you stand to gain immeasurable relief from the embarrassing discomfort and torment of itching, burning piles. Ask for Hem-Roid —today!

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

A clear drop splashed the picture of the woman. Stephanie grabbed up a corner of her skirt and carefully blotted it.

Arnold Pfieffer paced the floor of his studio. He paused now and then to stare down at the evening paper which lay unfolded on the floor its large black headlines revealing that Hagar Blair had been jailed on suspicion of murder.

Not that he gave a tinker's dam about Hagar he told himself. Not that old witch! But it was the principle of the thing. He could go down to the police station—appalling as the idea was—and tell the ruffians the story, or he could wait until they summoned him.

He chewed off a sliver of fingernail as a dreadful thought struck his brain. What would happen if certain people should suspect he had put two and two together?

He peeled off his smock and threw it on the floor. He shrugged on a jacket and started for the hall, only to be stopped in his tracks by the clacking of the knocker on his front door.

He stood motionless for a few minutes, his eyes darting from side to side. The knocker sounded again, violently this time.

Arnold snatched up his sandals and dashed to the window that overlooked the back yard. He opened it carefully, fearful of every small squeak. Throwing his sandals out first, he climbed over the sill and took the short jump to the ground.

Mesmerized by their private disturbing thoughts, neither Arnold Pfieffler nor Andrey Yakov noticed each other when their routes crossed briefly on Magnolia street. And neither noticed a third man whom they both knew—a stockily built man distinguished by a totally bald head and a half-empty coat sleeve that was pinned up neatly below the elbow.

The bald man glanced curiously at each of them for a few seconds from the opposite side of the street, then turned and walked back briskly in the direction from which he had come.

Yakov turned into the drive beside Hagar Blair's gray-shingled house. With luck, he thought he could conclude his mission tonight. He glanced at the lighted windows: Perhaps within the next hour!

Yakov's chuckle sounded sympathetic: "You were expecting someone else? I am so sorry."

Stephanie stared at him doubtfully then unhooked the screen door and pushed it open.

Yakov stepped inside. "Thank you, Miss—Serenov!"

"Who are you?" she whispered. "How did you learn my name?"

Yakov laughed shortly. 'Who am I? You ask the question as though possibly I were a ghost. I am Andrey Yakov, of course, an artist and a collector — of cameos."

"As for your name," he paused and smiled triumphantly, "it was a guess. I am only surprised that poor Nellya did not guess that you were her sister's child. If you will pardon the unkindness—she was a thoroughly stupid woman."

He leaned forward to search her face: "You are a Russian, my dear Miss Serenov. . ."

Stephanie had jumped up and now stood before him, her eyes like blue flame: "I am an American citizen."

Yakov nodded patiently: "I too can lay legal claim to that designation. However, the mother country sometimes finds it advisable to reclaim her children. Things have developed which make it impossible for me to resist her gathering arms."

He took note of Stephanie's recoil. "Do not trouble yourself over this. Russia is no longer interested in the Serenovs except for one small matter. I have come here to negotiate with you, to the benefit of both of us, and Miss Blair. I have certain papers letters, which prove that Miss Blair had nothing to do with the murders of Martin Falter and Nellya. I am prepared to give you these letters in exchange for the cameo. Not permanently. I ask it for only a few hours, and promise to return it to you in perfect condition.

She shook her head slowly. "I can't let you have my locket."

"Locket? You have opened it then? You know what is inside?"

"I've always known what is inside. My mother's picture and my father's. I'll not give it to you for even a few hours."

Yakov sank back. "Pictures? That is all, you are sure. No writing of any kind?"

"Writing? What kind of writing?"

"An engraving or perhaps a bit of paper with writing?"

The girl shook her head.

Yakov fingered his mustache thoughtfully. "You must be mistaken," he said slowly. "There must be something. Will you allow me to examine the locket?"

"No."

"Not even to get Miss Blair out of jail?"

"Would you give me the letters you say you have if I let you look at the cameo here?"

"Yes." He met her glance squarely.

Stephanie lowered her eyes. When she looked up, she asked: "Would you allow someone else to be present while you looked at the locket? And will you give me the letters first?"

Yakov smiled wryly. "I will meet your conditions. I suppose you will have Mr. Reddy of the police department as witness?"

Stephanie nodded.

Yakov got up and walked to the door, he paused with his hand on the knob:

"It is agreed. I will get the letters and bring them to you. We will get this business done tonight." He bowed. "Until later Miss—Smith!"

Stephanie locked the door behind him, stood there thinking for a few minutes, then walked swiftly to the phone and dialed Charlie Reddy's home number. She waited impatiently for ten rings then slammed the phone back in its cradle and sank onto a chair.

Presently she strode across her bedroom to an old fashioned oak desk, the flat top, kneehole type, which stood near the windows. Stephanie yanked at the handle which opened the typewriter compartment and the machine rose to a working level. She reached into the hole where the typewriter had been and brought out a small steel box, which she unlocked with a key which had been cached in a hollow of her typewriter. Inside the case was the silver cameo box.

She began to pry at the cushion of the box. When the velvet pad came up she studied the numbers engraved in the bottom of the box. The first set, 10 and 4, flashed a message. She remembered Hagar's suggestion about the 12 points resembling a clock dial. She pressed down the fourth and tenth point of the cameo frame. The cameo flipped open to the pictures. With trembling hands she pressed the next set of numbers 8 and 2. Nothing happened. Disappointed she studied the engraving. There was still the numeral 6. Idly she pressed the point on the frame, which on a clock dial, would correspond to 6.

Stephanie almost dropped the locket as the smooth gold back of the cameo snapped open like an old-fashioned watch and a small bit of paper fluttered to the floor!

Breathless with curiosity and apprehension, she stooped and picked it up. Her shaking fingers smoothed the folds open.

A few words of Russian script, precisely printed met her eyes. Translating, she repeated the words aloud:

Stephanie shook her head —it was foolish! Why Dr. Urich? Any Russian school child would know that Chekov was the author of "The Cherry Orchard!'

She spent almost a half hour considering possibilities: Was this what Andrey Yakov was searching for? Was it a code? Was it of such importance that two people had been killed because of it? And, most important, was Yakov the killer. She must tell Hagar.

She made her decision and left the house. After all, she told herself, the town's main street was only a couple of blocks down the hill.

Walking swiftly, her eyes straight ahead on the cheerful lights of town, she did not notice the unnatural swaying and bending of a narrow shadow that materialized several yards behind her. The shadow disappeared and reappeared at intervals, always behind her and gradually lessening the distance.

TEA SERVICE IN PARKS: "Are there any parks in Toronto where we can make our own tea for a small picnic? We are driving over from Niagara Falls and meeting our family's friends."

The City Parks Commission tells us that several of Toronto's parks have facilities for making your own tea. You of course bring the tea, and they will supply the hot water. Three of the largest parks—High Park, Exhibition Park and Kew Gardens—all have these facilities.

HORSESHOE FAN: "We have just recently moved to a house in the Toronto suburbs which has a large lot. I am anxious to teach my boys to pitch horseshoes, something we always did on the farm when I was a boy. Could you tell me where I could get the stakes, horseshoes and instructions. Also how much will it cost?"

The Harold A. Wilson Company at 299 Yonge Street in Toronto has them. A set of four horseshoes costs $2.65, two stakes cost $1.50 and the instructions are included.

BUDGET HONEYMOON: "My fiance and I are being married in August. We have $200 to spend on a honeymoon. Could you suggest some place for us to go which will not be too expensive but which will still be a nice trip?"

If I were you I'd head for the Laurentians. There are a dozen towns and villages up that main highway where you can live inexpensively and beautifully.

Seaway at Once As Defence Step Says Toronto Paper

Claims Truman Will Order U.S. Half Built by Army

Toronto, July 13 — (CP) —The Toronto Star says today in a newspage story it has learned that construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and hydro projects will be undertaken "almost immediately."

The United States will make the move as a defence measure, the newspaper says.

"The Truman administration will sidestep congressional opposition, which has blocked it for 50 years, by ordering the U.S. half to be built by the U.S. Army, which will return it as a completed job to a civil authority."

Canada is reported ready for an immediate start on its half of the $1,000,000,000 scheme.

The decision was reached, the Star says, because of the threat of war, "even before the tension in Korea exploded into outright conflict."

"Korea is said to have accentuated the urgency of an immediate start on the twin project— both said to be desperately needed in case of another world war."

LINER FRANCONIA PILES ON ROCKS IN QUE. HARBOR

Quebec, July 13. (CP)—The 20,000-ton liner Franconia, bound for Liverpool with 780 passengers, ran hard aground on the Island of Orleans last night in an unexplained Quebec harbor accident.

Details of the mishap were not known immediately but no injuries among passengers or crew were reported.

The Franconia's grounding three-quarters of an hour after moorings were cast off for the Trans-Atlantic voyage left the big ship piled high on rocks at the western extremity of the St. Lawrence River Island.

Cunard-Donaldson line officials, though stunned by the turn of events, made quick debarkation arrangements. The first passengers wearing life-belts were ashore on the Island of Orleans in less than an hour.

A harbor excursion boat, the stubby Louis Jolliet also hustled to the side of the Franconia to help with the evacuation.

At 3:30 a.m. E.D.T. Cunard officials said most of the passengers had been taken off and that the liner was in no danger of rolling over on her side—a rumored danger.

Landed by Tug

Passengers landed by tug at Ste. Petronille, on the island about a quarter-mile from the scene of the grounding, said the Franconia shuddered aground between 9:40 and 9:50 p.m. E.D.T.

Mercy Flight Brings Eskimo Girl to Hospital

Goose Bay, Labrador, July 13— An Eskimo girl, seriously wounded by a rifle bullet which pierced her back, today lies in the Air Force hospital at RCAF Station Goose Bay, after having been flown in from the small Eskimo settlement of Nain, 200 miles north of here, it was announced today by station authorities.

The mercy flight was carried out by a Norseman float aircraft, based at Goose Bay for search and rescue operations, after the Air Force station had been notified by wireless of the girl's condition. The wireless message was received last Monday, but weather conditions prevented the aircraft from taking off until Tuesday afternoon. The trip was made without incident, the plane arriving back at Goose Bay at 8:45 p.m. of the same day. Pilot of the Norseman was Flight Lt. S. W. Yoder of Edmonton. Also aboard were Flight Cadet J. G. Murray, McGill University, and 4693 Collbrook Ave., Montreal and Leading Aircraftsman C. D. McLaughlin, of Collingwood, Ont.

Royal Gardener Given Eight Years for Assault

London, July 13 (AP) — A Royal gardener was packed off to prison for eight years today for knifing and beating two of Queen Mary's housekeepers in an early morning burglary attempt, June 24.

The Judge said he could have been given a life sentence.

The man, Gerald O'Brien, 26, pleaded guilty to being armed with a knife, and three other charges concerned with the attack on Mrs. Alice Knight and Mrs. Winifred Ralph, elderly housekeepers who caught him in Marlborough House.

Judge B. B. McClure said he accepted O'Brien's statement that he didn't know whose house he was in.

"Indeed," said the judge, "it does not matter."

He said it was no more serious to break into a palace than into a pre-fabricated house.

"Nobody in their right senses would attempt to break into a guarded palace," said O'Brien's lawyer, pleading for a light sentence because O'Brien had been drinking and was ill.

Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Ralph were in hospital for several days after the attack. The incident led to a tightening of the guards at all royal palaces. Trained police dogs are helping to guard Marlborough House now.

Body of Woman Weighted, Bound Found by Boys in Detroit River

Windsor, Ont., July 13. (CP)— Police today identified the body of a young woman, found weighted and bound in the Detroit River yesterday, as Margaret Jean Smith, 16-year-old Windsor girl. She had been missing since early last Thursday.

Dr. C. V. Mills, coroner, who ordered an autopsy last night, said the girl apparently died after an illegal operation. The examination indicated the victim was dead when placed in the river.

There were marks on her body, but it is thought these might have been caused by the river current battering against submerged rocks and pilings along the Windsor riverfront, where she was found.

The fully-clothed body was found with four steel plates bound to her neck and another four plates tied to her ankles. The plates are similar to those used between railway ties.

An older sister, May Smith, notified police last Friday that the girl was missing.

Four young boys, playing among riverfront pilings yesterday, saw the body in the river. A man fishing nearby used a pole to hold the body against the current while police were notified.

Police are making an intensive investigation among friends and acquaintances of the former collegiate student in an effort to locate the person who performed the illegal operation.

Dr. Mills described the illegal operation as "clumsy" and evidently the work of a lay person.

RUSSIA MAY BE USING KOREA AS A 'BLIND'

Probably Trying to Sap Strength of W. Powers

Ottawa, July 13 — (CP) — Canada's government is worrying whether Korea means that Russia has embarked on a policy of sapping western strength in sideline, satellite wars to soften the democracies for a gigantic blow herself.

The possibility that Korea is part of a crisis-by-crisis buildup for a Third World War has Ottawa, London and Washington in close consultation on every scrap of evidence emerging from behind the iron curtain.

This fear, it is understood, underlines their views on the Korean situation itself—generally regarded as alarming in a local sense— on disposition of Canadian forces internally and on further aid to the United Nations in Korea.

At a 2 1-2 hour cabinet meeting yesterday, Canada formally turned three destroyers over to United Nations' command to fight in Korean waters, but only in that specific war.

The destroyers, Cayuga, Athabaskan and Sioux arrived at Pearl Harbor naval base just as the cabinet was making its decision. They will go into Korean action with the U.S. task force "yoke" under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, flying the blue and white U.N. flag as well as the blue ensign.

Col. Arthur Hatch Veteran of 1885 Dies Aged 84

He was elected president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association in 1924 and also served as a member of the Ontario Parole Board.

He founded the Canada Steel Goods Company in Leamington, Ont., in 1903 but later transferred the firm to Hamilton where it eventually became the Stanley Works of Canada.

Col. Hatch is survived by two sons, Frederick and Harry, both of Hamilton.

DURNAN ALL THROUGH

Montreal, July 13. (CP)—Big Bill Durnan, six times winner of the Vezina Trophy as the National Hockey League's top goalie, has finally decided to quite hockey for good.

Durnan told Frank Selke, Montreal Canadiens' general manager, yesterday that he is through. Said Durnan, "I could never stand another season. My nerves are all shot and I know it."

KOREA

During the early hours of the morning, slogans were painted on the Russian War Memorial which stands on the highway which links West Berlin with the West Zone. With a violent splash of paint and courage two West Berliners painted "Ivan Go Home, Berlin is not Korea," on the marble base. The sign was painted in retaliation for East Berlin slogans against the Americans such as "Ami Go Home" and "Ami Get Out of Korea." This exclusive picture shows the two persons who painted the slogans on the Russian memorial just as they finished their job and ran. — Central Press Canadian.

Military Plane Crashes In Rugged Hills of Arizona

Tucson, Ariz., July 13 (AP) — A big military plane crashed and exploded into a mass of flames in the rugged Galuro mountains of southern Arizona early today.

Six hours after the crash, a second reported sighting wreckage and three survivors. Parachutes were spread on a ridge.

Clifford Stahl, pilot of the search plane from which the wreckage was sighted, said two of the men were standing on a ridge about two miles from the wreckage. A third survivor was seated beside a parachute. All three men were waving.

The ruggedness of the terrain made it impossible for Stahl to land.

A rancher, Homer Boyd, reported he heard engines thunder 40 miles northwest of Willcox, after midnight. "The plane sounded like it was in trouble," he said.

Byrd reported he looked out of his window and saw an explosion and flames in the mountains about 10 miles distant.

Two planes were sent over Bassett peak in an effort to locate wreckage. Search parties also were travelling toward the scene.

The control tower at Tucson municipal airport reported observing an explosion in the air at an estimated distance of 255 miles from Tucson.

No commercial planes were reported overdue. Officers at Davis-Monthan air base here said they had no report that any military aircraft was missing but were investigating.

Three Destroyers At Pearl Harbor Will Sail Shortly

On Board H.M.C.S. Cayuga at Pearl Harbor, July 13. (CP) — Canada's three Korea-bound destroyers arrived here yesgterday to the music of a United States navy band. But missing were the traditional hula dancers, the guitars and leis that have greeted Canadian ships on visits to this big, bustling base in the past.

The tone of the arrival, after a seven-day trip from Esquimalt, B.C., was the operational tone that will prevail from now on.

There is a serious air of business at Pearl Harbor and everything is being done with an efficiency and dispatch that blend well with the smart bearing of the white-clad Canadian seamen.

Some of the 700 officers and men in the ships—the Cauyaga, Sioux and Athabaskan—are oldtimers to the Islands, having visited them on previous cruises, but for the majority of them this was the first sight of the green palms and rolling hills of Oahu.

The ships are expected to sail again in a day or so.

RELIEVED OF OFFICE

London, July 13 (AP) —Stanislaw Leszczycki has been relieved as vice foreign minister of Poland, the Warsaw radio said yesterday. He held the post from 1946. The broadcast said he would devote himself to "scientific work."

Rapid Production Being Slowed Down at Ford

Detroit, July 13 (AP) — The Ford Motor Company Wednesday said it is slowing down its rapid production pace of recent months.

A spokesman said the company had counted on getting a larger steel supply if the high demand for cars continued, but has been unable to do so.

Saturday work is being eliminated. All Ford lines except those at neighboring Highland Park and Long Beach, Calif., will operate nine hours a day, five days a week. The other two will run five eight-hour days.

Mercury plants at Metuchen, N.J., and St. Louis will operate only four days a week for the remainder of this month.

FLYING SAUCER REPORTED

Chatham, July 13 (CP) —Another "flying saucer' has appeared over Kent County. It was spotted last night by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Thackeray of Chatham while driving near Thamesville. Mr. Thackeray estimated the height of the object at 3,000 feet and said "it looked like a ball with the upper side flattened."

AMERICAN LOSSES IN KOREAN WAR EXAGGERATED

42 Killed, 190 Wounded And 256 Missing

Tokyo, July 13. (AP)—General MacArthur's headquarters announced tonight that American losses in the Korean war to date have been 42 killed, 190 wounded and 256 missing.

The announcement said "losses sustained by the American forces have been greatly exaggerated in press reports from the front.

"Many of the missing are undoubtedly men who, in the confusion of the fighting, have lost touch with their own units and will eventually return."

The announcement continued: "Probably the most flagrant of these exaggerated reports dealt with the so-called 'lost battalion' of the 34th infantry which was reported as being completely annihilated wheras its actual losses amounted to only two killed, seven wounded and 12 missing."

No Censorship

Reports of American losses have been exaggerated because, the statement said, the army has avoided any military censorship or undue restrictions on the movements of war correspondents.

It said this was the first time in modern war that such an experiment had been tried.

The statement said "exaggerated stories obtained from individual wounded or mentally shocked have given a completely distorted and misrepresentative picture to the public. . . .

"American ground units in Korea are fighting one of the most skillful and heroic holding and rear guard actions in history. . . . they have been overwhelmingly outnumbered, in some instances more than 20 to 1, and the casualties inflicted on the enemy have been immeasurably greater than those they have sustained.

"They have filled a breach without which the North Korean forces would have, long ere this, completely overrun and destroyed South Korea."

Police Squelch Plot to Overthrow Bolivian Govt.

La Paz, Bolivia, July 13. (AP) —Police say they have squelched a plot to overthrow the Bolivian government and have seized a large cache of arms.

Col. Isaac Vencenti, director general of police, told reporters yesterday that several rebel groups, reported to have been led by members of the National Revolutionary Movement and the Bolivian Socialist Falange, were nabbed in dawn raids. A semi-official source said more than 40 persons were arrested.

Vencenti said the plotters had intended to turn the government over to former Gen. Froilan Calleja, who led an abortive revolt in August and September of last year. Calleja was said to be a fugitive near the Brazilian border.

Ottawa, July 13 — (CP) — Stream flow conditions in Canada during June was generally above normal, but varied from deficient to excessive according to the locality, the Dominion Water and Power Bureau reported today.

The run-off in the Red River basin in Manitoba gradually decreased but further east the flood in the Winnipeg River basin, including Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake, exceeded all previous records and had not abated at the end of the month.

In British Columbia, the run-off was very high but did not reach the flood stages recorded in 1948. With a few exceptions, the run-off was below normal from the Atlantic coast to northern Ontario and well above normal to excessive from northwestern Ontario to the Pacific coast.

Flow of 22 representative rivers averaged 136 per cent of normal against 100 per cent in May.

With the exception of the Maritimes, reserves of storage on the principal power producing rivers improved during the month and in Northwestern Ontario the amount of water in storage was excessive.

Figures showing the percentage of normal for June: Nova Scotia: St. Mary 28, Lahave 67; New Brunswick: Lepreau 103, Saint John 90; Quebec: Outardes 147, St. Francois 86, St. Maurice 161, Harricana 95; Ontario: Moira 85, Saugeen 105, North Magnetawan 91, Aux Sables 126, Missinaibi 188, English 316; Manitoba and Saskatchewan: Assiniboine 353; Alberta: Bow 134, North Saskatchewan 96; British Columbia: Kootenay 144, Columbia 114, Fraser 133, Skeena 154, Sproat 185.

U.S. Troops Brace Selves for New Blows by Commies

British Naval Unit Silences Heavy Guns in Shore Battery

Tokyo, July 14 — (Friday) — (CP) — American troops, whose stubborn holding tactics are credited by Gen. MacArthur with having prevented South Korea from being "completely overrun," today took advantage of a lull in fighting on the central front to brace themselves for new blows from the invading North Koreans.

MacArthur's communique, issued here at 12:15 a. m. (10:15 a. m. EDT), said that American and South Korean forces north of Taejon, "continued to withdraw before numerically superior forces to take up defence behind prepared positions and natural barriers."

Battlefront dispatches, however, indicated that withdrawal behind the Kum River line was virtually complete, and that ground fighting had subsided, possibly due to Wednesday's air blows which crippled North Korean communications lines. Rain clouds Thursday restricted allied aerial strikes on the front.

Naval Unit in Action

(At Washington a U. S. Army spokesman said a British naval unit yesterday silenced three out of four heavy Korean guns in a shore battery near Inchon on the west coast of Korea, principal port for Seoul.)

Reports of ground fighting were meagre. The Americans north of Taejon, provisional South Korean capital, appeared to be digging in along the Kum river line for an expected all-out assault by three communist divisions. The Americans now are under command of Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker, veteran tank fighter of the Second World War.

Far to the northeast, the reds bridged the Han River at Tanyang and sent at least one division, with artillery, to cut the key rail line from the southeast Korean port of Pusan to Taejon, 13 miles south of the Kum River line.

TWO BOYS INJURED

Thessalon, July 13 — (CP) — Two brothers from nearby Little Rapids were injured, one seriously, when a box containing dynamite caps exploded Thursday while they were handling it.

Ronald Morissette, 13, taken to hospital in Sault Ste. Marie, 50 miles west of here, was reported today to be still in serious condition from stomach injuries but "holding his own." His nine-year-old brother, Gerald, was released from hospital in Thessalon after treatment for leg and ear injuries.

RUSSIA DEPLOYS 800 NAVAL CRAFT NEAR WAR AREA

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, July 13. (AP)— Russia is believed to have about 800 naval craft deployed near the Korean war area—including between 70 and 80 submarines, a third of them the new XX-1 Snorkels.

Although the 800 total estimate is numerically big, there is no evidence that it comprises anything to make up a balanced naval force. Those studying the situation believe that many of these vessels are small craft of various type and that nothing larger than cruisers is in the area.

So far as can be determined, the Russian navy still possesses no aircraft carriers.

One unknown factor seems to be how many of the small vessels may be landing craft or types that could be used for an amphibious operation.

The presence in the Far East of any sizeable number of landing craft could be of grave concern to American forces. They could be used to provide an amphibious "lift" for North Korean flanking operations down the South Korean coast lines. Or they might some day be used in an attempted operation against the American defence bastion in Japan, should Russia and the United States fall into a gloves-off war.

FALLS TO DEATH

Portland, Me., July 13 —(AP) —A partly-blind man fell three storeys to his death last night through an open window in a roof he had mistaken for his own. Harry Bailey, 69, died of head and other injuries. Police said Bailey mistakenly walked into a room next to the one he occupied. He tumbled to the street through a low silled window.

PLANE PILOT WARNS OF FIRE

Chatham, July 13 (CP)—Warned by the pilot of a low flying plane of the fire, farmers arrived too late to prevent flames from demolishing the home of Albert Hawley in Harwich township. Loss was estimated at $8,000.

Murray Ward of Chatham was flying a light plane when he spotted smoke curling from the farm house. He swooped low over men working in the field, cut his motor, and shouted the alarm.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 13 (CP)—Synopsis: A band of showers and thundershowers is moving into Southern Ontario this morning and will be followed later today by cooler air and clearing skies. Over Northern Ontario skies have been cloudy throughout the night and rain has been falling in many sections.

In southern regions tonight and Friday will be mainly clear and cooler. In northern regions tonight will be very cool with temperatures approaching the frost level in northern White River and James Bay regions.

NURSING CORPS AT NAPANEE WALK

The nursing corps of the Belleville branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade with full equipment were on hand in Napanee yesterday for the Orange celebration observed in that centre. During the large parade of Orangemen and Orange women, as well as after the parade the nursing corps rendered first aid to a number of minor casualties.

CAMPBELLFORD ROTARY CLUB TO HOLD STREET FAIR

Reported to be the biggest ever, Campbellford Rotary Street Fair starts today and continues until Saturday. Features of this year's fair are a beauty contest, games, bingo, dancing, and a donkey baseball game.

Taking a leaf from police games, the Rotarians will have a tug of war between Seymour East and Seymour West on Saturday. Also on that day, a draw will be made for a ten-inch television set or a refrigerator. There is no admission charge.

COUNTY BUILDINGS BEING REJUVENATED

Acting on the recommendation of the Grand Jury at the General Session of the Peace held in June, county officials have commenced a program of rejuvenation at the Hastings County court buildings.

A new water fountain for public use has been installed in the main corridor, while concrete steps at the rear entrance of the building are being repaired. Also washrooms, both on the main floor and on the second floor are being rejuvenated, while additional chairs have been provided for the witness rooms. All the above were recommended in the report of the Grand Jury.

CHERRIES PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MARKET

Montmorency cherries made their first appearance on the local produce market today as farmers from Prince Edward county quoted $1.50 per six-quart basket. Early Richmond cherries had been quoted earlier at the same price.

Huckleberries still held at $2.75 per basket or 60c per qt. Strawberries were 35 and 40 cents per box. Gooseberries ranged from 15 to 25 cents. Red Currants were 25 cents and white currants 20 cents. Peas sold at 35 cents per pint or 60 per quart, while potatoes held at 75 cents per small basket.

BASS FINGERLINGS PLANTED IN LAKES IN NORTH COUNTY

First plantings of large mouth bass fingerlings started this week from the White Lake Ponds Rearing Station, according to the Tweed branch of the Department of Lands and Forests. The fish have been distributed in the vicinity of Tweed, Actinolite, Flinton, Cloyne, Fernleigh and Denbigh.

Mexican Boys View the City From Large Bus

Mexico came to Belleville this morning, and citizens on Front Street stood unbelieving. A load of young lads from Mexico, accompanied by clergy, had a great time baffling Belleville with their language.

The bus, a deep brown pullman type coach, with white flashing, did a helter-skelter job of picking up its passengers all along the main street, and pedestrians had lots of opportunity to watch. It made four stops in one block, and tied up traffic while the dark-skinned lads hopped aboard.

Many main streeters almost refused to believe their eyes when they saw the 'Mexico" sign in the bus destination card. 'What kind of a gag is that ", one was heard to say. "Who do they think they are trying to kid?" His expression changed a minute later when he heard the Mexican chatter.

The boys didn't stay long enough to be interviewed, and when last seen, were heading out No. 2 Highway towards Toronto. Only difference of the Mexican bus from Canadian types was the lettering. The line was the "Tres Estellas de Oro" (The Three Gold Stars), and on the rear end, instead of "Caution—Air Brakes", was "Precaucion, Frenos de Aire."

Inside the coach was decorated with pennants, some of them from Belleville. And out of the windows, dark faces with big brown eyes took a first, last and long look at Belleville.

Ontario Rinks Play in Quebec On Saturday

The first good-will lawn bowling tournament between Ontario and Quebec will be played in Verdun, P.Q., on Saturday Provincial Lawn Bowling Association President Cliff Argue announced here today.

Ontario will be represented by 24 selected players making six rinks who will face the best the Quebec Lawn Bowling Association has to offer.

Designed by President Argue, the good-will tournaments will alternate yearly.

The Quebec association has outlined a lavish program of entertainment for their Ontario cousins which is featured by a civic reception.

Centre Hastings Orangemen And Women Gather at Madoc To Celebrate Battle of Boyne

Madoc (Staff Special) — The rumble of the drums and whistle of the fife echoed throughout this quiet Hastings county village Wednesday afternoon as approximately 800 members of the Orange Order celebrated the 260th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

Twenty-seven lodges from Central Hastings including ladies and juvenile lodges, marched the two-and-a-half mile route of parade from the Fair Grounds to the village and back with every member completing the march despite the heat of the blazing July sun.

County Marshal Wilfred Phillips of L.O.L. No. 160, Madoc, was King William for the day as he headed the half-mile long parade atop his trusty steed. More than half of the 27 lodges participating in the parade had their own leaders, the plumed riders atop gray horses lending pageantry to the parade.

Cooper 'Mother' Lodge

Cooper L.O.L. No. 253, ten miles north of Madoc, acted as the 'mother' lodge for the Orange celebration with the women of Cooper community supplying the dinner and supper available at the grounds. Soft drinks and ice cream stands did a land office business throughtout the afternoon as parched celebrants sought to beat the heat.

But despite the heat the only casualty of the day took place before the parade. During the morning, as several horses were being transported to Madoc to participate in the celebration one of the horses pulled its leash and jumped over the rack of the truck. A sliver from the wooden rack gashed the horse's foreleg but a veterinarian sewed up the cut and the horse appeared in the parade with a bandaged foreleg.

Observes 100th Birthday

It was a red letter day for members of the Cooper Lodge. Their lodge was formed 113 years ago when, in the words of Past County Master Jim Diamond, "Cooper was but a wilderness." But this year the lodge is actually observing its 100th anniversary as their charter was received in 1850.

Acting as chairman for the program of speech making which took place at the fair grounds, Mr. Diamond said that proceeds of the day would go to assist in repairs for the Cooper church and lodge room. On behalf of the lodge he expressed his appreciation to all attending the celebration.

County Master John Hagerman complimented Orange members on the size of the parade, noting that at least one lodge had a 100 per cent turnout. This was the recently formed Sulphide Ladies' Lodge which turned out with all its 22 members.

First Requirement

Deputy Grand Master for Ontario East, Rt. W. B. Fred Bateman of Stirling, told his listeners that the first requirement of an Orangeman was to belong to a church and to believe in Jesus Christ. He admitted there were a few exceptions but asked that the membership of the order be judged by the many, not by a few.

County Chaplain Archie Sinclair said that Orangeism was not dead, proof of this being in the large parade seen earlier in the afternoon.

The county chaplain called for more unification between the Protestant churches. "If the churches are divided, then Orangemen are divided," he said. "A good Orangeman means a good churchman."

Always Cherish Ideals

As the principle speaker for the afternoon, George S. White, M. P. for Hastings-Peterborough, called for members of the L.O.L. to cherish always the ideals and freedoms for which their organization stands. He asked them to oppose strongly the well organized campaign for a new flag and a new National Anthem.

"During the war we were only too glad to hide behind the British Commonwealth of Nations. Then there was no talk of a new flag," said Mr. White.

Referring to what was termed a breach of diplomatic courtesy on the part of Canadian Parliament, Mr. White regretted the fact that Sir Basil Brooks, prime minister of North Ireland, had not been asked to speak before the House of Commons during his recent visit to Canada. "This courtesy had been extended to all visiting prime ministers for decades," he said.

Sir Basil Brooke, who was a devout Orangeman, had not been asked to speak to the House of Commons for "obvious" reasons, Mr. White said.

Other Speakers Heard

Other speakers heard during the afternoon included County Secretary Arthur Wilson; Rev. M. W. Heaslip, Presbyterian minister at Madoc; Rev. Porter Bennett, of Nebraska, U.S.A., and Rev. W. W. Patterson of Dover Centre, near Chatham, former minister at Cooper.

Mr. Patterson said the three significant trends of the century were renewed interest in home religion and in the open Bible, and greater co-operation between the Protestant churches.

Rev. H. Good, Anglican minister at Madoc who recently came here from Ireland, spoke on the responsibility of Orange members bringing up their children according to the principles of freedom as stood for by the Orange Order. He also warned against the dangers of mixed marriages unless both parties accepted the same religion.

Mail for Personnel On Destroyers Will be Forwarded

Arrangements have been made to forward mail to personnel serving in the destroyers Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan, which arrived on Wednesday at Pearl Harbor, Naval Headquarters have announced at Ottawa.

Due to reach Hawaii on the afternoon of July 12, the three ships have been made available to the United Nations for employment in Korean waters if required.

Mail for officers and men serving in the Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan should be addressed in the following manner:

1. Rank or rating.
2. Name and official number.
3. HMCS (Name of ship).
4. c/o HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, Victoria, B.C.

From Esquimalt the mail will be forwarded by naval authorities to the ships.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

Karachi (CP)—The Pakistan government has instructed all educational institutions in centrally administers areas that "every person is absolutely free to study and practise his own religion, and no one can be obliged to study or observe the practices of any religion but his own."

Police Believe Large Stone Went Through Window

Trenton (Special) — Rumors that an unidentified gunman in a prowling car fired a bullet through the plate glass window of Bardy's Restaurant Tuesday morning were dismissed this morning by Chief of Police Jack Taylor.

"In my opinion a stone flew from the tire of a passing car and went through the window," the police chief said. "The opening in the window was too big to have been made by a bullet and no trace of a bullet was found."

Owing to the fact that a sidewalk is being constructed in front of the building, the stone was not found.

Waitress Phyllis Rowe, serving a customer from behind the counter said that she heard a sharp crack as the window broke, while the proprietor, Joseph Bardwell, rushed from the kitchen and said it definitely sounded like a shot. Constables G. Carley and Ivan Jensen investigated.

TRANSFORMED INTO MUSEUM

Oakville, July 13 — (CP) — The first post office in this town on the western shores of Lake Ontario — a log building erected in 1835 — is being moved into town to be transformed into a museum. It was built on Sixteen-Mile Creek near here.

Obituary

MAE DAWN SCRIMSHAW

Mae Dawn Scrimshaw, age eight years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Myles Scrimshaw, 69 South George Street, died Wednesday morning in the Belleville General Hospital as the result of burns sustained on Sunday when liquid cement being applied to an inner car tube became ignited and exploded. The accident occurred at her home when her young brother was endeavoring to mend the tube. The family is associated with Bridge Street United Church.

Surviving besides the parents are five brothers, Allan, age 12 years; Douglas, age nine years; Ross, age two years, and twins, Herbie and Scottie, age one year; also one sister, Elizabeth, age six years, all at home.

Marshall W. Scrimshaw of Belleville, and Arthur H. Shore of Bancroft, are grandfathers of the child.

JOHN WORRELL

John Worrell, 170 North Front Street, this city, died in the Kingston General Hospital on Wednesday. He was in failing health for some time.

Born in Lisbellaw, Ireland, the late Mr. Worrell was 77 years of age and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Worrell. Practically all his life was passed in this city. He was a member of the Reformed Episcopal Church and fraternally he was a member of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 274.

Surviving him are five sisters, Miss Ida Worrell, Miss Fanny Worrell, Miss Elizabeth Worrell, all of Belleville; Miss Annie Worrell, Toronto, and Mrs. C. J. (Mary) Spicer, Guelph.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE MRS. E. L. DONALDSON

The funeral of Mrs. Edith L. Donaldson, late residence, 44 North Park Street, was held from the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street, on Wednesday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. D. C. Amos, minister of Bridge Street United Church.

Many friends were present and the floral tributes were beautiful and many in number.

LATE MRS. AGNES BURKETT

The funeral of Mrs. Agnes Burkett, wife of Mr. Patrick Burkett 36 Hillcrest Avenue, was held Thursday morning from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father J. Buckley, who also said the committal prayers at St. James' Cemetery.

The bearers were Frederick Clark, Henry Hatfield, William Lynch, Jr., James Doran, Clare O'Sullivan and Thomas Benninger.

LATE MRS. MARY FRANCES O'SULLIVAN
(Marysville)

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Frances O'Sullivan wife of John F. O'Sullivan, Marysville, was held from her residence Wednesday morning to the Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father O'Donoghue, who also said the committal prayers at St. Mary's Cemetery.

The bearers were Joseph McGurn, George Hayes, Jack Meagher, Fred Mowbray, Bernard McGuiness and Leo Brennan.

ERNEST GEORGE FLEMMING
(Port Hope)

A well known former resident of Belleville in the person of Ernest George Flemming, died in Sonnybrook Hospital on Wednesday, the results of war wounds suffered in the First Great War. In the death of Ernie Flemming, many old timers especially baseball fans will regret to hear of his death. For many years he tended the tracks in Port Hope as a switchman and was known far and wide for his genial disposition and his knowledge of sport in all its phases.

For many years after the war, Ernie was a switchman in the CNR yards at Belleville terminal but later was moved to Port Hope. While there he took an active interest in hockey and baseball, but baseball was his first true love. The old CNR Nationals always made it a point to have a chat with Ernie, when they were passing through on their way to Peterborough by train or car. To Ernie there was only one team in the Central Ontario Baseball League and that was the CNR Nationals.

He enlisted early in the First World War and served during the duration and was severely wounded. Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Woodcock, one son Bert Flemming and one daughter Mrs. Gordon (Jessie) Thompson both of Port Hope. He was a life member of the Masonic Order and the Belleville Lodge No. 81 IOOF.

The funeral service will be held in Port Hope on Friday evening with interment in Gananoque cemetery on Saturday.

Develop Parking Area On Queen Victoria Park To Accommodate 250 Cars

The capacity of downtown parking facilities will be enlarged by approximately 250 cars with the decision of the Chamber of Commerce to develop a large area on the north side of Victoria Park as a parking lot. The Chamber accepted an offer of the land by the Parks Board.

The Chamber, at a regular meeting Tuesday, appropriated $200 of the money being used on the Riverside Parking Lot to take advantage of the offer of the land on Victoria Park. At present the Parks Board is engaged in filling in a large area in the north end of the harbour just below the C.P.R. tracks. The Chamber of Commerce, having secured a large section of the property for a parking area will make the lots available to motorists in the near future.

Meanwhile work on Riverside Parking Lot is going forward with the dumping and spreading of 70 loads of gravel by City Public Works employees. The area has been graded by the city and the Chamber of Commerce will erect concrete posts in the parking bays to make for more orderly parking. Eventually the Chamber will erect guard rails along the river front. The entire area, when completed, will have accommodation for approximately 200 cars.

The secretary reported that Mr. Matlock of B. G. Matlock Limited had advised him that their firm would be prepared to stage a Santa Claus parade here in November. Terms were discussed and representatives present were asked to take the matter up with their individual association members.

Representatives of the Great West Life Assurance Company put forward a group insurance plan for merchants and their employees, but the Chamber, feeling that comparative plans should be investigated before reaching a decision, postponed judgment on the scheme offered.

Belleville Rink Wins Robertson Cup at Tourney

Bowling is a peculiar yet fascinating game and one full of upsets as was evident in the men's doubles tournament held at the Belleville Bowling Club greens on Wednesday afternoon. Some 24 rinks of the best bowlers in this district teed off for the three-game tourney and emerging the winner of the Robertson Cup were Ernie Boulton, a bowler of three years and his partner, Bert Ashley, who only took up bowling this year. This pair richly deserve their win and it was most popular around the clubhouse as the prizes were distributed. They beat a lot of good bowlers on their way to the top prize of the tournament.

Other three-game high winners were Fred Harper and Joe Legault of the local club, who had to come up from behind to down "Ab" Wonnacott and his partner, Rev. D. C. Amos. The president was three up going home but Mr. Harper counted a three and won on the extra end. A large gallery followed the play of the last end. Jack Wylie and Bill Conn of Brighton also had the honor of winning their three games.

Ernie Vanner and Bill Wright, who incidentally is a first-year bowler, won the two-game high while Charles Hyde and Garn Dobbs, who were defending the Robertson Cup had the one-game high score. The greens were lightning fast and the weather was ideal for bowling. The committee of Jerry Hyde, Doug Row and others are to be complimented on the fine arangements and the speed at which the draw was run off. President Wonnacott welcomed the guests and reminded all of the Gold Cup competition for the Corbin trophy on Civic Holiday.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 13 — (CP) — Morning selling sent prices sharply lower for a second successive session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. In mid-session steadying tendencies appeared Volume for the first three hours was 1,219,000 shares.

Losses ranged from fractions to two points over a broad list of industrials. The market opened lower, attempted to rally but continued sliding as fresh selling appeared.

Today's decline in senior and junior producing golds again carried the index to a new seven-year low. Seniors were off fractions and juniors showed losses ranging up to 25 cents.

Western Oils were in a solid downward movement.

Base Metals made the best showing. The group attempted to hold against the selling but was slowly forced lower.

U.S. TROOPS

An advanced headquarters spokesman said several bridges across the winding Kum river, 13 miles north of Taejon, were blown up last night. One was a large railway bridge.

Launch New Drive

The Reds launched a new drive from newly-won Tanyang, 65 miles northwest of Taejon. Heading southwest, it looked to be a push to cut the vital rail line from the southeast port of Pusan to Taejon, key defence centre 13 miles south of the Kum.

Gen. MacArthur announced the appointment last midnight of Walker, chief of the United States eighth army in Japan, as commander of ground forces in Korea.

The eighth army has taken over the job of U.S. army forces in Korea.

Walker commanded the famed armored "ghost corps" of Gen. George Patton's third army in Europe. He was cited by Britain and praised by the U.S. war department for his co-ordination of infantry and armored groups.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, and Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, air force chief of staff, conferred here with MacArthur.

MacArthur's communique said the 15th and 5th north Korean divisions have started a drive to the southwest "in a wide envelopment heading for Hamchang," 45 miles northwest of Taejon and on a line that would take them to the Pusan-Taejon railroad if they were successful.

Safe Crackers Foiled in Attempt To Open Safe

Lynden, Ont., July 13 (CP)—Safecrackers, in action here for the third time in that many weeks, last night attempted to crack open the vault in the Royal Bank of Canada branch here, but apparently were frightened away before completing the job.

On July 5, thieves blew the safe in the Lynden Co-operative feed mill next to the bank, and got away with a small amount of money.

On June 29, the Copetown feed mill was entered and the safe carted out into a field and cracked open. The loot amounted to about $20.

Stealing tools from the Canadian National Railways' tool shed the yeggmen entered the bank by jimmying the backdoor. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smith who live in an apartment across the street, said they thought they heard a blast as a train was passing.

PROTECTION

Rio De Janeiro's new soccer stadium will have a nine-foot moat around the field to protect players from over enthusiastic fans.

Korean Sidelights

Tokyo, July 13 — (AP) — A North Korean radio broadcast monitored here said communist China's capital, Peiping, and the North Korean capital, Pyongyang were joined today by telephone and telegraph links.

Taipez, Formosa, July 13 (AP) — The Formosa Mercantile Association today offered General MacArthur use of commercial shipping up to 100,000 tons for the Korean War.

Karachi, Pakistan, July 13 — (AP) — Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan said today he had "no information regarding the sending of Pakistan land troops to Korea."

Returning from a tour of the United States and Canada, he said, however, that Pakistan would help South Korea in all ways within its means. He said the shape of this aid would be determined as time shows what is needed.

Sydney, Australia, July 13 — (Reuters) The Sydney Herald today reporter from Canberra that the Australian cabinet has authorized prosecution of communist officials of the Australian Seamen's Union, which has banned transport of war materials to Korea.

The ban was announced last Friday by the executive of the union, to which nearly all Australian seamen belong. The paper said the prosecutions would be brought under a section of the Crimes Act dealing with sedition and obstruction of the transport of goods to other countries.'

London, July 13 — (Reuters)—R. E. Peierls, president of the Atomic Scientists' Association, said in a letter to the Times today that the atom bomb would be a most ineffective weapon in the Korean war.

There were not likely to be any large concentrations of troops on any military installations large enough to call for a weapon of its power, he said. Even if one admitted the justification of its use against large centres of industry, there was probably no such centre in Korea which was vital to the present campaign.

London, July 13 — (Reuters) — The People's Daily of Peiping has accused the United States of "flagrant crimes" in Korea which "have evoked limitless hatred and enmity among the Korean people," a communist New China news agency report received in London said today.

WONDER DRUG

Research into the possibility of producing the wonder drug, cortisone, from plants as well as animals, is being carried out in the laboratories of several nations.

CANADA IN U.N. FORCE

Canada's three destroyers which for some days have been proceeding from the West Coast towards Pearl Harbor will become or have become part of the United Nations force, the warships being turned over to that organization to serve on U.N. police duty in the Korean theatre of war. Announcement to this effect was made on Wednesday afternoon by the Prime Minister of Canada. He assured the Canadian people that no time would be lost in having the ships sail in Korean waters. These ships will be very useful, said Mr. St. Laurent, at this momentous time in the life of the United Nations:

As the Brockville Recorder and Times pointed out the other day that "once it was hoped that the flag of the United Nations would represent such a power for good that it would be unnecessary to bear it into battle. That was the hope. The reality is different . . . Now the flag of the United Nations is to be used, though in small scale conflict, as a flag of war. The United Nations emblem, a polar projection of the world in white, surrounded by olive branches signifying peace, superimposed on a pale blue field, will be borne aloft in the struggle which the free forces of the world are waging against the communist armies in Korea. The use of the flag has been so authorized by the United Nations."

TELEVISION

Those people who expect television to break upon the Canadian public as a completely new development will be surprised by figures released by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion. Their survey indicated that almost 30 per cent of adult Canadians have seen a television show at one time or another.

The question asked was "Have you ever seen a television show?" with approximately three in every ten answering yes. This compares very favorably with United States figures, where about 62 per cent of the people have viewed TV.

Ontario led the way with more than half of the people interviewed admitting to having been exposed to television. This 52 per cent took up the slack of the prairie provinces, where only ten per cent have seen and heard a broadcast. The proximity of Ontario to United States broadcasting centres is given as the reason for a higher proportion.

Half of the Canadians who have seen a show did so across the border, which would indicate that the percentage of TV sets in Canada is very low. The population ratio goes from a low of 11 per cent of the farm population to a high of 43 per cent of those people living in cities of 100,000 or over.

Thus, if proposed plans to bring television shows from Canadian stations go through within the next year, the initiation will not be as widespread as might have been expected.

OF INTEREST TO MEN

A captivating feature of the bulletins that descend regularly and in considerable volume upon newspaper offices from the agencies of foreign governments is that their usually serious contents are lightened, every once in a while, by somewhat bizarre items of "human interest." An example was presented by a recent bulletin from the information service of the Government of India. Embedded amidst a great deal of solemn material about India's position regarding the war in Korea and the new segregation law in South Africa was the following report:

"New Delhi.—Claiming to possess the world's longest whiskers, Pritam Singh, a Rajput chaprasi (office boy) in a Government of India office, has told the press that he is determined to grow them till they reach the tips of his toes. The whiskers are already two yards long and represent 30 years of careful grooming and loving solicitude. But for the "thoughless habit" of clipping them in his youth and the antics of his sons who cut off six inches from either side eight years ago, Pritam Singh believes he would have achieved his ambition by now. He now thinks it might require another 20 years.

"He recalls how during his army days he sought for persons in different countries who could be a match for him but found none. He has never used any tonic or unguents on his whiskers. About clean shaven faces he says: 'Just a lot of potato faces — a disgrace to mankind'."

Despite his comment about us "potato faces," one can only admire his perseverance in working toward a difficult goal — and the thoughtfulness of the information service editor in including such an item to brighten the summer dog-days of newspaper editors, remarks Montreal Gazette.

The Duke of Marlborough expresses his disgust over the behaviour of guests at his stately ancestral home, Blenheim Palace. His Grace, however, might take consolation from the fact that manners appear to have deteriorated almost everywhere in the world during recent years, says Hamilton Spectator.

WEDDING PROBLEMS

What ever does the bachelor do
With wedding invitations
How choose the one, when there are two,
Same hour, but different stations?
Who tells him all about the groom
Or who's to be the bride,
And in the gay reception room
Keeps him with names supplied?

How does the bachelor know just what
To buy for this or that one?
Shall it be crystalware or not,
Or silver piece—a flat one?
With neither wife nor daughters wise
To follow Emily Post,
How does he know the gift he buys
Is what is wanted most?

Does he go shopping for himself,
The various stores exploring,
For things to line the pantry shelf
Or pots for coffee pouring?
My daughters do the work for me
When there are gifts to send.
Since lonely must the bachelor be,
On whom does he depend?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 13th., 1930

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lloyd of Erie, Pa., are the guests of Mrs. W. J. Brown, Octavia St.

Miss Mary Webster has returned to Kingston to resume her duties as a nurse-in-training at Hotel Dieu.

Mr. Harry Wilder, Detroit, Mich., is visiting his mother at her home on Grier Street.

Mrs. M. Malyea, Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. D. Donoghue, William Street.

Miss Rosamond VanAllen has returned home from St. John, N. B., where she spent a vacation.

Miss Grace Walker of Oshawa has returned home after spending two weeks here with her sister, Mrs. D. S. Larue, Dundas Street east.

Miss Ida Zoller of Detroit, Mich., is the guest of Mrs. M. A. Wilder in this city.

30 YEARS AGO

July 13th., 1920

Mr. W. H. Finkle of this city has recovered his car which was stolen at Trenton a few days ago.

A large number from this city attended the Orange celebration in Madoc yesterday.

Mr. Frank Black and family are visiting relatives here.

Mr. Ketcheson Earle will leave tomorrow for Lavoy, Alberta, where he will visit his daughter.

Mrs. S. Holmes will leave tomorrow for Winnipeg where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. H. S. Field.

Mr. and Mrs. Sulman and daughter Patricia of Chatham are visiting relatives here.

40 YEARS AGO

For your drug requirements visit Frank Dowling's drug store (Advt.).

A large excursion party came here today by boat from Napanee.

The Tabernacle Sunday School picnic today to Twelve O'Clock Point was largely attended.

The prospects are that the apple crop will be large this year; the pears also look well.

There is not a vacant dwelling in Deseronto and new houses can not be erected quickly enough to satisfy the demand; as a result rents are high.

The Orange Walk at Trenton yesterday attracted a large crowd. The steamers Ella Ross and Varuna conveyed members of the Order and their friends from the various bay ports to Trenton.

Mr. W. P. S. Johnson, son of Mayor J. W. Johnson, is home from Boston, Mass., to spend his vacation.

REGARDING CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

Do you belong to the church or does the church belong to you?

There is a possessive type of person in the world who attempts to lay hold on the church and own it. Such a person often tries to get the best offices, the best pews, and either directly or indirectly tries to control almost everything going on in the church. Usually such people are good contributors and because they give plenty of money to the church they get the idea that the church owes them something. They do not belong to the church; the church belongs to them—or at least they think it does.

St. Paul embarked on a very bold and unique form of expression when he spoke of people being members of a church. He took the Greek word meaning "a limb" and said to his friends. "You are the limbs of the church—its hands to do its work, its feet to run its errands." He probably meant to include also all the organs of the body and their functions—the eyes to see, the ears to hear, the lips to speak. All through the New Testament we have the picture of the church a glorious and divine body belonging to God and never to any individual or any group of individuals.

We belong to the church. The church possesses us; we do not possess it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A great many people are now concerning themselves with conservation of the wild and natural resources of Canada. The only trouble is, they are the wrong people.

Until the backwoods people of Canada the settlers, the guides, the residents of all the countless little hinterland villages at the ends of the roads are roustd to what they are losing or being robbed of, the problem of conservation will remain unsolved.

To whom do the wild creatures—game fish, the ducks, the deer—really belong? The theory is that they belong to the public. Actually, they belong to whoever kills them and puts them in the freezer. In broad theory, any citizen can buy a licence and go forth to claim his share with rod or gun. But the number who do so is trifling as compared with the whole. It would be fairer if we recognized that wild fish and game of Canada belong, in fact, to that small section of the public who go and take them.

That they are extremely valuable is evident when we calculate what proportion of the hundreds of millions of annual tourist dollars is to be credited to those coming in in search of fish and game. And this is where the backwoods settlers, the guides and residents of the villages at the ends of the roads come into the picture. Without their aid in some measure the tourists could not get at the fish and game. Whose roads do the government improve The settlers' roads, of course. Who provides the boats, the clearings the warves, the tails, the cabins, the litle supply stores? The backwoods people, and few others. Despite the much-publicized activities of the tourist industry, there would be mighty little fun for the tourist without the co-operation of the people whose homes are in, or on the edge of, the wilderness.

And by and large, these people do not yet realize that whatever is lost to our wilderness is their loss first and worst.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

RICH AND POOR

Calgary, Alta. — In the cities the trailer camp, or "court," as they like to call them, flings together an odd mixture of humanity.

The stalls visible from the street are filled with a window dressing of big, shining new travelling homes of tourists from the United States (seven out of ten of them are from California). Some of these caravans are splendid homes, representing an investment of up to $8,000 and $10,000. There's one near us now that's the last word in luxury and has, of all things, a sunken living room.

Farther back, out of sight from the road, hidden by the washrooms and laundries, there's a kind of hobo "jungle" where families live in abject poverty in packing cases or crude, box-like, windowless shacks in a manner that sickens and saddens you.

These people are from all over the country. Many of them are young couples whose incapabilities or hard luck have put them on the skids. We've met a good many of them. They're all unhappy lot, filled with bitterness and seemingly without the ability or desire to look after themselves properly.

Their hutches are filthy, their children run wild and unwashed. Near us now, living in a homemade trailer that a mad carpenter might have put together, are a woman and seven children. The father is in jail. The mother is out most nights on parties. The youngsters run loose.

Yesterday my wife made some lemonade and we had the five older children in. They reacted to our interest with an animation that was touching. I think it is true that children can go without almost everything but love.

Brave Woman

Being exposed to this seamier side of life is not without its benefits. You certainly appreciate your own lot when you see how others are living. And, too, you are apt to see some examples of real courage. Which brings me to the woman living in the car.

The other early afternoon when we pulled in here the woman was sitting behind the wheel of an old Dodge sedan a few feet from the location we had selected. She was a woman of perhaps 58 or 60, grey hair, turning to white. She was reading a novel and looked up from the book to smile a welcome.

The woman was there all day and when we were having our dinner we saw that she was having fruit and a glass of milk. Around nine o'clock—and we were now frankly curious — we saw her pin towels to all the windows. Then the light in the dome of the car went out.

During the next two days we exchanged greetings and notes about the weather (hot and sticky) and finally I asked her if she would tell me her story.

It was very simply told. The doctor in the small northern Alberta town where she and her two grown sons have a farm told her she must consult a specialist in Calgary and remain there under observation for three months.

"We've precious little money," the woman said, "so I just decided I'd stay in the car. I drive down to the doctor's twice a week and the rest of my time I read or watch the activity about the camp. People have been very kind and I'm not without friends, The children always drop around for a little visit."

Each time I look across to that car in this bleak sand lot on the edge of town I wonder how many women would have the patience and the courage to keep their spirits high under such conditions.

Old Gypsies

The Californians we've met are a happy and contented lot. Most are retired couples whose children have grown and married.

"We bought a small trailer," one brown old boy told me, "and figured we'd go back and camp in the mountains to get rid of the summer heat. That started it. Next year we got a bigger model and started out. Covering 40,000 miles, now, in the Yewnited States, Canada and Mexico and we like it more every day."

They are all dying to have you look inside their roving cottages It's remarkable how they've been given a lived-in look with chintz curtains, bridge lamps and knickknacks.

The American trailer-builders of course are marvelously ingenious. One company had gone so far as to build a trailer in the design of a Cape Cod cottage with white cedar siding, window boxes with flowers in them, shutters, gay shingled roofs - - - - "everything but the picket fence." Another outfit puts up a caravan wtih a real fireplace.

The great object of all these wandering old-timers is to find the perfect place to settle down, to lower their places off the wheels and roam no more. Meantime they migrate. North in summer. The warm south of Florida in winter.

It's a good life and an interesting one, and I'm glad we've been able to have a taste of it.

Letters to the Editor

Band Shell Advocated

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer

The enormous crowd that attended the Band Festival staged by the Canadian Legion in the fair grounds last Friday evening clearly demonstrated that our citizens like band music. This fact has been consistently overlooked by those who do the planning for this city. The music of these bands was poorly presented and much of the best of it was lost to the vast audience through inadequate facilities.

Music is a distinct part of the recreational activities of any community as laid down by provincial recreation authorities.

Belleville now has three bands, able and willing to provide unlimited entertainment for the people if suitable facilities are provided. Band concerts or any other type of outdoor entertainment can only be enjoyed by the audience if they are comfortably seated.

As past president of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association, I can assure you that, in our municipal band, we have one of the best amateur bands in Canada. This has been accomplished by a few people who have unselfishly labored during the past years to attain this end. The music, instruments and equipment of the band, at present-day prices, would amount roughly in the neighborhood of $15,000.00. Most of this is individually owned. The bandsmen do not receive any pay for their services but donate their time for rehearsals and concerts—all this to maintain an efficient band. This state of efficiency can not be maintained without more support from our local organizations who are all too prone to ask for the services of the band without looking into the matter of the expenses involved.

Our great number of budding musicians in the Junior Salvation Army Band, the Kinsmen's Boys' Band and Public School bands have no place to play where they may be enjoyed by fond mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, as well as the general public. They are our coming citizens and should be encouraged in every manner. It is our experience in the C.B.A. that the juvenile delinquency problem disappears when junior bands are formed.

Music as Recreation

A new $40,000.00 band shell has just been opened in London, Ont., for the purpose of providing summer concerts. For the first four nights two band concerts, a symphony orchestra concert and a choir concert were provided. This shell was a joint enterprise of the city of London and the local Kiwanis Club. A goodly number of cities and towns have already provided these facilities for summer concerts—Cobourg, Port Hope and Oshawa —have had them for years. We, in Belleville, have lagged behind in this matter, not through lack of interest of our citizens, as was amply proven last Friday night, but, by those who control the destinies of this fair city. It is not fit and proper to just provide facilities for sporting activities and consider the job done. Sports of all kinds are very necessary but what of the rest who care for other forms of recreation?

Victoria Park is, at present, having its face lifted and I would humbly beg that serious consideration be given to the idea of building a band shell on the Park with adequate seating and parking arrangements. This would not only be of great benefit to our local musical organizations but our great Service Bands, such as we enjoyed last Friday night could be heard to the best advantage occasionally.

Yours very truly,
E. Reg. Hinchey,
President,
The Belleville Municipal Band.

POLIO

Poliomyelitis is a virus disease which thrives on warm weather and fatigued people, according to leading authorities. The virus, an organism much smaller than even minute bacteria, attacks, grows, and multiplies in the human spinal cord and rarely the brain. The cells it lives in and sometimes destroys are the large "motor" cells of the spinal cord that control the muscles, including those that are used in breathing. It is a summer disease that is even more common than existing statistics would indicate.

Polio used to be called "infantile paralysis" because years ago the textbooks stated that it was a rare disease after the age of six. But the disease is changing. The case percentages are decreasing in infants and increasing in people over 15 years of age. It is now a disease of childhood and adolescence with more and more cases occurring in adulthood.

Not only because polio is more common outside of infancy, but also because polio is not always accompanied by paralysis, the term "infantile paralysis" should be permanently shelved in favor of poliomyelitis or simply polio.

In less than 20 per cent of the cases of poliomyelitis is there paralysis of any muscles. In the large percentage of cases now diagnosed as "abortive" poliomyelitis, there is no indication of paralysis or even striking changes in the laboratory findings in the spinal fluid (the term abortive here has nothing to do with abortion but means incompletely developed). Then there are cases diagnosed as "non-paralytic" poliomyelitis, which have no paralysis but have abnormal spinal fluid, indicating active spinal cord infection. This spinal fluid is obtained from the spinal canal by a needle inserted into the back — a simple and usually painless procedure—and its examination is important in every case.

How are these abortive and non-paralytic cases diagnosed? The physician, to best treat his patient, must attempt to diagnose all cases of poliomyelitis very early. The earlier the better, for he does not know which of them are going to be complicated by paralysis. The polio patients already have the disease days or weeks before paralysis begins. Fever, vomiting, and headache are the common initial symptoms. As you see, these are very non-specific symptoms, but when many patients in a community with a known polio epidemic come to a doctor with these complaints, he is immediately suspicious of polio and tests and treats accordingly. The fever is mild and rarely exceeds 100-102 F. The stiff neck and back, accompanied by pain, indicate that infection with the virus in the spinal cord is present. This latter symptom does not occur in abortive polio.

During a polio epidemic one should be extremely careful not to overexert oneself. First of all, fatigue lowers the admission price for the polio virus and makes it much easier for it to do its damage. Secondly, if polio has already been acquired and is in its early mild stages, exertion, hard work, fatigue, and mental exhaustion increase the chance for advanced paralysis. In schools and camps, athletic directors especially should be aware of this fact. Any fever in the presence of a polio epidemic should be closely watched and all physical exercise curtailed.

There is no specific therapeutic agent for poliomyelitis. Penicillin, the sulfa drugs, and the rest of the popular antibiotics can do no good and may be harmful.

During an epidemic, consult your physician when there is any reason for alarm, and let him relieve your anxiety about polio or make the proper investigations.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Clubfoot

Both of my children, now 5 and 2 years of age, were born with club feet. Son's feet now normal, daughter's nearly so, still under orthopedic treatment. Some doctors say the condition is inherited, others not. (Mrs. G. H. C.)

Answer—In most instances congenital (present at birth) clubfoot is isolated—that is, no evidence of that or other fault or defect of development in the family. The foot or feet remain in the position they assume during prenatal life. Under persevering physical corrective treatment, with or without the aid of surgery, the retarded or arrested development and growth of feet and legs may proceed until it catches up nearly or quite to normal, as in the case of children.

Tip to the Grocer

We have been buying wheat germ meal from a grocer who gets it in large bags and parcels it in small cellophane pound sizes. However it doesn't keep in warm weather. I'd like to have a constant supply but it takes up too much room in refrigerator. (E. C. D.)

Answer—Numerous enterprising grocers are serving their customers by offering freshly ground wheat—ground daily in their own mill—one similar to but more efficient than the familiar coffee grinder in most grocery stores. Send stamped self- addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet Wheat to Eat.

Hoover Advocates New U.S. Society Without Reds

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, has returned to his advocacy of the scrapping of the United Nations Organization and the establishment of a new one with the communist countries shut out.

He first broached this idea in a speech last April 27 in New York. His new approach to the subject was made in an address at the dedication of a memorial in Emporia, Kan., to the late William Allen White, noted Emporia editor.

Hoover said his proposal was "unanimously and loudly denounced" by the State Department and by U. N. officials. He declared that Korean developments demonstrate the "inevitable necessity" of his program.

The non-communist world, said Hoover, is faced with three possible courses if it would have peace. They are:

1. "Shall it go to war to wipe communism from the face of the earth? My answer is 'No' ".

That undoubtedly would be the consensus of observers, as I see it. As a matter of fact you can't kill an ideology by war, unless you wipe out every mother's son who fancies it. The only way to counter an ideology is by representing a better ideology.

2. "Should we return to the illusion that the Kremlin has changed its gospel and will work for world peace through the United Nations? That would seem futile."

One of the cardinal tenets of communism is that the ideology MUST be spread by revolutionary force. The establishment of a red government MUST be accompanied by an upheaval, to impress the proletariat.

No Change in Program

There hasn't been the slightest indication of any change in the Kremlin's program. And all Moscow's relations with the U. N., have been calculated to further communist aims.

3. "Shall we try to build the United Nations so as to confine communism to the peoples already enslaved, estop military aggression and trust to time for this evil to abate? My answer is Yes!"

In this third alternative is the highly-controversial idea of reorganizing the U. N. so as to exclude the reds and confine it to the democracies. That would be recognition of the fact that, to all intents and purposes, we already are divided into two worlds — democracy and communism. The ideal of one world is a long, long way off.

Having taken this drastic step we should, I judge, continue to block the advance of communism through aggression by defending victims like Southern Korea with military force. That would be costly but feasible. The democracies — if they stand together — have the balance of power economically and militarily. It is well known that many of the red satellites are being kept in line by force. There are indications that they would welcome a chance to escape and resume their independence. If the communist bloc is isolated it is likely in due course to wither on the vine. There are many students of the situation who hold that belief.

17 PUPS IN LITTER

Toronto, July 13 — (CP) — Burt's Joanne, a Great Dane owned by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Burt of nearby Dunbarton, gave birth to 17 pups in what may be a record litter for a Great Dane. Four of the pups died and the others—which ranged in weight from 14 to 20 ounces — won't have their eyes open for another week. Burt estimates they're worth $150 each.

35 Lodges in Three Counties Join in Three-Mile 'Walk' To Mark Boyne Anniversary

Trenton (Special) — Led by Trenton Lion's Club band, 35 Orange Lodges from Northumberland, Hastings and Prince Edward counties "walked" in a three-mile-long 12th of July parade here yesterday.

Taking no chances on having their white frocks ruined in a traditional "Glorious Twelfth" downpour, Frankford ladies' lodge sported bright red umbrellas. The parasols were not needed to shed rain, as sun beat down brightly all day, but they did provide the ladies with welcome shade from the blazing sun during the long walk. The five Frankford lodges were headed by E. R. Blakely, mounted on a grey horse.

With Union Jacks fluttering in [illegible]e slight breeze, and standard bearers carrying their banners at the head of each lodge, the parade formed up at Hanna Park and moved off down Wragg Street to Dufferin Avenue. Continuing up Dufferin to King, the "walk" swung down King to division. The parade turned left at Division, then right along Middle Street to Front and down Front to Dundas. After marching up Dundas to Film Avenue, the parade turned down Film and returned to Hanna Park.

Junior Lodges Add Color

The Lions Club Band set the pace with martial music while numerous fife and drum bands and kilted bagpipers were scattered throughout the length of the parade. Junior lodges were well represented and their colorful costumes offered a striking contrast with the traditional white [illegible]orn by the older men and wo[illegible]n.

Two junior girls lodges were particularly outstanding. Belleville girls were dressed in red plaid skirts and black bolero jackets which were topped off with black berets; while Trenton young ladies lodge wore red bell hop type caps and brilliant red capes over white dresses.

Not to be outdone by the girls, Belleville boys' lodge with their bright blue capes and caps were equally eye-catching. Marching with the Belleville boys' lodge was the youngest walker of them all, four-year-old George Campbell of 51 Murney Street, Belleville.

Prize-Winning Lodges

Sentinel Lodge 2322, Petherick's Corners, won the prize for the best dressed men's lodge. Picton men's lodge No. 488 took the honors for the largest turnout, while Wallbridge L.O.B.A. No. 1168 was awarded the prize for the best dressed ladies' lodge.

Eighty-nine year old Charles Sargent of Tyendinaga lodge who joined the order 70 years ago was the oldest Orangeman in the park but he was given a close race for the honor by John Fox, 83, of Wellington an Orangeman for 60 years who walked in the parade all the way. Two other oldsters present for the celebration were J. Bowers and A. F. Graham both 81 and members of the order for 64 and 61 years respectively.

Mayor Welcomes Orangemen

Mayor Ken Couch welcomed the Orangemen to Trenton and commended the True Blue and Orange bodies for their constitution which is based on "allegiance to God, King and Country and your fellowmen." Mayor Couch said "if everyone today lived up to the qualifications of the constitution of the Orange Order this world would be a wonderful place in which to live.

"Many have the wrong conception of the 12th of July. It is not a day when we parade our religion before others but a parade in memory of Prince William of Orange when we reaffirm our allegiance to King, Country and our fellowmen."

The following lodges were represented: Boulter Lodge, Picton 488; Picton LOBA 487; Woodville, Prince Edward County, No. 2443; Wellington 2559; Carrying Place Ladies' Lodge; Picton Juveniles No. 235; Sentinel Lodge, 2322, Petherick's Corners; Brighton Lodge, No. 186; Castleton No. 237; Castleton LOBA Morning Star 1176; Castleton Junior LOL; Little Lake, No. 602; Campbellford No. 526; Campbellford Juveniles No. 45; Percy 108, Warkworth; Victory, No. 233, Belleville; Belleville Junior Girls, No. 274; Belleville LOBA, No. 350; Benjamin Lodge No. 724, Belleville; Belleville, JOL 231; Belleville Junior Boys' Lodge; Sunshine Lodge, 3199 Belleville; Plainfield LOL No. 179; Cannifton, No. 2820; Sidney, 2386; Tyendinaga, Mohawk, 99 Wallbridge, LOBA, 1168; Frankford, 240; Trenton Coronation Lodge, Trenton Juveniles, 168; Frankford LOBA; Trenton No. 206; Trenton LOBA, No. 604.

Canada is Most Favored Land Hon. W.A. Goodfellow Tells Boyne Anniversary Gathering

Trenton (Special) —Speaking to a large 12th of July audience here yesterday, Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario Minister of Welfare said, "no other people in the world are favored with opportunities like ours. It is the responsibility of every citizen to make this democratic system function as it should.

"It is our duty as good citizens and neighbors in the community to help those who are not so fortunate and so establish a true social democracy. Here this afternoon, as we stand in 1950, with one half of the 20th century behind us and the other half still to come, it is a good thing for [illegible]to meet as citizens and Or[illegible]emen and face up to the problems with which we are confronted," he said.

With a passing reference to "the great religious upheavals and conflicts that have taken place through the years," Mr. Goodfellow said that today we are facing "an enemy which is a great menace in the world and has no religion."

Lodges Congratulated

Congratulating the local lodges "on their successful planning as evidenced by the large turnout,' Mr. Goodfellow told the assembled Orangemen that "if ever there was a time when the Orange Order should be kept strong that time is now— in order to strength our special democratic [illegible] which we enjoy at the pre[illegible] time."

Rev. F. C. Beazer, Roslin, Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge British America and Honorary Chaplain of the South Hastings chapter, in addressing his fellow Orangemen termed communism "the worst of all the isms, worse than nazism or fascism. If we allow communism to prevail, we shall not be able to enjoy the liberties we enjoy today," Mr. Beazer warned his listeners.

On this, the 260th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne Mr. Beazer said he "realized that Orangeism is not dying by any means but growing every year.

"As we face the stern realities of today, all eyes are fixed on Korea and the American forces are fighting for the same cause of freedom that we are celebrating here in Trenton today."

Chiding three lodges for flying their flags upside down, Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton said, "behind the extravaganza of an Orange Walk, there is more than just flag waving.

We must be willing to sacrifice for our country and we must be willing to welcome new people coming into Canada." Urging his audience to do everything they could to help people from Holland who are settling in this country, Mr. McConnell said "the Dutch are fine citizens and will make the finest Canadians. If we show them we are Canadians first they will appreciate the country much more.

"Today there are gentlemen in Canada who would take away the word 'Dominion.' I always have and still maintain that this is the Dominion of Canada." Mr. McConnell said he had heard severe criticism from some quarters because Ontario displayed a crown on its automobile licences. "I have heard no criticism of the fleur-de-lis being used on the licence plates in another province," commented Mr. McConnell.

Westerner Speaks

Wor. Bro. George H. D. Jamieson of Nokomis, Saskatchewan, for 20 years, Grand Secretary of the Province of Saskatchewan, was also on the speakers' platform and said, "let us live up to our Orange principles and the public will see that we are loyal citizens that any country may well be proud of."

Frank Carr, County Master of South Hastings, from Belleville LOL 3199 was master of ceremonies.

Obituary

MISS ADELINE E. SHARRARD
(Trenton)

Trenton, July 13 — The funeral of Miss Adeline Evelyn Sharrard, late residence, 72 West Street, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home here on Tuesday afternoon. The service there and at Mount Evergreen Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. G. A. Puttenham, minister of Grace United Church.

The bearers were: Herbert Sharrard, Roy Sharrard, Arthur Sharrard, Jack Sharrard, Harold Sharrard and Bruce Hamilton.

The late Miss Sharrard, who died after a brief illness in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday last, was born 43 years ago in Brantford and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eugene Sharrard. For 38 years she resided in Trenton and for 30 years she was a special operator in the employ of the Kaye Company. She was a member of Grace United Church.

Surviving her are three sisters, Mrs. W. G. (Thelma) Hamilton, Trenton; Mrs. August (Eva) Zendt, Mount Clemens, Mich., and Mrs. Doris Lowe, Brown City, Mich.; four brothers, Art, Herbert and Jack, all of Trenton and Roy of Rednersville.

MRS. WILLIAM BISSETT
(Trenton)

Ill only three hours, Mrs. William Bissett of Trenton, died in Belleville General Hospital on July 12th. She was 64.

Born in England, Mrs. Bissett had lived in Trenton for the past five years, coming there from Saskatchewan. She was a member of the United Church in Trenton.

Surviving besides her husband are three daughters, Mrs. Margaret MacFadyen, Meadow Lake, Sask., Mrs. Ruth Hynne, Handel, Sask., and Mrs. Arthur Dunbar, Kaladar, and two sons, William of Trenton and Kenneth of Oshawa. There is one sister, Mrs. Peggy Packley, Neota, Sask.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

EDWIN DALES
(Brighton)

Edwin Dales, Brighton, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday. He was 79 years of age and was a patient in the hospital for seven days.

West-German Guards Have Redoubled Watch on Border

By ROBERT PETTY

Bonn, Germany, July 13 — (Reuters) — West-German guards have redoubled their watch along the zonal border in the hope of checking the stream of people filtering in from the east.

But despite this increased vigilance, the guards admit that anyone who is determined to cross the border from either side can do so. The iron curtain, they say somewhat ruefully, is far from being a tight fit.

Those who come west for work meet their worst snags after arriving in West Germany.

As they have no identity papers including the all-important "kennkarte" with its canned biography and two sets of fingerprints —they cannot openly seek work.

They are known as "black." But somehow or other many of them ultimately contrive to make themselves legally respectable. Of the rest, some stay underground and take to crime. Still others drift back to the east zone.

All this is fled up in seeming paradox: West Germany has 1,668,000 unemployed and East Germany has virtually none, yet West German unemployed cannot go east to look for work and East Germany keeps sending more unemployed refugees west.

According to allied leaders here, East Germany does so deliberately to swell the total of unemployed in the west and bring West Germany to economic collapse.

East-German government officials say there is scarcely any unemployment in their territory as "the result of our two-year plan."

Western observers consider the three main reasons to be:

1. Thousands of able-bodied young East Germans have been forced to work in the uranium mines.

2. Many East Germans are serving in the "Peoples Police." Many of them joined to prevent being recruited for the uranium mines. Others were attracted by extra food rations.

3. Millions of East Germans of all ages fled or have been expelled to West Germany in the last few years for political reasons.

Why are there idle persons in a country which will take 30 years to rebuild even if every available man is roped in? Chiefly because there is a desperate shortage of capital, which is not surprising when so many people fear that West Germany may be overrun by the Russians any minute.

Emigration in 100 Years Drains Irish Population

By JOHN E. CARLOVA

Dublin, July 13 — (Reuters) —The Repulic of Ireland's principle export is people.

Emigration during the last 100 years has drained the Irish population from 6,000,000 to the present 2,950,000.

Set in motion by the terrible famine of 1849, the great exodus overseas still continues, mainly to the United States and Britain, despite the intervention of the war, a net total of 143,000 people left Ireland during the 10 years up to 1942.

This official figure—disclosed by Liam Cosgrave, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister John Costello—has undoubtedly stepped up since the war. The gauge is the steady increase in immigrants remittances — totalling $37,800,000 a year— the republic's geatest source of overseas revenue.

Two factors are blamed for the heavy emigration— the inability of the island to properly suport even the present diminished population, and the loyalty of Irishmen overseas in helping friends and relatives to follow them.

Although half of Ireland's employable population work on the land, many of the smaller farms are unable to support even the people who live on them.

Even industry — mainly meat curing, linen making, distilling, brewing and other occupations connected with agriculture — can absorb only 15 per cent of the employable population.

The average wage for men is only $10 a week, $5 for women. This compares with a 1938 wage of $7.50 for men and $4.25 for women.

Franco's Regime Won't Act Like Penitent Schoolboy

By HAROLD MILKS

Madrid, July 13 — (AP) — When the United Nations again raises the question of Spain next autumn, don't expect to see Generalissimo Franco's government acting like a penitent schoolboy.

The U.N. declaration of 1946 calling upon member states to withdraw ambassadors from Spain and urging the Spanish people to rise against the dictatorship was a deep and deadly insult to Franco's government.

Franco will welcome action of the U.N. to cancel such actions, but none of its leaders favors a begging attitude. Instead of giving an indication he might institute economic and political reforms in return for an invitation to join the U.N. family, Franco has complained loudly: "External enemies."

Sometimes he makes it plain he considers those enemies to include British and French socialists, actively fighting against easing the U.N. stand, and labor and other groups in the United States who frequently jab at his regime.

There were times in recent months when Franco was known to be considering internal reforms urged by the United States, including amnesty for political prisoners and liberalization of the controlled economy. But each time it appeared Franco was edging toward such action, a bolt of criticism from abroad— the blast of a British government figure or the published statements of Americans — complicated the situation, each time Franco retreated o his policy of running Spain without interference or help from the outside.

All the assembly is expected to do this fall is revoke the resolution concerning the withdrawal of ambassadors. This still will leave the books the resolution adopted at the first assembly in London barring Franco Spain from any U.N. bodies.

Diplomatic observers say that a favorable action by the U.N. might lead Spain to make its government liberal. But there will be no gesture in that direction before the U.N. meeting, the observers say.

WEDDINGS

HEDGER—VESTERFELT

At St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville, before a background of white peonies and Summer flowers, a lovely wedding was recently solemnized by the Archdeacon, the Venerable Arthur Smith, of Doris Elaine Vesterfelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Vesterfelt, Belleville, and Ronald Frederick Hedger, son of Mrs. Edith Hedger, Belleville, and the late Walter James Hedger.

Mr. C. E. Templer provided the wedding music and Mrs. Earl Gray was soloist rendering "O Promise Me", before the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her bridal gown of white slipper satin featuring a nylon lace yoke with long pointed sleeves. The full skirt was caught up in the front with seed pearls revealing four tiers of lace. Her three-quarter length veil of nylon trimmed with lace fell gracefully from a crown of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses, white feathered carnations, intermingled maline, with white satin streamers.

Miss Fern Tyler, cousin of the bride was maid of honor, becomingly gowned in pale blue net over nylon, with matching mitts. Her headdress was a halo of blue flowers and lily-of-the-valley. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and cornflowers.

Miss Norma Chambers and Miss Marlene Smith, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids, gowned in pink nylon over taffeta, with matching mitts. Their headdresses consisted of halos of pink flowers and lily-of-the-valley. They carried bouquets of blue carnations and cornflowers.

Mr. Raymond Hedger, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman. The ushers were Mr. Fred Thibaudeau and Mr. Bill Vesterfelt, brother of the bride.

The reception was held at Lattimer's Town Room, where the bride's mother in navy blue sheer with white and navy accessories and a corsage of red roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a dress of powder blue sheer with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip by motor to Toronto, and points west, the bride chose a powder blue suit with white and navy accessories, and a corsage of white gardenias and stephanotis. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Trenton, Consecon, Frankford and Detroit.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored with three showers. A cup and saucer shower at the home of Miss Norma Chambers; a kitchen shower given by Miss Marlene Smith, and a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Dorothy Dickey.

BUSH—HOARD

On Saturday, July 8th., in Hoard's United Church, at 2:30 p.m., the marriage of Joan Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hoard, of Campbellford, R.R. 5, to Jack Miller Bush, of Frankford, R.R. 8, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush, was solemnized by the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne, before a lovely background of tall blue dephiniums, peonies and ferns.

Miss Lois Weaver rendered the traditional wedding music, and Mrs. Frank Potts was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white organza with fingertip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a white prayer book.

Mrs. Clayton Thompson, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing green organza. Miss Eleanor Brown and Miss Doris Hoard, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids, gowned in yellow organza with matching headdresses.

Miss Norma Hoard was flower girl, demure in her green organza frock. All carried crescent-shaped bouquets of white Shasta daisies.

Mr. Glen Bush, of Stirling was groomsman and the ushers were, Mr. Donald Hart, of Woodstock, and Mr. Robert Hulin, of Stirling.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, gowned in powder blue, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore green crepe, received the guests.

Later, the young couple left for points north, the bride wearing a navy blue ensemble with white accessories. They will reside near Stirling upon their return.

Guests from out-of-town were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Grant, Mrs. H. A. Cockburn, of Guelph; Dr. and Mrs. A. W Coun, of Toronto; Mr and Mrs. N. F. Ward, also of Toronto and Mr. Donald Hart of Woodstock.

Mr., Mrs. E. Ethier Celebrate Golden Wedding Day

Fifty years ago July 1st., Miss Elizabeth Hunt, of Birkenhead, England, and Edward Ethier, of Michigan, U.S.A. met and were married in Montreal, Que., at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, there, and in commemoration of that auspicious event, were at home on their golden wedding anniversary, 85 Pinnacle Street to friends and members of the immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethier received their guests at the door, Mrs. Ethier wearing a becoming gown of grey figured sheer with corsage of white carnations, and Mr. Ethier, like the gallant bridegroom of bygone years, a white carnation boutonnaire.

In the tastefully, floral-decorated dining room, the guests, 30 in number, sat down to a sumptuous repast. The dainty table, with its lace cloth was centred by a three-tiered wedding cake, over which was suspended a large white wedding bell from whose apex cascaded long streamers of pink and white to the four corners of the table. Tall, pink candles in gleaming silver holders, and silver services, completed the attractive arrangements. Their four daughters presided.

Following the bounteous luncheon, the presentation of a lovely diamond surrounded amethyst birthday ring to Mrs. Ethier, and an engraved signet ring to Mr. Ethier was made by the immediate family. They were also the recipients of several other fine and useful gifts from distant friends, as well as many beautiful cards bearing good wishes and congratulations from distant acquaintances.

After residing for ten years in Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Ethier moved to this city where they lived for the past 40 years. For some time after leaving Montreal, Mr. Ethier was employed at the Rolling Mills, now the property of the Houston Lumber Co., and later at the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company, from which he retired some time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethier are the parents of 13 children, eight of whom are living, and reside in the city. Four are sons: James, Albert, Gerald, and Arnold; and four are daughters: Mrs. A. (Teresa) Wardhaugh; Mrs. D. (Agnes) Hurst; Mrs. W. (Patricia) Dorian, and Mrs. Irene Moreau. Seventeen grandchildren and one great-grandchild carry on the ideals of the Ethier name.

Beside rearing their own eight children, they have also assisted in the rearing of a second family, the children of a widowed daughter, and also the motherless children of a son-in-law.

The community extends to Mr. and Mrs. Ethier its sincere congratulations for many more years to come of happiness together.

LINER FRANCONIA

The liner had swung into the harbor from Wolfe's Cove dock, headed overseas, at 9 p.m. and was making its way towards the St. Lawrence River channel on the south side of Orleans.

A short distance from the island the Franconia passed the incoming Canadian National Steamships passenger vessel, Lady Nelson.

Aboard the Franconia, some of the passengers leaned over deck rails, others were busy hanging clothing in wardrobes and still others had settled down to watch the ship's evening movie.

Around Orleans' south point, people in dozens of summer homes looking out on the river and hotel residents chatting on terraces watched the progress of the ship around a harbor bend.

Mrs. Bernard Fortier, relaxing on the rocks at Pointe Au Taureau, leaped up and fled.

Plows Toward Rocks

Some islanders rushed to their automobiles and moved them away from parking areas near the water as the ship plowed forward toward the rocks.

Joseph Gregoir, manager of the Bellevue Hotel, said the Franconia seemed to attempt a last-minute turn to starboard toward the broad channel.

Jean-Paul Verschelden, one of a group of Montrealers making a Holy Year Pilgrimage to Rome, said he nudged a companion on the Franconia's deck and remarked:

"Watch us hit those rocks."

Moments later, the Franconia trembled under the first impact and then struck the rocky point with a roar.

C. A. Owens on his way home to St. Helens, England, after a holiday in Calgary, said he saw the ship's movie screen become fuzzy and then heard the noise of grounding. He added:

All Go To Boat Stations

"The loud-speakers announced that we had run aground, that there was no cause for alarm and that everyone should go to their boat stations.

"This was done. There was no panic and everything was orderly."

Three harbor tugs raced to the island and the debarkation of passengers was under way within a half-hour.

Passengers left everything behind but the clothes they wore. The ferry service to Ste. Petronille wharf, within sight of the stricken ship, functioned speedily and soon the wharf and the adjoining Belair Hotel overflowed with the rescued.

Flt. Lt. D. R. Baxter, returning home to England with his wife and two children after a two-year tour of duty with the RCAF, said the grounding was the most surprising marine accident he had ever heard of before.

"Here we are safely ashore, the kiddies are in bed in a rooming house, and there's a hotel cocktail bar right in front of us.'

Arrange for Buses

Officials of the shipping line arranged for buses to transport passengers from the island 12 miles to Quebec City where 300 hotel and tourist - home rooms were booked for them.

The first group of buses from the island reached Quebec at 4 a.m., led by a police car.

No official explanation for the accident was available immediately.

The liner probably was under control of river pilots at the time and one unofficial theory was that a steering system failure occurred.

At the time of the grounding, dark had not fallen, the weather was clear and visibility was good.

The passenger list included holiday and business travellers, a group of pilgrims to Rome and a group of Canadian school boys whose trip abroad was financed by Garfield Weston, British business man born in Canada.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Montreal, July 13 — (CP) — Three seamen Wednesday pleaded guilty to beating up a McGill University student who had taken a summer job as a deckhand on an oil tanker. Sentence was deferred until Friday.

Francis Vautrin, 21, and David Crain, 20, both of Kingston, and William Parker, 25, Ottawa, admitted assaulting the student Harold Slobob, 20, Montreal, aboard the Norwegian tanker Bergechief while it was in the Persian Gulf June 10.

RUSSIA MAY BE

Both Prime Minister St. Laurent and External Affairs Minister Pearson stressed that the destroyers would be available only for U.N. police action against anti-communist aggression in Korea. Mr. Pearson told a press conference they could not, for instance, be used to support American forces blocking Chinese Communists from an invasion of Formosa, last stronghold of the Chinese nationalists.

No Other Aid Contemplated

Mr. Pearson said no other form of Canadian aid to Korea is contemplated at this time. Parliament would be recalled if steps were needed to send any other military force beyond a bit more naval aid. Canada will have to supply and maintain her destroyers in the Korean area and for this may have to send reserves into the area.

The question of further aid to South Korea is seen here as a two-stage affair. The next two or three weeks may decide whether the United States forces are going to be able to work some sort of stability in the battle front. If they do, then will come a build-up stage to throw the communists back where they belong. This could go on for months. It might take six months even to launch the offensive.

The Canadian government is examining its resources to see what it can do if and when the long-term build-up phase develops.

Attempting to Drain

Underlining that examination is the fear that Russia is attempting to drain western strength on satellites like North Korea so she can better deliver her own knockout blow.

That is believed to be one reason the navy has not moved its Atlantic fleet into the Pacific and why there is no sign yet that Canada is even thinking of sending ground forces. It also underlies the quiet bolstering of the anti-aircraft defences around the Sault Locks.

Canada has been kept informed of the Russian - British talks about Korea and her officials are sharing in a general attempt to assess what they mean.

Russia's Andrei Gromyko, it is understood, adopted a friendly attitude towards Britain's Ambassador, Sir David Kelly, an attitude that has western capitals puzzled.

RUSSIA DEPLOYS

However, it is the Russian submarine force that is drawing most U.S. attention.

As deployed, the Red sub fleet in the Far East seems to have as its main job the potential duty of cutting the Asiatic-Indonesian lifeline along which the United States would send help in event of general war in the Orient.

Using Many Bases

Bases used by the red sub fleet are believed to include the excellent ports of Darien, in Manchuria, on the Yellow Sea; harbors on Sakhalin Island, directly north of Japan; the big base of Vladivostok; Okhotsk, a port in the northwest corner of the sea of same name; and naval installations along the Kamchatka Peninsula and to the north along the Siberian mainland.

The last two areas face, at easy cruising range, the United States' Aleutian Islands, the outermost of which Japan seized easily at the beginning of the Second World War.

Russia's Far Eastern submarine fleet is part of a total force estimated to run as high as 350 submersibles of types ranging from old wartime models to the latest Snorkels.

(A Snorkel is capable of running underwater with its diesel engines swiftly and for long periods by use of an extended "breathing" tube to the surface.)

The United States has indicated that it is thinking seriously about the submarine menace in the Western Pacific. Within the last few days the carrier Bataan left for that area. The Bataan had been converted from a combat carrier to a specialized type for launching submarine-hunting planes.

Canadian Govt. Hopes U.S. Senate Will Ratify Treaty

Ottawa, July 13 — (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Wednesday the Canadian government will be "most disappointed" if the United States Senate at its present session fails to ratify the Canada - U.S. Treaty for the production of more hydro power from Niagara Falls.

Mr. Pearson told a press conference the government had advised the U. S. administration it "would be most disappointed and would find it hard to understand if favorable action on the treaty" were not taken by Congress.

"We have been pressing them as hard as we can," he said. He added the matter had been taken up with U. S. authorities two or three times in the last few weeks.

The treaty had been signed by both administrations and ratified by the Canadian Parliament at its session this year. It requires ratification from Congress to become operative.

Runs for 50 Years

The treaty, which would run for 50 years, will permit permanent regulation of the diversion of Niagara waters for electric power and allow a substantial increase in power production from the falls. Development on the Canadian side would be left to the provincial government of Ontario.

Signed at Washington last February, the pact would replace one signed 41 years ago and a subsequent wartime arrangement for increase in power output in Ontario and New York state.

Specific provisions include:

1. Increase in the amount of water available for power by fixing a minimum flow required for a scenic falls. Amounts in addition to the minimum — which fluctuates between 50,000 and 100,000 cubic feet a second — would be divided equally between Ontario and New York State.

2. Basis for construction of larger power plants at Queenston, Ont. These now have a combined capacity of about 1,100,000 horsepower. This would be increased by 500,000.

3. Arrangements for preserving the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and rapids. This work includes plans for filling in the bare spots in the crestline of the horseshoe falls on the Canadian side.

2ND THURLOW

Neighbors Aid Holds Annual Picnic at Tweed

Soon after 12 o'clock members, husbands and families began to gather and soon a sumptuous pot-luck dinner was spread on the long tables, which everyone thoroughly enjoyed.

After dinner, a social time was enjoyed by all during which several races and contests were held. The results of which are as follows: Children under 10, Betty Anne Portt; children 6-8, Mabel Craig, Mildred Gray; girls 9-11, Elizabeth Craig, Barbara Howard, Margaret Thompson; boys 9-11, Eugene Craig; girls 12-15, Doris Thompson; boys 12-15, Jack Craig, David Craig; girls 16 and over, Lola Dent; boys 16 and over, Manley Mitchell; 3 legged race (boys and girls), Kay Dent and Manley Mitchell; shoe kicking, Mrs. J. Craig; biscuit eating contest, John Craig; oldest lady, Mrs. F. Doxtator; oldest man, Archie Greatrix; youngest present, Donna Lazariuk. Peanut scramble made much fun and excitement for the children.

Thanks is extended to the young married couples who planned the entertainment for the afternoon, which greatly added to the success of the picnic.

It's So Easy ...Make Raspberry Jam the Short-Boil Way

1 THIS RECIPE GIVES YOU 50% MORE JAM FROM SAME AMOUNT OF FRUIT

First crush 2 quarts of fully ripe berries (Yes! RIPE fruit — not the under-ripe fruit called for in old-fashioned recipes). Measure 4 cups of prepared fruit and 6½ cups of sugar into large saucepan. Mix well. Bring to full, rolling boil over high heat. Stir constantly before and while boiling.

2 BOIL HARD ONE MINUTE ONLY SAVE TWO-THIRDS OF YOUR TIME

Yes! Boil one minute only by the clock . . . too short a time to dull the natural color or spoil the fresh-fruit taste. Remove from heat. Stir in half-bottle of CERTO Fruit Pectin. Stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle into glasses and paraffin quickly.

3 10 GLASSES OF SPARKLING JAM WITH FRESH-FRUIT TASTE, COLOR

In the short one-minute boil practically no juice wastes away in steam. So you get about 10 glasses instead of the 6 you'd expect from old-fashioned, long boiling. CERTO helps all fruits to jell perfectly . . . gives an average yield of 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit.

4 CERTO RECIPES GIVE SURE RESULTS IF SIMPLE DIRECTIONS FOLLOWED

With CERTO you get 78 kitchen-tested recipes — a separate one for each fruit because different fruits need different handling. If you follow the simple directions EXACTLY you'll have success whatever fruit you use. So why not make several kinds of jam and jelly for those long winter months? Get CERTO at your grocer's.

CERTO is fruit pectin — the natural jellying substance in fruit — extracted and concentrated for easier, quicker, better jam and jelly making.

Heart Attack To Orangeman In 'Walk' Fatal

Picton — Suffering a heart attack following the Orange parade in Trenton yesterday, William Vosburgh dropped dead in the park there. He had taken part in the four-mile walk. Spectators noticed that he appeared to be overcome while he was seated. When he stood up, he toppled to the ground and life was extinct before help could be given. Mr. Vosburgh was 84 years of age and was a member of Bloomfield L.O.L. In earlier life he was a farmer. He made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Fred Cole, R. 2 Bloomfield. Other daughters surviving are Mrs. Angus Shepard of West Lake, Mrs. Wilbert Dredge of Syracuse, N.Y., and Mrs. Frank Tyrell, Toronto.

30-Lb. Sturgeon Taken in Net In Lake Ontario

Picton—A thirty-pound sturgeon was taken from Lake Ontario yesterday by Lobb Bros. of Point Traverse. Lifting their nets in the lake off that point, they found the big fish caught. Sturgeon bring a dollar a pound on the New York market. It was brought to Picton and prepared for shipment at the Jarvis Fish Market. It is the first sturgeon reported this year.

Catches Two Babies Thrown From Fire, One in Each Hand

Filey, Yorkshire, England, July 13 — (Reuters) — A rescuer successfully caught two babies, one in each hand, as the children were thrown from a window in a blazing house Wednesday. The man, standing on a wall, tucked the first child under one arm. Then he caught the second in one hand and with one child under each arm calmly jumped off the wall.

New Street Signs To be Erected In Village

Stirling—Street signs are to be erected in the village according to a decision reached by council at its regular meeting on Monday night. The contract was awarded to Stirling Lumber Co., which agreed to purchase the signs and erect them for the sum of $375.

Reeve H. J. Wells presided, and all members of the council were in attendance. A communication was tabled from the Ontario Municipal Board re councils' request for permission to issue debentures for a new public school, advising that the matter was being discussed with the Ontario Department of Education.

J. V. Holt advised council that he had purchased several lots on Elizabeth and Henry streets on which he planned building a home and requested some assistance in cutting down a grade on Elizabeth Street. Council agreed to give him two hours time with a bulldozer to cut down the grade providing the operation didn't interfere with the water mains.

Drainage Ditch

Mr. Holt also addressed council relative to the drainage ditch crossing Front Street West and it was decided to write Harvey Small District Engineers relative to have a survey made. Monday, August 7th will be observed as civic holiday in Stirling and Reeve Wells was authorized to issue a proclamation for the same.

On motion of councillors Montgomery and Bradshaw, the reeve and councillor Elliott were authorized to purchase fifty chairs for the community hall at once.

On motion of councillors Bailey and Elliott, the clerk was authorized to write letters of thanks to Hon. G. Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways and E. Sandercock M.P.P. for their co-operation re the connecting link between highway No. 33 and the new highway from Hoard's to Stirling.

On motion of councillors Elliott and Montgomery the United Church was granted the use of the theatre on October 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th for a fee of $30.00.

Several accounts were paid.

THESSALON CITIZENS HUNT "BEAR MAN"

Reports of a bush man who cut steaks off living cattle, walks on all fours and peers into farm windows has aroused citizens of Thessalon, Ont. Organized research parties have failed to find the man, believed to have become crazed through hunger and flies in the dense bush country. Here Ruth King points to a roothouse which had evidence of occupancy recently. — Central Press Canadian.

Whitehall Notebook:

Article and Paper Heading Draw Churchill's Wrath

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 13 — (CP) —A newspaper headline — "Tories Bay For War" — drew Winston Churchill's wrath during a parliamentary debate on Korea.

Churchill said the headline appeared over an article written by Tom Driberg, Labor member of parliament for Maldon, Essex. The article appeared in Reynolds News, a Sunday newspaper, and read in part:

"There is quite a substantial number of back-bench tories who, true to their jungle philosophy, cannot help baying their delight at the smell of blood in the air."

Driberg, 43-year-old member of the Labor party national executive and a veteran Fleet Street journalist, referred to a scene which ocurred in the house of Commons following Prime Minister Atlee's announcement that the United States had decided to intervene in Korea.

Churchill spoke in the Korean debate which followed a week after Attlee's announcement. The conservative leader said the reason which led to the conservative cheers was not lust for blood but support for the premier's declaration—a support which contrasted with a "curious" silence from some parts of the labor bench.

Stands By Text

Churchill said he understood the Driberg was not responsible for the headline, "Tories Bay For War," but only the text. At this point the conservative leader gave way to Driberg who made a short personal statement.

"May I say here and now," the labor members said, "That I consider that (text) a perfectly correct description of a scene in the house last week, and I only wish the Right Honorable gentleman could have seen it before the editor toned it down and modified it."

This caused an uproar on the conservative benches. Cries of "Shame, shame," were heard from the massed ranks behind Churchill, with one voice shouting "Judas!"

Pieces of Silver

C. Osborne, conservative member for Louth, Lincolnshire, shouted across the floor to Driberg: "Did you get 30 pieces of silver for it"

Only newspaper to comment editorially on the incident was the liberal Chronicle, which said Driberg's reference was "shallow-pated nonsense and years out of date."

"The traditional jungoism has gone out of the tory party," the News Chronicle said. " . . .They are as reluctant to go to war as the rest of us."

Vacationists To Canada Shaken Up in Wreck

Paynesville, Minn., July 13 — (AP) — A Soo Line special train carrying 225 eastern vacationists to Canada sideswiped a freight train here today, injuring approximately 40 persons.

Preliminary examinations endicated only five or six were injured severely. All were treated aboard the train or in doctors' offices here. Arrangements were made to take the passengers to Minneapolis later in the day.

The 15-pullman train had left Minneapolis at 1:30 a.m. It carried Ohio and Atlantic Seaboard hardware men and their wives, who were bound for Banff., Alta., en route to the National Retail Hardware Association's convention in Seattle.

C. S. Pope, Soo Line vice-president, said an eastbound freight train was backing into a siding near Paynesville to clear the single track line when the vacation special arrived about 3 a.m. About four feet of the freight locomotive had failed to clear the main line.

A flagman signalled the passenger train and engineer John Jaros of Minneapolis set the brakes but could not stop in time. His train slid about a quarter of a mile and ripped along the side of the freight.

The passenger was travelling about 45 miles an hour at the time of impact.

Both locomotives were derailed. An empty coach immediately behind the passenger locomotive was telescoped. Three cars of livestock and one of butter were demolished. At least 50 head of cattle, hogs and sheep were destroyed. An equal number were freed from the damaged cars and wandered away.

Dr. Clifford Myre and Dr. Ralph Lindeman said most of the injured had suffered cuts and bruises. None was sent to hospital.

BODY REMOVED FROM TILE

Canada's Armed Forces Out To Reduce Heavy Percentage Of Married Men in Uniform

Ottawa, July 13. (CP)—It's a touchy subject they're not anxious to talk about but the regular armed forces are trying to reduce the heavy percentage of married men in their ranks.

The army, for instance, has only 15 per cent single men among its officers and 40 per cent among its other ranks. It is believed that the other forces are roughly comparable.

Officials say the emphasis on single men in recruiting is not a new policy but administrative action aimed at "bringing about a better balance" between single and married men. Married men are not barred but the single man is getting preference in new enlistments.

Cost Country Less

Some of the reasons for preferring single men as permanent force servicemen are obvious. One is that they cost the country less. They don't need allowances for their families. Another is that the single man is a more flexible person. He has no family complications.

A third is that, on balance, the single man is more likely to be a hell-for-leather fighter. A fourth is that he can be sent to remote places without fretting about the folks back home.

The dangers of war aside, the services offer a security that is attractive to the married man. There is an allowance for the family, a pension after 20 years and other advantages.

The preference for single men does not, however, extend to the reserve forces. The recruiting offices are taking everyone they can get for the reserves.

Officials said Korea has boosted slightly the number of applications for enlistment, but that the rate of intake hasn't increased. That is because the high qualifications are too big a barrier for many would-be servicemen.

NEWSPAPERMEN KILLED IN KOREA

Ray Richards, International News Service correspondent, has been killed in the Korea fighting, according to U.S. army headquarters. A second correspondent, Cpl. Ernie Peeler of the U.S. army newspaper "Stars and Stripes," was lost in the same engagement as Richards. Their bodies have not been recovered. —Central Press Canadian.

CHARGE DISMISSED

Chicago, July 13 (AP)—Charges of leaving the scene of an accident were dismissed yesterday against William C. Liddell, (Negro) conductor of a street-car which collided with a gasoline truck on the south side last May. The collision toko 34 lives.

Toronto Subway In Operation At Christmas '53

Toronto, Ont., July 13 — Toronto's subway should be in operation about Christmas Day, 1953, W. H. Paterson, M.A.S.C.E., M.E.I.C., chief engineer, Toronto Transportation Commission, told the members of the Engineering Institute of Canada in a paper prepared for delivery at their annual meeting here today.

For the rapid transit subway from the Union Station to Eglington Avenue on Yonge Street, it is expected that work will start on the final northernmost section in 1951. The cost of the subway, originally estimated at about $30,000,000 exclusive of rolling stock, will be increased because of rising costs in labor and in material.

One of the most interesting features of the subway will be the unusual transfer facilities provided at stations north of College Street. These stations, which are on private right-of-way, are designed as attractive above-ground buildings with special attention given to facilities for transferring passengers.

500-Foot-Long Platforms

Station platforms will be 500 feet long to provide for ultimate operation of trains of ten 48-foot cars. Platforms at the stations except terminals will be located at the side of the station and will be 11' 10" wide. Stations will be located at all main intersections and there will be twelve stations on the Yonge Street subway.

Plans for all the mezzanine stations include escalators as well as stairs for the convenience of passenger movement. Escalators will aso be provided for passengers transferring between the Yonge Street subway and the Queen Street subway which intersect at the Queen Street station. The Queen Street subway will pass underneath the Yonge Street subway at this point and will be used by surface cars which will also travel on surface lines beyond the limits of the subway.

In planning the subway system, the first of its kind in Canada, Mr. Paterson said the engineers had an unusual opporunity. "The entire system," he said, "rolling stock, track, signals and auxiliary equipment—being new, the structure was not required to conform with any existing structures or operations. Our investigations resulted in the acceptance of some practices now to subway construction, and also in substantial savings."

20 KILLED IN WRECK

Berlin, July 13 (Reuters) — A workers' train crashed into a freight train near Wildenfels, Saxony, last night, killing at least 20 persons, the east German News Agency reported today.

A signalman was arrested.

More than 50 persons were reported severely injured. The train was carrying home late-shift workers.

Cabinet Shuffles Not Contemplated Says St. Laurent

Ottawa, July 13 (CP) — Reports of post-parliament cabinet shuffles faded today as Prime Minister St. Laurent prepared to head for Quebec and a summer vacation that is expected to last beyond the end of July.

Sources close to Mr. St. Laurent said he has no intention of making any changes in his cabinet now or in the near future.

There have been reports here that he planned a shuffle once parliament rose and that Finance Minister Abbott, in particular, was anxious to shift jobs. The Korean crisis has also sparked reports of changes. One report has been that Fisheries Minister Mayhew, British Columbia's representative, will be replaced.

Mr. St. Laurent, just back from a four day Western trip, presided at a cabinet meeting yesterday. He is scheduled to take a train to Quebec late in the day. He will head for his new summer home near Riviere du Loup to join his wife.

While he is gone, Trade Minister Howe is expected to be acting Prime Minister. A number of members of the cabinet are out of town, including Agriculture Minister Gardiner, Defence Minister Claxton, Resources Minister Winters and Immigration Minister Harris.

Mr. Claxton is due back Monday from Newfoundland.

Cabinet Ministers will be able to keep in touch with Mr. St. Laurent by phone but that avenue will be used rarely.

Mr. St. Laurent likes his holidays, his golfing and swimming, to be as much as possible like the quiet, unruffled family affairs he knew before politics interrupted them.

Church Council To Issue Statement On Korean War

Toronto, July 13 (CP) —The World Council of Churches, largest international body of Protestant and Orthodox Christians issue a statement today on the political aspects of the Korean war.

The question already has been discussed behind closed doors by the council's Central Committee now meeting here. The discussion came after the council's commission of the churches on the international affairs requested a statement on the situation.

Some 44 countries are represented in the membership of the council. There are no delegates from communist led countries attending the meeting although one Czech and two Hungarian churchmen are members of the committee which meets annually to conduct the affairs of the council.

Wednesday, a German Evangelical bishop who has led church resistance to communist pressure on church schools likened the political situation in Germany to that in Korea before the fighting.

Bishop K. F. Otto Dibelius, 69-year-old head of the largest Protestant denomination in Germany told the council: "It is impossible to divide a nation by an unnatural frontier, an iron curtain."

Making Progress

Bishop Dibelius declared the duty of the United Nations is "to find the solution so that the Korean people can come together."

He said, too, that the church was making progress in communist-dominated East Germany despite the fact that children "are subjected to materialism 25 hours a week and to Christianity for two."

Dr. W. A. Visser 'T Hooft, general secretary of the council, said that because of some existing uncertainty as to what the council actually is, it was important to find agreement on basic issues of common belief.

Delegates were presented with a brief on the subject prepared by a special committee. Full discussion of the brief was deferred. It said that the council was not designed to negotiate unions between churches and membership in the council did not imply acceptance of any specific doctrine on church unity.

The brief suggested that churches could agree that co-operation between churches must be based on the recognition that Christ is the divine head of the church and that membership in the Church of Christ is more inclusive than membership in a single denomination.

It added that membership in the council implied a willingness for each church to help other churches in times of need and to refrain from actions incompatible with brotherly relationships.

ANGLER LANDS BOTH

Timmins, July 13 — (CP) — One cast with his fly rod yielded R. B. Tucker, a 2 3/4-pound trout and a large river bat. Tucker was using two flies when he made the cast in the Gunnison River — the trout grabbed one and the bat took the other. Tucker landed them both.

Congress Asks to Threaten Korean Reds With A-Bomb; Shows Seriousness of Crisis

Washington, July 13 (AP) — Congressional demands for threatening the Korean communists with the atomic bomb served today as an index to the growing seriousness with which United States lawmakers are treating the world situation.

Members of the House of Representatives applauded yesterday when Representative E. Lloyd (Dem. Tex.) said President Truman should give the communists one week to get out of Southern Korea. If they refuse, he said, the President should then supply their commander with a "named list of principal North Korean cities which would be subjected to atomic attacks by our air forces."

Tracy S. Voorhees, former under-secretary of the army, told a House committee that an atomic atack on the United States itself now is "more than a possibility." He said that if an attack does come, it will doubtless be a big one aimed at industrial centres.

Sentiment is developing within the government to speed up the flow of arms to Western Europe as a result of the Korean crisis.

Double Rate of Delivery

Some officials are talking of perhaps doubling the present rate of delivery of $1,000,000,000 worth of guns, tanks and other equipment now being given to Atlantic-pact Allies by the United States.

The tense world situation also is generating new pressures inside the government for some degree of home-front mobilization to increase armament production.

Pressure for marshalling more of American resources for war is said to arise from the mounting evidence that the United States is in for a long and costly struggle in Korea.

So far there is a conflict of requirements between the urgent buildup of forces fighting in Korea and the European arms-aid program as now scheduled.

Without a swift and substantial increase of arms manfacturing here, some-authorities say weapons which were destined for Europe may have to be "borrowed" for the Far East. They deplore this necessity because in both military and diplomatic strategy, Europe, rather than Asia, is rated as the primary focus of American security interests.

Upsets Order Of Day in Intercounty

(By The Canadian Press)

The underdogs had their innings in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League Wednesday.

Upsets were the order of the day. The league-leaders, Waterloo Tigers, dropped a 2-1 decision to Kitchener Legionnaires the second-place Stratford Nationals and Brantford Red Sox each dropped games to lowly teams, and Galt Terriers turned the tables on London Majors 11-8.

But it took a ninth inning pinch-hit double by Jeff Shelton to give Guelph Maple Leafs their 1-0 win over Brantford in the best-played game of the night. Shelton's timely hit broke up a tight pitching duel between Guelph's Marty Philp and Ray Kirkgasser of the Sox.

Philp allowed five hits and Kirkgasser four. Neither team committed an error.

Bobby Schnurr of Kitchener bested Waterloo's Al Dumouchelle in another mound battle 2-1. The Legionnaires jumped into a one run lead in the fifth, and added another in the last of the eighth. The powerful Tigers came back with a single tally in the ninth and put the tying run on third before the side was retired.

Dumouchelle gave only four hits to Schnurr's eight, but the Kitchener player-manager spaced the Tigers' hits more effectively. The winners got two hits in each of their scoring innings.

The Galt-London foray was marked by 24 hits and 19 runs. The Terriers went into an early lead and were never behind, but Majors came back in the eighth to score four runs and pull to within two of the Terriers.

Fall in Ninth

Galt plated another run in the top of the ninth and that's the way it stood, although Majors put three men on base in their half of the ninth without scoring.

St. Thomas Legion walloped the high-flying Stratford Nationals 10-4 in Stratford.

Dick Long and Roy Challifoux faced each other on the mound to start the game, but neither was around at the finish. St. Thomas collected 13 hits off Challifoux, Lefty Allen, and Tony Busco. Long was the winner, although touched for a double and homer by Billy Flick.

Welland defeated St. Catharines Stags 8-5 in a hotly contested game saved by Welland coach Johnny Maldovan who came in to snuff out a late St. Catharines rally.

Junior pitcher Jack Sampson threy a brilliant four-hit shutout at Cheektowaga Alcoves in Niagara Falls' 5-0 win at home. His mates played errorless ball behind him and chalked up two fast double plays in late innings to preserve the shutout.

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby should not be cross. If he is, then something in his little system is "out of order." Probably Baby's Own Tablets can promptly "put it right." Mrs. H——, of Fenelon Falls, had the experience. She writes: "My little girl was irritable, feverish and sometimes sick at her stomach—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see how much better she was."

Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Promptly effective in simple fevers, constipation, teething troubles, upset stomach and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 29 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Around the Home…

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK!

Half the joy of having a garden is having a comfortable chair in a shady nook where you can lounge and enjoy the changing beauty of your surroundings. What's the use of having a garden if you can't take time to sit down and enjoy it? These are the days when the home owner should be able to recline comfortably on a lawn seat in the dense shade of a towering maple … not one task to be done … not a care in the world … sounds like Utopia!

Garden Seats

My own siestas take place in a secluded corner of the garden, well hidden from the surrounding neighbourhood. One of my prize possessions is a garden bench I made last year. True, it isn't the most comfortable piece of furniture in the world, but it is sturdy and wasn't too hard to make—as you can see from the sketch. My pride and joy is the wide bench I built around the trunk of the maple that stands to one side of the patio. It took a bit of fitting to give an attractive natural finish but it has attracted more favourable comment than any other piece of garden furniture I have made.

Garden Pools

If you are like me, you'll have a bird bath and a small pool in clear view to help you relax. Nothing is quite as restful and cooling as the sound of running water and the reflection of blue sky in a still pool. The size of the pool doesn't matter—you'll get the same effect from a small binder wheel set in concrete (mentioned last month), a washtub sunk in the ground or an extensive cement job. When properly planned and planted so that it fits naturally into its surroundings, the size or expense of the pool is immaterial.

Bird Baths

I could watch my bird bath for hours if work would permit. On a warm afternoon there is a steady procession of bluebirds, chipping sparrows, wrens, song sparrows and robins. The birds do not care how expensive the bath was. As long as the water is fresh, clean and not too deep, they will use it regularly. Between the two extremes illustrated are a host of styles and designs.

Chips Down As First Place Phillies Open Three-Game Series With Runners-Up Cards

(By The Associated Press)

The chips will be down tonight when the first - place Philadelphia Phillies open a three-game series against the runner - up Cardinals at St. Louis. The Phils hold a one-game edge over the Cards in the tight National League pennant race.

This is the big game of the day as the majors return to family feuding after the All-star clash, although another important series opens tonight at Yankee Stadium.

Cleveland Indians, 1½ games back of the second - place New York Yankees in the American circuit, have a three-game set at the Stadium. The injury - riddled Yanks are three games back of the league-leading Detroit Tigers, who meet the Senators at Washington in another night tussle.

But the Phillies – Cardinals affair dominates the scene, and upon the outcome rests temporary leadership in the National loop. The Phillies are expected to shoot Curt Simmons (10-5) against Howie Pollet (9-5) in a battle of southpaws.

Both the Phils and Cards have to take into consideration the fast - stepping Boston Braves, coming along in third place only two games out of the lead.

Brooklyn Dodgers, in fourth place 4½ games back of Philadelphia, meet the ever-troublesome Cubs in Chicago.

List Important Factor

For Brooklyn, it brings up a major mid-season question. Can the bums bounce back after sticking up near the top for most of the the first half of the season?

New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates, neither going any place in particular, have an afternoon game at Pittsburgh.

In the American League, the hospital list has become an important factor in the chances of some of the top contenders.

The loss of Ted Williams, who may be out for the season because of a left elbow fractured in Tuesday's All-star game, is a stiff blow to Boston Red Sox. They meet Chicago in Boston tonight.

Like Brooklyn in the National, the Sox were picked to win the American League pennant by most observers. And, like the Dodgers, Boston is asked to make a mid-season comeback. The Red Sox are in fourth place, eight games back of Detroit, and without Williams' potent bat it will be a tough road ahead.

The Yankees also are consulting the physicians, with Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra and Hank Bauer doubtful starters against Cleveland.

St. Louis Browns meet the A's at Philadelphia in another night engagement.

One of Founders Of Lacrosse In Canada Dies

New Westminster, B.C., July 13 — (CP) — Dan McKenzie, one of the founders of lacrosse in Canada, died at his home here last night. He was a former president of the Canadian Lacrosse Association.

McKenzie, 65, was born in Pictou, N.S., and moved to Vancouver in 1905.

He brought lacrosse indoors after the outdoor version failed to attract the public.

He helped to organize five dominion championship teams and went to the Olympics twice. He managed New Westminster Salmonbellies at Amsterdam in 1928 and headed an all-Canadian team at Los Angeles in 1932.

In his late years, he was forbidden by his doctor from attending hockey and lacrosse games. But he used to be spotted at games, peeking from behind a post.

"I can't stay away," he said on one occasion. "I'll tell the doctor tomorrow I worked a little too hard in the garden."

He had had heart trouble for the last six years and he died of a heart attack.

Carl Erskine Working Way Back to Majors

(By The Associated Press)

Carl Erskine, who began the baseball season with Brooklyn Dodgers but later was shipped to the Montreal farm club in the International League, might prove useful to the parent team in his present form.

Burt Shotton's Brooklyn pitching staff has not been going too well lately and Erskine showed last night that he doesn't mean to stay in the minors. He pitched Montreal's fourth-place Royals to an 8-0 victory over the league-leading Rochester Red Wings at Montreal.

Had it been one of those seven-inning affairs, the 165-pound hurler would have had a no-hitter. But it happened to be a full nine-inning contest and Carl gave up three hits in the last two innings. He struck out six and gave as many walks.

It was the Royals' second straight triumph over the Wings and cut Rochester's lead over second-place Baltimore to 1½ games.

Baltimore, at home to Springfield Cubs, had only to hold the visitors scoreless for a half-inning to score a 7-5 victory in completing a game halted the previous night by the curfew law. But the Orioles then bowed in a regulation contest, 7-3. Bob Thurman's three-run homer was the big blow for Springfield. Ransom Jackson also powered a round-tripper for the victors.

Jersey City's third - place Giants and Syracuse Chiefs split a twi-night doubleheader at Jersey City. Syracuse swamped the Jerseyites in the opener 12-3, only to lose the second game 3-1. Stan Jok, the Giants' third baseman, slugged his eighth and ninth homers to decide the night skirmish.

The tail-end Buffalo Bisons and seventh-place Toronto Maple Leafs wound up all even in an abbreviated twin bill at Toronto. They first played a three-inning continuation of a curfew-halted game of June 4 which had lasted four innings. Play was resumed with Toronto leading 14-6. Buffalo got one run to make the final score 14-7.

In the regular game, Buffalo eked out a 5-4 victory. Bob Wellman's two-run homer in the fifth inning was the big blow for Toronto.

MIMICO PULLS UPSET

Mimico, July 13 (CP)—Mimico Mountaineers pulled one of the upsets of the Ontario lacrosse season Wednesday night when they downed the powerful St. Catharines Athletics 14-9 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

St. Kitts took the lead in the first half, but Mounties threw up a terrific defence in front of spectacular goalkeeping by Ray Mortimore to outscore the Garden City crew in the second half.

Bill Horwood paced the hometowners, scoring four goals. Denny Peterson, Jim McKay and Kenny Dixon each scored twice. For Athletics Ken Croft scored three and Jim McMahon two.

Jake Lamotta Is Easy Winner Over Mitri

By MURRAY ROSE

New York, July 13 — (AP) — Another Jake LaMotta - Ray Robinson fight was in the making today following the middleweight champion's easy conquest of Italy's Tiberio Mitri.

LaMotta was due to step into the offices of the International Boxing Club some time today to pick up a fat cheque of around $33,700 and to discuss plans for a sixth scrap with the welterweight king.

The Bronx bull paved the way for that encounter by belting out a 15-round unanimous decision over Mitri in Madison Square Garden last night.

It was like old times in the palace of sock as a surprisingly large turnout of 16,369 paid $99,841 and rocked the roof with cheers. It was the biggest Garden fight gate in a couple of years. There was no radio or television broadcast and that may have had a lot to do with the big box office count.

Abe Green, Commissioner of the National Boxing Association, said LaMotta agreed in writing months ago to defend his crown against Robinson within 90 days.

"Of course Robinson has his own title fight with Charlie Fusari in Jersey City Aug. 9 but if he gets by that, LaMotta and Robinson should be able to get together by September," said Greene.

The N. B. A. has threatened to strip Jake of his title unless he meets Robinson, recently crowned 160-pound champ of Pennsylvania.

"I should have got the decision in two others," said LaMotta.

Even Counted the House

There was no doubt about last night's decision. You could almost see LaMotta, a shrewd businessman, counting the house as he started after Mitri. He hasn't been that good here in years. Making 159 pounds (Mitri weighed the same) didn't bother the champ.

He won just about as he pleased over the previously - unbeaten invader. He made the handsome, 24-year-old Italian fight the LaMotta way and the end result was a pair of unhandsome shiners for Mitri and hardly a scratch for the bull.

"They trained Mitri to look out for a right to the side followed by a left hook to the chin," said the 29-year-old champ. "And so I crossed them up with those left jabs."

"That's not so," said Mitri. "LaMotta's tactics didn't surprise me. I hurt my left hand in the first round and couldn't do what I wanted. If that hand was okay I would have kept him at long range."

LaMotta pumped his left in Mitri's face through most of the fight and then generally finished off with looping lefts and rights to the body.

"That body bombardment wore him out," said Jake. "He's a good smart fighter — better than (Robert) Villemain. Only I wore him down."

International Loop Will Have Six Teams in

Detroit, July 13 (AP) — The International Hockey League adopted a six-team operation for the 1950-51 season at the midsummer meeting of the league's board of directors yesterday.

The members for the coming season are Detroit Auto Club, Windsor Hettche, Chatham and Sarnia, Ont., and Toledo and Grand Rapids.

Toledo is returning to the International circuit after a year in the Eastern League. Grand Rapids is a newcomer. The others are holdovers.

The announcement did not make clear whether Grand Rapids would keep a team in the Eastern League.

Windsor Ryancrete representatives announced they would not have a team during the coming season. The directors rejected applications from Troy and Marion, O., for franchises, citing the heavy travel that would be necessary.

Schedule plans were announced with 29 home dates allotted each to Toledo and Grand Rapids. The other clubs each will play 25 home games.

Play is scheduled to start Oct. 13 and 14 and continue through March 10.

THREE DOUBLE PLAYS

Napanee, July 13 (CP) — Two big innings gave Napanee an 8-3 Central Baseball League victory Wednesday night moving them to within a half game from second place. Ed Hooper held the visitors well in check over the route.

Three fast double plays by the Napanee infield scotched Brockville rallies in early innings.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 13 (AP) — You hear that Ted Williams broke a bone in his elbow during Tuesday's All-Star game and probably will be out the rest of the season. . .and immediately you recall what happened to Dizzy Dean in 1937. . . Dizzy, always a centre of controversies, had been charged with trying to "duck" that game. . .but he went in and pitched and a line drive broke his toe. . .trying to ease up on that injured member, Dean hurt his pitching arm and it never regained its old whip-like strength. . . He won only one game for the Cards for that year and only a few after he was sold to Chicago Cubs for $185,000 the next year. . . Maybe Ted can get back into action in a few weeks and maybe the injury won't interfere with his batting —but just think what might happen to baseball's most valuable bit of ivory if he should develop an unconscious hitch in his swing. . .

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Cinders spurted on the Fallowfield racing oval at Manchester, England. The Commonwealth's swiftest cyclists were streaking for the 10-mile Marathon crown of the 1934 British Empire Games.

South Africa's cyclist—favoured to win—led the field. Suddenly Canada's entry spurted up beside him . . . then pushed a wheel's length in front. Down the stretch and past the finish he held the lead . . . bringing Canada its first Empire Marathon victory.

First! in Canada Unlimited

Keen sportsmanship and a will to win have brought Canadians many firsts. And sportsmanship, with teamwork, helps you, too —in work and play. Together they keep your scope for opportunity in Canada...unlimited.

Ted Williams Fractures Left Elbow in Game

(By The Canadian Press)

The Red Sox' pennant chances already shackled with an eight-game deficit, suffered a bruising jolt Wednesday as X-rays disclosed that Ted Williams has a fracture in the left elbow.

The bugaboo jinx of exhibition games sneaked up on the slugger Tuesday in the first inning of the All-Star game in Comiskey Park, Chicago. Ted crashed into the wall after hauling down a drive off the bat of Ralph Kiner, National League home run king.

Surgeons will operate today to remove a bone fragment. The pessimistic pronouncement of the club physician, Dr. Ralph McCarthy, is that he hopes Ted will be back in the line-up before the season ends.

Williams is the second outstanding player to suffer a major injury in the All-Star games, which started in Chicago in 1933.

Royal Copeland, former whiz kid of the Toronto Argo backfield, will leave Toronto Thursday to begin practices with his new club, Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The blonde halfback, signed recently to a Calgary contract, said Wednesday night he will make the trip by automobile, and will probably miss the first workout, Monday.

Looking in fine shape, Copeland said he had been working out in recent weeks with Pete Thodos and Rod Pantages, two former Stampeders now employed in Toronto.

He said in an interview he had not quit Argos because of any argument with the club.

"I have no beefs with them. . . I was always treated fine, but when the chance came to get more money I naturally took it. I wanted a change anyway."

Chicago Cubs Wednesday recalled outfielder Carmen Mauro from their Springfield, Mass., farm club of the International League. Mauro is batting .320. Replacing Mauro at Springfield will be Hank Edwards, Cub outfielder who was sent to the farm club on a 24-hour recall basis.

Steve Lembo, 23-year-old catcher owned by Brooklyn, Wednesday was sent on option to the St. Paul Saints of the American Association.

Lembo, who trained with the Dodgers, was shipped to Montreal at the start of the season. Later he was optioned to Pueblo of the Western where he injured his leg in his first game. The injury now has healed.

There will be no high jinks at Memorial Arena tomorrow night when Timmy Geohagen, the pride of Ireland and Fred Atkins, arrogant Aussie meet for the second time in the main wrestling event. Last week's bout produced no decision but this time it will be different. And, says Referee Jack Sharkey, who is being brought here for the purpose, the boys will behave themselves or else. Sharkey stands for no clowning and backs up his decision with a pair of fists that won for him the world's heavyweight boxing championship at one time. Adding flavor to the match will be that pair of fast clever matmen Ray Villmer and Pat Flanagan who meet in the semi-final. Jim 'Goon' Henry and Billy Stack will provide the fireworks in the opener.

REVIVE OVERTIME GAMES

New York, July 13 — (AP) — Maurice Podoloff, president of the American Hockey League, said yesterday sudden death overtime periods will be revived during the 1950-51 regular season in case of tie games at the end of the regular three periods.

The overtime will be limited to 10 minutes, but will terminate before that time if one team scores a goal.

Overtime play, except in the playoffs, was abandoned during the war because of limited transportation schedules.

Holloway Tennis Club Wins First Match in Loop

Holloway Tennis Club swept to a 5-1 victory over Quinte Tennis Club in the first Bay of Quinte Intermediate Tennis League series last evening.

All players were in their first or second year of playing tennis with the Quinte Club using six juniors in the six matches.

Results:

Men's doubles: Terry Joyce and Ken Woodley, Holloway St., defeated Bob Lucy and Vince Massey, Quinte, 6-3, 6-1.

Bill Spencer and Olive Joyce, Holloway, downed Peter Miller and Ron Fox, Quinte, 6-1, 6-2.

Dave Dill and Tom Lynch, Quinte, downed Alan Simpson and Bob Orser, Holloway, 6-2, 6-1.

Mixed doubles: Bruce Page and Agnes Orser, Holloway, defeated Reba Wilkes and Ted Shreeve, Quinte, 6-1, 6-1.

John Luscombe and Jean Draycott, Holloway, defeated Paul Temple and Molly Camp, Quinte, 6-2, 6-0.

Ladies doubles: Agnes Orser and Jean Draycott, Holloway, beat Pauline Hall and Mary Jane McNally, Quinte, 6-2, 6-4.

ADDITIONAL INDUCEMENT

Picton—Members of Picton's COBL entry have an additional inducement to play good ball this season. H. J. McFarland has donated a trophy which will be awarded the members of the local team with the highest batting average. It is a gold trophy with two baseball playing figures on the top of the stand.

Lt. Col. Fisher, Commanding Officer RCSA (AA) has donated a trophy to be awarded the Picton member voted the most gentlemanly player. This trophy will be decided by ballots cast by the fans.

Costner Thrashes Ike Williams in Non-Title Bout

Philadelphia, July 13 — (AP)— Ike Williams was expected to use George (Sugar) Costner as a stepping stone to a welterweight title fight with Ray (Sugar) Robinson. Instead, the lanky Costner thrashed the lightweight champ Williams and emerged himself as top contender for Robinson's crown.

Costner turned in the fistic upset of the year last night when he handed Williams one of the worst lickings the 135-pound titleholder ever received. The Camden N.J., Negro smashed Ike into submission in a 10-round non-title scrap at Shibe Park.

So superior was Costner that one of the judges, Frank Knarsborough, gave the winner all 10 rounds. The other judge, Lou Tress, and referee Dave Beloff were not much kinder. Both scored it 8-2 for Costner. The Associated Press score card voted Costner 8-1-1.

A crowd of 9,809 paid a net gate of $30,543 to see Sugar George clip Williams with a vicious left hook in the third round and then go on to record a thumping triumph. Williams never was the same after that third-round punch. He fought the final seven rounds on his fighting heart.

Rallied in Seventh

Like the champion he is, Williams rallied briefly in the seventh round and looked for a minute as if he would do the impossible and kayo Costner. He rocked George with a left hook—but he hadn't the stamina to follow up his opening and Gostner regained the offensive.

Costner, 3-to-1 underdog in the betting, weighed in five more than Williams. He used his edge on the scales to good advantage.

Everything was against Sugar George but the outcome. Prefight reports listed him as an easy target for Williams' usually sharp punching. The question wasn't, would Williams win, but rather could he better Robinson's performance against Costner? Robinson kayoed George recently in less than 50 seconds of the first round.

Apparently Costner hadn't read the papers. He pummelled Williams from beginning to end and there never was much doubt but that Ike was going to lose his first fight in 13 starts. The last man to beat Williams was Kid Gavilan, another welterweight. Gavilan later lost to Costner. It seems obvious that Williams can't cope with the better welters.

Kingston Leafs Defeat Royals

Kingston, Ont., July 13 (CP)— Backed by timely hitting and daring base-running, Jack Stone pitched Kingston Leafs to a 5-4 win over Smiths Falls Royals in a Central Ontario Baseball League game here Wednesday night.

Stone effectively scattered 11 Royals hits and whiffed 10 batsmen. Harold Rothrock, pitching for the Royals, allowed only five hits and fanned 11, but the Leafs hits came when they hurt most—with men on base.

Virginia Mayo Leads Revolt Against 'Dictators' in Fashions

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 13 — (AP)—Virginia Mayo, leading a one-girl revolt against the "fashion dictators," says women dress better in St. Louis, Dallas and Chicago than in the so-called style centres of New York and California.

It's all her own idea and there was no press agent to push her along.

"I think women are foolish to follow blindly what they are told to wear by a small group of designers and manufactures. I am going to wear what I want, even if I become known as "Miss Dowdy of 1950."

She observed that women in New York are inclined to overdress.

"They think that real style means a display of extravagance —bright and heavy jewelry, expensive fur coats, large and unusual hats. But that isn't style. They merely look, as my husband says, like well-kept graves."

Underdressed

On the other side of the continent, California women are underdressed, she declared.

"Don't mind informality, but California women carry it too far."

Virginia recently returned from making a film in Britain and she said that European women dress better than the style followers of the U.S.

Virginia says she suspects the style makers put out some extreme fashions, but make most of their money from women who stick to saner styles.

"It's just like Hollywood," she philosophized. "We make a few different pictures every year, but most of our money comes from the old standbys—westerns, musicals and boy-meets-girl."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Mrs. Knittingham is one of my favorite people. She is a matron who takes good care of her family and is a kindly neighbor. She is, in fact, the bulwark of community society. But her bridge is atrocious.

Several years ago she lost an ace. From that day to this when she is in the lead, plunk. Down go her aces. Then she picks up her knitting and you can have the rest.

Good bridge follows a different policy. Except against a slam, the lead of an ace means only one thing. It says "partner, when I get through leading this suit I will have no more cards in it."

This is known as a top car lead. It is a lead to advise partner that the leader will trump that suit. It is led only when alone or with only one other card in that particular suit.

Against a four heart contract the clubs in all four hands are as shown here:

NORTH
♣K Q 10
WEST
EAST
♣7 6 5 3 2
SOUTH
♣J 9 8 4

South is the declarer. The opening lead from west is club ace. Thereafter, west leads another suit. This tells east that west will ruff clubs if that suit is led from any other hand.

If west had another club with the ace it would have been led after the ace was taken. The fact that west did not lead another club says that all he had in clubs was the ace. All by its lonesome.

Players who fear losing an ace are mostly palookas. Those who are experienced realize that an occasional ace may be lost. But the general policy is to lead it only as a short suit signal.

As long as you hang onto your ace the opponent is unable to make his king. Therefore, use up your ace only for a better purpose.

Years ago a Mrs. Knittingham in my audience announced: "If it were not for us you would probably starve to death." For a long time she had something there.

RESTRICT USE OF FUELS

London, July 13 (Reuters) — Industries may soon be powered by grape seeds, sawdust and grass Dr. H. E. Clausen of Buenos Aires told scientists attending the World Power Conference. Dr. Clausen said governments would have to restrict the use of customary fuels such as coal, oil, and good quality wood if the world were not to run short.

Sixardee Wins 13th Straight, Defeat Cubs 14-4

Group Captain Douglas Green's No. 6 Repair Depot baseball team lived up to its reputation at the Exhibition Grounds last night when they defeated the Belleville Cubs by a 14-4 score.

The victory was the thirteenth straight for the airmen while the Cubs have won seven and lost five for second place in the league standing.

Exploding with a five-hit five run barrage in the second inning, the Sixardee crew were never in danger afterwards. They added two in the third, one each in the fifth, sixth and seventh and tucked the game away in the ninth with four more.

The best the Cubs could do against the fine hurling of Maloney was one run in the second, two in the fourth and another in the seventh.

Youthful Gabby Moynes, Cub starting pitcher who was physically unfit to do the chore lasted one and two-thirds innings yielding five hits for four runs before Bobby Bunton went to the rescue. But Bunton proved just another pitcher for the Sixardee bats and they pecked him for nine hits and ten runs over the rest of the route.

Maloney, who went the distance for the winners gave up nine clouts yielding three each in the second and seventh, but the Cubs failed to get anywhere when the opportunity presented itself.

Coursol led the airmen hit parade with three single. Hastings got a triple and single, Gibson came through with a trio of clouts and Maracle got a pair. Neilson drove out a double and single for the Cubs with Lockyer kicking in with a pair of singles.

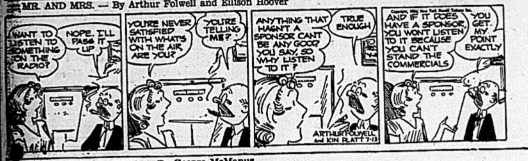
WHY DON'T YOU CATCH ONE, RUDY?
BECAUSE I DON'T HAVE A CHANCE. EVERY TIME I START TO CAST, YOU GET A BITE!
MAYBE YOU'RE DOING SOMETHING WRONG. WHY DON'T YOU USE MY POLE FOR AWHILE?
BECAUSE I'M FISHING FOR MUSKIE!
REALLY? WITH ALL THAT FANCY EQUIPMENT YOU OUGHT TO CATCH A WHALE!

MR. AND MRS. — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover



WANT TO LISTEN TO SOMETHING ON THE RADIO?
NOPE. I'LL PASS IT UP
YOU'RE NEVER SATISFIED WITH WHAT'S ON THE AIR ARE YOU?
YOU'RE TELLING ME?
ANYTHING THAT HASN'T A SPONSOR CAN'T BE ANY GOOD? YOU SAY. SO WHY LISTEN TO IT?
TRUE ENOUGH
AND IF IT DOES HAVE A SPONSOR, YOU WON'T LISTEN TO IT BECAUSE YOU CAN'T STAND THE COMMERCIALS
YOU GET MY POINT EXACTLY

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a sattisfied expression, and I said, G, pop, you look as if you felt good.

I do, pop said. I feel intirely sattisfied with myself, and that's about as good as a man is ever allowed to feel, he said, and I said, Well jimminies, pop, what happened to make you feel so perfect?

I've been a superman all day, pop said. I've tossed off one remarkable achievement after the other. Have you time to listen to a detailed report? he said, and I said, Sure, pop.

Perhaps I'd better just give you a cupple of high lites, pop said. Well, this morning I leeped out of bed singing like a lark at the pricise time I had planned to get up, without lingering a single minute for a few exter winks. In other werds, I started the day rite. After that one victory followed another, and the day ended in a blaze of glory when I put over a deel that all the top insurance men in town have been trying to put over for a year. So naturelly that makes me the cleverest insurance man in town, he said.

Aw heck, pop, that was only bizzness, I said, and pop said, It was Napoleonic bizzness, and I'm very dissapointed that you're not impressed. Did you know I was dubble jointed in both my thumbs? he said.

And he held his hands up and made his thumbs bump out and back, and I said, Gosh, pop, G, I didn't know you could do that. That's neat. Why didn't you show me before? I said, and he said, I must be an unusually modest man.

Gollies, pop, I call you grate, I said, and he said, Thanks old boy, that just about fills my cup of self sattisfaction to the brim.

Tells What Ended Stomach Distress And Backache

Suffered 5 Years with Acid Indigestion, Headaches and Dizzy Spells. Felt Nervous, Rundown. Had Many Aches and Pains. Tells of Relief.

"After suffering five years from stomach disorders and backache, I have found wonderful relief by taking Syntona Herbal Compound," said Mrs. Rose Horvath, 153 Simcoe Street, London, Ont., in a recent report.

"I couldn't eat a meal without having trouble with gassy cramps and sour acid rising afterwards. I was subject to throbbing headaches and dizzy feelings and my nerves were all on edge. My back was aching so bad I could hardly straighten up and I developed rheumatic pains all through my limbs, joints and muscles.

"I had been trying many things without benefit and finally my daughter persuaded me to try Syntona. When I began taking this medicine I knew almost right away that it was helping me. It wasn't long before my food began to digest better, my nerves calmed down and I found I was going through the day without having headache or that awful dizziness. I kept right on taking it and now the aches and pains are gone, my back feels fine and I can say I am eating better and feeling better than I did for years.

"I am very thankful for Syntona and I highly recommend it to others who suffer this way."

MRS. ROSE HORVATH

If you suffer as Mrs. Horvath did, why not give Syntona a chance to help you, too. Take it for a short trial and the chances are you will find this pure herbal medicine to be just what you need to make you feel yourself again.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Headlights coming up the hill threw their glare onto her red coat. It roared into a U-turn and came to a stop beside her.

"Going my way?" asked a fine sturdy voice.

Stephanie laughed in relief. "I an if you are going to the jail."

Charlie Reddy hopped out and held the door open: "Jail's our destination lady."

As the car glided slowly down the hill he said: "May I suggest you don't go traisping around alone and on foot while we still have a murderer at large? We haven't yet discovered any reason why either of the murders have been committed. The cameo seems mixed up in this pretty thoroughly and—while we're in the warnings department—let me direct your attention to its present possessor!"

Stephanie squirmed a bit and told about Yakov's insistence upon seeing the cameo.

"Did he threaten you?"

"Not exactly. But he did call me 'Miss Serenov' with a kind of knowing leer, as though he'd found out something I was hiding. And he told me that he had some papers or letters that would get Hagar out of jail."

"He did! Chief Peters'll have that guy for concealing evidence. Wonder what he's got? Did he say anything more than that?"

"Well, he made a bargain with me. I'm to let him examine the cameo in exchange for letters." She looked at Reddy thoughtfully for a moment and then added: "But I've found what he's looking for, I think. And yet, I don't understand why it would be important. I want to talk to Hagar about it."

Reddys eyes were reproachful: "How about me? Can't you trust me with it?"

Stephanie impulsively pressed his arm "of course I can. But why not come in with me to see Hagar? Then I can tell you both at the same time."

Hagar shifted uncomfortably on the coarse gray blanket that covered her bunk. Her back was propped up against a lumpy pillow, and she was trying unsuccessfully to capture serenity by concentrating on a magazine story about a domestic triangle in Connecticut. Repeatedly she found that she had read several paragraphs without absorbing an iota of their contents. She threw the magazine on the floor and slid off the bunk. She went to the door and stood looking out between the bars, her chocolate-colored eyes scanning the corridor:

"Hey! Where is everybody in this catacomb? Hey, Chet! I want to make a phone call! D'you hear me out there?"

She waited hopefully for an answer but the hall remained empty and silent. Muttering, she walked to the wash-bowl in the corner and turned on the faucet. Sluicing the cold water over her face, she burbled:

"Caged up like a perdition monkey. Wish I were a monkey give me something to do—swing by my tail from the bars, get a little exercise!"

She blotted her face on a non-absorbent towel: "Always said I'd done everything there was to do except spend a night in jail and ride on a fire truck. Well, now all I've got to look forward to is a. . ."

She stopped mumbling as footsteps echoed in the corridor.

"Stephanie! And Reddy! Am I glad to see you! Come right in and sit down."

Chet the guard, was grinning as he unlocked the door.

Stephanie hurried into the cell and threw her arms around Hagar: "Good news, Hagar!" she stood back and survey the older woman affectionately: "I think maybe you'll be out of here soon! Just wait till you hear what's happened."

Chet lounged sociably in the doorway. Reddy gave him a significant glance and he turned and sauntered off, jangling his keys.

Hagar shook hands with Reddy and pulled him down to sit beside her on the bunk:

"Well," she demanded, "what's up? Have they found the murderer?"

Hagar's eyes didn't leave the girl's face as she listened to the account of Yakov's visit. Stephanie first related the Russian's questions about the cameo, then told how she had discovered the small bit of paper in the locket.

Hagar excitedly squashed her pose under her fist: "The Cherry Orchard?" That's a play by Chekov, isn't it? Whole thing's probably a code of some kind. Did you bring the paper?"

Stephanie shook her head: "I hid it."

"Beats me," Hagar muttered. "Could be we're right up to our necks in some kind of international intrigue! But how could that have anything to do with the murders? Nell and Falter were both local people when all this began."

Reddy spoke: "I think Stephanie and I had better whip back to your house Hagar to be on hand when Yakov arrives with those letters. Chief Peters'll meet us there a little later. Right now he's talking to Arnold Pfieffer in his office."

"Arnold Pfieffer?" Hagar and Stephanie echoed the name interself a theory. He's now shring estedly.

"Yes. Seems the little fellow has sat around and hatched himself a theory. He's now sharing it with the chief."

"Y'know," Hagar said slowly, "I never thought of it before, but Arnold Pfieffer might be in a position to know an awful lot about this. Dont forget, probably he put the cameo in my collection cabinet and left the silver box in my car after Falter's murder."

SEVEN CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH NEAR ROUYN

'Do or Die' Kum R. Line Defence Opens

Intense Artillery Duelling Across River in Progress

Strong Guerilla Raids Indicate Push to Crack Line

Tokyo, July 15 (Saturday) — Field dispatches early today reported intense artillery duelling across the Kum River and strong guerrilla raids behind American lines.

This indicated the big North Korean push to crack the river front might be at hand. Other field dispatches late Friday night said the Red forces already had opened a full-scale offensive against U.S. troops on the vital river line.

General MacArthur's headquarters communique, issued at 3:10 a.m. (1:10 p.m. Friday, EDT) said "unofficial reports that the communist aggressors had achieved a bridgehead over the Kum River were not confirmed."

It said, however, that the Red forces "probed" the American lines in a number of places along the river.

The North Korean Second Division was credited with crossing the Pogang River, a tributary of the Kum, and penetrating South Korean army lines near Chongju East of the American positions, but still north of the Kum.

Farther east, the invaders were said to be making progress in their wide enveloping effort.

The offensive followed an earlier breach in the natural barrier by a small advance shock force of Reds west of Kongju. The infiltration tactic was accomplished by guerrillas wearing U.S. uniforms.

A front-line dispatch said the small Red force which breached the American defence line before Taejon, provisional South Korean capital, did so in the face of heavy American artillery fire and plane attacks.

It was the first breach of the Kum River line, last bastion before Taejon. The South Korea government was reported to have fled Taejon and a curfew and alert were ordered in the city.

Kongju is about 20 miles northwest of Taejon on the western flank of the American line. The enemy's action could mean an positions on the west

BRUTAL SLAYING SENDS POLICE ON SEARCH FOR CLUES

Detroit, July 14. (AP)— The brutal slaying of a comely matron of Detroit's west side sent police on a search for clues in a deepening mystery today.

Pretty Mrs. Vivian Stanley, 37, clad only in a nightgown and a housecoat, was found dead shortly before noon yesterday in a weed patch two miles from her home.

The victim, wife of a scientist and mother of two children, had been garroted—with a rope or a chain ,police said—and her neck was broken.

Police headquarters put its top men to work on a case that had grown more fantastic by the hour in night-long inquiries.

A neighbor was held for questioning and the investigation turned in part to $5,000 which police said Mrs. Stanley had loaned to him.

Homicide Inspector George Kimball identified the neighbor as Sam B. Sampson, 42, who he said also had borrowed $5,000 from a second woman to finance a grocery store. Sampson, held without charge, denied any knowledge of Mrs. Stanley's death. He said he was in the company of the other woman, Mrs. Ruth Rankin, at the time of the slaying. Police said Mrs. Rankin supported Sampson's statement.

Mrs. Stanley, wife of Crawford T. Stanley, a Detroit metallurgist, was killed about 11:30 p.m., Wednesday. A chance passerby in an alley came upon her body on Thursday.

Her husband, on a fishing trip in Canada with a son, 14, hastened home overnight. There is one other child, a daughter, 7.

Police tried to get at the reason for Mrs. Stanley's departure from her Pinehurst Avenue home wearing only her blue nylon nightgown and light blue coat.

As the inquiry was pursued, police said, it developed also that Mrs. Stanley had hired private detectives to shadow Sampson, the grocer, subsequent to her loan to him of the $5,000.

Inspector Kimball said that Sampson appeared perturbed over this. Sampson said he long had been an acquaintance of the Stanleys and that he had given Mrs. Stanley small sums from time to time in repayment of his loan. He said he had paid back about $1,000.

Toronto, July 14 (CP) — Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office at 9.30 a.m. E.D.T.

Synopsis:

..The thundershowers which deluged sections of Ontario Thursday have moved eastward and skies have cleared over Southern Ontario. From Georgian Bay northward skies are mostly cloudy.

A minor disturbance over Minnesota is moving eastward and will cause widely scattered thundershowers in northern regions tonight. A more important disturbance now over southern Saskatchewan will affect northern regions Saturday.

Today will be cool in all regions but Saturday will bring a trend toward rising temperatures.

KILLED CROSSING HIGHWAY

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 14 — (CP) — Seventy-eight-year-old Isaac Currie, of Echo Bay, Ont., was killed Thursday night when he was struck by a car while attempting to cross highway 17 near Bar River, 20 miles east of here.

The car driver, Howard Strike of Sault Ste. Marie told provincial police he did not see Currie until it was too late to avoid hitting him.

MILITARY EFFORT BY U.S. IN KOREA MAY HELP RUSSIA

Reds Can Find Out How Well US Prepared

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, July 14 — (AP)— Russia may be trying to lure the United States into so great a military effort in Korea that it could be helpless to challenge large-scale aggression elsewhere.

Illustrating this is a question posed for President Truman at a press conference yesterday and his cautious reply.

He was asked: "Are we prepared to resist aggression everywhere in the world?"

His reply was that the situation would have to be met as it developed.

United States military leaders attach importance to persistent rumors of concentration of Chinese communist forces and the enrollment of Russian volunteers for the aid of the North Korean communist army.

But this foreign-power help may not be thrown suddenly into the war to crush South Koreans and drive American forces out of Korea for a quick victory. Instead, the Moscow-dictated strategy may be to feed the help in gradually, always maintaining superiority in force — and compelling the United States to put more and more divisions, planes and ships into the campaign.

Meanwhile, in these early months of the war, the Korean campaign will afford Russia opportunity to measure the battle-skill of American troops, airmen and sailors and — equally important — the effectiveness of American weapons.

It can also provide an Index for the Russians to decide how determined and how prepared the United States is to fight at any point where Moscow pushes the remote-control button of war.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, was reported by Chairman Millard Tydings (Dem.-Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee as having said that Defence Department and other officials are carefully watching five or six "sensitive areas" aside from Korea.

These areas were not specifically identified by Tydings, but obviously they include such points as the powder-keg in Europe, the Middle East, Southeast Asia, Formosa, and the Philippines. Aggression could occur at any one or many of these "sensitive" points.

Along with this is another question that must be faced when as American chiefs are confident, the tide of battle turns and the North Korean invaders of the Free Republic of Korea are rolled back:

Does the "police action," which President Truman still uses to designate the Korean situation, contemplate pushing on northward past the 38th parallel which Russia and the Western Powers fixed as a boundary when Russia refused to allow a Korean-wide election?

Ground Forces, Aid Urgently Asked by Lie Of 52 U.N. Members

Lake Success, July 14 (AP) — Secretary - General Trygve Lie urgently appealed today to 52 United Nations members for ground forces and other assistance for the U.N. Korean war effort.

Lie told a press conference the unified command under the United States is in urgent need of additional effective assistance.

He dispatched telegrams to all U.N. countries backing the Security Council action against communist North Korea, telling them he would be grateful for them to consider the possibility of such assistance, "including combat forces, particularly ground forces."

Lie said these forces should be "effective forces" and not "token."

He expressed hope it will not take more than three to six months to end the war in Korea, but said the full effort of all concerned is necessary.

Lie made no comment when asked for the U.N. attitude on possible use of atomic bombs.

There are 59 U.N. members. Those not receiving the telegram were the United States, which is carrying the burden of fighting; the Soviet bloc and Yugoslavia. The Russian bloc and Yugoslavia opposed the Security Council action.

Lie said the telegrams went to Egypt and the Arab countries A reporter commented the Arab replies did not indicate support of the council action. Lie said he took a different view.

The telegrams were phrased differently for each country in respect to the assistance each had already offered, but they made it clear that Lie wants urgently some combat troops to help the Americans and South Koreans already on the ground.

The telegrams said offers of assistance should be sent to Lie but should be in general terms, leaving detailed arrangements to be worked out between the governments and the United States. The United States is acting as the agent for the U.N. in this war because the U.N. has no international police force.

Europeans React With Some Doubts and Criticism to US Operations in Korean Crisis

London, July 14 (AP) —Non-communist western Europeans reacted with the same phrase today to American setbacks in Korea: "Give them time."

Outside those circles obedient to Moscow, the feeling among both press and public was that, despite heavy odds, the United States troops would pull out of the hole.

There were, however, some doubts and some criticisms.

In Norway and Finland, both neighbors of Russia, the man in the street wondered out loud whether the needed reinforcements of men and materiel would be too little and too late. Some Finns found the state of U.S. preparedness in the Pacific a chilling eye-opener. They were impressed with the apparent military ability of the North Koreans.

"The fact alone that America has to half mobilize to oppose a semi-barbarian state, a country that is the last (least powerful) of the Soviet satellites, will mean for America a loss of prestige which a late and painfully secured victory will not be able to regain," it wrote.

Il Momento's conservative competitor, Il Tempo, which also supports the Christian democrat government, took another view:

"Don't be impatient. The communists have enjoyed all the advantages of aggression including surprise and even using 60-ton Soviet tanks. In the end we shall see MacArthur's army coming back."

The London Daily Express warned that the news from Korea might continue bad for another 90 days but predicted eventual victory.

"Korea is no Dunkerque," it declared. "It is a pitched battle-green, and a well-trained numerically superior aggressor"

West German editorials emphasized that the Americans are outnumbered and outgunned.

Said the Brunswick Zeitung:

"It would be premature to interpret the early tactical losses as a true indication of the power of the free peoples which will be demonstrated in coming days and weeks."

Increased Rates for Phone Service Will Become Effective In Ont. and Quebec July 22

Montreal, July 14. (CP)—The Bell Telephone Company of Canada announced toady that increased rates for telephone service, authorized by the Transport Board last weekend, will become effective July 22. The increases affect only Quebec and Ontario where the company has facilities.

The increases range from 30 cents a month for two-party residence telephones in such small exchange areas as Beaverton, Ont., and Gatineau and Shawbridge, Que., to $3.15 for individual business telephones in Quebec City.

The company, which made publice a list of typical monthly rates under new and old tariffs, said it has filed its tariff schedules with the Transport Board in Ottawa and they have been approved.

The company said its new rates are "temporary" and "will remain in effect until the Board makes its final decision on the company's main application for increased rates."

In its decision, the Board granted the company authority to make certain increases on an interim basis until a final decision is given on the Bell application for an overall revenue increase of 20.6.

Do Not Include Taxes

In its list of typical rates, the company showed the new monthly, rate for a two-party residence hand telephone in Montreal and Toronto at $3.60 compared with the present rate of $3.10.

The company said the rates do not include municipal or provincial taxes wherever these are applied. Rates for wall and desk telephnes are somewhat less.

The company also announced that increases in long-distance rates and in charges for miscellaneous equipment and services will also go into effect July 22.

In a statement, Frederick Johnson, Bell Company president, said:

"This interim relief will strengthen the company's position. The full amount applied for, however, is the minimum we require to fully discharge our obligations to the telephone-using public, to our employees and to the shareholders.

Wild Geese So Numerous in N.Z. Farmers Use Plane As Beater

Christchurch, N.Z., July 14 — (CP)— Latest sport in southern New Zealand is wild goose shooting with an airplane as beater or musterer. In the Rangitata Valley area of the south island, Canadian geese are so numerous that they have become a pest and farmers organize regular goose shoots with the aid of a plane.

A pilot in a light, easily manoeuvrable plane, flies over the flocks of feeding geese at a low altitude to get them into the air. Then he drives them toward the shooters, spread out across the valley. By chasing from side to side behind the flock as a dog does with sheep, he can drive them toward the guns in a compact group which makes the best target.

When fresh, Canadian geese can make 60 miles an hour, but if the pilot can keep them moving for a few miles they slow down. The pilot must drive the birds low enough to be in range of the guns, but if he gets too far above them he losses sight of them as their dull brown backs do not show up against the tussock country below.

The pilot has the problem of keeping out of the way of shot intended for the birds. An experienced bird musterer can often take a flock several times backward and forward over the guns, in which time heavy bags are secured.

UNITED STATES, RUSSIA RECEIVE NOTES BY NEHRU

Speculation Notes May Contain Peace Proposal

Washington, July 14 — (AP) —Both the United States and Russia received notes yesterday from Prime Minister Nehru of India.

There was no announcement of the contents but there was speculation here that they might include a proposal for attaining peace in Korea.

The New York Times in a dispatch from Washington quoted diplomatic circles as saying that India was not offering to mediate in the Korean war but was merely urging the United States and Russia to keep the Korean war from spreading.

Nehru recently expressed his willingness to serve as mediator in the conflict between North and South Koreans, the latter backed by the United Nations.

New Delhi, India, (AP) — A government source indicated today that Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru had told Moscow and Washington India is ready to mediate in the Korean war, but "only if requested by the parties concerned."

Asked what were the contents of Nehru's note to the two capitals yesterday, the source replied:

"Whatever Prime Minister Nehru told Mr. Stalin and Mr. Acheson does not fall outside the policy of the government of India as enunciated in his addresses to press conferences."

The informant said he had no information on how Nehru's suggestions had been received.

At his last press conference July 7 the Indian prime minister told of India's readiness to mediate the Korean conflict.

1,200 Commies Executed by Korean Police

MacArthur's Advance Headquarters in Korea, July 14 — (Reuters)—Twelve hundred communists and suspected communists have been executed by South Korean police since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, Kim Taisoon, chief of the National South Korean Police said today.

Those executed were considered "bad security risks," he said.

Kim said the executions were carried out on his orders "in Seoul and other towns in the battle area."

The Communists, he said, had placed a price on his head and sent several assassins to "get" him. He said he had been advised that there was widespread slaughter among the families of police and government officials and South Korean army officers when the North Koreans occupied Seoul.

"But we shall return to Seoul within a month," he predicted.

Construction to Start on Land-Based Model for Atomic Submarine Engine

Washington, July 14 — (AP)— Senator Brien McMahon (Dem. - Conn.) said today that construction work will be started at Arco, Idaho, next month on a land-based model for an atomic-powered submarine engine.

McMahon, chairman of the Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Committee, predicted that a "tremendous improvement in submarine performance is in the offing."

The Arco prototype, or original from which other engines are to be copied, is one of two experimental projects for atomic ship propulsion on which the Atomic Energy Commission has been working since early 1947. The project is being carried on jointly for the A. E. C. by the Argonne National Laboratories near Chicago, and the Westinghouse corporation.

The A. E. C. earlier had set a September target date for start of construction on the Argo engine which it estimated would cost at least $25,000,000. Arco is the site of the A. E. C.'s reactor (atomic engine) test station.

The other, higher-powered, prototype is being developed by the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory of the General Electric Company at West Milton, N.Y.

Eldest Daughter, Son and Mother Suffer Burns

Father Climbs Ladder, Saves Daughter Before House Falls

Rouyn, Que., July 14 — (CP)— Seven small children, trapped in second-storey bedrooms, died last night when fire engulfed a farmhouse at McWatters, eight miles east of here.

Three other children of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Degagne escaped with their parents. But one, 13-year-old Eva, is not expected to live.

The victims: Rosa, 14; Claudette, 9; Carmen, 8; Jean Roch, 6; Gisele, 4; Lucien, 3, and Maurice, 2.

The house collapsed seconds after Mr. Gegagne rescued Eva from a flame-swept upper window. Fire licked at the ladder he climbed to snatch her from the inferno.

Cause of the blaze was not learned immediately. The family had been baking bread during the evening.

The two - storey clapboard dwelling was destroyed in "a matter of minutes," neighbors said.

The seven children who died were trapped in their beds on the second floor. So was the badly-burned survivor, Eva, and another son, Jean Claude, 12.

Boy Gives Alarm

Jean Claude first noticed the fire. He shouted an alarm and ran downstairs.

His father and mother and 17-year-old Raymond, all sleeping downstairs, managed to get out with him.

Mr. Degagne put a ladder to a second-storey window and rescued Eva but the fire-weakened house crashed to the ground before the rest could be saved.

Mrs. Degagne is expecting another child.

"It happened so fast — so very fast," said Mr. Degagne as, dazed and stricken, he slumped in a hospital chair as doctors fought to save Eva's life.

"I didn't have a chance to put anything on. All I could think of was my children, screaming and dying up there.

Woke up Choking

"I woke up choking with Jean Claude screaming 'Fire!' and everything red from the flames. Eva, Raymond and I ran to the stairs, but they were falling down in pieces. I remembered the ladder outside them. I don't know how I got there but the next thing I knew I was putting it up to the window.

"This was only moments after it started but I could hardly get near the window. Just inside I saw a figure — I didn't know who — but I pulled it out and it was Eva. I don't like to think about that."

Mr. Degagne said he managed to carry the girl a few feet down the ladder but her weight was too much for him and he had to drop her.

"I couldn't do anything about it. I tried to hold on but my arms just let go themselves. She fell about 10 feet and as she struck the ground the building crashed down. I had to jump quickly for the ladder went with it."

The Degagnes have farmed at McWatters for nine years. Mr. Degagne also works in Rouyn as a carpenter.

RCAF EXPANSION SEEN AS RESULT OF KOREAN WAR

Ottawa July 14. (CP)—Next year is earmarked as the biggest since the Second World War for development of Canadian air combat strength, the R.C.A.F. said today.

By the end of 1951, the Air Force aims to have five regular fighter squadrons formed and largely equipped with the new American-designed, Canadian-built F86 Jet Fighters. They will be based in Eastern Canada.

Accelerated production of Jet Fighters—orders are in for F86s and Canada's long-range CF-100 —is expected to be one result of Defence Department preparations to boost equipment orders this year as a result of Korea and all it can mean.

Development of radar screens around vital targets is also expected to be speeded.

The acceleration and expansion of production of planes, radar and other war equipment is expected to add substantially to the peacetime record $425,000,000 defence budget approved by parliament for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1951. This would be done through supplementary estimates seeking possibly up to $50,000,000 more.

Keep Eye on Washington

The Cabinet is keeping an eye on Washington for signs that the Korean situation may finally bring about the North American war production integration that Canada has sought. An important meeting of Canadian and American officials is scheduled for Ottawa Aug. 8 and the subject probably will come up then.

Meanwhile, as the Canadian Destroyers Cayuga, Athabaska and Sioux prepared to sail from Pearl Harbor with U.S. Task Force "yoke" for action in Korean waters, naval headquarters said they were as well equipped as any destroyers in the world to handle submarines. This was the answer given to questions on American reports that Russian submarines are in the Korean area.

Two Fighter Squadrons

The R.C.A.F. now has two regular Fighter squadrons under its Air Defence group headquarters at Montreal. One is based at Montreal, the other at Chatham, N.B. Both fly an outmoded version of the British Vampire which has been in service for four or five years.

Air Force officials said the five regular squadrons will be based in Eastern Canada. These arrangements are fitted into Continental defence plans with the United States.

To the five regular Fighter squadrons are added the 10 or 11 reserve squadrons, largely fighters, that have been established from Montreal to Vancouver. They, too, will benefit from the influx of new planes, directly or indirectly.

MEMBER OF CIRCUS LEAVES HOSPITAL

Aftermath to the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey show here July 3 was the loss of an appendix by one of the performers. Kathryn Kramar, who checked out of Belleville General Hospital this week to rejoin the show, was taken to the hospital the day of the performance.

Information on the woman is skimpy, but hospital ward talk was that Miss Kramar was employed as a bareback rider. Her mail is being forwarded to Chicago.

POSTPONED GAME PLAYED SATURDAY

Commercial Softball League President Don Lee has announced that the Brewers Warehouse-Point Anne softball game rained out Thursday evening will be played Saturday evening at 6.15 at the Alemite Field, weather permitting.

The Cementmen, rapidly developing into a potent force in the league, will be the visitors, while the league leading Brewers, victims of a 5-2 reverse last Tuesday at the hands of Howe and Hagerman, will play host.

INDEPENDENT GROCERS TO HAVE MONDAY HOLIDAY IN AUG., SEPT.

Food retailers in the city belonging to the Belleville Independent Grocers will not open their stores for business on Mondays through the months of August and September, it was stated today following a meeting held Thursday evening at the home of Horace Wright.

Fifty per cent of the food retailers belonging to the B.I.G. attended the meeting and voted unanimously to observe Mondays throughout August and September as a holiday. Gerald McEvoy is president of B.I.G. with J. Wims as secretary treasurer.

Pulley Friction Nearly Causes Loss of Barn

Friction in the pulley of a hay rope being used to unload hay into the mow set fire to the hay in the barn of Jack Whalen, 2nd concession of Thurlow, Thursday afternoon, with only prompt action on the part of workmen averting loss of the barn.

The Whalens had been drawing in hay and while unloading at the barn the pulley in the haymow is believed to have become overheated with result that hay in the mow started to smoulder.

The smouldering hay was quickly thrown outside thus averting a fire.

As a precaution the local fire department was called but on their arrival found the danger of fire was past.

W. Bradshaw, Latta, Loses Large Frame Barn

Fire of undetermined origin Wednesday evening destroyed the large frame barn on the farm of Walter Bradshaw, 8th concession of Tyendinaga, east of Latta. With the exception of a small amount of old straw there was no feed in the barn while the only machinery lost was a mower and a plow.

The fire started about nine o'clock in the evening and had gained considerable progress before it was noticed by Mrs. Bradshaw. Mr. Bradshaw was away from home at the time working the night shift at the Bakelite plant at Belleville. The Bradshaw farm is rented to a neighbor, while the owner works in Belleville.

Insurance of $2,000 was carried on the barn, it was stated.

Still smouldering embers Thursday set fire to grass about the burned barn and when the flames threatened to spread to a nearby woods the Belleville Fire Department was called. Three tanks of water were used on the flames when a heavy shower came up and assisted in putting out the fire.

STABBED AND LEFT LYING ON STREET

Windsor, July 14.—(CP)—Charles Cooney of Detroit was stabbed and left lying on a Windsor street early today following an argument with an unidentified companion. He was taken to hospital for treatment of a knife wound in his side. His condition was reported as satisfactory.

Police said they are holding four Windsor residents for investigation. They said the fight started in an argument over payment of drinks.

Two Dumped in Bay as Sailboat Capsizes in Squall

Rescued Thursday afternoon from the centre of the Bay of Quinte where they were hanging on to their overturned sailboat, George Haggis, Dufferin Ave., and Miss Agnes Blaind, St. Paul Street, today admit that they were 'lucky.'

The couple were out sailing in the Haggis sailboat "Joka" when the sudden squall sprung up at mid afternoon turning the sailboat over and dumping its two passengers out in the bay.

Workers at the Schuster coal dock saw the couple in distress and turned in the alarm, but the rescue was effected by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Knight of Bowmanville, who had just docked with their motorboat. The Bowmanville couple sped out to the centre of the Bay and hauled the two drenched sailors ashore.

The local fire department was notified and two boats, one owned by Callaghan's were preparing to go out to the rescue when the work of Mr. and Mrs. Knight made the trip unnecessary.

Mr. Haggis today said they had been clinging to the overturned craft only a very few minutes when they were rescued. Today both are none the worse for their impromptu ducking.

Torrential Rain Chases People Off the Streets

When the rains came yesterday afternoon Front Street was cleared of people in as little time as it takes to blink your eyes. The first small shower eliminated all but the most hardy, and with the exception of two people, the real rain drove everybody to cover.

The exceptions were an elderly gentleman who strode proudly through the downpour, white shirt, straw hat and all. He broke form at the last minute, however, and ran for an awning when it became too much even for him.

The second daredevil was a young paper boy who stood in a T-shirt and loved it. The object of admiring eyes he nonchalantly wandered down main street. Thunder and lightning drove many to cover, and store doorways were filled all along the streets. Buses did a roaring business.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of a three ton truck owned by T. L. Ryan of Harold, was reported by police during the night. The truck was parked on Pinnacle Street and was reported stolen when the owner returned about an hour before midnight.

In police court this morning Magistrate T. Y. Wills found a local resident guilty of false pretences on a charge involving the sale of an auto on which there was a lien. The case was heard some weeks ago with judgment being deferred.

The accused was ordered to pay court costs of $25.50 and to make restitution.

BAEL'S SENTENCE REDUCED

Ghent, Belgium, July 14 (AP)—Exiled King Leopold's brother-in-law, Walter Henri Baels, was given a five month suspended sentence today as a war draft dodger. Bael's sentence was a reduction of a three-year term given him absentia in 1946.

Obituary

DAVID WARDLE

David Wardle, 177 John Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Friday morning after a brief illness.

Born in Chesterton, Staffordshire, England, the late Mr. Wardle was in his 76th year and for the past forty-four years he resided in this city, having arrived here from England on June 10th, 1906. Being of a friendly disposition and of an enterprising nature he soon made for himself a place in the life of the city and the possessor of a home for his family. He was experienced in gardening and in the care of property and for nineteen years he was caretaker of St. Agnes' Church of England School for Girls. He was also interested in building and his enterprise led him to construct several dwellings in the city.

David Wardle was a faithful and active member of the Salvation Army for the greater part of his life. Prior to coming to Canada he was for fourteen years the bandmaster of the Chesterton Salvation Army band and in this city he was bandmaster of the Army band for 43 years. He was a good leader and organizer and under his direction the band attained a high degree of merit. He, himself, was an expert cornet player. In the regard of many friends and citizens Mr. Wardle held a high place and to them his death has brought much regret. Fraternally he was a member of Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F. & A.M.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Annie Ratcliffe; one son, George Wardle of the Customs and Revenue Department here, and one sister, Mrs. Martha Howard of this city.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until early Friday evening, then at his late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

CLAIR L. LEAVITT (Picton)

Picton — The funeral of Clair L. Leavitt, who died suddenly at his home, Talbot Street, was held at the Gilbert Chapel this afternoon with interment in Hicksite Cemetery at Bloomfield. A large number of veterans attended the service.

Mr. Leavitt enlisted with the First Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in September 1939 and went overseas the following month. He served with this unit in England and in Sicily. He was taken a prisoner-of-war in July 1942 and was liberated nearly three years later.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Harold Leavitt.

Police Alerted For Two Members Canadian Army

Provincial Police throughout Central Ontario were alerted yesterday to be on the lookout for two members of the Canadian Army who broke open arrest at the Picton Army Camp at six o'clock Thursday morning.

Escaping from the army camp were J. T. Bennett, formerly of Winnipeg, and J. L. Nelmes, of Port Arthur. The two were being held in open arrest pending investigation on another matter.

Yesterday afternoon an army jeep owned by the artillery unit at Picton was stolen and it is believed the two men may have taken the vehicle to make their escape from the district.

Police also said that four Sten guns and magazines were reported by army authorities as missing from the Picton camp. The guns, however, were said to have been missing since July 10th or before and army authorities said there was no connection between the disappearance of the guns and the escape of the two men.

General Hospital Room Rates Increased Dollar Per Day

Room rates at the Belleville General Hospital have been increased roughly one dollar per day across the board, it was announced today by Percy C. McGuire, chairman of the hospital board of governors.

The top rate for private rooms in the new wing is now $9.75 per day with the semi-private rate in the same wing being $8.25 per day. Public ward rates are $6.25 and $7.25 per day, it was stated. The 25 cents per day medical charge has been dropped.

Removal of the surcharge for county patients amounting to two dollars per day, was mainly responsible for the increase in room rates, according to Mr. McGuire. Under the new agreement with Hastings County with respect to indigent patients, the hospital will receive an additional $7,000 yearly, while the $2 per day surcharge for county patients realized the hospital roughly $23,000 annually.

In arriving at the one dollar per day increase in room rates, Mr. McGuire said the board attempted to budget for the next six months requirements at the hospital.

Continuing, Mr. McGuire added that he thought it would be a good idea to adjust hospital room rates in accordance with the cost of living. Costs now are at an all-time high, but if costs were reduced he thought room rates should be re-considered.

Decision to increase room rates was made at the last meeting of the hospital board, the increase going into effect on July 8th.

MARMORA

Five Deer in One Herd Seen Near Village

Marmora—Five or more deer have been showing a partiality for the farm fields of Harry Neal south of the village. In the early part of this week he saw two does, two fawns and a buck at one time. On a closer inspection of the field, he saw much trampled hay suggesting that the deer had spent considerable time there. In one place the hay was almost completely flattened down as though two bucks in staging a fight had rolled over a number of times. South of No. 7 highway in which Mr. Neal's farm is situated has been set aside a sanctuary for deer. They may not be hunted there at any time of the year. It would appear the deer are becoming safety conscious and are gradually drifting into the protected area.

Canada May Send Transport Planes To Korean Front

Ottawa, July 14 (CP)—The R.C.A.F. is laying plans to be ready for a variety of emergencies as a result of Korea, including possible use of transport planes to ferry American men and supplies to Japan, officials said Thursday.

The plans include defence of Canada as well as potential forms of aid for the United Nations in Korea should the cabinet order them. Officials stressed, however, that they are merely precautionary plans until the cabinet gives directions.

Defence Minister Claxton is due back from Newfoundland this weekend and may then consider a recommendation to cabinet that transport planes be turned over to U.N.

The R.C.A.F. has both Dakota and North Star transport aircraft in service. It has no surfeit of either but could probably provide a half-dozen or so with crews if required.

DAVIS IN CONFERENCE

Frankfurt, Germany, July 14—(AP)— T. C. Davis, newly-appointed head of the Canadian mission to Western Germany, conferred today with officials of the United States High Commission here.

Davis whose headquarters are in Bonn plans to go to Berlin tonight to visit the branch of the Canadian mission there and talk with Gen. Maxwell Taylor, U.S. Commander in Berlin.

Counterfeit U.S. Money Being Sold Says Newspaper

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—The Globe and Mail says today that counterfeit United States money is being sold on Jarvis Street, regarded as one of the city's wickedest streets.

In a newspage story, the paper says that $100 in bogus U.S. money can be bought for $70 Canadian. The story adds the bogus bills are easy ot recognize.

"...almost every panhandler, beggar, prostitute or drunk knows where sums of the phony money are available," the paper says. "and they will sell it to you for a price."

Biggest buyers, it went on, were persons planning on visiting the U.S. "Who would rather risk passing bogus money than pay the regular bank rate of exchange. For that reason few of the phony bills are found in Toronto."

Gen. MacArthur Accepts Flag Of United Nations

Tokyo, July 14 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur today accepted the flag of the United Nations and said his command would "do all in its power to uphold this noble ideal."

The flag—a white globe surrounded by laurel branches on a blue field—is the "symbol of one of the greatest efforts man has made to free himself." MacArthur said. He is U.N. commander for the Korean war as well as U.S. commander-in-chief of the Allied occupation of Japan.

The flag was presented by Gen. Joseph Lawton Collins, United States army chief of staff, in a brief ceremony at supreme Allied headquarters.

The three-by-five-foot standard is the same one that flew over the Palestine headquarters of the late Count Folke Bernadotte, U.N. mediator in the Holy Land dispute, a U.N. official said.

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION

Cornwall, July 14 — (CP) — Ronald Hunsinger, 15, and John Hunsinger, 20, of Ithaca, N.Y., were killed today when their motorcycle collided with a transport truck 18 miles west of Cornwall.

The brothers were eastbound on the highway and crashed head on into the transport driven by Robert Nuttall of Prescott, on a curve. Nuttall was not injured although his truck was badly damaged and caught fire.

NewElginSweeper Demonstrated On City Streets

Street sweeper operator for the Belleville Public Works Department for the past 23 years, Mr. Fred Bly, Dundas Street, East, had a new sweeper to practice on for a few hours this morning. It was a new Elgin sweeper brought to the city for a demonstration.

The city bought its first and only street sweeper—an Elgin—twenty-three years ago and since that time it has been operated by Mr. Bly. Today he stepped into the cab of the new demonstrator and after a few minutes' familiarization was right at home with the controls.

A few city officials and members of council, as well as ex-Alderman E. T. Cherry who bought the first sweeper 23 years ago, were on hand to witness the demonstration and inspect the demonstrator machine. Basically the construction of the machine follows the same principle as the 23-year-old machine now in use in the city.

The exceptions is the machine has been streamlined, mounted on pneumatic tires, has a cab for the protection of the operator, as well as many hydraulic controls for operation of the machine.

The sweeper which weighs roughly six tons, was brought to the city by Mussen's of Canada Ltd., Toronto, distributors for the machine. Price of the sweeper is approximately $12,000.

The machine is of the same type which two city representatives saw in operation in Detroit earlier in the week. The Wayne, another type of sweeper, was also seen in operation in Detroit.

IN MEMORIAM

TOWNSEND — In memory of a dear husband and father, Samuel Townsend, who passed away one year ago today, July 14th.

Often the silent heartache
Often a silent tear,
Always a beautiful memory
Of him we loved so dear.
God gave us the strength to fight it
And courage to bear the blow
But what it meant to lose him
No one will ever know.

Always remembered by wife and family, Harry, Mae and Clinton. J14

Explosion Damages Walk And Kills Man

Seattle, Wash., July 14 (AP)—At least one man was killed and eight others injured early today by an underground explosion that ripped out 60 feet of sidewalk and damaged a three-storey building.

Firemen battled flames that shot 15 and 20 feet above the sidewalk. Police Chief George B. Eastman said the fire originated in gas mains under the street and appeared to be the source of the blast.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—Prices edged slowly higher on the Toronto stock exchange today in an attempted recovery of two successive sessions of losses. Market leaders showed the best gains in the comparatively dull dealings. Golds, heavy losers in recent markets, jumped sharply. Volume for the first three hours was 804,000 shares.

Senior and junior gold producers jumped ahead at the opening and rose steadily as the session progressed. Yesterday the list dipped to the lowest average price level in seven years. Juniors showed gains today ranging up to 25 cents. McIntyre paced a strong senior list.

Industrials brightened on gains ranging from fractions to more than a point. Papers, refining oils and liquors were higher while utilities and steels were mixed.

Base metals moved quietly higher with International Nickel, East Sullivan and Quemont leading. Western oils showed an almost solid list of gains ranging up to 25 cents.

HOGS

Toronto, July 14 — (CP) — Truck hogs were $31 at Stratford, Ont., this morning.

Creamery prints: First grade, 55 cents.

Receipts were light at the Toronto egg market this morning. Paying prices to country shippers for top grades are up fractionally. Country shippers' quoted eggs, cases free: Grade A large 49; A medium 47; A pullet 38-39; Grade B 32; Grade C 28. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 53; A medium 51; A pullet 42; Grade B 36-37; Grade C 32-33.

Butter solids: First grade solids, tenderable, 53, non-tenderable, 52; second grade solids (nominal) 48.

INTENSE

Artillery fire from both sides of the Kum was active but a heavy United States counter battery silenced the red guns in late afternoon.

When the big push across the river comes, the communists will have to attempt it without the 1st division, which headed the long drive of more than 150 miles from the North Korean border to the Kum.

Gen. MacArthur's communique said the 1st division, described as North Korea's finest, was so badly mauled by U.S. ground troops and air blows that it has been replaced by the 6th division.

The comunique still showed concern over the sweeping eastward movement by two red divisions. They threaten to cut off the Kum and Taejon from supplies coming up from Pusan, southeast port.

It said the reds still were driving toward Hamchong and Andong. These cities are 44 and 75 miles east of Taejon and about 60 miles north of Taegu on the highway from Pusan to the front. Hamchang is only 32 miles north of Kumchon, another road point.

A spokesman at advanced U.S. headquarters said, however, that the South Korean army had generally stabilized this eastern sector of the front. It apaprently was based on information later than that in the communique.

Allied planes kept up their ceaseless hammering of invader ground forces back of the front Thursday. A far east air force communique listed nine enemy tanks destroyed, 12 damaged, 45 trucks destroyed and 58 damaged.

The North Korean radio broadcast that Thursday's mass B-29 strike hit Wonsan, eastern seaport 80 miles north of the 38th parallel. Nearly 50 Superforts bombed the target by radar. The broadcast charged that "indiscriminate bombing" had caused many casualties in schools and hospitals.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U.S. Air Force Chief of Staff, said the speed with which the United States mounted its big Superfort strike "should give food for thought to those in the world who would violate by military aggression the peace and independence of others."

There were few details of the first patrol clashes along the Kum River, which winds from five miles west to 13 miles north of Taejon. It was at Taejon that the South Korean government took refuge and the U.S. army set up advance headquarters. Both may have moved out by this time.

William R. Moore, Associated Press Corresponednt, in a front dispatch said that about 100 communist troops appeared on the north bank of the Kum at the approach of a blasted railroad bridge.

They immediately drew a hail of small arms fire and quickly withdrew. Moore said two other attempts by patrols to cross were repulsed. He gave no hint that any of the northerners had crossed.

MacArthur's communique said there had been little change along the central part of the front.

INCREASED

"We look forward confidently, therefore, to a final judgment in the near future which will provide the balance of the increased revenue for which we originally applied."

Here are some new and present rates for two-party residence and individual-business hand telephones in typical centres (old rates bracketed):

Belleville, Chatham, Galt, Guelph, North Bay, Owen Sound, St. Thomas, Sault Ste. Marie, Stratford, Welland: residence $2.90 ($2.35); business $5.60 ($4.10).

Police Arrest Toronto Man In Swindle Case

Toronto, July 14 — (CP)—Detectives Thursday night arrested 30-year-old Hugh F. Imming, wanted in connection with the $100,000 swindle of a finance company.

Imming had been living under an alias in Toronto since last October when the Colonial Finance Company's Peterborough office was hoodwinked by two persons pretending to be used car dealers.

Earlier this year police arrested Aubrey S. Hamcock, 36, in Vancouver. He was sentenced to three years on 25 charges involving forgery and false pretences.

Police said two men forged agreements for sale and fictitious loan applications which they sent the finance company. Loans were sent out and monthly payments were paid for a few months but suddenly stopped.

Smoke and Flames Envelop Freighter In Bombay Docks

Bombay, July 14—(Reuters)—Smoke and flames enveloped the 9,000 - ton freighter Heligonian Queen today nearly 18 hours after she caught fire in Bombay docks last night.

The port fire brigades which had been fighting the blaze all night, succeeded in localizing it in the ship's second hold in which 5,500 cotton bales and a large number of bitumen drums were still smouldering.

An officer of the Halegonian Queen said the ship was originally Canadian-owned, but had been transferred to County Ship Management Company Limited of Britain.

The crew compromises 13 Britons and 42 Indians.

There were no casualties. Extent of damage has not been estimated.

NEW PARTS DIVISION FORMED

Windsor, July 14 — (CP) — Creation of a new parts and accessories division of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., was announced today.

George H. Bates, a native of Aylmer, Ont., has been appointed general manager of the new division, which will include the company's regional parts depots at St. John, N.B., Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver.

Korean Sidelights

San Francisco, July 14 (AP)—Fighting in Korea and the rush to muster transportation, men and supplies hasn't halted pleasure travel to the Far East.

The luxury liner President Wilson sails today with 500 commercial passengers —no troops—for Japan and other Pacific ports.

London, July 14 (Reuters) — Moscow radio today quoted a Pyongyang dispatch saying that women in North Korea had replaced men in many factories. The men had left for the front.

North Korea was making an "all out effort" to step up industrial production in the rear, the dispatch added.

Toyko, July 14 (AP) —Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida told the new session of the diet (parliament) today that Japan will "co-operate within the limits of her ability" in the Korean campaign.

"We see before our eyes," he declared "the sinister arm of Red aggression. . .our country itself is by no means free from danger."

Violent Rain, Electric Storm Sweeps Ontario

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—A series of violent rain and electrical storms swept through Ontario Thursday and caused slight damage and a few casualties. No one was reported killed.

Heavy rain and some damage were reported in London, Hamilton, North Bay and in the Muskoka district. The weather office in Hamilton registered 9.18 inches or rainfall during the storm's short duration.

Near Woodbridge, 15 miles northwest of Toronto, Dr. G. B. Fuller and his wife, Helen, from Loudonville, Ohio, were injured when their automobile plunged off No. 7 highway in the blinding rain and overturned. Dr. Fuller, suffering from a heart condition, was taken to hospital in Toronto with severe chest injuries. Mrs. Fuller escaped with minor cuts and shock.

The nine-room home of Almon Madden, Napanee district farmer, was gutted by fire when it was struck by lightning. Mr. Madden suffered cuts to his hand when he smashed his fist through a pane of glass while fighting the fire. H. J. Knuth, a member of Napanee's volunteer fire department, also was cut.

In suburban Weston, lightning struck a jewelry store and a house causing slight damage. Lightning also struck the post office in Richmond Hill, 15 miles north of Toronto, and blew out the lights.

A bolt struck the chimney of Hamilton's Delta United Church, toppling a section to the ground.

Power failures were reported in many sections of the province and line crews worked into the night to restore service.

Explore Area Of L. Nipissing For Iron Deposits

Toronto, July 14. (CP)—A large area of Lake Nipissing has been leased to Robert A. Jowsey, of Toronto, for exploration of iron mining prospects, an official of the mines department said today.

The area, leased for five years, includes islands in the centre of the lake, about 20 miles west of North Bay, where hematite boulders are similar to boulders found along the shore of Steep Rock Lakes in Western Ontario.

Original discovery of the iron ore was made in 1854 when Alexander Murray, geologist, was sent by the geological survey of Canada to Iron Island.

Mines department officials said Jowseys' lease is renewable after five years. It covers an area four by six miles, or approximately 15,000 acres. Under its terms, the lessee must spend $24,000 each year on geological, geophysical or diamond-drilling work.

Czechs Order U.S. Institute Be Dissolved

Prague, July 14 — (Reuters)—Czechoslovakian security authorities have ordered immediate closing and dissolution of the American institute in Czechoslovakia—a cultural organization with some 2,000 Czech members in Prague and branches in many of the principal Czechoslovak towns— it was announced today.

The order to close the institute, given by the ministry of national security, was published in the official gazette.

US Govt. to Pay $31,100,000 To Ute Indians

Washington, July 14 — (AP)—The United States government agreed yesterday to pay the Ute Indian tribes of Colorado and Utah $31,700,000 in settlement of a land dispute dating back to 1891.

The award by the U. S. Court of claims consists of four judgments. One of the four, for $24,296,127, is said to be the largest ever made against the government by the court.

The judgments are in payment for more than 6,000,000 acres of land taken from the Utes by the U. S. government.

The award was said to represent more than $10,000 for each member of the Confederated tribes.

Russian-Born Woman Berserk Over Korean News

London, Ont., July 14. (CP)—Police said today a 35-year-old Russian born woman, her past experiences in war torn Europe and the war news from Korea preying on her nerves, went berserk yesterday and caused $500 damage to furniture and windows in a rooming house. Police said her husband was killed during the recent war. She was taken to a police station and from there to hospital.

Earlier she had been quietened and removed from a nearby grocery store by police when she stood in the middle of the floor and screamed about Hitler and Stalin. Police had been called also the night before when she became upset.

Charge Youth With Attempted Illegal Operation

Windsor, Ont., July 14 — (CP) — Police today arrested David Carswell, 18-year-old Windsor boy, and charged him with attempting an illegal operation that resulted in the death of 16-year-old Margaret Jean Smith.

Carswell was a former boy friend of the dead girl, police said.

The bound and weighted body of the attracive high school student was found in the Detroit River Wednesday. A coroner's report said that she died of a "fairly recent illegal operation."

She had been missing since July 6.

P.M. AT CALGARY STAMPEDE

Undoubtedly some people are looking with distaste at the actions of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent during the Calgary Stampede. He has been called a "cowpuncher," "Lou," and in all seems to have undergone a change in character since he went west.

We expect that the P.M.'s critics will wax loud and long against the loss of high dignity, but they should be forestalled by his own confession that he has always wanted to do two things, one of which was to lead a parade in a cowboy suit. The other ambition was to drive a locomotive, and he accomplished that in Chicago recently.

Those same critics are possibly disgruntled because their cities, if they have had the honor of a visit from Mr. St. Laurent, did not think of the cowboy scheme. The usual procedure for visiting dignitaries is to drive them around in an open car, if the weather is suitable, to see the beauty spots and industries of the city. What could be duller to a visitor, when he is faced with a steady succession of such visits?

We compliment the promoters of the Calgary Stampede for seeing that the Prime Minister got into the spirit of things, and beg to tell Mr. St. Laurent that he should disregard the critics more often — the departure from standard will do him good.

PAVEMENTS THAT ARE FLEXIBLE

The Enginering Institute of Canada, we note, has come up with a new wrinkle for better road surfaces. Their idea is that powdered rubber be incorporated into the highway pavements, giving a softer ride and greater lasting power to the roads.

At the annual meeting of the Institute held in Toronto W. A. Clarke, executive assistant to the chief engineer, Ontario Department of Highways, emphasized that while experiments were still being carried out to ascertain the value of the new scheme, such research has paid off in better roads before.

The experiments are to be carried out with bituminous or flexible type pavements because they are more adaptable to the construction. Engineers claim that low cost construction will be achieved with local labor, materials and equipment, and that the resultant road will lend itself to maintenance and repairs. It has no joints, and as is to be expected with rubber as one of its components, has a high degree of resiliency.

The care and building of highways involves more than just laying the pavement and patching it. The science of road building now includes aerial and traffic surveys, surveys of origin and destination of the roads, drainage and the correct use of packing material.

It is amazing how industries and trades can grow from small beginnings. In this case, the automobile and the science of road building grew because the old mare didn't go fast enough to suit one ban.

OLD BOOKS VALUE

Every now and then someone turns up with a hunch that the battered old family Bible in the trunk upstairs, their heirloom with the yellowed pages, archaic type and—above all—the 17th Century imprint is a treasure some day to be disposed of in the market for countless thousands.

In the vast majority of cases, it could not be sold for a song.

On the rare book market age is only one and by no means the most important criterion of value. Scarcity is a more obvious measuring stick. The highest price ever paid for a volume on this side of the Atlantic was $151,000, the amount realized in 1947 for a copy of the Bay Psalm Book, the first of any significance to be published in what is now the United States. Eleven copies are known but it does not follow that the others are comparable in market value, condition being also a prime factor.

Sometimes values decline with time, even in the absence of depression. Thus Fanshawe: A Tale, the suppressed volume of Nathaniel Hawthorne, sold for $5,800 in 1930; more copies turned up and in the 40's two sold for $375 and $260 respectively.

Most old Bibles have little commercial value. The Gutenbergs are exceptional, though according to Associated Press not really rare, numbers being preserved in museums and private collections. In prime condition a Gutenberg may bring $150,000. The first edition of the Scriptures to be published in the New World, Eliot's Indian Bible, (Cambridge: 1661-1663) has sold for $5,000. — Winnipeg Free Press.

The Royal Canadian Navy now has an official tie, which may be worn with plain clothes by serving and former members of the RCN, says Ottawa Journal. The design features red maple leaves and gold crowns on a dark blue background, and the tie should be a popular item with the well-dressed sailor.

WHAT IS EDUCATION?

There are four great universities in Scotland. Some years ago Sir James Barrie, addressing a group of students, reminded them that there are not four universities in Scotland, but five. The fifth one, he said, is made up of the humble and godly homes out of which you have come. That university was founded before any of the others, and the four which you now call universities are only her whelps.

There are many educators who say that the moral character of students is either made or marred before the student enters college. It is certain that for better or worse, most of us were early walking in the pathways in which for the most part we have continued through the years.

Modern parents are alert, as parents have probably never been before, to give their children every advantage. Yet so many do not realize that the most important element in the equipment of a happy man or woman is religious faith and the convictions regarding right and wrong which flow from this faith. Of what use is a fancy education if a child loses his faith or learns certain bad habits which may later lead to ruin?

Education is training for a living.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The papers across Canada contain sporadic stories of assaults by men on girls and women. It is a fact well known to police that a good many of these peculiarly cowardly and brutal assaults never get into the papers, and many do not even reach the police. There is something soiling about these cases which many families prefer to avoid by refraining from reporting them to the police. When one of the moltsters is convicted, the rule should be that his picture be printed in the press so that any others who may have suffered at his hands might quietly convey the particulars to the police to be entered unofficially on the gentleman's biography at police headquarters. The day is inevitably coming when habitual molesters of girls and women will have to be taken in hand as psychopathic cases; and in that event, the police will be in need of good case histories on these petty monsters.

They are hardly monsters, at that. They are reverse gargoyles, rather, who look like men on the outside, but like toads and lizards within. In the rating of cowardice, they come near the bottom.

But in each of these cases, the police ought to ask the girl involved one question:

"What were you doing out alone at that particular time and place where such an assault could be committed?"

For there must be very few women or girls anywhere so lacking in family or friends that they could not have an escort whenthey have to go even short distances through unfrequented neighborhoods at unfrequented hours.

Goodness knows where the responsibility lies for the existence of these twist-brain molesters. But the responsibility for the safety of the women and girls lies in some considerable measure on themselves. They have got to use their heads.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

Calgary, Alta.—Our first mail arrived today from St. John's Newfoundland, where the leading paper is running these trans-Canada notes. A feminine reader there suggests it might be interesting to get the woman's view of trailer life and so Grace has been scribbling away. Here are some of her impressions:

• • •

I get hysterical with laughter when I think of the dreamed-of escape from housework our trip promised. Like those other trailer-wives we have met on the road I find it's a big job to keep a caravan tidy and a bigger job to keep the travellers that way.

Never worked so hard, felt so well or looked so terrible.

I'm beginning to appreciate the theory that the smaller the house the bigger the job of keeping it clean, especially when you are travelling with the world's champion droppers and leavers of clothes.

• • •

The days we travel are sandwiched by some pretty hectic activity. In the morning there's the task of putting everything away so that the trailer's motion won't shake them loose.

We had considerable chaos in the refrigerator for the first few days, but now I've learned to pack things so that we no longer have eggs in the jello.

When we've come to roost there's the unpacking to do. Then there are those extra-special days when we've run into dust and an otherwise carefree life reaches its lowest ebb. It gets in the trailer like pale brown talcum powder. Start out the day all clean and crisp and end looking like the Joad family. It gets into your nose, eyes and mouth.

We've invested a small fortune in lotions to keep moist. I look for those paved roads now even more eagerly than Jack.

• • •

I'll never again see a kitchen tap with unlimited cold water without thinking back to this trip.

When we're not hooked up to a water supply it means packing it by the pail and it's astonishing how much water you can use. In the beginning we had some rousing arguments about my "wasting" water. Now I cherish every drop.

One routine is fill the bathtub (but not too full), bathe the kids, do the washing and then the floor, all with the same slim rations. The real problem is rinsing. By the time I've used a tub of water our pressure system is down and as I've been elected official pumper ("It will take off that surplus") I find myself frequently on the business end of the bicycle pump.

What with bending over the scrub-board, scrubbing the floor and pumping I should be taking off a few pounds. But then there's that outdoors appetite, the old equalizer.

In our pre-caravan days my biggest problem was to get my family to eat. Now I can't stop them. For the first week I tried to make mealtime like home with table mats, napkins, etc., even a few wild flowers on the table. But I've smartened up now. They don't need any encouragement.

• • •

Shopping in the small towns is certainly a lot less attractive than city shopping. I suppose it's the slower turnover or perhaps because so many people in the country grow their own. Whatever it is, the fruit and vegetables are usually pretty exhausted.

It's more than a compensation, however, to have the fresh cream, eggs, butter and preserves from the friendly farms along the way.

• • •

Speaking of the woman's view, it's surprising how many of the women who visit us sympathize with me and offer the facilities in their homes. The kindness of the women we've met is just wonderful. Actually, the only thing we lack is a washing machine and the Laundromats, now in most towns, fill the bill. It's the first thing we look for when we enter a new place.

• • •

When I'm asked what I miss most about the "old life" I answer, truthfully. "Sleeping in the odd morning."

Jill wakes at the crack of dawn and pads into "our" room to start her morning routine, which consists of harassing us until we get up, an exercise in reverse child psychology.

We were worried at first about how Jill would react to all this, but she's taken to it nicely. Many of the United States women we've met in the trailer camps have told us of taking babies all over the continent without a hitch. The familiar things of home are right back of our car and, in fact, she's more at home in strange surroundings than any of us.

• • •

Some after-thoughts:

If you should ever plan a trailer trip, make a large gas frigidaire the first requirement on your list. Its been a constant delight and goes along through the worst dust and over all the bumps.

Keeping the children clean is a hopeless job. Whatever else Jack may find out about Canada, the trailer housewife finds out every day that Canada has an awful lot of dirt.

Time takes on a new meaning. The days seem to slip by. We all seem to feel content at night to sit in our tiny living room. Haven't yet been to a show.

The best part of the day is when the children are clean and in bed and we can get out the maps and decide what the next stop will be.

Our stove continues to blow up regularly, in spite of alterations we've made at several stops, but works fine after it has displayed its temperament.

Sure like to have a little of that Vancouver water . . . or the kind that lathers.

Dairy Farmers Are Advertising

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Your leading editorial the other day—Dairy Farmers Decide to Advertise—pleased this reader. In my opinion the development has even more significance than appears immediately on the surface of the news itself; i.e., "There will be a one-cent-a-pound deduction on butterfat or the milk equivalent during June. Dairy officials estimate that this levy will raise $250,000 during the month. However, the individual cost per farmer will be very small."

There is a well-known adage which says "Necessity does every thing well," and I find it both revealing and encouraging to see the above realistic decision of our dairy farmers to take a lead from technique of the oleo manufacturers in "taking full advantage of every advertising device to push the sale of their product."

But to me, sir, the interesting thing is the trend, i.e., the decision itself? From a life-long observation of the organized farmers in action (in good times and in bad), I have noted one enduring aspect in the pattern of their operations; namely, that while they may be a bit slow in the 'take off', once they chart a course they hang to it and the target, with a tenacity which has been termed "the despair of their enemies and the delight of their friends."

I have the impression that the above decision is merely the initial arc in this 'farm publicity and advertising' circle which will widen in its application and general aim, until it includes the entire agricultural establishment from coast to coast?

In case some of your urban readers are inclined to aceent the pressure of the aforesaid $250,000 I feel like reminding them that the multi-million-dollar "wheat pools" on the prairies grew from this same modest financial levy stem, i.e., "two cents per bushel" out of the wheat delivered, to the market by the grower-members, who had signed a five-year contract, favoring the pool way.

Grim Position Of U.S. Takes Turn for Better

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The grim position of United States troops in Korea has taken at least a temporary turn for the better as the result of a successful withdrawal to new defence lines just south of the Kum River, which forms a difficult obstacle to the advance of the North Korean invaders.

This operation was the culmination of what Gen. MacArthur's headquarters described as "one of the most skillful and heroic holding and rear-guard actions in history." Its purpose was to provide time for the movement of reinforcements.

The story of that fighting withdrawal is an epic. About 1,600 Americans had fought 18,000 North Koreans who were supported by heavy Russian - built tanks. This meant 10-1 odds — odds which at times swelled to about 20 to 1.

American losses appear to be remarkably small for such a fight. A communist broadcast claimed that 700 were killed and 200 captured, but MacArthur last night gave the figure as 42 killed, 190 wounded and 256 missing.

Crossing Difficult

Of course the successful crossing to the south bank of the Kum doesn't mean that the battle is finished — not by a long shot. The crossing is difficult but even as this was written the North Koreans were preparing for a fresh attack. In anticipation of this, Allied planes had been bombing the red supply trains north of the river.

Still, the successful withdrawal to the south bank of the river could represent the turning point in what thus far has been a most unequal conflict. American reinforcements and war supplies are converging on Korea.

While we have dug our toes in, and are in Korea to stay, yet there is a long, hard fight ahead of us before we can claim victory. Don't forget what this column has said before — that communist North Korea might be the funnel through which hundreds of thousands of Manchurian and Chinese communist troops would be poured against us in South Korea.

FIXED OR REMOVEABLE?

Which is best, asks a reader, a fixed or a removable bridge?

Yes, I'm listening. Please finish your question. You mean a fixed bridge or a removable bridge or a good patch or repair job on my own teeth?

For health, comfort, good looks, preservation of the characteristics of youth and longevity, I'd gladly pay three times as much and take three times as much time and trouble for a good patch or repair job on my own teeth as either kind of bridge would cost.

But assuming that I am as ignorant as the majority of people are about the care of the teeth—you know, most of you Yankee Wiseacres have a childish notion that if you scrub your teeth like mad several times a day with somebody's glorified soap or scrubbing powder and just the right twist of the wrist to fulfill the requirements laid down by dental authorities who believe a decayed tooth is never clean, you can preserve your teeth without squandering your good cigarette, booze and toothpaste money for the services of a dentist—assuming I am as childish as you are about care of the teeth, I'd leave it to my dentist to decide whether a fixed or a movable bridge would be the more practical denture to install in my case.

Well, no, maybe not, in the circumstances—for if I were as ignorant as most people about care of the teeth I'd probably not have enough sense to select a good dentist in the first place —I'd probably patronize one who cries his wares in the marketplace and lures the gullible by dangling cheap price tags on certain jobs.

The reader who asks about the relative value of fixed and removable bridges goes on to say that his dentist installed a fixed bridge, but now his friends tell him that he was a sucker for a higher cost job, besides having two good teeth ruined.

Obviously the man has little faith or confidence in the integrity or reliability of the dentist.

It is a matter of good common sense and, in the long run, real economy, to select a dentist you can rely on as you do your family doctor. Family physician? From the most recent census of physicians in practice it would appear that of the 120,000 in the United States 40,000 are "specialists." That leaves only enough general practitioners to serve a million people. The other 149 million people are left to worry along without family physicians —and perhaps that's the way they like it. Certainly the $300 snobs who ignore the "ordinary doctor", to run to a "specialist" with their complaints believe the doctor who calls himself a "specialist" is better trained or has greater knowledge or skill than "ordinary" doctors. The gullible ones who employ pediatricians or baby "specialist", for instance, and pay them two or three times what a less pretentious doctor would charge for the service.

The specialism racket has not grown to such outlandish proportions in dentistry as in medicine, thank goodness. Even $400 or $450 snobs have their teeth cared for by ordinary dentists and consult specialists only when their dentists advise it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Makes Like a Termite

Grandson, aged two years, is always eating wood on the porch and on the porch floor. He seems to crave it and I'm so worried. (Mrs. J. E. A.)

Answer—It will do him no harm, as long as he doesn't chew on painted wood, toys or other painted things.

Good Coffee

Didn't you say that coffee should not be boiled more than five minutes? (E. S. T.)

Answer—I said coffee should not be boiled—unless you hate the one who has to drink it. How to Make Coffee and Keep Friends is a chapter in the red book, What to Eat and Why. For copy of the red book send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Why Take Soda?

Please advise whether it is harmful to take a teaspoonful of baking soda daily or occasionally for medicine. (Mrs. L. B.)

Answer—It is harmful. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet Yankee Stomach.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DIGNITY

I care not what one's work may be, it can always be performed with dignity and worthy of personal credit. Even the most menial of jobs can be placed in this class. Wherever the sweat of the brow is contributed to one's own comfort and those dear to one, there is dignity in that performance, no matter what the task may be.

Robert Louis Stevenson, in one of his delightful books, had this to say: "Though I have all my life been eager for legitimate distinction, I can lay my hand upon my heart, at the end of my career, and declare there is not one—no, not yet life itself — which is worth acquiring or preserving at the slightest cost of dignity."

The equipment, that becomes ours at birth, is a precious asset. The more we do with that asset, the happier and more satisfactory will life itself be. Even a dog has an inborn dignity. Violate it and that dog's regard and loyalty are at once sorely attacked. How much more, then, is this dignity of ours harmed and hurt when it is assailed.

We can always exercise dignity without being a snob at it. As a matter of fact, those with the most cherished personal dignity are usually those who have the most regard for other people's feelings, and so make themselves friendly and likable to everybody, recognizing that the humblest has rights equal to our own.

The happiest, and the most useful, person is that one who spends no more than he earns, envies not that one who is more fortunate, rigidly adhering to his own method of handling life, keeping himself "in complete contentment and activity of mind and senses." Such a one can glory in his independence and his well earned dignity of character.

Several times I have mentioned in this space the instance of a remote graveyard in New England, where a young girl was buried, and on her tombstone were these words: "She Was So Pleasant." That line made a great impression on me, and is something to remember. She was so pleasant I am sure that she carried that manner with outstanding dignity—noticed by all.

BILL APPROVED

Washington, July 14 (AP) — An equal-pay bill for women, making it an unfair practice to discriminate in pay because of sex, was approved yesterday by the Senate Labor Committee. Violators would be subject to a maximum penalty of $5,000 fine and a year's imprisonment.

New Sidewalk May be Laid States Mayor

Trenton (Special) — Council is considering constructing a sidewalk along Division Street to the corner of the Trent Theatre Building and across the back of several buildings to Loblaw's new groceteria, Mayor Couch said in an interview Wednesday afternoon.

If council definitely decides to lay the new sidewalk, Mayor Couch said that two-hour parking meters would probably be installed when the sidewalk is being built around the police station-market square area as well.

Mr. Couch said this proposal will be discussed at the council meeting Friday night along with the matter of paving the parking lot behind the Brewers Warehouse.

Council to Meet Board Of Education

On Monday evening, council and the Board of Education will meet in Trenton High School to discuss the Board of Education's new school construction program.

Representatives of the Board met with Department of Education officials in Toronto recently and the department gave it's tentative approval to a $936,000 building program to provide a new eight room public school and 600 pupil high school in Trenton.

Representatives of the Department of Education and the Ontario Municipal Board will be present at the meeting to furnish information to the two civic bodies.

Assessor Takes New Position

Assessor E. J. Davis will leave Monday for Peterborough where he will take up his new duties as Chief Assessment Officer for the city of Peterborough. Mr. Davis has been Trenton Assessor since February 1948.

C of C to Act On Suggestion Of Mayor Couch

Trenton (Special) Mayor Couch suggested last week that removable metal containers be placed on parking meter standards to try and discourage people from throwing trash on the street. After reading about the mayor's suggestion in local newspapers, the Chamber of Commerce has decided to act on the mayor's proposal.

"Since the Chamber of Commerce is interested it is my wish that they carry on with it," Mayor Couch said yesterday. "The Chamber of Commerce has discussed the matter with Mayor Couch and has agreed to co-operate with him in putting the idea into practice.

E. W. Smith, Chamber of Commerce Secretary said Thursday afternoon that he is writing to a company that manufactures steel containers of the type suggested and he expects a reply in a few days.

When asked if it would be possible to place the receptacles on the meter standards, clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry said he was unable to say as he had not yet examined the agreement between the town and the company which installed the meters in this regard.

Chamber of Commerce Directors Meet

A meeting of the Directors of Trenton Chamber of Commerce was held on Tuesday. Business was of routine nature but E. W. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce said that it was decided to hold a special director's meeting next week "to give definite consideration to drawing up a new set of Chamber of Commerce by-laws.

Three-Bagger Wins Contest For Weese Motors

Trenton — (Special) — Winning his own ball game by scoring the deciding run with a three-bagger in the last of the tenth, Harry Farr pitched six-hit ball as Weese Motors edged out RCAF Technical Wing 4 to 3 in an exhibition softball feature at Bayshore Park Wednesday night.

Farr really had a big night on the Chevrolet mound as he struck out 10 and walked three in the ten-inning stretch. In the first of the tenth, Technical Wing tagged Farr for three singles to load the bases but the Airmen were unable to get past third, as Farr fired the third strike by the next three hitters.

For the Airmen, Thompson went the distance and also turned in a stellar performance as he fanned 11 and only gave up one free base ticket. There were only two extra base clouts in the entire game, and Chevrolets collected both, Farr's triple in the tenth, and a double by left fielder Jefferey.

There were few errors, as both teams played careful ball. Norm McHue's boys made four errors while Technical Wing was only credited with three errors. Technical Wing catcher Joe Semain made a costly error in the ninth which brought in the tying run. Pinch hitter Forbes decided to break for third and Semain fired the ball over the head of third baseman Finner permitting Forbes to tie up the game.

The teams:

MARMORA

Fifer at 'Walks' For 'Fifty Years

Marmora—Fifty years as a fifer have been completed by Albert Bartlett of Marmora. The first occasion for him to appear in public with his fife was at the celebration held in Tweed in 1900 when he played for the home lodge. The next year he was living at Cordova Mines and the L.O.L. there engaged him as snare drummer. Soon however, he was established as fifer for the neighboring Blairton lodge. Later he moved to Marmora to be engaged first by the now dormant True Blue lodge for several successive celebrations, and after that by Marmora L.O.L. 319 and Golden Star 748 Royal Black Preceptory. He is engaged by the latter for the celebration at Frankford on August 12. The only time he has missed playing during his half century as a fifer was when overseas with the Canadian infantry 1915-1919. Now in his seventy-third year he still handles the fife with the ability of many a younger man. Possessing a strong voice he has also been a singer of sentimental and comic songs over a long period.

TO BRIDES-ELECT

Brides-elect desiring publication of the accounts of their weddings and affairs held in their honor before the event, are advised to consult the Women's Editor when the engagement is announced, or at least to get a write-up form. Owing to the large number of weddings scheduled for coming weeks, accounts coming in after the date of the wedding will, of necessity, have to be curtailed. —Ed.

Miss Joyce Elmy Presented With Miscellaneous Gifts

On Wednesday evening, a number of girl friends of Miss Joyce Elmy, bride-elect of the month, gathered at her home, Dunbar St., to tender her a surprise miscellaneous shower.

The evening was spent in "A Motor Romance" contest, music and a social get-together. After the bride-to-be thanked her friends for the beautiful gifts and invited all to visit her in her new home, refreshments were served.

Prior to this, Miss Dorothy Baverstock opened her home on Boswell Street, where the girls of the Northern Electric Co., office staff, all co-workers of Joyce, tendered her a lovely miscellaneous shower. The evening was spent in music and fun.

After the bride-to-be thanked her friends for the lovely gifts, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her mother.

Shower, Euchre And Dance Held For Newly-Weds

A delightful shower, euchre and dance was held at Hillcrest school early this week for Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Bunnett, the bride being the former Joan Dennis.

There were more than 50 present to pay honor to the newly-married couple and an evening of enjoyment was held. The euchre winners were, Mrs. Mabel Green, Mrs. Kay Dafoe, while Stewart Dafoe and Eugene Bunnett were winners in the men's section. The consolation prize was won by George Reddick.

At the conclusion of play the happy couple were called to the centre of the floor and with the assistance of Miss Joyce Clarke, opened the many beautiful gifts from their many well wishers.

A delicious buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. E. Bunnett, Miss J. Clarke and Mrs. C. Barr, after which the room was cleared for dancing and with music supplied by Mrs. Mickey Hines and Jerry Clement, the gathering enjoyed square and round dancing till the early hours. Roy Clarke and Ernie Dafoe were the callers for the square.

Mr., Mrs. H.A. Donald Celebrate Golden Wedding Day

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Donald, of Frankford, Ontario, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. Guy Stickle, and Mr. Stickle, also of Frankford, where they were at home to their eight children; Mrs. Lissie Vanclief of Consecon; Mrs. Guy (Maude) Stickle, Frankford; Mrs. Albert (Evelyn) Weese, of Lakefield; Mrs. Dick (Annie) Derry, of Eldorado; Colin Donald, at home; Mrs. Walter (Jessie) Abrams, of Halloway; Andrew Donald, of Consecon, and Mrs. Olga Donald, at home.

Thirty-five grandchildren, beside several friends and relatives were present for this great occasion and nine great grandchildren. All enjoyed the delicious buffet luncheon which was served to 77 guests, at long tables on the lawn under the shade of overhanging branches of stately trees. A three tiered wedding cake decorated appropriately, with golden lettering, centred the bride and bridegroom's table.

Following the luncheon, the bride and bridegroom of 50 years ago were hilariously charivaried by the younger grandchildren and great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Donald were then given places of honor and profusely showered with multi-colored confetti, after which they were presented with a pair of beautifully upholstered easy chairs, and several other gifts, for which the givers were graciously thanked.

The rest of the pleasant time was spent in reminiscing of the long ago. All extended to Mr. and Mrs. Donald sincere wishes for many years of happiness together.

Bride-to-be Showered With Kitchenware

Stirling.—The home of Mrs. Kenneth Ray, Church Street, was the scene of a happy event on Tuesday evening last, when Mrs. Ray was hostess, and Mrs. Murney Scott and Mrs. Bob Merrick, co-hostesses at a delightfully arranged kitchen shower in honor of Miss Eleanor Johnson, a bride-to-be.

A short program was enjoyed and consisted of a sing-song; humorous readings by Mrs. Maurice Clancy; two solos by Miss Ruth Mumby with guitar accompaniment, and a humorous reading, Edgar Guest's "Advice to a Bride", by Mrs. B. Merrick.

Mrs. Murney Scott read an appropriate address and Mrs. K. Ray and Mrs. B. Merrick presented the bride-to-be with a large array of kitchenware.

Dainty refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Bare-Top Dresser 'Done to Death'

Tweeds and bare-top evening dresses often show up at the same party, and "both look terrible", said Mr. Shoup.

His recommendation is a simple dress-and-jacket ensemble — the dress low-cut, if desired, for possible dancing later—in a dark, rich fabric.

Incidentally, Mr. Shoup predicted a swing back to the covered-up look in evening dresses, even to long sleeves. The bare-top has been "done to death", he said.

Former Thurlow Resident Celebrates 90th Birthday

Ninety years ago today a little son, named James, came to live in the 8th concession of Thurlow, at the home of his pioneer parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neill, and until recently, when he retired, his entire life had been spent on the farm homestead, whose wide acres had first been cleared by his paternal grandparents. He attended Thurlow public school and Tweed High school.

Since that early time, until this month, the farm homeland has remained in the family, handed down from father to son, when, owing to ill health, Mr. O'Neill's son, Vincent, was obliged to sell to Mr. J. Miller.

Mr. O'Neill, who is new residing with his son-in-law, and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Haslip, (Annie), Grove Street; has two other children, one son, Vincent, Chatham Street, and Mrs. Joseph (Stella) Reid, Read, Ont.

Mr. O'Neill, who has been a widower for several years, is still enjoying the best of health, attends church regularly, takes a walk every day, and is intensely interested in political and community affairs. His three hobbies are reading, fishing and cards.

His many friends join in extending to Mr. O'Neill, heartiest congratulations in attaining his 90th milestone ,and wish for him years yet of health and happy hobbies.

Carnegie Look For Fall Will be As You Like it

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, July 14 (AP)—The Carnegie look for fall will be "as you like it."

Designer Hattie Carnegie, previewing her wholesale collection for the benefit of visiting fashion editors, accents separates every hour of the day, advising quick changes through switching blouses, skirts, belts and boleros, and call the whole idea "as you like it."

Notable in the group are evening separates, such as a black lace, hip-hugging skirt ankle length in front and dipping to the floor in back. With it is worn a sleeveless blouse of black lace and pale-blue satin, which may be exchanged for a variety of more or less formal tops.

Another in the series has a black faille skirt and pink faille top, for afternoon wear. The idea is practically limitless, explains the dynamic Miss Carnegie—and there's no reason at all why the idea of separate skirts and blouses has to be confined to pleasant cottons.

Other versatile ideas are Miss Carnegie's "day-and-night" suits, such as a smooth, softly-tailored model in gray wool, its double peplum buttoned all the way round with rhinestone buttons—that's for wear after five. For street and business wear, the jeweled buttons are unbuttoned and disappear beneath the buttonholes, making the suit just the kind of sleek, tailored outfit the well-dressed girl wears to the office.

The disappearing-button trick also is used on a black Russian broadtail coat which looks trim and unadorned for daytime, converts to an evening coat by buttoning the big sleeves back to the shoulder with jeweled buttons which up to now have nestled invisibly in small slots.

The Carnegie suit silhouette stresses the niped waist and rounded hipline, accents the natural curves of the figure.

Departing Neighbors Presented With Cheque by Community

Shannonville.—Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McFarlane entertained to dinner on Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Mills, Mrs. B. Hinchey, and Mr. Hugh Hinchey.

During the evening, several couples, who had assisted in the canvassing, gathered and Rev. W. L. Scott, briefly explained the meaning of the gathering and presented Mr. and Mrs. Mills with a substantial cheque. Mr. Mills made a suitable reply, thanking the people of the community, and expressed their regrets at having to leave this village. Mr. Mills, who is 98 years of age, had been in business here for 68 years, and is leaving soon to take up residence with their son, Reginald, in Barrie.

A social hour was spent and dainty refreshments served by the ladies after which all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows". Mr. Scott closed the evening with a short prayer. Rev. E. M. Caldwell was unable to be present.

Bride, Bridegroom Honored by Gift Of Table Lamp

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Fitchett opened their home on Wednesday evening last and entertained about 50 guests in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Hay, (nee Marie Ackers), who were recently married.

Rev. W. H. V. Walker was chairman in the absence of the Rev. A. J. Anderson, and gave a few words of kindly advice to the newlyweds. Mrs. Walker led in community singing. Readings were given by Mrs. Charles Vance on "Friendship"; Mrs. S. McIntosh, Mrs. S. Williams and Mrs. S. Demorest "Friends".

An address of appreciation was read to the bride and groom by Mrs. Foster and Mrs. C. Fitchett made the presentation of a lovely table lamp. Both Lyle and Marie made fitting replies, thanking their friends for the gift and invited everyone to visit them in their new home near Burnbrae.

Brief speeches were given by Mr. Hay; the groom's father; Mr. Fitchett and Mr. Clarke Rodgers.

Delicious refreshments of sandwiches, celery, cake and tea were served by the ladies and everyone enjoyed a social chat together.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Does love survive physical brutality?

Does a woman really mean it when she says she is still in love with a husband who has brutally mistreated her? What I think is, that any such wife is only fooling herself ,because I doubt very much if it is possible for love to survive the kind of treatment, for instance, as described in the following letter, which says:

"At 16, I married a boy 19. We have lived together for 10 years and have three children, two girls, eight and three, and a boy of 6. Ever since we have been married I have been treated like a stray dog. This began immediately after we were married. He has always beaten me, and some times I even had to have a doctor after he had mistreated me.

"About seven months ago I was expecting my fourth child, and our little boy was very sick. The doctor told us to watch him closely. In the night he turned black, and I tried to get my husband up to get the doctor, but he wouldn't budge. I was so nervous I walked the floor and cried, and finally pulled the covers off him in the hope that would get him up. He then jumped out of bed and beat me up, after which I had to go to the hospital and be operated on, and lost my baby, because it was so seriously injured in the beating.

"I was an adopted daughter, and my foster parents live in another state. They wanted me to leave my husband some time ago, but I refused. I told them that he would change some day. The trouble is, he hasn't changed.

"He is a farmer, and I work on the farm as hard as he does, and then do my housework. Sometimes he is good to me, but when he gets mad, he always beats me. If I leave him, would I have to leave my children too? I have no way of supporting them. I beg you to give me some advice, as I would rather be dead than mistreated all the time."

There are few situations in which what a person should do seems so clear. I think this woman should leave her husband just as fast as she can, and get just as far away from him as possible.

Before she does this, however, I think she should seek advice from either a lawyer or some social agency, so that she would not run the risk of laying herself open to a charge of desertion by her husband. If her present circumstances make it difficult for her to do this, she might write a letter to these foster parents of hers who have been urging her to leave her husband, and ask them to come to her aid. If they love her, as her letter suggests they do, they would probably be glad to do this, rather than to leave her to the continual abuse of this inhuman character.

As for the support of her three children, she has been a hard worker all these years, and could probably manage to find some way of earning money to care for them if she had it all to do herself. The sooner she can arrange to leave this man, the better.

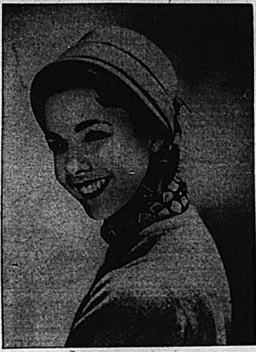
Buckled Chin-Strap is New



By PRUNELLA WOOD

WE LIKE all the little new tricks which beguile the teenagers. . .that is, if they are not in the shirt-tail-out, hobby-sox mood. Novelties, conversation pieces, such as the strap which buckles under the chin for this tweed felt cloche, get our vote. The hat is a good one for sweaters and flannel suits, a good travelling piece for the summer holidayer. It has a ribbon band and bow above its double brim, and no one can call it either dull or infantile. . .two terms which youth abhors.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Household cooks don't have to apologize for being creatures of habit.

If their repertoire of dishes is limited, many can truthfully say that their families want the same old kitchen standbys day after day. Just let them try to serve Indo-Chinese fish chowder or Norwegian currant pudding and see how the distraught diners will first snicker and then rebel.

"My husband wants the same old thing" is simply another way of saying that eating habits like all others are stronger than most people will admit.

If you are satisfied with a limited number of dishes, then you shouldn't be satisfied until they're as delicious and perfect as you can make them.

If your family wants chicken every Sunday, the chicken should be succulent, tender and perfect even though simply prepared. If they choose dinner hamburgers in preference to filet mignon, the hamburgers should taste like the best beef in the world.

To keep from complete stultification, however, you should serve the hamburgers garnished with interesting, appetizing side dishes —French fried onions, broiled mushrooms or broiled pineapple slices.

Hamburgers with Broiled Pineapple—Serves 4.

Order 1 1-2 pounds fresh chopped beef. Beef should be put through a coarse chopper one time only.

In a mixing bowl combine beef with 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons chopper parsley, 2 teaspoons catsup, 2 tablespoons bread crumbs, and 2 tablespoons cold water. Mix very lightly. Kneading or overmixing will cause meat to "tighten" and become tough.

Shape into 4-5 hamburgers. Set meat in ice box to chill thoroughly. When ready to cook, brush hamburgers with salad oil, sprinkle lightly with paprika and salt. Place under a moderate broiler flame in shallow broiler pan. Brown on both sides.

Drain 4 slices of canned pineapple. Brush with melted butter or salad oil. Sprinkle one side lightly with cinnamon, sugar and curry powder. Place seasoned side under broiler. Broil until lightly browned on one side only.

Place pineapple rings alongside hamburgers on serving plates or platter. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

GOOD MANNERS

Good hint for a good traveller.

Be a "good sport". Accept with a pleasant manner and grace whatever happens. Don't let little things annoy you. Don't be a "fussy-and-fretty" traveller. . . if you are, you'll show either that you aren't used to travelling or that you aren't used to being pleasant, patient, poised. Make travelling a pleasure . . . not only for yourself, but for those travelling with you.

Hostess tells definite hours for arrival and departure of guests

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a beginner at being a weekend hostess, and in the very few times I've invited guests here I've felt very uncertain about just when to tell them I will expect them, and most uncertain about when to expect that they will leave. The term "week-end" seems rather indefinite, no one knowing just what time it includes. And although I love to have guests, I do all my own housework and cooking, and this takes careful planning of time. But still it doesn't seem to me very hospitable or courteous to 'tell' guests just when to arrive and just when to leave. What is the proper way?

Dolores L.

This problem of yours has become such a frequent problem that today a guest, particularly a weekend guest, expects to be 'told' quite definitely when to arrive (or to be given a choice of times convenient to the hostess), and to be told definitely too (or given a definite choice) when he or she is expected to depart. This definiteness is a perfect idea, a procedure that should be a comfort to a guest, and certainly a great convenience to a hostess—a host, too.

An excellent formula for this guiding information is somewhat like this in your invitation, verbal or by telephone or by note:

"There's a very good train late Friday afternoon; I have marked it in red on the time-table I'm enclosing. It arrives in Centreville at 6:15. Bob will meet you, and you'll be just in time for our rather early dinner. (Or there's a 9:12 train on Saturday morning, if Friday isn't convenient.) We hope you can plan to stay and take the early express train that Bob takes on Monday morning . . . .this arrives in town at— o'clock; but if you must get back earlier than that, there is a quite good 9:45 train Sunday evening.

Individual registration cards in hotels now

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister says that when you register in a hotel, you write your street-address as well as your name and city. I thought you wrote only your name and city. . . .this is what I have always read. Who is right?

D. L. J.

In the old-fashioned hotel register, the book register, there was space only for the guest's name, the city and state. But today practically all hotels, even small resort hotels, use individual registration cards (usually enclosed in a leather frame) . . and these cards have a special line for a street-address. And very convenient this is too, for reference, and for the forwarding of mail (or any article you've left in the hotel).

Passing plate for second helping

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We were married last April, have just started housekeeping, and my husband does the serving from his place at table. He and I have "placed a small bet" as to the correct way I should pass my plate to him for a second helping. That is, should I keep my knife and fork at my place (on the bread-and-butter plate, perhaps) until he serves the second helping and returns my plate, or should I leave the knife and fork on my plate? (We've decided to have you settle the bet. . . that's why I'm not telling you who bet what!)

Arline G.

Congratulations . . .you're a fair lady! The answer is that you should leave your knife and fork on your plate as you pass your plate for a second helping . . . handles parallel and close together, slightly turned to the right. Important note: Don't leave the knife resting on the rim of the plate. . .only the handle, not the blade, rests on the rim of the plate.

Sweater, bag and pumps

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

DEPICTED, here, is a sweater of importance, ready to make an impressive costume with a stark white dress or a white flannel skirt. It is of navy blue cashmere embriodered at the neckline and mid-arm with white braid. White buttons are used for the front closing. A rich combination is the theme of this hand-bag, consisting of white opaque plastic and dark brown semi-transparent mock tortoise shell. It is a smart oval shape, and there is a mirror on the underside of the lid. The handle is rigid. The pump is of white linen with brown leather for strap and heel. It is a likely choice for spectator sports wear.

Graceful Curves Supersede Boyish Flapper Slough

New York, (AP)—Girls will be girls again this Fall.

The last hint of the flat-chested silhouette, the boyish bob and the flapper slouch has been removed firmly from the Fall fashion picture .The designers vote unanimously for feminine curves.

Fall fashion previews will accentuate the positive, eliminate the negative.

The prevailing daytime silhouette for Fall will be slim but svelte, with sharply nipped waistline and accented curves above and below. Padded hips are apparent in many of the new Fall suits, and skilful draping dramatizes the bustline.

Skirts are almost uniformly slim and straight, slit for walking comfort and cut on peg-top lines. Their length is about the same as current styles or slightly shorter—14 to 16 inches from the floor, depending on the height of the wearer. Designers seem agreed that the most flattering skirt length is mid-calf.

Last season's abortive effort to bring back the unflattering sack silhouette of the 1920s has been killed indefinitely and finally by the roar of protest that went up from Mr. and Mrs. General Public.

Handsome Fabrics

Most dramatic news in the Fall fashion lineup is in fabrics, which are handsomer and more varied than in many years. Surface interest and texture are of first importance. Winter coats will appear in a number of new and unusual fabrics such as an imported "doormat" cloth, heavy and shaggy in the manner of its name sake, used by designers in "poodle" coats and Ven hats.

British and American tweeds are top favorites for suits, and are shown in new soft, lightweight versions that may be tailored as softly as fine worsteds. In the dressy categories there are heavy, rich ribbed silks, stiff slipper satins, silks that look like wool and wools that look like silk.

Color also has a field day in Fall styles. Nosing out black for town wear is the new charcoal or banker's gray, shown in suits, coats and dresses.

All the warm colors are in high favor for Fall, ranging from golden yellow, through orange and rust through the tawny Autumn leaf colors. Natural Kaska has returned for daytime wear.

Scottish tartans will be all over the place come September, especially in campus fashions. Scotch kilts, reaching just above the knee, are being introduced for college girls, to be worn with knee-length wool socks, knitted in Argyle patterns to match.

Evening fashions are strictly glamorous, with the short dinner dress gaining ground for all except the most formal occasions. The theatre or dinner suit, consisting of a strapless sheath and cover-up jacket, is slated to become a standard item. With the jacket, the outfit can be worn for any daytime occasion.

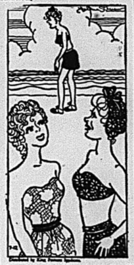
BEAUTY

Breast the waves

Of all the exercises, swimming is one of the best. It is to the credit of the members of the sisterhood that thousands of them enjoy his summer sport, that is so beneficial to the fact and the thin and those lucky girls whose figures qualify.

It stimulates all the organs of the body—the digestive motors, the lungs, the tissue structures, even the skin—and is a most helpful means of overcoming figure defects, such as narrow undeveloped chests and poor posture.

The girl who has acquired stooping shoulders should join the throngs at the beaches. She should, if possible, swim every day during the summer season. Plowing through the waves will expand the chest, send the shoulders into a normal position. The lungs take in the fullest measure of air; that reflects favorably upon the complexion and spurs up circulation.



The stoop-shouldered girl should join the throngs at the beaches

Swimming strengthens the muscles of the torso; for that reason the lady who carries too much adipose upholstery should plan to play mermaid whenever the opportunity presents itself. The movements of the arms lift the breasts and tightens tissues that have gone slack. Leg movements delete fat cells from bulky ankles and fatted calves.

Swimming seeks out muscles that are not ordinarily used in the day's activities and sets them to work. It is highly recommended for girls who have desk jobs or who stand behind counters, and for women who sit for hours at bridge tables and whose exercise consists of lifting an eyebrow now and then.

When posture is not what it should be it is often because the fibres that extend from the shoulder blades to the waist have lost elasticity. Then carriage is nothing to brag about, and the figure loses the graceful lines of younger days. Daily cavorting in the waves will bring about rejuvenation. The muscles will become resilient again. They are constantly stretching, contracting and stretching, thus gaining vitality.

Complete immersion immediately upon getting in the water is what the doctor orders. This practice equalizes circulation, brings a glow to the flesh. Dip under. Have the shock over with, like a brave girl.

It is advisable not to go into the water when overheated. Once in the water, keep moving.

Don't fail to take your sun-tan oil with you. Use it freely on face, neck, arms and shoulders. By that practice you will avoid sunburn which has a devastating effect upon a sensitive skin.

IVANHOE

Rev. W. H. V. Walker Gives Message at L.O.L. Church Service

Ivanhoe — West Huntingdon L.O.L. No. 300 held their annual church service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday last at 9.30; visiting Orangemen were present from Stirling, Ivanhoe and Frankford lodges.

The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. W. H. V. Walker who extended a warm welcome to the visitors.

Before leading in the responsive reading of Psalm 24, Worshipful Master, Alex McCurdy, brought greetings to all present and expressed the thanks of the order to the officials of the church.

The new testament lesson found in Romans I 1-17 was read by lodge secretary Arthur Hassall.

Mr. Walker delivered a stirring message based on Phil 1-27 "that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel."

Man Strives For Something Better

Man is not content with simply having something good, but strives for something better. The same urge for better things is shown down through history. Men have risked their lives for something better striving and working to attain the perfect manhood referred to in the words of Paul "Till we come unto the perfect manhood even the stature of the fulness of Christ."

One element of our national well-being is stability of character. Another is loyally without which it is impossible to safeguard our religion.

"We all need the faith of our fathers, a faith that has burned so brightly in the past, and we also need courage to support our faith. Physical courage to face death and moral courage to face life. The liberty we enjoy came to us through the toil and sacrifice of our patriotic fathers.

To us who enjoy the blessings of Protestantism is committed a sacred trust to preserve and defend our Protestant institutions and to do all we can to safeguard our Christian citizenship for which our father sacrificed so much.

Let our example be such that it is worthy of them who passed on to us the torch of faith. Let our conduct be marked with prudence, honesty, sobriety and loyalty, and in the name of our forefathers let us keep the flag of truth and the banner of righteousness flying.

The church was bright with baskets of pink roses and vases of sweet peas. During the service Mrs. Arthur Hassall sang "Thy Will Be Done."

Would Not Do Stunt Again For $50,000

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 13 — (CP)— Only living person who has gone over Niagara Falls, Jean Lussier of Niagara Falls, N.Y., said today he wouldn't take $50,000 to do the stunt in the steel barrel in which Major Lloyd Hill plans to try it Sunday.

Lussier made the descent in a rubber ball in 1928. Inspecting the barrel, the 32-year-old Hill plans to use, he gave the Niagara Falls, Ont., riverman only a 15 percent chance of coming out alive.

Although Lussier said he would not take $50,000 to try the feat in a wooden or steel barrel, he'd do it again in a rubber ball for $1,000.

Five persons have made the attempt, two losing their lives. Last attempt was by George Stathakis in 1930. His barrel remained submerged at the foot of the falls all night. Next morning, when the barrel reappeared, Stathakis was dead, although a pet turtle in the craft was still alive.

Hill—Major is his given name, not a military rank, shrugs off superstition. He has named his stainless steel barrel "Jiggs Jinx" painted "No. 13" on it in big letters, with "Cocked Dice" lettered underneath.

PLENTY OF TROUBLE

Saskatoon, Sask., July 14 — (CP) — Plenty of trouble awaits Canadian and American amateur golfers when they try their luck over the Saskatoon Golf and Country Club course July 15-22. The 6,706-yard par-70 course is no cinch.

The Willingdon Cup teams and juniors tour the course tomorrow and, starting Monday, the big-time golfers start the week-long Canadian amateur championship. The best score turned in on the flat-looking course with its wide fairways and large greens is a three-under-par 67, recorded by Wilf Greenwood of Regina and Pat Fletcher, the club pro.

Refloating of Liner Franconia May be Tough

Quebec, July 14 (CP)—Refloating of the 20,000-ton liner Franconia may be a lengthy operation, it appeared today as the big ship lay in the grip of St. Lawrence River rocks on the shores of the Island of Orleans.

The Cunard Donaldson liner ran on the stony shore at Pointe Au Taureau Wednesday night shortly after leaving Quebec for Liverpool. Its 850 passengers, none of them injured, were disembarked in orderly fashion within hours of the accident one mile below Quebec.

Hope of dislodging the ship from its stony bed rested in the Foundation Maritime Salvage vessel Traverse which left Grindstone, Magdalen Islands, yesterday with seven powerful pumps.

Capt. Robert Featherstone, in charge of Foundation Salvage operations, at Halifax, flew here from that city to survey the situation.

An attempt yesterday by Quebec tugs to budge the Franconia failed. No other tries were made and last night, as low tide again exposed the tall prow of the vessel on shore rocks and accentuated its listing to starboard, a scheduled second attempt was called off.

After the accident company officials here busied themselves with the job of finding accommodation within a few hours in this tourist-jammed city, and then worked to find alternate air and ship facilities for the passengers. Buses, launches, one ferry boat One man was killed and three ly.

Last night tugs were still unloading baggage from the stranded vessel.

Wherever He Goes They Treat Him As Ernest Bevin

Abingdon, England, July 13—(Reuters) — William Foster of Abingdon can't call his life his Abindon can't call his life his own these days—everywhere he goes he is mistaken for Ernest Bevin, Britain's Foreign secretary.

For years, Foster looked like an underweight version of Bevin — recently, Bevin lost a lot of weight and now they are almost exact doubles.

"People keep buying me drinks and giving me cigars, thinking I'm Mr. Bevin,' said Foster. "I don't mind that part of it at all. But when Mr. Bevin has done something unpopular I have a bad time of it."

"And," he added, "I'd be a lot happier if Mr. Bevin were a conservative."

DUE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

London, July 13 — (AP) — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin is due to leave the hospital today feeling and looking fitter than he has for years, according to his associates.

Bevin entered a London nursing home May 13 for two rectal operations.

He booked a conference for tomorrow with Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia, due by plane tonight, to discuss defence and economic problems.

Mrs. Albert Dunkley spent some time in Toronto with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown and children, Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown, Peterborough, called on Mr. James Menzies, on Sunday.

Road Constructed

The McFarland Construction Company have been busy cutting down the hill at McAdams and Potts farms and the old log house has been moved. On July 4th they began operations at the cement bridge and the church hill. Trucks from Stoco, Belleville, Markham, Northport, Campbellford, Westport, Roseneath and Holloway, have been trucking gravel from the Rollins farm, Stirling for fill.

The dust nuisance was combatted by the showers of rain but for the last few days clouds of dust blows in every direction.

The telephone men are busy stringing wires on the Bird and Menzies farms, while the hydro crew are setting posts. A new cement bridge is being built on Pump Street near Leonard Sharpe's. The place is a hive of industry and detours are necessary in order to keep the men working.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Family Has the Right of Way

By ROY L. SMITH

It is fortunate that this week we study one of the most significant lessons to be found in all the Old Testament—the supremacy of family rights.

While nations are squabbling over trade concessions, tariffs, political alliances, and export balances, the hearts and minds of millions of Christians are to be turned toward the consideration of the one thing that can save society—a stable family life for all the world.

Ruth is a Sociological Treatise

The book of Ruth came into existence at a time when the Jews were working out one of their greatest problems. As the returning exiles were undertaking to establish themselves once more in the Promised Land a considerable number of marriages occurred in which Jews married non-Jews. In an effort to keep the nation's blood stream uncontaminated by any admixture of Gentile strain, powerful political leaders (in the name of religion) took the position that all mixed marriages were a betrayal of the nation.

It was at this point that some unknown author wrote one of the most beautiful books in the scriptures—the Book of Ruth. It told how a grandmother of David, the idolized king of the Hebrews, had been a Gentile woman. The argument was obvious. If a mixed marriage could produce such a personality as David, then what was the good argument against such?

> The Sunday School lesson for July 16: "Ruth, a Symbol of Family Loyalty." Ruth (1:8, 14-22).

As a discussion of the question of marriage, the Book of Ruth is one of the most ancient treatises of the subject in existence. As a study in the field of genetics, its conclusion seems almost irrefutable. As a piece of literature, nothing in or out of the Bible surpasses it coming out of those ancient times.

The Story in Brief

The basic story is a very simple one. A Hebrew family, consisting of a man and his wife and their two sons, was forced to abandon their home land and take up a residence in a foreign country or starve. Their adopted land was kind to them, providing them with a decent living and furnishing two lovely wives for the sons. In time all three of the men died, and the aging mother in her loneliness determined to return to her home community and, facing the probability of desperate poverty, spend her last years where she was born.

When she broached the subject to the young women one of them, with beautiful expressions of love and affection, accepted the conditions the old mother imposed and turned back to her own people. The other, however, abandoned all her natural connections and determined to cast in her lot with her husband's mother. In one of the most beautiful speeches that has ever fallen from the lips of any woman in history, she announced her intention to accept whatever lot befell her mother-in-law, even accepting the aged woman's land and religion.

Back in the land of Judah she became one of the poorest of the poor. But by chance she attracted the attention of a man of noble character and in time became his wife. Again, in time she became the grandmother of the great King David. Thus it came about that a strain of alien blood flowed through his veins without in any way diminishing his worth or usefulness to the nation.

Until Death Do Us Part

No nation can hope to stand out against communism, fascism, or any other debasing political philosophy if its citizens have been reared amid the uncertainty and the demoralization of broken homes. No state can hope to survive if its citizens have not been trained to obey the law, and broken homes are responsible in large part for the rising tide of juvenile delinquency we are told by the scientists who have studied the question very carefully. No abundance of economic resources can atone for the corrosion of soul a nation suffers when its family life goes to pieces.

Praying Together and Staying Together

A devout and spiritually wise Roman Catholic priest conceived of a radio program built around the slogan, "The family that prays together stays together."

God has never improved upon a praying mother, and the devil has never been better served than by a mother who does not pray for her children.

No father has been his best as a father until he has become a priest inside his own home unto his own family.

Loyal to Our Greatest Asset

God never bestowed a greater blessing on any soul than when he provided for it a Christian home. The youth who is not loyal to such a godly gift is undeserving of the good things of life.

Better to lose a business opportunity, the applease of the cynics, or the plaudits of the sophisticates, than to lose the strong sense of power and the calm confidence of decency that flows from a stable family loyalty.

One can make ma[illegible] he never has but one family.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TALL, DARK AND HANDSOME

The big good-looking chap tugged at the forelock that aids and abets his physical attractiveness. He stretched his six feet plus and smothered a yawn. After all he was tired. He had driven from Montreal in something a couple of minutes short of a record, and besides, he was hungry.

"No," he smiled, and when he smiles you go for him like he was a million dollars. "I have definitely hung up the skates and pads for good. I have had everything hockey could give me and I want to retire while I am still youngish, and in one piece."

Yeah, you guessed right. He was big boyish Bill Durnan, late of the Montreal Canadiens, and one of the best, if not the best, net custodian that ever scowled at a referee.

Bill was spearheading his softball team, the Steinbergs of the Montreal Snowden Fastball League who are sitting pretty at the top of that loop on a brief barnstorming tour of Ontario. Last night they met an Oshawa team. Saturday they take on a squad favored by Pal Dit Clapper in Peterborough. Sunday afternoon, and this is the one game Bill wants to win, they meet Turk Broda's National Hockey League stars. Monday they trek to Stratford and from there they will wander lazily back to Montreal by devious routes.

With Bill was Jimmy Peters of the Detroit Red Wings who is as much at home behind the plate scuppering Durnan's fast balls as he is in a red jersey peppering pucks at the big gossoon. Also along was Paul Desleur, tabbed by Durnan as a "wing-ding" pitcher, one of those blokes who winds up like an eggbeater and fires the balls at the batter while he is still dizzy from trying to follow the firecracker motion.

Also with Bill, "just for the ride" was Mr. William Durnan, senior. Mr. Durnan is a small gentleman and we were surprised when we were introduced to him, to discover he was the sire of the tall handsome guy who is internationally famous.

Durnan is a softball pitcher who ranks with the Justices, Johnsons and Ecclestones. If you don't believe that statement ask Jimmy Peters, who is his battery mate. Bill, he says, couldn't 'twist wrists' with a four-year-old but when it comes to heaving that upholstered baseball across the plate, he has few peers.

One of Durnan's best friends and for whom he has an unfeigned sincere admiration is Aubrey 'Dit' Clapper, late of the Boston Bruins. Enemies of the ice lanes, Dit and Bill are close friends in "civvies".

Bill recalled an incident that proves that the estimable Dit has a memory like an elephant or a mother-in-law. Way back in the days when Harvey "Busher" Jackson, late of the Toronto Maple Leafs was coaching a softball team, it seemed that he needed a pitcher, and brought Bill in from Montreal under the name of Bill Nicholls. The Busher's team, thanks to Durnan's superlative hurling defeated a Peterborough team or was it Hastings which was handled by the Dit.

Ten years later when Durnan skated on the ice surface of the Boston Arena, Clapper sidled alongside and quipped, "Well, well, if it isn't Mr. Nicholls again."

Durnan who had almost forgotten the incident stared amazed at the husky Bruin defenceman until somebody lit that light of understanding over his head.

"Why" stuttered Bill, "that guy's memory is something terrific."

Bill's sports memories took him back to Kirkland Lake where he played softball and baseball.

He asked after such well-known local players as Hughie Brennan, a son-in-law of Walter Gerow, and also Walter junior. He likes Ontario especially this neck of the woods. He with other members of the Montreal Canadiens recall the fine reception accorded them by this city during their visit here last winter for an exhibition game.

"We came to Belleville," Bill smiled, "with the idea we were encroaching on Toronto Maple Leaf territory. But we found out differently. The good folk of Belleville gave us a grand reception and we discovered we had a lot of new friends. You have fine people here and we will never forget the grand hospitality and friendliness that greeted us."

* * *

THEY MAKE MISTAKES TOO!

From our perch in Devine's Aerie at the Exhibition Grounds the other night when the Belleville Cubs were embattled with the loop-leading Sixardee baseball team, it appeared that the gentlemen arbiting around the bases, did a lot of unnecessary "chucking out of the game" of players. Whatever Schreider and Galbraith said, not to mention Soules and a couple more, His Nibs apparently was in no argumentative mood. Unless they were using profane language or making strong colorful remarks anent the official's ancestry, which we doubt, there was no necessity of giving them the old heave-ho. We hold no brief for players who use abusive language, or are too vehement in their protests, but officials should not draw the line so fine as to toss out a player who opens his mouth, perhaps to breathe. And while on the subject, umpires should thoroughly acquaint themselves with the ground rules before the game starts. They are usually quite simple, the ground rules, that is, and to save face and bother, should be digested by the men in the mask and pad.

Waterloo Tigers Regain 2-Game Lead in League

(By The Canadian Press)

Some good home cooking and a week's rest helped win one or two games played in the Intercounty Baseball League last night.

Galt's Alex (Mustakis) Martin, just back from a week at home with the folks, celebrated his return by shutting out St. Thomas Legionnaires 9-0. The big pitcher allowed only five hits, hit a home run and three singles in four trips to the plate, driving in four runs.

In the other game, Waterloo Tigers regained their two-game league lead by defeating Kitchener Legionnaires 5-1. Southpaw Cy Bricker limited the Legionnaires to six hits. His shutout was spoiled in the ninth when Alex Sechawski tripled and Irvin Ler singled with two men out.

Detroit Red Wings Shooting For Another N.H.L. Title Through the Barter Route

Detroit, July 14 — (AP) — Those trading demons, Detroit Red Wings, are shooting for another National Hockey League title via the barter route.

The 1950 N.H.L. champions and Stanley Cup winners concluded a five-for-four swap with Chicago Black Hawks yesterday.

They sent star goalie Harry Lumley and four other players to Chicago in return for a top-flight centre, Metro Prystal, and three others.

The trade, largest in league history, was aimed at strengthening Detroit's attack and Chicago's defence.

Besides Lumley, the Wings gave up veteran defenceman Jack Stewart, winger Pete Babando, defenceman Al Dewsbury and centre Don Morrison.

In addition to Prystal, they got left winger Gaye Stewart, defenceman Bob Goldham and goalie Jim Henry.

The trade came only 11 months after the Wings sent all-star defenceman Bill Quackenbush and forward Pete Horeck to Boston Bruins in trade for Jimmy Peters, Babando, Clare Martin and Lloyd Durham.

That swap generally was credited with being the chief factor in providing the depth that allowed the Wings to sweep to the league crown and the cup.

In Lumley, the Detroiters gave up a 23-year-old netminder who is rated one of the best in the business. He had an average of 2:35 goals a game last year, to place second behind Montreal's Bill Durnan in the Vizena trophy race. He will replace Frankie Brimsek at Chicago.

Lumley, however, can be replaced in Detroit with Terry Sawchuk, a stellar 20-year-old who has been playing with the Wings' Indianapolis club. He subbed capably last season while Lumley was out with an injury.

Long Has Wanted Prystal

In Prystal, Detroit acquires a hard-charging centre who placed fourth in league scoring last year with 29 goals. He is expected to replace Sid Abel. Wing manager Jack Adams long has wanted the Chicago youngster.

Jack Stewart, 33 years old and a 10-year league veteran, was sent to Chicago with the understanding that Hawk coach Ebbie Goodfellow would make him assistant coach.

Babando, whose goal won the Stanley Cup for Detroit in the finale of the series with New York Rangers, was out much of last year with injuries. He is regarded as one of the fastest skaters in action and should see more service in Chicago.

Morrison and Dewsbury both have been with Wings' farm clubs but have failed to make the grade when called to the majors. Dewsbury, however, still is regarded as an outstanding prospect.

Among the Chicagoans, only Gaye Stewart and Goldham, besides Prystal, are expected to stick with Detroit. Henry, the fourth member is intended as a replacement in Indianapolis for Sawchuk.

Stewart scored 24 goals last year and is expected to fit well into the high scoring Detroit line that also includes Fordie Howe and Ted Lindsay. Goldham could provide relief for two of Detroit's top defencemen, Leo Reise and Leonard (Red) Kelly.

The biggest previous swap in league history was a seven-player deal in November, 1947, between Toronto and Chicago.

Both Stewart and Goldham also figured in that deal.

The Hawks broke up their famous brother combination of Doug and Max Bentley to obtain centre Gus Bodnar, winger Bud Poile, Stewart, and defenceman Ernie Dickens and Goldham. Max Bentley went to the Leafs with rookie winger Cy Thomas, who since has dropped out of pro hockey.

Louis Will Fight Charles If Govt. Will Co-Operate

New York, July 14 — (AP) — Joe Louis is coming back to fight Ezzard Charles in September if he can settle his income tax problems.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, gave out the news yesterday when he revealed plans for a Louis - Charles bout at Yankee Stadium probably Thursday Sept. 28.

"Joe owes the government a considerable sum of money," said Norris. "The only way he can ever pay it and get straightened out is to fight again.

"He has asked the government to accept whatever his purse would be for a Charles fight in full settlement of the government's claim. That would hold whether his purse amounted to more than what he owed or less."

Norris said Louis got into tax difficulties a few years ago because the government disallowed certain deductions he had taken on advice of his auditors and counsel. He explained that the champ's investments hadn't turned out too well.

He placed Louis' debt at "considerably more" than a reported $58,000.

A bout between Louis, the retired undefeated champ, and Charles, recognized by the National Boxing Association as heavyweight king, should be a big financial success.

Another sure-fire attraction is a proposed middleweight title bout between Jake LaMotta and Sugar Ray Robinson, the welter king.

LaMotta, an easy winner over Tiberio Mitri in his first defence, said he is willing to fight Robinson "if the price is right."

The first week in September has been reserved for a Robinson - LaMotta duel at the Yankee Stadium. That would mean Sept. 6 or 7.

Ted Williams Will Remain On Active List

Boston, July 14 (AP) — Encouraged by the immediate medical reports of Ted Williams' splintered-elbow sugery, general manager Joe Cronin today said the Boston Red Sox' $125,000-a-year salaried slugger will continue on the club's active player list.

"I don't want to put Ted on the sidelines officially until such action appears absolutely necessary," Cronin said.

If Williams was declared disabled by his club, it could obtain a replacement for him and still remain inside the major league's 25-player limit.

He suffered the injury making an against-the-wall catch in the first inning of Tuesday's all-star game in Chicago.

During a 75-minute operation yesterday in a nearby Cambridge hospital, seven bone fragments, the largest the size of a shape of a dime were removed from his left elbow.

The attending surgeons, Drs. Joseph Shortell and Ralph McCarthy, agreed that the surgery was "very successful."

Both were certain that Williams would regain full use of his left arm and would be able to play again. Neither would predict when.

Williams suffered considerable pain last night but the surgeons said that would be the customary reaction to such an operation.

Bill Kennedy One of Best Hurlers in Loop

(By The Associated Press)

International League batters are wondering where Lefty Bill Kennedy of Baltimore Orioles got the tag "wild man."

Kennedy since his arrival from the parent St. Louis Browns, has been one of the best pitchers in the league and his control is tops.

The big lefty last night picked up his ninth victory against only three defeats with a neat relief job as the Orioles came from behind to beat Springfield Cubs 8-6.

Kennedy entered the game in the seventh inning with the Orioles trailing 6-4 and held the Cubs hitless the rest of the way, fanning two and walking none.

The Orioles won the game in the eighth inning with a four-run rally. Anse Moore tied the score with a two-run homer. Shortstop Jack Wallaesa's error admitted the tie-breaking runs.

Rochester's pace setting Red Wings remained 1 1-2 games in front of the Orioles by edging the last place Buffalo Bisons 5-4.

The Wings won the game in the ninth, scoring once to break a 4-4 tie. Lou Ortiz singled, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on Dick Cole's one bagger. Rookie Ken Wild was the winner and Harry Byrd the loser.

Scheduled games between Syracuse and Jersey City and Montreal and Toronto were rained out.

Miller Trophy Tourney Shows Many Upsets

Toronto, July 14 (CP)— Even the pros have trouble with par.

Seventy-one of them set out to smash it Thursday over the par 73 Islington Golf Club in the first day of the Millar trophy pro tournament. Only nine broke par and six more equalled it.

With a sudden cloudburst drenching the course, favorite after was eliminated in the qualifying round and the afternoon round of match play.

The sixteen survivors set out today for two more rounds of match play with the final scheduled for Saturday.

Veteran Willie Lamb of Toronto Lambton was one of the four who led the qualifiers with 70s. But he fell 2 and 1 in match play to Alf Balding, an assistant pro from Burlington. Another assistant, Bob Deans of Toronto Club, upset Damien Gauthier of Montreal Municipal 5 and 3.

Defending champion Bob Gray of Scarboro, bowed 2 and 1 to Joe Noble of Toronto Thornhill and another favorite, Gordie Brydson of Mississauga, failed to qualify.

With Lamb at the top of the qualifying round were Bob Cunningham of St. Georges, former champion Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield and Murray Tucker of London Sunningdale. All survived the first round of match play.

Huot Eliminated

Cunningham eliminated Rodolphe Huot of Royal Quebec 2 and 1 in match play, Tucker defeated Bill Thompson of Weston 4 and 3 and Kerr beat Eddie Rennick of Scarboro 6 and 5.

Today Kerr faces Stan Horne of Montreal Islemere who Thursday downed Ben Norris of Timmins 6 and 4.

Right after the four leaders in the qualifying round came Dick Borthwick of Hamilton with 71. In match play he beat Bill Chinnery of Burlington 2 and 1.

Qualifying with 72s were Noble, Jimmy Johnstone of Rosedale, Archie Grimsditch, unattached, and Lionel Ross of Cobourg.

In match play, Johnstone defeated Stan Kolar of Ottawa Gatineau, who had qualified with 74, 6 and 4; Grimsditch beat Larry Edwards of Mississauga 4 and 3 and Ross beat George Clifton, Niagara-on-the-Lake, 2 and 1.

In other matches today, Ross meets Balding, Deans meets Dick and Jules Huot meets Tucker. Huot, pro at Montreal Laval yesterday, elminated Gordon Harrison of Peterborough 4 and 3.

Bonus Baby Curt Simmons And Card Cast-Off Dick Sisler Help Phillies Down Cardinals

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Phils' whiz kids ride high today with a $65,000 bonus baby and a St. Louis castoff taking the bows.

Curt Simmons, 21-year-old lefty from Egypt, Pa., is the bonus prize whose four-hitter last night boosted the hustling Phils into a two-game lead in the National League.

Dick Sisler is the Cardinal hand-me-down with the home run punch that converted Simmons' effort into a 3-2 victory over second-place St. Louis.

Whipping the Cards is old stuff for both. Simmons holds three decisions over Eddie Dyer's club. Against St. Louis, ex-card Sisler is slugging .447.

Simmons, a whiz since he found control, walked only two men and struck out six. The Cards had trouble lifting the ball out of the infield as Curt zipped home with his 11th victory.

Sisler came along with a tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning. Homers by Granny Hamner and Andy Seminick in the first two innings accounted for the Phils' other runs.

Boston skidded three full games behind the Phils, losing to Cincinnati 7-3, as the Reds won their fifth straight. Since June 20 the Reds have swept 15 of 21, hottest pace in the league.

Hop on Sain

The awakened Reds hopped on Johnny Sain for four runs in the eighth ruining his bid for win No. 13. An error by Buddy Kerr, singles by Ted Kluszewski, Connie Ryan and Joe Adcock and a fly ball scored the runs. In all Sain gave up 10 hits, including homers by Kluszewski and Grady Hatton.

Rain washed out the scheduled game between New York Giants and Pittsburgh. Bad weather also postponed two night games in the American — Cleveland at New York and St. Louis at Philadelphia.

Detroit boosted its American League lead over the idle New York Yankees to 3½ games as Hal Newhouser set down a ninth-inning Washington rally for a 6-2 decision.

The Tiger victory at Griffith Stadium continued the crazy quilt pattern of Washington - Detroit relations this season. At Detroit, the Senators have beaten the Tigers five of six, including a series sweep. But at Washington, Detroit has smothered Bucky Harris' gang six in a row.

The road-loving Bengals boast an amazing 28-9 record away from home. At Briggs Stadium they're only a fair 22-17.

Clyde Vollmer, Ted Williams' replacement, smashed a homer and two doubles in Boston Red Sox' 8-7 "squeaker" over Chicago. Rain cut the game to 7½ innings. Vollmer, playing left field with Williams out of action because of a broken elbow, drove home two runs. Vern Stephens also homered, his 19th, in a five-run first-inning attack that routed Boston's old nemesis, Ray Scarborough.

Biggest Trade In NHL History Made in Detroit

By The Canadian Press

The biggest trade in the history of the National Hockey League was disclosed Thursday with word that Detroit Red Wings had swapped five of their players for four from Chicago Black Hawks.

Detroit, champions of the N.H.L. and winners of the Stanley Cup last season, turned over to the Hawks goalie Harry Lumley, defencemen Jack Stewart and Al Dewsbury, left winger Pete Babando and centre Don Morrison.

In exchange they got centre Metro Prystal, left winger Gaye Stewart defenceman Bob Goldham and goalie Jim Henry.

The deal should strengthen Detroit's offensive power and improve Chicago's defence.

In Lumley the Hawks obtain one of the best goalies in the business. He gave up an average of only 2.35 goals a game last season, making him runner-up to Monteal's Bill Durnan for the Vizeria trophy. He was born in Owen Sound 23 years ago, and is a veteran of 5 1-2 N.H.L. seasons.

Gaye Stewart of Fort William, has scored 151 goals in six seasons of big league play. Last year he got 24 to place third among Chicago's scorers. Goldham will be competing with several outstanding wing defencemen for a reguler job. He is from Georgetown, and played in his amateur days with Toronto Marlboros.

Dewsbury, a native of Goderich Ont., and a member of Detroit's minor League organization, will be given an opportunity to step into major league competition.

Until Thursday's nine-player swap, the deal made Nov. 3, 1947, between Chicago and Toronto which involved seven players was the biggest in N.H.L. history.

The possibility of September championship fights between Joe Louis and Ezzard Charles and Jake Lamotta has the boys buzzing along Cauliflower Row.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, said that Louis would come out of retirement to oppose Charles in September if he could straighten out his tax problems in Washington.

The promoter said if everything worked out right, Lamotta might defend his middleweight title against Sugar Ray Robinson in the first week of September. Louis and Charles would be ticketed for the last week in September.

Louis' comeback, Norris said, hinges on the bomber's negotiations with internal revenue department.

The retired heavyweight champion owes the government "a considerable sum of money," said Norris. "The only way he can ever pay it and get straightened out is to fight again."

About 20 potential members of Hamilton's Tiger-Cat entry in the interprovincial Football Union, each with his own idea of getting into trim, turned out Thursday night to toss the ball around.

Doug Smith, Tiger kicker last year, arrived at the Hamilton Amateur Athletic Association grounds on his new racing bicycle. Jack Carpenter, 245-pound lineman who played with Buffalo Bills for the past three seasons, swung a golf club. Several settled for a slow job around the field before calling it a night.

Both Carpenter and Vince Mazza another ex-Bill, had words of praise for Special Delivery Jones. newly acquired quarterback and assistant coach, who arrives in Hamilton today for the official practices which begin on Monday.

Two members of Belgium's Davis Cup team and Canada's four-man squad will play a five-match exhibition tournament in Toronto Aug. 24-26, J. M. McAvity, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, announced.

Brazil took a commanding lead in the final series of the world Soccer Cup tournament Thursday by beating Spain 6-1 before a crowd estimated at 155,000.

Uruguay nosed out Sweden 3-2 at Sao Paulo.

An unruly crowd stormed the Rio Municipal Stadium, and several thousand fans broke through police lines and got free seats. An undetermined number was injured in the melee with police.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 15 — (AP) — "The Goldbergs" — Jake, Molly and all the Goldbergs are ready for the movies and for television's biggest invasion of the movie market.

Late this month, seven cast members of the topnotcch TV show will begin enacting a full-length film version of "The Goldbergs" at Paramount studios. Their director, Walter Hart, will also direct the picture. The whole deal marks Hollywood's strongest acknowledgment of the power of the "upstart" in the entertainment family.

Gertrude Berg, creator of the hilarious show, is already here to work on the script. In a chat, I suggested that the movie deal puts the Goldbergs in virtually every medium of entertainment.

"Everything but a musical," she replied, and she sounded as though she might be mulling that idea.

But she indicated that the chore of writing the show and acting in it is a wearing one. "After all, I have been doing it since we started on the air on Nov. 20, 1929, and I wasn't exactly six when I began," she remarked.

Started in Radio

The program began as a nighttime show and then became a daytime serial. After 10 years of sponsorship, a soap concern cancelled the show in 1946.

"I was heartsick," recalled Mrs. Berg. "I was probably the saddest woman in America. I decided to give up radio and write a play."

The result was 'Me and Molly,' which had a nine-month run on Broadway and helped revive Mrs. Berg's morale. After the play closed, she dipped into television.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Fight shy of a partner like Drake. His opening lead makes you quake. As he fiddles and hunts around, you go nuts while he sits there and plays put and take.

An indecisive leader pulls out a card and pushes it back, lifts out another and shoves it back, takes out and puts back, puts back and takes out. Then he flings out a card with set jaws.

What he needs is my set of simple rules. Leads come in three distinct classes. Their order of choice is: Tops, longies, shorts. The first choice is always a top card lead.

There are three kinds of top card leads. One is the lead of the top of a sequence. Another is the lead of an ace when the leader is going to trump that suit if and when somebody else leads it.

The third type of top card lead is the lead of a king in a suit that also contains the ace and one or more others. Thus, from A K X, or A K X X, or A K X X X, or A K X X X X X, lead the king.

South is declarer at a contract of four spades when the clubs in each hand are as shown here:

NORTH
♣Q 9 5

WEST ♣A K 6 3
EAST ♣8 2

SOUTH
♣J 10 7 4

West leads the club king. This tells his partner in east that also the ace with one or more other clubs are in west. Therefore, west must have three or more clubs to start with.

There is nothing unusual about this rule. It is known to all good bridge players and used by them with the best effect. Without it they could not operate efficiently together in defence.

From ace and king with one or more others a player should not lead the ace. Why? Because the lead of an ace is a signal that says the leader will ruff that suit before the third round. The king is led to show that the leader will not ruff that suit.

The leader who hesitates is not lost. But his partner usually is.

POPULATION JUMPS

Seattle, July 14 — (AP)—Alaska's population jumped 75 per ccent in 11 years and one city — Anchorage — showed a gain of 219 per cent, the United States Bureau of Census announced today. The territory's population now is 127,117, compared to 72,524 in 1939.

AT THE CAPITOL — Randolph Scott, armed with a pair of six-shooters, stalks the bandits in a typical scene from "Colt .45", Warner Bros. adventure drama in color by Technicolor, at the Capitol Theatre today and Saturday, for its first city showing. Added treats: Color Cartoon, "Princely India," in Technicolor; Candid Microphone, Hilarious Comedy and the serial, "King of the Rocket Men".

MAY RETURN TO PICTURES

Rome, July 14 — (AP)—The newspaper Il Tempo says Rita Hayworth may go back into the movies soon. The paper said film director King Vidor is trying to persuade Rita to appear in a new film he will direct.

SLOT MACHINES OUTLAWED

San Francisco, July 14 (AP)—Possession of slot machines becomes illegal in California at midnight tonight. Most of them are being shipped to Nevado, where they are legal. The state legislature outlayed the slots.

AT THE BELLE — Ronald Reagan co-stars with Patricia Neal and Richard Todd, newcomers to American films in Warner Bros.' heralded "Hasty Heart," showing tonight for the last times at the Belle.

Bob McFarlane Big Gun in Track Meet

Hamilton, July 14. (CP) — If past performances mean anything big Bob McFarlane should shine like a beacon in the two-day Canadian senior track and field championships starting here tonight.

The 23-year-old medical student from the university of Western Ontario at London will put his 440-yard and 800-yard Canadian titles on the line. The chances are better than even that he won't have too much trouble to hold his laurels. McFarlane will be a big drawing card on the program which has attracted more than 200 entries from Canada and the United States.

An also-ran in the 1948 Olympics, the blonde runner has just returned from a successful invasion of British and continental tracks during which he twice conquered Jamaica's Arthur Wint, a hero of the 1948 Olympic games at London.

McFarlane tonight is expected to get his toughest opposition from George Guida of Russbaum College, Philadelphia, United States quarter-mile champion.

Most of the entries come from Ontario and Quebec. Many of them were on the 1948 Canadian Olympic team and on this year's British Empire games team which competed with little distinction at Auckland, N.Z.

B. E. Games athletes include Toronto's rich Ferguson who established Canadian native records—Junior and Senior—in the two-mile event at Toronto last week with a clocking of nine minutes, 31.6 seconds. He is entered in the mile and three-mile races.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie stayed at my [illegible]se all nite last nite, and after supper ma was reeding the paper, saying to pop, My, that old Mr. Pertweezer is still alive.

I'm not serprised, I didn't know he was neerly dead, pop said. Who the dooce is he? he said, and ma said, He's the oldest veteran of any war, and each year on his berthday the reporters interview him and ask him the secret of living so long, and he always tells them he eats regularly but sparingly, and always considers the feeling of others before his own, and has a smile for every emergency, and he gets plenty of sleep at reasonable hours, and he never touches tobacco and he believes that a basin of soap and water is more healthfull than a whole cellarfull of imported wine.

What, to drink? pop said, and ma said, Certainly not, he's speeking of cldenliness in genrel.

Giving me a idea, and I said to Artie, Hay, let's play we're meeting each other on our hundred and 6th berthday and asking each other how we did it.

Which we started to do, making our voices sound like old men and Artie saying, Happy berthday, Benny, I aint seen you since we were both 94. Have you had mutch trubble keeping alive? he said, and I said, No, it's a cintch. I never go to bed at nite till somebody threttens to use force, and I dont get up in the morning till at least 2 people shake me at the same time. And I always keep my digestion bizzy eating as mutch as possible between meels. How do you do it? I said.

Barbara Ann Given Hearty Reception at Show

London, July 14 (CP) —Britain gave an enthusiastic reception Thursday night to "Rose Marie On Ice" an operetta with Quebec and Alberta as a background and starring two of Canada's greatest skaters.

Six thousand fans at Harringay Arena cheered as Ottawa's Barbara Ann Scott and Michael Kirby of Toronto and North Bay, skated the principle roles in the opening performance of a show that will run for two months.

Barbara Ann was graceful and decorative in the title role. Kirby skating with Barbara Ann for the first time in public, was an assured and flawless partner.

The audience also gave a big hand to Britain's own Pat Gregory who injected life and spirit into the part of the half-breed Wanda.

Barbara Ann showed no trace of opening-night nerves. In her dressing room just before the opening she said she wasn't worried at all—"not yet, anyway."

The girl who as an amateur won five world championships is to draw £2,500 ($7,750) a week for Rose Marie—about £3 a minute every time she hits the ice against backdrops representing the Canadian Rockies and the backwoods of Quebec.

The 25-year-old Kirby, who has been skating professionally for the last three years with the Swedish born skater Sonja Henie, portrays the handsome hero who woos the winsome Rose Marie. Offstage an orchestra plays music by Charles Rudolf Friml and Herbert Stothart— including the famous "Indian Love Call" and "Rose Marie, I Love You." The libretto is by Oscar Hammerstein II and Otto Harbach.

BROCKVILLE FIRM BUYS

Montreal, July 14 (CP)—The wholesale and manufacturing firm of N. C. Polson and Company Ltd., and subsidiaries has been acuqired by the W. H. Comstock company, Ltd., of Brockville, Ont., it was announced here tonight.

Sale price was not given.

The transaction links together two of the oldest pharmaceutical and drug manufacturing companies in Canada. The Polson firm was founded in 1870 and the Comstock in 1864. Comstock has plants at Brockville, Morristown, N.Y., London, Eng., Buenos Aires and Sydney, Australia.

RETURNS UNSCATHED

Hong Kong, July 13 (AP)—The 800-ton British blockade runner Cloverlock returned unscathed today from the Red China port of Amboy.

She had been shelled July 7 by Nationalist shore batteries as she entered Amoy harbor.

The next day, out-bound from Amoy for Hong Kong, the Cloverdock was ordered by the Nationalist warships to halt. She put on full steam. The warships gave chase, but gave up after about two hours, without having scored a hit.

PICTON

I.O.D.E. Chapter Receives Scroll From Minister

Picton — Sir Thomas Picton Chapter IODE has been presented with a scroll in recognition of their work on behalf of HMCS Fennell during the war years. The scroll is signed by Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence. It was presented at a garden party held this week on the Legion grounds. Lieut.-Commander Hart of Kingston made the presentation and commended the Chapter on their work. The Regent, Mrs. G. M. Hicks received the scroll.

More than three hundred attended the social event with proceeds at the gate, amounting to around $200, going to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund. A draw was also held, with proceeds for the Chapter's work. Marilyn Way was winner of a mixmaster; George Fraser, a toaster and R. McKinnon, an electric tea kettle. Mrs. S. J. Collier was convener.

Clamp Censorship On Release Of Information

Washington, July 14 (AP) — The United States Defence Department Thursday clamped a censorship on the release of information about troop movements to the Korean war theatre.

Military officers were instructed not to tell when a unit is transferring, its sailing date, its strength or its equipment.

Its destination will be told only in a general way, such as the Far Eastern command.

Nothing less than a division will be described by its name.

In laying down this "security guidance" for the army, navy and air force, defence secretary Louis Johnson tacked on as a reminder the Far East restrictions laid down by Gen. McArthur concerning names of units, sizes, destinations and the like.

The new rules apply only to the military in giving out information. The government has no control over publication of news. There is no federal censorship law except that governing certain phases of atomic energy.

In the Second World War, American newspapers observed voluntary censorship which ended when Japan surrendered. War correspondents in the field were subject to military censorship.

Churches' Council Approves U.N. Intervention

Toronto, July 14 (CP) — The largest international body of Protestant and Orthodox Christians has approved United Nations intervention in the Korean war.

The central committee of the World Council of Churches, in a policy statement Thursday called the communist invasion of South Korea an "act of aggression."

It included in the statement a condemnation of the use of atomic and bacteriological weapons in modern war.

It also condemned government imposed curbs on religious freedom and discrimination by or against any faith.

The committee is the policy-making body of the World Council which includes 156 member churches—with a total membership of some 160,000,000 — in 44 countries. No delegation from communist led countries are attending the meeting. Russian churches have boycotted the council.

Statement Issued

The statement was prepared by a sub-committee headed by Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, O.

The statement said: "Armed attack as an instrument of National policy is wrong. We therefore commend the United Nations an instrument of world order, for its prompt decision to meet this aggression and for authorizing a police measure which every member nation should support.

"At the same time, governments must press individually and through the United Nations for a just settlement by negotiation and conciliation."

The committee also said "the use of atomic and bacteriological weapons and obliteration bombing involve employment of force and a destruction of life so terrible a scale as to imperil the very basis on which law and civilization can exist.

"It is imperative that they be banned by international agreement and we welcome every sincere proposal to this end."

SUFFERED STROKE

Port Hope, July 14 (CP)—Mrs. Mary Fraser of Port Hope died in hospital Thursday night after her automobile left the road and hit a pole. Police said she suffered a stroke while driving.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

As he guided Stephanie past the chief's office, Reddy opened the door a crack and saw Arnold Pfieffer hunched in one of the big oak archairs while Peters scowled at him across the desk. The chief looked up: "Yes?" he voice was brusque.

"Excuse me, Chief. Miss Smith and I are leaving for her place. Just thought I'd tell you."

"Okay, okay. See you up there in 15 minutes or so." He waved a hand in dismissal.

Reddy took Stephanie's arm. "Wow! The chief's really got his back up about something. Wonder what Pfieffer's been telling him. Find out soon enough I guess."

The car beamed its lights up the street, picking out the purple blossoms of the misembryanthemum that covered Hagar's parking strip.

Reddy leaned forward, "don't see Yakov's car anywhere. I'm glad we got here first." He braked the car to a stop "did you leave your lights on?"

Stephanie was gathering up her purse and gloves. "Yes. I thought I might be coming back alone—I don't like to walk into a dark house."

Reddy gave her his hand as she climbed from the car. "Now you're showing good sense. At a time like this, a good healthy well-founded fear is nothing to be ashamed of."

She fumbled for her key "when is Inspector Trotter coming? I expected to find quite a reception committee on the front steps, and here we are all by ourselves."

Reddy put his arms around her and gently drew her close: "Thanks for pointing that out," he whispered. When he had lifted his lips from hers Stephanie looked up at him.

"I liked that, Charlie."

"In that case—" He bent toward her once more.

A raucous motor laboring up the hill warned them of an approaching audience. They separated and stood watching the oncoming lights.

A few minutes later Trotter had joined them and they were in the house, quipping about California weather. At last Trotter looked at his watch:

"Yakov knows I'm with the Bureau, so perhaps all of us will learn more if I keep out of sight when he arrives. Perhaps in Miss Blair's bedroom. But, meanwhile, I'd like a quick look at the cameo and the paper you found in it."

As Stephanie made her way to the bedroom, Reddy asked: "Am I out of order asking what Yakov's up to?"

"Not qut of order, just a trifle previous," Trotter replied filling his pipe. "The whole thing's turned out different than we anticipated. Originally I was dogging Falter. He turned out to be something of a red herring and Yakov appeared to be the fox for the Russian government."

Stephanie returned with the silver box and the small fragment of folded paper for Trotter: "The Cherry Orchard, gold and morrocco binding, Dr. Urich St. Petersburg College." Trotter wrote rapidly in his notebook and then examined the silver box.

Reddy strode the length of the room and back. "The thing that bothers me most is that there doesn't appear to be any connection between the mystery of the cameo and the mystery of the two murders. But, the whole thing must tie up somewhere." He gave a short, rueful laugh. "If this keeps up, they'll ask me to turn in my police badge and confine my talents to ambulance chasing."

Trotter had pried out the velvet cushion and was running his fingers over the inside surface of the silver box. He looked at Reddy and grinned:

"I've felt the same way from time to time. Somehow or other, I've a hunch this thing's ready to fall into a nice clean cut pattern like the colored glass segments in a kaleidoscope." He fitted the cushion into the box and returned the cameo to its resting place.

"Didn't Yakov say that these letters or papers he has will get Miss Blair out of jail? Well, it follows that they'll also point to the real murderer." He snapped his fingers, "case solved!"

"Yeah." Reddy consulted his watch. "If he ever gets here with the papers!"

"It is getting late," Stephanie commented. "You don't think he could've come back while I was away from the house?"

"How about phoning him?"

As she started across the floor, the phone pealed shrilly from Hagar's bedroom. Trotter and Reddy turned attentive faces toward the sound as Stephanie hurried to answer the call.

She returned immediately and signaled Reddy: "it's chief Peters."

Reddy's eyebrows went up in surprise. He strode quickly to the phone.

Stephanie and Trotter sat facing each other, their expressions mutely questioning whether to make small talk, or, dropping all pretense, try to eavesdrop on Reddy's words. By unspoken agreement, they eavesdropped:

"Who found him?" Reddy was asking urgently.

Trotter and Stephanie stared at each other with startled eyes.

"Was he able to say anything?" Reddy was demanding. "What does the doctor say?"

"It must be Mr. Yakov," Stephanie whispered. "Something's happened to him!"

Reddy nodded. "Well, Peters can cope with him. The chief's a pretty sharp psychologist underneath that bluff, extrovert manner of his." He turned and rested a hand on Stephanie's shoulder, "wait here and visit with Hagar a few minutes. I'll come back for you soon as I've made a phone call— there's somebody who ought to know about this latest caper of Yakov's."

The two women watched him walk through the door, leaving it open behind him. Hagar eyed the door slyly and spoke to Stephanie hearsely from the corner of her mouth.

"Keep me covered Butch, I'll make a break for it!"

Stephanie threw her a startled glance, but Hagar hadn't moved and was now staring with narrowed eyes at the opposite wall:

"Y'know," Hagar brooded, "anxious as I am to stop being a burden to the county taxpayers, I wonder if maybe it's a mistake to show Yakov that paper without investigating the angles. Maybe the FBI ought to be notified."

"We were thinking about the FBI," Hagar began, when Reddy returned.

"Coincidence department" Reddy declared. "So was I. There'll be quite a conclave at your house tonight, and we'd better get up there to receive the guests. Special Agent Lansing Trotter and Chief Peters will head the list."

Charlie Reddy slammed down the phone and looked up at Trotter standing in the doorway.

"Well," he spread both hands in an expression of defeat, "there goes our missing link. Yakov's in the hospital with a cracked head. May or may not live. They found him in the alley back of Bob's Place—that's the bar you know. One of Bob's customers, full to the gills went out back to get a little fresh air or something and found Yakov, lying on his face, blood on the back of his head and a smashed half gallon demijohn nearby. No fingerprints on it, of course."

"Nice!" Trotter commented quietly.

"Yeah, you bet. Nice!" Reddy's mouth was a taunt, pale line. He struck his right fist hard into the palm of his left hand. "The chief is right! We're a bunch of yokels in Dolorosa! A bunch of Keystone Cops, playing games while the citizenry is getting knocked off right and left!"

Trotter gave his attention to fitting his pipe into its battered leather pouch:

"No use wasting time maligning ourselves," he declared. Let's get downtown and learn the particulars. Somebody ought to be near Yakov constantly in case he becomes conscious and is able to talk."

"May I come too?' Stephanie's face was worried and fearful. "I don't want to stay here alone!"

Reddy nodded concernedly "no you can't stay here, that's a cinch Tell you what—why don't you pack up your toothbrush and pajamas and we'll get you a room at the Casa Rosa; you'll be safe there. It's right next door to where I live and I'll check with you from time to time."

Chief Peter's, and Charlie Reddy sat opposite each other in two wicker chairs surrounded by the scientifically contrived cheerfulness of the hospital's second floor waiting room.

Reddy straightened his shoulders and took the ball: "Well, you say Pfieffer told you he suspects Tom O'Neill because of that weaving tool Tom borrowed from him to incise his pottery."

"Yeah. Pfieffer claims the thing was the right size and shape to have inflicted the wounds in both Falter and Mrs. O'Neill."

"But he didn't have another one like it to show you?"

The chief shook his head, repeating once more a description of the instrument as Pfeieffer had given to him:

"Long thin steel thing with a little handle. Pfieffer says he used it for picking out threads in his weaving. Described it as an oversize bodkin with a sharp point. Ever see a bodkin?"

Reddy looked puzzled "if I had I wouldn't know it from a hogan."

The chief pursed his lips and expounded: "It's a large-eyed blunt needle for drawing tape or ribbon through a loop or hem. I looked it up in Webster's. Pfieffer told me this gismo of his was like that except for the large-eyed, blunt part. This thing was on the business end."

"What would Tom want with it?"

"I told you. He wanted it for incising sgraffitto work on his clay pots."

"Sgraffitto. Of course. Naturally." Reddy waved an arm wildly. "Clear as mud!"

"Oh, you've seen sgraffitto. It's that rough-textured pottery that looks like it's been scratched with a pin or something on the outside. When the clay is what they call 'green'—that is before its been baked or glazed — the potters sometimes scratch that roughness onto it for a special effect. They use all kinds of queer gadgets to get unusual surfaces. You those wire flower-holders? Fella I know who has a pottery up in the canyon specializes in little lambs. He makes 'em woolly-looking by punching the green clay with one of those sharp pronged flower holders. Tricks in all trades, you know."

Reddy scratched the stubble that was beginning to appear on his cheeks, "And Pfieffer thinks this sgraffitto thing could've been the murder weapon? Did he say why he thought Tom might have done it?"

Two Inmates Insane Asylum Make Escape

Penetanguishene, July 14 (CP) — Two inmates — each of them sent to the Ontario Hospital for the Criminally Insane when juries found them unfit to stand trial on murder charges — escaped from the hospital Thursday. Ontario Provincial Police hunted them through the district.

It was the fifth escape for Melville Wilkie, 40, who was sent to the hospital 18 years ago after his wife and child burned to death in their home in Owen Sound.

With him was George Herman Woodcox, a Haliburton lumberjack. Woodcox was ruled insane last year and found unable to stand trial for the murder of Al Gill who was shot on Hallowe'en night in 1948 in the Haliburton county hamlet of Tory Hill.

Wilkie escaped from the hospital twice in 1946 and once hid within the hospital grounds for 12 days. He reached Winnipeg before being captured on his second escape that year. He escaped over a fence in August 1947 and was at large for three days and broke loose again in March, 1948.

No details of the escape were released by officials of the hospital, 85 miles north of Toronto. It is believed the men were pitching hay in a field on the hospital grounds when they escaped.

Canadian Crops Much Better Than Last Year

Ottawa, July 14 — (CP)—The condition of Canadian crops at June 30 was better than last year but it doesn't necessarily follow that yields will be bigger at harvest time.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, reporting the improved crop condition warned that anything from weather to insects and disease could change the picture before the crops fully mature.

The Bureau said any deviation from normal in respect to weather, plant diseases or insect infestations between June 30 and harvest time may change the yield picture entirely.

Crops in the Maritimes, almost without exception, displayed condition ratings lower than those for last year. But conditions were almost the reverse in Ontario and Quebec where ratings for nearly all crops were higher,

Three are Killed As Cars Collide Near Brampton

Automobiles Crash Head-on, Tractor Driver Takes Ditch

Brampton, July 15 (CP) — Three persons were killed and three others injured when two automobiles collided head-on 10 miles north of here last night.

James Cobban, 44, Ferguson Cassidy, 51, and Edward Haddad, 17, all of Toronto, died. All were passengers in a car driven by George Martin of Toronto, who suffered facial cuts.

Less seriously injured were Marjorie Cameron, Caledon, Ont., driver of the other car, and Allan Neeley, Inglewood, Ont., driver of a tractor which took to the ditch as Martin tried to pass it.

Troops Do Well Say Chiefs Back From Front

Washington, July 15 — (AP)— The chiefs of staff of the United States army and air force flew back from Korea today with the word that American troops "are doing damn well there and everything will come out all right."

Their return from the war theatre was expected to speed up President Truman's decision on what to do about mobilizing American resources.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief, stepped off the plane with Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air force chief, in a driving early-morning rain at the military airport, after a 4 1-2-day flying trip to Japan and the Korean battlefront.

Colline told reporters: that "you know more about what has happened in the last 24 hours than we do." It was he who expressed the optimistic summary of the situation in the war area.

Neither general would say anything about the nature of the recommendations they will make as a stepping up support for the Americans fighting the Communists in South Korea.

The army and air force chiefs left Washington Monday night with the announced intention of finding out on the spot how best defence department and armed services could support Gen. Douglas MacArthur's elements in Korea.

Three Firemen Injured Fighting $100,000 Blaze

Appleton, Ont., July 15 (CP) — Three firemen were injured today fighting a $100,000 blaze — which destroyed most of the Collie Woollen Mills and left more than 100 workers jobless. Appleton is about 40 miles west of Ottawa.

John Lyons, of the Almonte Fire Department, was taken to hospital for injuries suffered when struck by a falling beam. Gordon Lyons, no relation, of the Carleton Place Fire Department, also had to be treated in hospital. George Julian, of Almonte, suffered minor injuries and was treated at home.

Cause of the early morning outbreak in the town's only industry was not known.

Walter Stanfield, mill superintendent, said the mill will be reorganized and the efforts will be made to "farm out" the orders now on hand.

BOYS' DAY FOR 96

St. Catharines, July 15 — (CP) —Today is "Boys' Day" in St. Catharines and district as 96 hopeful teen-age boys seek prizes in the fourth annual soap box derby. The derby is one of two official derbies in Canada. The winner competes in the All-American derby at Akron, Ohio.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 15 (CP)—Synopsis: A few light showers occurred in a narrow zone across central regions during the night. Elsewhere skies were clear with temperatures unseasonably low.

The band of cloud and showers will edge northward today. In southern regions a strengthening flow of warm air from the central United States will bring clear skies and higher temperatures.

A disturbance over the Red River Valley is moving eastward and will bring rain to northern regions tonight and thundershowers to southern regions Sunday.

Iran Rejects Russ Complaints Over Surveys

Teheran, Iran, July 15 — (Reuters) — Iran today rejected Russian complaints concerning alleged American oil surveys on the Soviet-Iran border but said that to remove friction and misunderstanding air surveys will be stopped and only Iranian engineers will make ground surveys in future.

The Iran statement, in reply to a Soviet note of June 22, said Iranians are free to do what they please at any point of national territory.

The purchase of two American drilling machines by the Iranian government has not engaged any foreign advisers to carry out military activities detrimental to Soviet security, the note stated.

Motorist Stabbed By Man Leaping Into His Car

Akron, O., July 15 — (AP)— As Llewellyn R. Korean Air Lift Looks Bigger Than Berlin Operation From Pilot's View

Tokyo, July 15 (AP) — The men staging the air lift to Korea think it's bigger than the lift to Berlin last year.

Whether it is or not, only official sources can say, and that's military information of value to the enemy.

I saw a part of the air lift when I returned to Japan from Korea.

C-47s arrive and depart on a Korean airstrip every few minutes. Teams of Koreans with trucks unload the planes with speed and efficiency.

There is no wasted talk. The emptied plane takes off even as the loaded trucks start off the strip.

While I was walking the length of the airstrip two C-47s took off. I caught a third.

"We make about three trips every day," said Sgt. Dale McHenry, a crew member of the United States air force transport. "We certainly are piling the stuff in—it's got the Berlin lift beat all hollow.

"But the guys we gotta give credit to are the fighter pilots. For the life of me, I can't see how those commies can keep going. Their airfields are practically useless, their railroads and bridges are blasted, and their supply lines are hit with the big stuff day after day. They can't hold out much longer.

"How they've got so far south beats me. They must have had supply caches hidden along the way. But they're on a one-way road with no back-tracking. They'll never see north Korea again."

CANADA PROMISES FAST ACTION ON U.N. APPEAL

No Requests Received In Ottawa as Yet

Ottawa, July 15 (CP) —Canada today awaited official word of a United Nations appeal for more military aid to Korea.

The U.N. appeal, said to stress the need for ground troops, had not been received in Ottawa up to an early hour this morning. Until it is, there is no way of knowing the nature of the call upon Canada, which has sent three destroyers to help the U.N.'s intervention forces in South Korea.

But it became clear that home-defence requirements would be a guiding factor in any decision on sending further forces to Korea. It was believed that while further naval aid, and possibly some air power, might be considered, commitment of Canadian troops from the Dominion's small home defence force was unlikely.

Canada's present army strength is no more than 22,000 or 23,000 men with only about 30 percent of them actual fighting men. The backbone of her present ground force is an airborne brigade of about 4,000 men and two armored regiments which at full strength would contain about 800 men each.

In addition she has reserve army units organized in all parts of the country but these are said to be at only 50 percent of full strength. Recruiting for the reserve on a voluntary basis is in full swing.

Always Considered Shield

Informed sources said the airborne brigade has always been considered as a "shield" for Canada in event of emergency, a force which might hold off an enemy until the country could mobilize. To send it out of Canada would be a fundamental change of policy.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, in a speech in Toronto last night, said Canada had a moral obligation to the United Nations and would "continue to discharge it."

He thought it would be unwise for Canada to send all her forces to Korea, a step which "might give some satisfaction to those who would like to trouble the waters elsewhere so that they could fish in them."

Most of Canada's cabinet ministers are out of the capital but many are within close reach and ready to return at a moment's notice. Prime Minister St. Laurent is at his summer home at St. Patrice, Que., where he is being kept informed of international developments. He is expected in Ottawa for the regular cabinet meeting next Wednesday at which the Korean situation will be reconsidered.

Should a decision be taken to send further forces to the Pacific beyond perhaps a few more naval ships, parliament would be recalled to give its approval.

NORTH KOREA DENIES CAMERA EVIDENCE

Two American soldiers, captured by red troops in Korea, are shown as they were found lying face down on the battlefield, bound and shot by red troops. These pictures were flown back to headquarters by a signal officer at the front. A broadcast from North Korea reported to the U.N. from the Far East denied that atrocities had been committed, and said that North Korea was, and would, abide by Red Cross war conventions. — Central Press Canadian.

WATER POURING INTO STERN OF GROUNDED LINER

Quebec, July 15 — (CP) —The 20,000-ton liner Franconia seesawed wth the tides on a rocky reef today, with underwater punctures in her hull. Work crews tried to keep he pumped out.

The powerful salvage tug Traverse was to arrive late today. Unofficial sources said the Cunard Donaldson ship was taking water in increasing quantity. Last night they reported two pumps had been added to five already working.

A reporter who circled the vessel in a launch said the prow is solidly on the craggy shore off the west end of the Isle of Orleans, a mile from here, but the stern is deep in St. Lawrence River water.

The Franconia, with 850 passengers, a crew of more than 400 and, 200 tons of cargo, rammed into the rocks Wednesday night shortly after pulling out of Quebec harbor. Persons who saw the accident said she landed with a "terrific roar."

Divers had been at work in the swirling water at Pointe Au Taureau—name of the jutting head of rock where the ship struck, trying to establish the damage and assess the difficulties of refloating the vessel.

A preliminary inquiry ordered by the Department of Transport was to open today aboard the ship. The hearing would be closed, it was understood.

Barge Grounded.

Yesterday, a big barge towed by the tug Marion-B was grounded on the rocks by treacherous currents while it unloaded the Franconia's cargo to reduce the ship's weight and give her an easier chance to float.

Grounding of the barge demonstrated that salvage will be difficult.

A tug, presumably to hold the listing ship in place, is constantly tied to the Franconia's stern.

The tides tend to affect the position of the boat. It is one of the tug's jobs to counteract his effect as much as possible.

One report said the gash in the ship's underside is 60 feet long.

If an attempt is made by the Traverse to rescue the big ship, the tide must be taken into consideration, as well as winds and current.

Prof Carl Faessler of Laval University a geologist, said the believes the currents are caused by Montmorency Falls on the St. Lawrence north shore, on the other side of the island.

He says the falls have dug a subterranean tunnnel under the island from the falls to a point near Pointe Au Taureau.

So many tourists and curious Quebecers have been coming to look at the Franconia that police have decreed one-way traffic to Ste. Petronille, the parish where the ship is grounded. To return home, motorists must take a long detour.

ARRESTED MAN ADMITS KILLING DURING QUARREL

Detroit, July 15 —(AP) —With two families broken and bewildered, the sordid ending to an illicit love led today towards trial court.

Brooding in a jail cell, 42-year-old Sam Sampson is to be charged with murder in the pants-belt strangling of pretty Mrs. Vivian Stanley, 37.

The husky grocer-butcher, married and father of three children, confessed the slaying yesterday after 16 hours of police grilling. He will be charged on the basis of a statement from Sampson that he killed Mrs. Stanley, mother of two, in a quarrel.

Mrs. Stanley, her neck broken, was found dead in a weed patch Thursday two miles from her home in a better-class West Side neighborhood.

She had on only a nightgown and house coat — the clothes she wore, police said, when she left her house the night before for an auto ride with Sampson.

Police said Sampson admitted strangling Mrs. Stanley with his trousers belt in a quarrel after he rebuked her for employing private detectives to watch him.

Loaned Man $5,000

Some months ago Mrs. Stanley loaned Sampson $5,000 for his business, The two were intimate but Sampson's ardor cooled, police said. I told her I didn't want to marry her, Sampson was quoted as having told her in the car.

Slaps were exchanged. The strangling followed.

". . . I carried her out of the car and dumped her on the ground."

After the confession, police said, Sampson broke into a fit of sobbing and begged Prosecutor O'Brien "don't let it be first-degree murder." For this he could face life imprisonment.

At the jail Sampson's wife, Emaline, embraced him, in tears. She had just returned from a lake cottage with their children—Michael, 9; Linda, 6, and Wallace, 2.

Mrs. Stanley's husband, Crawford T. Stanley, secluded himself at his home with his son, Thomas, 14 and a daughter, Lucy, 7.

Eight years ago the Stanleys were involved in divorce proceedings but patched up their troubles.

LEG BROKEN BY BUS

St. Catharines, July 15 (CP)— Bus driver John Lind suffered a broken leg last night when struck by his own bus. He had left the bus to examine the engine and as he "revved" the motor the bus started to move. He ran around and tried to climb in but the bus knocked him down. The vehicle crashed through a fence and came to rest against a garage.

WARNS NOT TO PUT ENTIRE STRENGTH INTO KOREAN WAR

Pearson Says Korean Defence Prime Concern.

Toronto, July 15 (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson says Canada must avoid throwing all its strength into the Korean war.

He made the statement last night, just a few hours after Trygve Lie, Secretary-General of the United Nations, asked U.N. members to supply more aid to U.N. forces fighting the north Koreans.

Meanwhile, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former permanent Canadian delegate to the U.N., and onetime commander of the Canadian army overseas, said Canada's intervention in the Korean war is "right and inescapable."

Mr. Pearson said some have suggested that Canada should mobilize all her forces and begin moving them to the Pacific. That would be a "very unwise" move. Apparently referring to the possibility that Russia might strike elsewhere if large numbers of western troops were sent to Korea, he said such a move "might give some satisfaction to those who would like to trouble the waters elsewhere so that they could fish in them."

Warns Red Propaganda

The minister said, however, that the defence of Korea is of primary concern to Canada. He also told his audience to beware of communist-inspired peace campaigns.

"When the communists now tell us to fight for peace, they mean to make it possible for this communist aggression to succeed; just as they have told us it would be their duty, if war ever broke out with Russia, to fight for peace by stabbing their own countries in the back."

Gen. McNaughton, who has been chairman of the U.N. Security Council, said the U.N. was to have armed forces to meet a situation such as that in Korea but "the Soviet Union has refused to agree to measures necessary to make collective forces available to the U.N."

Diligenti Quints Of Argentina Mark 7th Birthday

Buenos Aires, July 15 (AP) — Argentina's Diligenti quintruplets today celebrate their seventh birthdays.

They already speak five languages—Spanish, English, French German and Italian —and are ready to start on the five times five multiplication table.

The two boys and three girls are the children of Franco Diligenti, a wealthy textile manufacturer, who has spurned all offers to exhibit the quints publicly.

Each one is having a birthday cake today at the party to which 40 adults and about 80 children have been invited.

The children are Franco, Jr., Carlos, Maria Fernanda, Maria Esther, and Maria ristina.

Centre of Front Holding Firm Says Communique

Invaders Apparently Trying To Drive Between Forces

Tokyo, July 16 — (Sunday) — (CP) — An army spokesman in Korea said late Saturday night the United States left flank has been pushed back from the Kum River to a new position by attacking communists.

The advanced headquarters spokesman said the U. S. troops were holding firm at the centre of their front, northwest of Taejon, but have been moved back generally west, somewhat from Taejon, the emergency capital.

Northward, midway to Chongju, some 40 miles north of Taejon, South Korean forces gave some ground.

The spokesman said no red tanks had been seen south of the river. But several were seen on two north-south roads west of Taejon.

American front - line defenders appeared in danger of encirclement following the first crossing of the strategic Kum River by northern forces, said a Reuters dispatch.

The North Koreans breached the American river line near Samgyo, 20 miles northwest of Taejon, over-ran field gun positions, and established a bridgehead.

Driving Wedge

The communist forces apparently were trying to drive a wedge between the United States right flank and South Korean troops defending a sector 10 miles south of Chongju, said the Associated Press.

Some communist soldiers were seen advancing under heavy mortar fire, an AP correspondent at advanced headquarters said in a dispatch timed at 10:52 p. m. Saturday (8:52 a. m. EDT Saturday).

The correspondent, William R. Moore, said the northern self-propelled 76 - millimetre guns were believed to have been brought into use.

Earlier Moore had reported from Korea the Americans had stabilized their positions near the Kum River toehold grabbed by the communists earlier in the day.

Four Red tanks were destroyed attempting ferry crossings of the river.

Heavy fighting raged in the sector south of Chongju. The south Koreans were holding their own in the battle, A.P. Correspondent Moore said in a field headquarters dispatch.

Little Fighting

He said there was relatively little fighting during the day around the Samgyo foothold seized by the Reds. Some of these waded the shallow river to reach the south side, where they held on tenaciously.

The Red bridgehead was established by large forces of infiltrating troops carrying considerable equipment and covering an extensive area.

Some estimates, Moore said, weer that between 1,000 and 2,000 foot soldiers made the initial crossing.

They apparently spread rapidly over an extensive area.

Police Order Mental Exam Of Bushman

Thessalon, Ont., July 15 (CP) — Police Friday night ordered a mental examination for a 52-year-old six-foot bushman and said they will question him to see if he is the mystery man who has been terrorizing this district and mutilating livestock .

They ordered the examination after an inmate in the town jail complained the bushman tried to assault him.

Police did not divulge the man's name. They said, however, he had given his home as a farm 10 miles from Quebec and reported that he had said he came to the Thessalon area in search of work.

Posses of citizens and provincial police have been combing the bush around this town fifty miles west of Sault Ste. Marie for a bearded, red-haired man who has been seen prowling through vegetable gardens and who apparently mutilated two cows and a horse.

Provincial police took the bushman from a train east of here Thursday after the train crew complained that the man was acting queerly. They said he was shouting incoherently and waving his arms.

$500,000 Fire Sweeps Through Seaside Resort

Hampton Beach, N.H., July 15 —(AP)— A $500 flash fire roared through 18 buildings in the heart of this popular new Hampshire seaside resort last night.

It razed an entire wooden block, destroying one hotel, four restaurants, a penny arcade and several rooming houses and other business establishments. Another hotel was damaged.

No one was injured seriously.

The blaze was battled by 11 fire departments. They dropped hose into the ocean to douse the area with sea water.

JUST DUMPING GROUND

Etobicoke, July 15 — (CP) — Lack of any controlling authority has left Queensway Park in this Toronto suburb a wasteland and dumping ground, crammed with smashed playground equipment. Reeve Clive Sinclair said immediate steps will be taken to create a parks board and reorganize the playground as soon as the township gets full title to the land, now in the process of transfer from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Bookmakers Laying Odds Major Hill Will be Killed if he Makes Descent

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 15 — (CP) — Bookmakers are said to be laying as much as 6 to 1 that Major Hill will die if he persists in his plan of going over Niagara Falls tomorrow in a barrel.

Hill, veteran 32-year-old river man, says he'll make it. And he adds that Sunday night he'll "sit back and snicker at the people who said it couldn't be done."

But before he does make the 155-foot descent in a 12-foot, 725-pound steel barrel, he'll have to avoid the Niagara Parks Commission and the police.

In a letter to Hill yesterday, Labor Minister Charles Daley of Ontario reminded him that he will violate park regulations and leave himself open to a fine if he tries it.

Said Hill: "The way my trip is planned, it will not violate the park regulations."

If he makes the drop over the Horseshoe falls on the Canadian side of the border, he will be the sixth person to try. Three have made it and two have been killed.

Hill — Major is his first name, not a military title — has shot the rapids at the foot of the falls in a barrel.

His two brothers, Norman and Wesley, plan to use a power launch to pick him up after the perilous descent. The pick-up itself is a dangerous feat in the rapids.

CAN OF CREAM UPSETS IN CAR

Cream came down on the local produce market today — but not exactly the way that the customers appreciation.

A local farmer had his car parked on the market and was unloading some produce when in some manner a five gallon can of cream on the floor in front of the rear seat was upset. The loose fitting lid slipped off and several gallons of the cream poured out into the car and onto the pavement.

REFUSE ON DUMP TAKES FIRE

City firemen did another three-hour stint at the city garbage dump last evening when refuse on the dump got ablaze and fire fighters were called to extinguish the fire. Firemen were called upon to run approximately 750 feet of hose to soak out the fire.

Rider Fractures Both Wrists In Collision

Trenton (Special) —Injured in a motorcycle-taxi collision at the corner of Dundas and Byron Sts., Thursday evening, Ralph R. Bucht, 21, RCAF Station Trenton, was rushed to the Air Station hospital.

The taxi was driven by Howard Robertson, R.R. 2 Carrying Place. Robertson told police he stopped at the corner of Byron and Dundas before turning on to Dundas where the accident occurred.

Bucht is reported to have broken both wrists in the accident and is also to have received multiple bruises and abrasions to both legs.

PICTON

Search for Two Army Members Still Under Way

Picton, —A search for two members of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) at Picton is still under way today.

Discovered at the same time the men disappeared was the theft of four sten guns and four .9 pistols. No ammunition was taken.

Later, an army jeep was reported stolen and has not been recovered.

As yet there is nothing to definitely link the three occurrences.

The men are Joseph T. Bennett of Winnipeg, and John L. Nelmes of Port Arthur. They were found missing when parade was held at eight o'clock Thursday morning. The pair were arrested by Toronto police last week in that city in connection with the beating of a Barrie steeplejack at Bradford, but were acquitted.

The men were under open arrest at the time of their disappearance, for a minor infraction of military discipline, which required the pair to report periodically. They had reported as scheduled Wednesday night but were missing the next morning.

Provincial Police and R.C.M.P. were asked to apprehend the missing pair.

Camp authorities stressed that there was not positive suggestion that the disappearance of the men was connected with the theft of the guns.

Locked Parked Car Causes Unusual Snarl of Traffic

It doesn't pay to leave your car sitting on the market square on Saturday. This morning, between a wrecking truck hauling away a parking offender and traffic from a heavy market, things were pretty well snarled up for a while.

The locked car was picked up at the rear end, and as it was being towed away, the front wheels kept turning the wrong way. Operator of the truck, with advice from all sides, had a job weaving it through the traffic. The automobile was towed from Market Street around to Pinnacle, with numerous stops for wheel straightening, and then things really went bad.

The car got itself swung across the tracks as the truck was heading south on Pinnacle, the operations stopped while the wheels were kicked into position again. In the meantime, traffic had piled up behind the two vehicles as far back as Bridge St.

To complicate things more, a tractor trailer was waiting on Pinnacle Street, headed north. He was attempting to get into the weigh scales, but was blocked by the southbound cars. Then a huge bus, which had been in front of the truck, fouled things up again by attempting to back into the laneway beside the gas station on the east side of Pinnacle.

Finally, the tractor trailer squeezed through the traffic, an attempt was made to chain the front wheels of the car so that they wouldn't move, and the caravan began to move on.

It is believed that the car was left overnight on the market square by a stranger.

Child on Tricycle Escapes With Bruises

Three-year-old Judith Gill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gill, 8 Harriett Street, escaped with bruises yesterday when she ran her tricycle into a parked bread wagon with result that the horse became scared and moved away, the wagon passing over the little girl.

Earl Fox, driver for Weston's Bread, said he had stopped his horse in front of the Fox apartment to deliver bread. While he was in the house making delivery the girl ran her tricycle into the bread wagon scaring the horse.

The little girl was attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk, who said there was no serious injury and that the girl escaped with bruises.

A. B. Ron Godden Goes to Sea In Near Future

AB Ron Godden 29 Hillside St., formerly with the Ontario Intelligencer as a reporter, has just completed a two-weeks leave at home.

Ron, who left the Intelligencer in February, 1949, to join the navy has been stationed at HMCS Naden, Esquimalt, B.C. HMCS Stadacona, Halifax, and HMCS York, Toronto.

Following his leave Ron leaves for Ottawa to join HMCS Bytown as a shorthand writer on the Admiral Staff. He expects to join HMCS Magnificent in Halifax later in the summer.

Other Belleville boys who have recently been on leave are AB Jim Calnan who is to the posted to the destroyer Micmac, and AB Bill Calbury, who is to join the Magnificent shortly.

Junior Farmers Will Hold Field Day and Dance

Hastings county junior farmers will hold their annual field day and dance at the Stirling Fair Grounds on Wednesday, July 19th, when a boys' and girls' softball tournament to decide county champions will be staged. The program also calls for track and field events for both boys and girls.

There will be dancing in the evening at the Stirling community hall.

Winners in the various events will be eligible to participate in the Quinte District junior farmers' field day which will be held this year at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville on Friday, July 28th.

Six counties from the Central Ontario district will be represented at the district field day.

Obituary

LATE MAE DAWN SCRIMSHAW

The funeral of Mae Dawn Scrimshaw, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Myles Scrimshaw, 69 South George Street, was held Friday afternoon from the Pinkston Funeral Home, Victoria Avenue at Church Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. D. C. Amos, minister of Bridge Street United Church.

The bearers were Joseph Gibson, Douglas Archer, Kenneth Travers, Francis Calbury, Dale Archer and Wayne Bunnett, all young friends of the deceased.

MRS. ETHEL ARMSTRONG
(Trenton)

Trenton, July 15 —The funeral of Mrs. Ethel Armstrong, 30 Crown Street, who died on Monday, July 10th., after an illness of five months' duration, was held on Thursday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home, here, the service in the chapel and at St. George's cemetery being conducted by the Rev. G. A. Puttenham, minister of Grace United Church.

The bearers were Claude Graham, Claude Wallace, James LeMoire, Jesse Baker, Neil Duquette and Lloyd York.

Born in Trenton the late Mrs. Armstrong was 68 years of age and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Lewis. All her life was passed here. She was a member of Grace United Church.

Surviving her are two brothers, Jack Lewis and James Lewis, both of Kingston. Her husband died 20 years ago.

MRS. IDA A. MORAN
(Trenton)

Trenton, July 15 — The funeral of Mrs. Ida A. Moran, wife of Mr. Philip Moran, 118 Dundas Street, east, was held Saturday morning last from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, to St. Peter's Church, where Solemn High Mass of Requiem was celebrated by the Rev. Father O'Donnell, assisted by Monsignor J. McAuley, of Lindsay, and Rev. Father Rishea, of Wooler.

Interment took place at Codrington Roman Catholic Cemetery. The bearers were William Moran, Thomas Moran, Ormond Moran, Charles Moran, Joseph Moran and William Moran, all relatives of the deceased.

The late Mrs. Moran was born 76 years ago in Trenton and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cardinell. For many years she lived in the Gunter Settlement and for the past seven years she made her home in Trenton. She died here on Thursday, July 6th., after a lengthy illness.

A daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Ethel) McAuley, Peterborough, died some years ago.

Alliance Tabernacle Holds D.V.B.S. Closing Exercises

Last evening at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle, Coleman and Moira Streets, "God's Clock of the Ages," a comprehensive survey of the intensive ten-day Bible instruction received at the Daily Vacation Bible School, was presented by the pupils to appreciative parents and friends.

Samples of hand-work, bearing out the theme, lined the chancel rail, and were on exhibition at other points nearby. These consisted of a large clock face, with hands and the twelve hours of the day, each hour representing some outstanding example of God's work of creation, the birth of the Saviour, crucifixion, death, resurrection, and second coming.

The pastor of the Tabernacle, the Reverend Robert Gray presided, and opened the evening's exercises with the rendition of several lovely choruses by the school. These included "Heavenly Sunshine," "Thank You, Lord, for Saving My Soul," as well as the children's favorite action choruses, "Only a Boy Named David," and "O Be Careful Little Eyes What You See."

Following the choruses, Paul Embury read the Scripture, and Raymond Masse led the opening prayer, both pupils of the school.

The story of the life of John and Betty Stam, missionaries of the Inland China Mission, was given by Beverley Clapp, telling of their childhood, Bible College days, and work in China, which culminated in their assassination by the brigands, and the rescue of their baby daughter, Helen.

Each class of the school had their own particular offering, which was well given, and much appreciated, ranging from the tiny four-year-olds to the senior students of 11 years. Two tiny maids, little Lenore Dixon, and Catharine Millard rendered solos and a trio composed of Ferne Millard, Wayne Gray, and Carol Brown, little beginners, was sweetly given.

Miss Eleanor Baragar's class explained the handwork theme, God's Clock of the Ages," and the senior class, under their teacher, Mrs. E. Masse, demonstrated the method of teaching by question and answers used during the session.

Attendance diplomas were given to more than 50 pupils who had attended for five consecutive days, and special prizes to those who held the highest number of points in their individual classes, these included: Leona Embury, Lenore Dixon, Catherine Millard, May Howie, Beverley Clapp, Paul Embury and Shalma Malott.

Little Catherine Millard was the winner of the special award for the one bringing the most children to Bible School. Catherine was a real fisherman, with eleven little ones to her credit.

Special thanks and appreciation is extended to the teachers who gave of their time, for ten days, to bring the Word of God to the little children: Mrs. E. Masse, Miss Eleanor Baragar, Mrs. Herbert Millard, Mrs. G. Wickett, Mrs. G. Millard, Mrs. Embury, Mrs. K. Dixon, Mrs. R. Brown, who both taught and presided as pianist, and to those who assisted, Miss Carol Garrison, Miss Joan Sopha, Miss Joan Shindall, Miss Peggy Parks, and Mrs. Wilbur Wright. Also to the pastor, The Rev. Robert Gray, whose untiring efforts made the school so outstanding.

The average attendance was 58, and 95 enrolled.

To see Canada-- go through this door!

If a visitor to this country set out to find true Canadian atmosphere, certainly one of the first places he should go is the nearest drug store. For Canada's pharmacies — from Newfoundland to British Columbia — have a character all their own.

It's really a blend of many things: The prescription department, stocked with the latest products of medical science. The shelves of bright, attractive merchandise. The friendly surroundings . . . often with the familiar soda fountain inviting you to refreshment. The ever-present spirit of community service.

And the pharmacist himself is essentially a product of North America — where one finds a larger number of skilled professional men than in any other part of the world. The scientific career he selected is a typical Canadian opportunity. And he, in return, has contributed a proud service which has helped to make this country one of the healthiest on earth.

Get better acquainted with your pharmacist. Trade with him — he's a man you can rely on.

Uniting the Children in Worship

(By Rev. J. G. Williams, in "London Calling")

During the recent Mission to London, the vicar of one of London's most famous churches, within a stone's throw of Big Ben, was accosted by a small boy outside his church, which was covered with flags and posters in honor of the occasion. "What's going on here, guv'nor?" asked the boy. "It's the Mission to London, you know," the vicar answered. "And what's that all about guv'nor?" the boy asked. "Well, it's about Jesus Christ." And the boy said, "Who's He?"

I think that story focuses to a point an immense problem that we are facing today—not only in this country, but fairly generally: the problem of a generation of young people who are growing up completely out of touch with life and worship and teaching of the Christian Church. And the broadcast I want to tell you about today is the most important and, I think, the most influential of several efforts we are making in our British broadcasting to meet that problem.

Broadcast Begins

The radio set is already switched on, and turned low, with one of the teachers standing by ready to turn it up to full strength as soon as the broadcast begins; and the children are standing, or sitting in their places quietly waiting. Then, at exactly five minutes past nine, a voice says: "Good morning, schools! We will begin our service today by listening to this piece of music (he gives the name of it), and as we listen to it together we can spend those few moments remembering all the thousands of others who are listening, too."

Then, as the music is played—just a minute or so of a quiet worshipful tune — such as the Arioso of Bach— the children can think quietly of the vast, unseen multitude of other listeners who are going to join in this act of worship with them, and feel that, wherever they are—in city, or town or village—they are now, for the time being, one with all these others - - -

Then there follows the first hymn—a hymn of worship, or a morning hymn of praise. The first verse is always sung solo by a tenor voice with organ acompaniment, and the children listen. They have rehearsed the hymns beforehand, and now the tenor solo reminds them again of the tune and gives them the key and the tempo, besides being, in itself, something lovely and impressive to listen to.

Singing

As soon as the solo verse is finished, that first verse is taken up again by a choir of boys, with very strong organ acompaniment and then the children in school join in with the boys' choir and sing the hymn from start to finish knowing, as they sing it, that tens of thousands of other voices all over the country are at that moment joined with them in praising God.

And so the first hymn is sung, and the children sit down in readiness for the central part of this great act of worship.

When we first began the school's service, in September 1940, there was always a short talk at this point, lasting about five minutes. But at the end of the first year, it became apparent that such talks however good, did not really hold the attention of the children, and it was also clear that direct exhortation belongs more properly to the teacher than to the broadcaster.

It has always been a leading principal in schools' broadcasting never to attempt anything that can be done more effectively and properly done by the teacher himself, who is in direct personal contact with his children—that is, never to give direct teaching. The business of the broadcaster is rather to provide something that the ordinary teacher and the ordinary school, with its more limited resources, cannot hope to do—that is, to illuminate the material of teaching, to give a vivid experience.

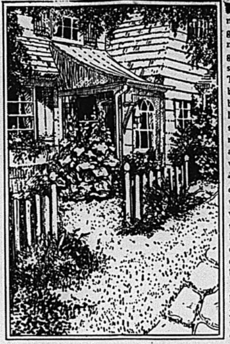
Use of Drama

And after those early experiments, we felt that this, in the realm of worship, could be better done not by direct speech but by a careful use of drama. So we decided to abandon the straightforward talk and replace it by a dramatic interlude, lasting about six or seven minutes. I may say, in passing, that, as soon as this was done, the whole spirit of the service was immediately changed —the waning interest of the children was recaptured, and the service went on from strength to strength. It is now broadcast twice every week into school assemblies throughout the country and something well over 4,000 schools, and something in the region of 1,000,000 children, take part, not to mention parents and others listening in their homes.

When the interlude is finished, the mood passes quite naturally into prayer. There is no drop, but rather a raising, of the devotional temperature —and the prayers that follow are all the more real and impelling because of the vivid imaginative content they derive from the interlude.

A prayer is said by the broadcaster, sometimes with one or two quite simple reflections, which gather up and focus the thought of the interlude. Then a second prayer, which the children all repeat together (there are a dozen of these special prayers printed in a leaflet which is issued to the schools, and the details, both of hymns and prayers, are published each week in the Radio Times so that the schools can prepare them beforehand.) The prayers always finish with the Lord's Prayer, said together. After that there comes the second hymn, sung exactly as I described before, tied as closely as possible to the theme of the service, and followed by the Blessing. The service finishes with a minute or two of the same music which was played at the beginning.

HOLLYHOCKS AND HOME



These graceful and stately biennials should be included in every garden. Their tall and rapid growth makes them most suitable for background borders, against walls and to screen unsightly views or fences. They grow to nine feet high and blossom from July until September, bearing large open flowers along a leafy main stem. Colours are red, salmon, white, pink and yellow. A new introduction is "Indian Spring", a variety which is most beautiful and will flower from seed in a few weeks.

Hollyhocks should have rich, well drained soil, deeply dug and enriched with a good commercial fertilizer or well rotted manure. The addition of sand produces rapid root growth. Dead blooms should be kept picked off the flower stocks and should be cut down to the ground when all bloom is finished.

The commonest disease of hollyhocks is rust. This causes sickly yellow foliage. Control by dusting under the leaves with fine sulphur dust early in the Spring.

Hollyhocks against the home make a most attractive feature. Indicated in the sketch is a small fenced-in garden with pink Allegany Hollyhocks silhouetted against white siding. The white picket fence gives privacy and provides an admirable planting background.

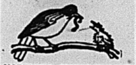
BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON



NORTHERN WATER-THRUSH

Are you spending your holidays near a forest through which a brook runs? Then your chances of coming upon a Northern Water-Thrush are fair. This interesting bird breeds across Canada from the Rockies eastward into Newfoundland Labrador, and north to the tree limit, but is quite unfamiliar to most people—partly because of its protective coloring, but also on account of its chosen breeding territory.

Thrush in name only, it passes for a small member of that family because of looks and habits, although in reality it is a woodland Warbler and close relative of the Ovenbird. But on nearly every count it is absolutely unwarblerlike. A suggestion has been made that Bogbird would be a suitable name. This ground frequenter walks instead of hopping. As it steps daintily along the margin of some sluggish stream notice the jerking tail. Wag-tail is one of its names. However, the movement appears to be produced by the springy walk, as the whole rear portion of the body bobs up and down like a Spotted Sandpiper's.

Smaller and more slender than a house sparrow, the Northern water- thrush may be distinguished from a true thrush by certain markings. The dark, prominent breast streaks are not round like the splashings on the wood thrush. The underparts have a yellowish cast, there is a light, buffy line over the eye, and a dark cap — characteristics not belonging to any real thrush. The main color is olive brown.

As may be imagined, dry summers are unfavorable to this species. A bird of shady corners and cedar swamps, the favorite nesting site is in the turned-up roots of a fallen tree amidst thick undergrowth, beside water. A decayed, moss-covered log may answer the purpose. The home is made of moss, often lined with reddish moss stems. The buffy-white eggs have light brown markings.

Perhaps the water-thrush's sharp, metallic alarm note "chink," catches your attention, or the delightful, melodious song which must be heard to be appreciated. With a loud, clear beginning, it gradually dies away. This bird is said to have a flight song also, though few people have had the opportunity of hearing it. When disturbed, the water-thrush flies off very rapidly.

If you are never near its breeding grounds there is yet the possibility of seeing a water-thrush in migration. In September one may be found taking time off under some shrubbery in your garden.

Many New Woods May be Used In Britain

By Melita Spragg, Staff Correspondent, in Christian Science Monitor

Woods whose names read like poetry may soon be replacing the prosaic oaks, walnuts, and mahoganies popular for making British furniture before World War II.

Bombay rosewood, Indian laurel, Tasmanian myrtle, purple heart, satinwood, zebrano—these are just some of the prizes brought back from forays into Commonwealth jungles in the search for dollar-saving timbers.

For British Empire forests are yielding these exciting new woods to replace those which might otherwise be imported from hard-currency countries.

Timber may be imported to Britain, but not furniture. So Britain's craftsmen, freed somewhat from Board of Trade control over material and design, are once more turning out furniture with individual stamp. It appears in woods that were little known in the days of the ubiquitous oak.

To show just how varied and handsome is this potential harvest from Empire forests, Commander David Joel, well-known furniture designer and manufacturer, gathered together some 50 specimens at Heal's Gallery recently.

Silky woods in all shades from blond ash to ruby red were made up into a series of long, low, fireside tables, tables asking for log fires and plates of hot toasted crumpets oozing butter.

From India and Pakistan there are many lovely and generally little-known timber specimens. Indian silcer graywood from the Adaman Islands, used in the solid or as veneer, is considered not difficult to work.

Indian laurel, a close-grained heavy wood in dark walnut-color, is made up into a man's wardrobe. This has a panel with five drawers in the centre and short cupboards on each side. The dark wood is inlaid with small stars of a lighter ash-blond wood.

Bombay Rosewood Useful

Bombay rosewood, once used mainly for grand pianos, is one of the few woods which can be left untreated. Burnished with its own shavings, the wood retains a lovely mauve color.

Oak, though dear to the heart of the British homemaker, is not available in large quantities to the cabinetmaker, and sweet chestnut is suggested as a home-grown substitute, though this does not show the silver grain or "flower" which oak has.

Walnut, second only to oak in popularity, is scarce, since so much of it was used for rifle and gun stocks during the war.

The other common British tree, the elm, is used unpolished for garden furniture. Sturdy garden seats with table ends echo a summons to garden meals.

Few people think of the London plane tree as yielding material for furniture-making, yet it does in fact give a wood with a delicate 'beat" figure, described more graphically in its popular name "lacewood."

Robin Day, who designs for Heal's, is already well known in America as the joint winner, with Clive Latimer, of the Museum of Modern Art first prize in a recent competition for low cost furniture. He has designed for export a dining room suite in Nigerian cherry crossbanded with sycamore.

Furniture Harmony

The underframe and legs are of stained beech. The table extends to 7 ft. 8 in, by 3 ft., or may be closed to 6 ft. 2 in.

The matching sideboard of stained beech, Nigerian cherry, and sycamore has a plate glass shelf and the upper part is enclosed by sliding glass doors, one of which is opaque. The lower portion has three drawers and two cupboards are enclosed by sliding doors.

The armchairs are unusual. Frames are of stained beech, covered in calfskin with washable white hide borders. The sideboard unit and the table top are swung onto a wood frame by means of dowels.

Even in the utility ranges Heal's has dining room suites in most attractive woods. Christopher Heal M.S.I.A. designs a sideboard in bleached mahogany, with two drawers, two cupboards and one shelf in each for £10.

The matching table has wide detachable legs and costs £12 10s. The single dining chairs in the same wood are covered in a variety of printed linen and cotton mixtures. The single chairs cost £2 13s. 3d., and the armchair is about £4.

After a period of years, when Board of Trade regulations limited furniture manufacturer to a few stock designs, it is good to find designers at work again on ideas more suitable for modern living than the "three piece suites" and dining room uprights of pre-war years.

Picnic Spots

The Ottawa Journal notes that last Sunday, more than 200 persons were having their evening meal in a little roadside park built by the Ontario Department of Highways between Winchester and Vernon, on the Morrisburg-Ottawa highway.

These little parks are an expansion of the little roadside table idea, which the department introduced so successfully a few years ago. Some of the parks have little fireplaces for outdoor cooking. All of them are nicely sited in attractive shaded locations and are easily accessible from the highway.

There are several places along the St. Lawrence in this immediate area that should be ideal for this type of park. We can think of one or two immediately east of the city, and others farther west. — Cornwall Standard Free-Holder.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS WELCOMED

Entry of Newfoundland into Confederation has brought this year the first Newfoundland unit to train at a Canadian Reserve Force Camp, namely at Petawawa. The unit arrived last week.

Commanded by 29-year-old Lt.-Col. G. C. Eaton, MC, of St. John's, the 36 all ranks representing the regiment made the trip from Torbay, Newfoundland, to Ottawa in two chartered Dakotas and thence by train to Petawawa where they marched into camp singing "The Banks of Newfoundland." Their trip was not entirely uneventful. While flying over the Magdalen Islands in the St. Lawrence one of the planes was signalled to land on a beach where a stretcher patient was taken aboard and rushed to Charlottetown, P.E.I., for hospital treatment.

One of the Newfoundlanders' first acts upon arrival in camp was to present 70 pounds of salmon which they had brought with them to Sgt. C. M. Harrington, sergeant cook in the officers' mess, for a salmon supper later in the week. They were welcomed to Petawawa Camp by Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, GOC Central Command, who promised them an interesting and entertaining week of training. All of the unit members hail from St. John's and Cornerbrook.

HIS LUCK

We had always heard that the United States was the land of golden opportunities, where any mother's son could grow up to be president. It was always the newcomer to the land who started out with a few pennies and became governor of the state within a few years.

Now, we are glad to see, Canada has taken a step forward to show that the life of an immigrant can be rosy here as well. The other day a chap who had been here only two weeks reached the heights in Oshawa. He came from Malta, started to work in an automobile plant, "at a wage I never thought I could learn," and then luck lit on his shoulder.

He spent his last 25-cent piece on a car draw, and won the car. What more could a man ask in these days of sidewalks crowded with ticket sellers and pedestrians?

Still another case is that of the 18-month-old boy who won a new car in Peterborough not so long ago. Surely the child is marked as a future premier of the land, if his luck holds out. There were objections at the time that the car was illegally awarded, because the child could not answer the question required of him before he took possession of the automobile. These quickly dissolved, however, when the keys were actually pushed into his chubby little hand.

We think that the objectors to such gains would quickly silence themselves if they realized that their objection might rob this country of a future prime minister.

TUSSAUD CENTENNIAL

England is marking the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Madame Tussaud, who founded the world-famous waxwork exhibition in London. The collection of these figures in wax was one of those flashes of genius which happens to some persons and catch the world's interest. Her collection and its popularity have grown through the years and today there are long queues waiting to visit the halls filled with the waxen figures of kings and queens and stars of the sporting and entertaining world as well as with the group of infamous folk, those murders seen lifesize as they had been known before they committed the crimes for which they had to pay the price or before they were brought to justice. An insight into the making of wax figures was recently given by the BBC for overseas listeners.

There was real horror in the early Tussaud waxworks history for in Paris in 1793 Mme. Tussaud was ordered to make a death mask of Queen Marie Antoinette her patron and friend who had been guillotined with her husband King Louis that morning. Mme. Tussaud was also forced to make a death mask of the King, Louis XVI and to sculpt Marat as he lay in his bath after being stabbed by Charlotte Corday. During the French Revolution Mme. Tussaud was thrown into prison and the exhibition neglected. When released she was greatly in debt and worked for nine years to pay off the debt and then she married. Early in the nineteenth century she went to England, losing most of her collection and living in a caravan, exhibiting by day and modelling by night. When she was 75 she established a permanent exhibition in London and retired at the age of eighty-one.

HEIRLOOMS DONATED

Women of Britain have given treasured heirlooms in silver, plate and pewter to help flood and fire victims in Canada. More than 1,000 pieces have been donated. This is in addition to official aid supplies being sent by the British Government.

CADDIE GROWTH

It never struck me years ago
(What recently I've come to know).
When I went out to play,
The boy who trudged along with me,
From tee to green and green to tee,
Would be a priest today.

So swiftly boys to men are grown,
To little to us all is shown,
It ne'er occurred to me
The lad who bore my bag of clubs,
And had me listed with the dubs,
Would soon a doctor be.

I'm daily meeting caddies who
Are lawyers now and merchants, too,
All most successful men,
And wondering if my faults I'd hid
From them much better than I did
If I had known it then.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 15th., 1930

Miss Evelyn Cooke has returned home after spending the past two weeks with friends in Gossville, New Hampshire.

Mr. James Muir of Republican City, Nebraska, is visiting his brothers, Mr. William Muir and Mrs. John Muir in this city. He is an old Belleville boy and sees many changes and improvements in the city.

Miss Madeline Bell of this city and Miss Beula Callery of Kingston, have returned after spending a few days in Toronto.

Mrs. Gordon Miller, formerly of this city, now of Napanee, was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower arranged by Belleville friends, forty of whom motored to Napanee last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bernard Collins, and Robertson have left to spend two weeks camping at Crowe Lake.

30 YEARS AGO

July 15th., 1920

Mr. Louis Clement, an old Belleville boys, now residing in Rochester, N.Y., writes the local committee that a big crowd will come from that city to the Old Boys' Reunion.

Mrs. William Bathurt of Minneapolis, Minn., is here to attend the Old Boys' and Old Girls' Reunion.

Mr. Guy C. Baker, of Ottawa, has arrived here to attend the Old Boys' Reunion. Many years ago he was an employee of the Daily Intelligencer.

Mrs. H. Smeaton and family of this city, and her brother, Mr. James Whitton are camping at Crowe Lake.

The pavement on West Bride Street will be made 36 feet wide instead of 30 feet, as was at first decided.

40 YEARS AGO

July 15th., 1910

Mrs. George Boulter of this city is visiting friends in Toronto.

Miss Annie Vapor, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Walton, left today for New York City.

Mr. Thomas F. Lynch, secretary of the Belleville Club in Chicago, has written to J. V. Jenkins asking that the old Belleville boys, who will attend the reunion, be permitted to make their headquartes at Hotel Quinte. It is expected that sixty old Belleville boys will be here from Chicago.

The campaign to raise the sum of $40,000 for the erection of a Y.M.C.A. building here closed last night and was a great success; the sum of $41,332.25 was secured.

50 YEARS AGO

July 15th., 1900

Mrs. G. S. Tickell of this city is visiting friends in Montreal, and will visit her son in Connecticut before returning home.

Mr. H. Sheffington of Toronto has arrived here to take the place of Mr. Clarence Dickenson in the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Dickenson has been transferred west.

Mr. Peter Doyle is home from New York City on a visit to his parents, Ald. John Doyle and Mrs. Doyle, Alexander Street.

Mr. Fred Osborne has arrived home from Winnipeg.

Mr. Jack McLean has returned home from Western Canada where he spent several months.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PROFANITY

Profanity in polite society is becoming a shocking reality today. A generation or so ago, a man would hesitate to swear in the presence of a woman. Today men talk about the same way when women are around as they used to when men gathered by themselves. Most amazing of all, some women have taken up the profanity habit and very often without the least compunction outswear men.

Teachers in high schools and secondary schools are especially conscious of this problem. A fine headmaster of one of the eastern secondary schools pointed out recently to his boys that profane speech, in the case of many people indicates both a limited vocabulary and a limited intelligence. Probably most people swear because they think it is humorous and because they believe it gives them a rating of cleverness. Other people have no idea how to be emphatic unless they punctuate what they say with an oath. For still others, cursing and swearing is a way of blowing off steam when anger reaches the boiling point.

The headmaster already referred to, ended his talk to the students by saying: "As for vulgar or obscene talk, it has a natural attraction for weak minds. Those who think it shows sophistication should be reminded that it is only to pigs that garbage tastes good."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Probably no living creature has so many enemies as the grasshopper. Because of last year's widespread drought— which is good for the perpetuation of most insects—the prediction for this year is something of a plague of grasshoppers in the west and elsewhere.

Here is one competitor in the inter-racial struggle for life who does very well despite a grand alliance of enemies. Man is by no means the first of them. Skunks, mice, shrews and voles may be said to be the front line infantry against the grasshopper legions. These four animals are tireless hunters of the packets of eggs the grasshoppers lay in small tunnels in the ground. The sparrowhawk, the gull the screech and ban owls take one grasshopper at a time, and do yeoman service as the cavalry of the battle. But the good old skunk-mouse divisions eat up grasshoppers a hundred at a crack in the egg.

Everybody who has visited Salt Lake City knows the statue to the gulls that came, in the early days of the Mormon settlement, to save the pioneers when a plague of grasshoppers descended upon their fields and would have brought famine and failure to the young colony. But nobody has yet erected any monument to the skunk who in his midnight millions across the continent snuffles patiently over the silent fields digging out grasshopper egg clusters from the sod. You can see his miniature excavations everywhere.

The small hawks and owls, gulls and meadowlark, some blackbirds and the thrashers attend, as best they can, to the grasshoppers the skunks, mice and shrews miss in eggs. But besides these enemies the grasshopper has insect enemies of deadly power. Two wasps, a very tiny one and a large black one, make their entire living off grasshoppers; and certain of the flesh flies, some of the tiny red ticks and other insects are in clover when the grasshopper plagues are upon us.

Just where man, with all his tricks, comes into the strategic or tactical elements of the battle is hard to estimate. But it certainly is not up in front.

Korea Once Had Own Culture And Language

(From The Baltimore Sun)

Korea is the midmost of the several peninsulas which jut southward from the eastern coast of the continent of Asia. Almost opposite it, at a distance of about 100 miles across the Japan Sea, lies Honshu, the main island of the Japanese archipelago. Korea's northern boundary is mostly Manchuria, but there is a strip where it is in direct contact with Siberia, which is to say with Soviet Russia. To the east and south lies the Japan Sea and to the west the Yellow Sea.

Korea as a whole is about the size of the State of Minnesota. But where Minnesota supports only about 2,500,000 people, more than 30,000,000 live in Korea. These people exist, for the most part, in the direst poverty. Some 20,000,000 of them live south of the thirty-eighth parallel and are hence the particular concern of the United States. The other 10,000,000 live north of that absurd line and hence are under Russian domination.

The south is devoted mostly to agriculture, but cannot grow enough to feed its millions. Most of the mineral and industrial wealth is in the north. Little is known today about the standard of living there.

The Koreans are not Chinese and they are not Japanese. They are what is usually called Mongoloid. However, their peninsula has been invaded so many times in past centuries that their culture, whatever it may have been, is now a non-descript mixture of Chinese and Japanese elements. The Koreans, for instance, once had a real alphabet of their own, but now they use in writing a pictograph script perhaps nearer to Japanese than to Chinese.

Most of them are illiterate, not through any fault of their own but because, during the years of Japanese occupation, it served Japanese purposes to keep them as ignorant as possible.

They are tough people, however, and despite the rigors of Japanese rule a certain nationalistic fervor survived, particularly in families which had been large land-owners before the Japanese expropriations. Most of the political leaders who emerged from hiding when the Japanese surrendered in 1945 were survivors of this class. Such men are handsome and intelligent and their women have beauty and dignity.

But the great mass of Koreans are tenant farmers. It is hard to discover what their status was before the Japanese conquest but today they live on a level which is shocking, even disgusting, to Americans. Their houses, grouped closely together in small villages, are mostly mud hovels with roofs of rotting thatch. Sanitation is so primitive as to be almost non-existent. The stench is all-pervading. The people themselves have that dull, sodden look which is the mark of hopeless people everywhere.

During the American occupation of South Korea and since, efforts have been made to introduce some ideas of sanitation and to establish community health services on a modest scale. We have no real facts to show what has been accomplished. But it is clear that the margin with which to work is a pitifully small one. Korea is a land of violent climatic extremes. The rains are often floods. Lack of forestation and soil conservation practices have denuded the rugged hillsides until they are often ghastly yellow scabs.

The rivers are sometimes like the arroyas of our Southwest, which is to say they are liquid mud. Most of the arrable land is in the very bottom of narrow valleys along the streams. Rice culture is everywhere and back-breaking labor it is.

It is hard to see how people living so close to the subsistence level can have any concern with public affairs and it is probable that most Koreans know little about the ideological struggle of which they are the centre and care less.

Industrial Use Of Nuclear Power 12 to 15 Yrs. Away

London, July 15—(Reuters) Sir John D. Cockroft, director of Britain's main atomic energy establishment, said today that the practical harnessing of nuclear power for industrial purposes was at least 12 or 15 years away.

Britain was therefore unlikely to embark on any large-scale development of nuclear power before the 1970s.

In a written paper prepared for discussion today by the 1,600 delegates from 47 countries attending the fourth world conference in London, he warned against undue optimism and the belief that power-driven ships, submarines and even trains were "just around the corner."

Study Roman Anti-Noise Law

(New York Herald-Tribune)

New Yorkers who have looked and listened through various efforts to make Manhattan a quieter island, will watch with interest, we believe, the campaign of Rome's municipal council to accomplish the decline and fall of sleep-destroying devices in the city of the Caesars. The council has announced that, beginning July 1, noise must cease between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m. Automobiles must not blow their horns, motorcycles must be muted in their exuberance, radios must be turned down, singing must stop in arias and areas, and babies must be kept quiet — by some method not stated. It is a magnificent program. It will leave New York's hard-working League for Less Noise astounded at its own modest demands.

But Rome, we fear, will have the same difficulties which face any great modern city that tries to control noises which began as long ago as inventive over-gadgeted man made his first assaults upon Morpheus, with intent to kill. Noise has been fought in New York since Dr. Shirley W. Wynne was Commissioner of Health in 1929. The fight continues to fail because the decibles mass new divisions of offense, electronic and otherwise, every year.

We wish Rome's council well in its silential decrees, but we note there is a premonitory crack in official optimism. If the campaign fails, it is said, it will be tried out in Milan. Here is a suggestion for our own city's next Noise Abatement Week. It can be held in Newark or Yonkers and save disappointment in Manhattan.

Cattle Trains Deluxe Provide Pullman Comfort

(From News Week, New York)

In the Union Pacific's Salt Lake City yards one day last week, trainmaster Albert Strand handed up the orders, and engineer Victor Ford seized the throttle. Then 8,890 head of Wyoming cattle, Utah sheep, and Idaho hogs started for Los Angeles on the nation's speediest stock train. They rode in near-Pullman comfort aboard 75 yellow and red slatsided cars, shock-cushioned and gliding smoothly on roller bearings. Aluminum-painted roofs and ends helped ward off the scorching desert heat.

UP's de luxe cattle train — trainmen call it the Day Light Stock, or DLS for short — went into service experimentally three years ago. At that time the fastest stock train took 57 hours to cover the 784-mile mountain and desert journey. Now the DLS does it in 27 hours; UP has 877 roller-bearing stock cars in service, and the line's Denver shops are turning out new ones at the rate of four a week. The fast DLS (60 miles an hour on several divisions) has proved a money-maker both for its owners and livestock shippers in the Mountain States.

Four years ago, serving an expanding California market for Mountain State cattle, the UP faced the expensive problem of enlarging its feeding pens at the stopover point of Las Vegas, Nev. A humane law requires that cattle, after 36 hours on board, be unloaded, fed and watered. Officials wondered whether faster trains would work instead.

Torso of Youth Found in Carcass Of Dead Shark

Galveston, Tex., July 15 — (AP) — The shark that swallowed a boy has officers puzzled.

They know where the shark, a nine-foot man-eater, came from, but they don't know where he found his victim.

Yesterday the carcass of the shark was discovered in the shallow waters of Galveston Bay. A human foot protruded from the decomposed shark. Inside the carcass officers found the torso of a youth, perhaps 17 or 18 years old.

J. L. Baughman, marine biologist, said the shark could have found his human meal a long way from Galveston since a shark can swim 250 miles in a day.

BELGIANS STRIKE

Brussels, Belgium, July 15 — (Reuters) — Metal, glass and leather workers, bus and streetcar drivers and all coal miners in the southern French-speaking section of Belgium went on strike today as a "warning" against exiled King Leopold's return to the throne.

The wave of strikes, limited to 40-hour walkouts, was described as general throughout the rich coal belt of the Borinage.

No estimate was available of the number of men affected.

Personal Health Talks

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

IF YOU ARE GOING TO DOCTOR YOURSELF—

Many of you are old enough to remember the doctor who after examining the patient, sat down and wrote a prescription containing from ten to fifteen different ingredients. And when the druggist mixed these all together and added a pleasant tasting syrup, according to the doctor's directions, it was wondrous to behold that the entire concoction "held together"—for the many weeks or months if occupied space in the medicine cabinet.

I doubt that any physician who entered the practice of medicine during the past twenty years could duplicate this feat. But in the old days, a good part of the medical student's time was devoted to learning how to prescribe these "shotgun" mixtures, without having them separate into two or three layers or without forming a gooey sediment at the bottom of the bottle.

And it is well that this is so. The medical student of today wastes little time learning how to duplicate the ability of his forefathers along this line. For long ago the idea of the "shotgun" mixture died a natural death—the idea that if one ingredient did not hit the mark, perhaps another one would.

The scene has changed from the one-horse rig to the jet plane. And where we formerly had aloes, coltsfoot, asafetida, bladderwrack and black cohosh, we now have sulfa, streptomycin, penicillin, terramycin, chloromycetin—strange words indeed, —strange as the mention of the atomic or hydrogen bomb would have been to the old timers.

The trouble with the new-fangled drugs is that they are not to be fooled around with very much. In the good old days, even Gran'ma could sook up a mess of sarsaparilla, sassafras, skullcap, and prickly ash berries and ladle it out to all hands without poisoning anybody. But you get fooling around with some of the modern drugs and, if you're lucky you come to in the hospital in an oxygen tent with more tubes running in and out of you than you can count.

Now, you're probably old enough, or you've read or heard enough to still have a hankering for a little self-medication now and then. You might have the idea that a wee drop of iodin now and then might be good for what ails you. Or perhaps you would like to see what happens to you if you took a bit of quinine —or rhubard, or chalk. Somehow, I cannot seem to get mad at you for this. As a matter of fact, I'm willing to go along with you—a reasonable distance.

You might go to your medicine cabinet and clean out the entire setup. Take the bottle of "Glutz' Hair Restorer," "Dr. Schmerinkopf's Nervola," "Madam Flutter's Bosom Developer" and all the rest you can find, new and old, and sail 'em right out the window. (Watch out for those old razor blades). Follow suit with all the tins and tubes of goo-goo, the pills, the capsules and the plasters, not forgetting the labels which have become detached from most all of them.

Then you might write me for one of my "Little Lessons In the Ways Of Health," titled "The Medicine Cupboard." There isn't space for it here. Accompany your request with 25c in coin and a return self-addressed envelope appropriately stamped. You may thus develop a medicine cupboard about which is stated upon the cover of the booklet, "Put economy and commo nsense into the medicine cupmon sense into the medicine cup- and health out of it."

YOUR LIBRARY

Everyone should have a carefully selected library, for when you do, you have a group of writers who match much of all that you are. And they can be around you, ready for your beck and call. You have some that cheer you when low, some who entertain you when away form your daily toil, and some to comfort you when in sorrow.

No matter how small or large, a library should be an essential investment in your home. What kind of books? The same kind you like as your human friends. They should be selected in the same manner. But, in the case of books, you can keep adding to them, and enriching your circle of friends.

Some one called at the home of Wordsworth, the naturalist poet, who wanted to see his library, and the maid said that his study was in a certain room, but his library was in the all out-of-doors! That is where my greatest library is, though I have books reaching to the ceiling of my room, and covering all walls. But I read most in what I see from the pages of Nature all about me in the wide open spaces. That's where Fabre and his, as well as Hudson, and a great horde of others. Their notes, merely, went into books. They never could reproduce from Nature's inexhaustible library.

Select the books that you like, though you may be led to many by others. Be your own pioneer in gathering books that fit best into your own mind and heart. Then tell your friends about them the same as you would a friend. I like books that have gone down the years on a pilgrimage to many— entertaining, comforting, and inspiring the millions.

I like almost every variety of books, but lean most to those that meet my moods. And there are books for every mood that any of us may have. Lovers of them discover this fact sooner or later. I would feel the lack in my library without my Shakespeare, Lamb, Gissing, Hudson, Thoreau or Buchan. Just to name a few favorites.

Your library can easily become your sanctuary, as it has been for thousands of others. It is one of the most valuable of all equipments for a happy home!

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

A BIT WEST

Longview, Alta. — We started off briskly this morning from Calgary, full of bacon and eggs and high resolve, headed eastward for the hot plains of Saskatchewan. Tonight we are just about 65 miles from Calgary —and deep in the foothills to the west!

It was those hills that did it. We are camped in them now beside a bubling little spring-fed stream. Sullivan's Creek, on the Y Cross Ranch and in the next week I expect I'll be throwing a lot of words your way about this western heaven on earth: Right now none of us care if we ever leave. It is that perfect.

From the moment we left Calgary, behind there was a kind of war between duty and desire. As I may have mentioned before, we're days behind our loose schedule. At our rate of progress so far it looks as if we'll be racing winter into Halifax.

We had a determined talk about it last night. Made up our minds to get some substantial mileage behind us today. Medicine Hat or better. That's what we said. And so we pulled out earlier than usual this morning with a lunch and thermos packed so that we could have our mid-day meal on the run and not waste any time.

The tourist people warned us against the direct, gravel road eastward from Calgary and so we headed south to Macleod on what they call "The Macleod Trail." A very fine highway it is, too. We'd loaded up our tanks with Propane. Brown Eyes had done her shopping, including the purchase of some fine British Columbia crabs. The car was freshly greased and lubricated for a long haul.

A New Plan

I suppose we've been instinctively dreading the necessity of crossing the prairies and now, speeding directly southward, all four of us were looking from west to east and back longingly to west.

Out to the east the prairie was flat and shimmering hot and dusty. But when our gaze swung back again to the west we saw the green and gently rolling Alberta foothills with their promise of cool breezes and behind them, like a backdrop, the slate blue Rockies with here and there white triangles of snow. The meadow larks flew around us. Their liquid whistle was like an invitation to obey that impulse.

I don't know how it began but somehow we started talking about how pleasant it would be to spend a week on a real Alberta cattle ranch. It would certainly be a shame, we all agreed, to leave Alberta behind without doing a story about the cow country. Besides, we'd just given Judy a pair of high-heeled cowboy boots with red, tooled uppers for her tenth birthday. She desperately needed a horse to go with them.

By the time we'd reached High River — "The Cowtown Capital of the Foothills" — the western view had worked its magic.

I made for the office of the High River Times and found the editor and publisher, Charlie Clark, a quiet, pipe-smoking man whose father founded the paper in 1905. We've discovered that when you're a stranger in a small town the weekly editor is the man to see. Charlie was no exception.

Could he suggest a ranch where the folks wouldn't mind a large aluminum trailer on the property? Some place that would more or less reflect the life and times of the typical Alberta cattle raiser? Charlie could and did and right after lunch we were on our way to the Y Cross Ranch of Joe Bews, some 30 miles from High River and near the Turner Valley oil town of Longview.

No Return

The drive from the main highway westward into the foothills was the severest test our trailer has had or is likely to have.

At regular intervals there were cattle guards, small bridges of iron pipes spaced theoretically impassable for cattle. They're just about impassable for a trailer, too, and we squeaked and clattered through them with many a groan.

But nothing could dim the joy of climbing into these enchanted hills, as green and rolling as the English downs, yet wild and rugged and only a day's pony ride from those formidable peaks. The air was like champagne. The breeze down the Highwood River canyon was suddenly cool to the brow.

We ground up one steep hill —Sullivan's Hill — and stopped at its crest. The grade down the other side was like a straight drop. I knew that if we ever got down safely it would take a tractor to get us up again. It was a moment of indecision.

But at the base of the hill we could see the ranch with its corrals and the white Y Cross brand painted on a red barn in the shade of tall spruce trees. We saw the kitchen door of the ranch open and a big man under a wide brimmed hat stepped out, looked up our way and waved a signal to come on. Behind him we could see the creek and a piece of flat ground beside it where the trailer would sit right pretty.

I put the car in low gear, we held our breath and let her roll.

Commercial Apple Crop Down From Last Year Says Report

Trenton (Special)—The 1950 commercial apple crop in Eastern Ontario is now estimated at 870,000 bushels, Morley Webster, Ontario Department of Agriculture Fruit and Vegetable fieldman for Eastern Ontario said in an interview here Thursday.

This estimate is 65 per cent of the 1949 apple production in this same area. By counties, the Northumberland-Hastings district shows the greatest drop, 40 per cent below last year, while the Durham-Ontario and St. Lawrence Valley districts are expected to fall 20 percent and Prince Edward-Lennox district crop is estimated at 25 per cent below 1949.

"More moisture is required in most sections," Mr. Webster said. "Prospects are fairly good for the early and fall varieties. In most orchards the apples are quite free from scab and insect injury and the fruit is sizing well. With the exception of some orchards in each district,, the set in McIntosh, Spy and Delicious is patchy."

Turning to prospects for other fruit crops, Mr. Webster said "the pear crop is showing up better during the past week. Total yield for all varieties of pears is now estimated at 55 per cent of last year's crop."

While a further supply of moisture would improve the crop," Mr. Webster said that there is a medium set of sour cherries in most producing areas and cherries are also sizing up good in most orchards. The cherry crop this year is expected to be about 15 per cent less than that of last season." "There are a few early Richmonds on the market now but the main crop of Montmorencies will not be ready for another week or ten days, depending on the weather."

Many raspberry patches were injured considerably by the winter cold, Mr. Webster said but in general raspberry crop prospects are fairly good. "Again, moisture supply will determine the size of the fruit and the total yield."

Kinsmen Determined to Give 50 Underprivileged Camp

Trenton (Special) Even if they have to dig into club funds and their own pockets, the Kinsmen Club will send 50 underprivileged children from Trenton to camp for a week's vacation, Kinsmen Vern Wannamaker said Thursday.

Mr. Wannamaker and Ralph Bardwell, who are in charge of the drive to raise money for the Fresh Air Fund report that a considerable amount still has to be received if the total amount necessary to send the 25 boys and 25 girls to camp is to be raised by voluntary contributions.

Today, ten boys will leave for a one week holiday at the Belleville YMCA supervised camp on Moira Lake, and 15 more will be sent next Saturday. After the 25 boys who would otherwise not have a summer vacation have had their week at camp, 25 girls will be sent, in three installments five the first two weeks and 15 15 the next week.

The children are being chosen with the help of the local VON and the number being sent to the Fresh Air Camp this year is double the number of children sent last year.

It costs the Kinsmen $12.50 plus transportation to give each child a week at camp and the total cost is over $700. To date, the Kinsmen Fresh Air Fund total stands at $553. The Kinsmen themselves started the fund off with $161 and a tag day raised another $353. The remainder has been donated by individuals.

In urging Trentonians to support the Kinsmen project, Mr. Wannamaker said, "we promised to send 50 children to camp and we intend to do so even if we have to make up the difference ourselves."

Donations can be given or sent to any member of the Kinsmen Club or left at the Trenton office of the Ontario Intelligencer in the Trent Theatre Building.

Hamilton Nature Club Formed To Take Part in Conservation

(Written for The Canadian Press)
By PERCY GHENT

"Long lists of birds observed, technicolor motion pictures of Nature's flora and fauna, are not enough for those who call themselves naturalists," says Miss Edith Austen of Hamilton, Ont., who is a director of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists.

Miss Austen says that the Hamilton Nature Club has formed an active conservation committee and plans are under way to engage in useful, constructive efforts in the local field.

Program outlined includes the establishment of wildlife sanctuaries for the protection and preservation of birds, mammals and the rarer wild flowers and plants. Woodlot care, educational efforts to stress the importance of swamps, and the protection of local beauty spots from disfigurement and devastation are also part of the campaign of ambitious Hamilton naturalists.

The summer nature school at Camp Billie Bear, on the fringe of Algonquin Park was also referred to by Miss Austen. Sponsored by the Ontario Federation, this school in the woods has just concluded its 12th annual session, and prospective leaders in the various fields of nature education and conservation have had a thorough but enjoyable course in the fascinating ways of Nature seen at first hand.

Said Miss Austen, "I should very much like to see the directors of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists sponsor a fund which would be used, when adequate, to purchase a permanent site for the summer nature school, and so broaden its scope and usefulness."

Ducks' Day Nursery

Whenever a flock of a score or so of American mergansers (fish ducks) swim into view on a Canadian lake, the chances are they are all adult females, for the males depart for a prolonged summer vacation when the babies arrive.

Nor are the mother ducks in the flotilla unduly concerned about the ducklings. They have a superbly organized day nursery, and elsewhere on the lake some sober - minded merganser is keeping 30 or 40 baby ducks in order — the community offspring — while their mothers are enjoying a bit of social life. She will have her days off in due course, and another day nurse will assume the maternal care.

Day nurseries are far from a modern idea for these mergansers — they organized them in dim antiquity.

WEDDINGS

CULKIN—BUNNETT

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at Christ Church, Belleville, recenty by the Rev. Canon J. Grant Sparling, when Shirley Audrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bunnett, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Clarence William Culkin, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Culkin, of Montreal.

The bride wore a becoming ensemble of navy gabardine with white accessories, and corsage of white gardenias.

She was attended by Miss June Matthews, who wore a sand-checked suit with green accessories, and corsage of rose carnations, while Mr. Gordon Culkin, of Montreal, attended his brother.

The reception was held at the home of the bride. The young couple will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the recipient of showers given by Mrs. C. Greatrix and Mrs. O. Foley, Mrs. D. Ashley, and Miss June Matthews.

LANE—CREELMAN

A pretty wedding of widespread interest was solemnized in Christ Church, Belleville, on Wednesday July 12, at 3 p.m., when Frances Earlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Creelman, of Belleville, formerly of Truro, N.S., became the bride of Ronald Chester Lane, of Belleville, formerly of Truro, Nova Scotia, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lane, of Truro, N.S. The Rev. Canon J. Grant Sparling, rector of the church, officiated before a background of tall white standards of white hydrangea and summer flowers.

Mr. Dana Cook, church organist, provided the wedding music, and a choir-boy quartet sang during the signing of the register, "O' Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her lovely gown of embroidered velva ray marquisette fashioned with nylon yoke, fitted bodice, long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists; full bouffant skirt, caught up in graceful scallops by seed pearl rosettes revealing four tiers of lace ruffles. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a basket of American Beauty roses and white Queen Ann lace.

Mrs. Jean McKeil, of Toronto, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in pink organza over taffeta, with matching mitts and large, lace picture hat. Miss Mildred Jackson, of Selby, Ont., was bridesmaid, wearing blue embroidered organza over taffeta, with matching mitts and large, lace picture hat. Both gowns were fashioned on identical lines.

Little Nancy Knowlton of Belleville, was flower-girl, demure in her floor-length frock of pale-yellow organza over taffeta, with matching headdress of yellow satin. All carried baskets of summer flowers and white Queen Ann lace.

Mr. Jerry Munroe, of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, uncle of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Ralph Knowlton, and Mr. John Trumpour, both of Belleville, were ushers.

At the reception which was held at Golden Acres Inn, Belleville, the bride's mother gowned in powder-blue sheer, with white accessories and corsage of pink roses and sweetpeas, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of brown and white sheer, with white accessories and corsage of roses and sweetpeas, received the guests.

Following the reception, the young couple left for a wedding trip to the Kawartha Lakes, the bride travelling in a powder-blue gabardine ensemble, with white accessories, and corsage of roses and gladioli. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Lane will reside in Belleville.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lane, Truro, N.S.; Douglas, Glendon, and Gordon Lane, also of Truro, N.S., and brothers of the bridegroom; Miss Ruth Guild, and Mr. Earl Guild, cousins of the bride, of Hamilton, Ont.; Miss Mildred Jackson, of Selby, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Munroe, of Middleton Park, Trenton; Mr. Jack Smythe, also of Trenton; Mrs. Earl Keech and daughter, Sandra, of Deseronto, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Harry Thompson and daughter, Linda, of Napanee, cousins of the bride; Mrs. D. D. McCulloch, of Truro, N.S., grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Jean McKeil, of Toronto, aunt of the bride.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained by Mrs. John Trumpour, William Street, at a miscellaneous shower.

Mrs. S. V. Creelman also entertained in honor of her daughter at a trousseau tea.

BURR'S

BURR'S W.A.

Burr's — Mrs. Tom Morden was July hostess to the Women's Association on Thursday afternoon. Attending guests were Mrs. D. Caldwell, Brampton; Mrs. M. Taylor, Brampton; Mrs. R. McKee, London; Mrs. L. Wood, Ameliasburg; Mrs. J. Ash and Mrs. P. Kooger.

The president, Mrs. C. Hough, was in charge and was assisted by Mrs. C. Fulford, and Mrs. S. Clark in the devotional exercises.

Business discussed consisted of setting a date for the ice cream social early in August. Blocks for the autograph quilt were distributed to members, a parcel post 25-cent gift table was started, members to solicit gifts from distant countries, States, or far places in Canada, the parcels to be received by October. Mrs. Hough showed a holiday dime card such as used by some groups for raising funds.

Mrs. McKee, a group leader from Dundas Centre Church in London, displayed gift suggestions as made by her, and members of her group and gave a brief talk on the work carried on by her group.

Mrs. B. Hough thanked members for a plant sent during her illness. Mrs. S. Clarke contributed a reading. The August meeting was invited to the home of Mrs. D. Osterhout.

Women's Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The annual picnic of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Windover. The earlier part of the activities were enjoyed on the lovely lawn along the Bay shore, then owing to the sudden shower, everyone ran for shelter to the house, where the rest of the games were completed, and a bountiful pot luck supper served to which all present did ample justice. The program which was under the capable direction of Mrs. Anger and Mrs. K. Chambers with the winners, was as follows:

Bean guessing contest, Mrs. Hall; 50-yard dash, Mrs. Bonnyman; Ring Toss, Mrs. Williams; Lemon Relay, Mrs. McDonald's team; Raisin Relay, Mrs. Robson's team; Water relay, Mrs. McDonald's team; Nut race, Mrs. McDonald's team; Peanut hunt, Mrs. Hall; Birthday prize, Mrs. Johnston; Gate prize, Mrs. Bonnyman and Mrs. Williams; Shoe Kicking, Mrs. Hall.

WILL NOT FOLLOW BELL

Toronto, July 15 — (CP)—The 840 independent telephone companies in Ontario and Quebec will not follow the Bell Telephone Company in its successful bid for higher rates, H. A. Rogers, secretary of the Canadian Independent Telephone Association said Friday night.

No mass application for higher rates will be made to the Board of Transport Commissioners, he said, although some individual companies might seek increases.

Mr. Rogers said, however, that rural subscribers making long distance calls through the Bell system would have to pay the higher rates authorized by the board.

Children's Eyes Reflect Terror Of Malaya War

Singapore, July (Reuters) — Two and a quarter bewildered Chinese, Indian and Malay children are in the thick of the shooting war being fought in Malaya between British forces and Communist guerillas.

Few have been hurt; but their bright eyes often show just how much they are aware of the terror that is in the air.

I saw thousands of these youngsters working in the slushy rice fields, standing in the doorways of trim huts in the jungle-fringed villages, and playing in the market towns in Pahang, Selangor, Negri, Sembilan and Kedah.

The convoy of armored cars and trucks with which I rode created little interest among them. They have seen armed men and women come and go through the Malay States' towns for as long as they can remember.

They know the difference between bombs and thunder, automatic fire and the back-firing of a motorcycle.

They did not wave as we sped past. They did not ask for cigarettes when we stopped.

In Malay these days, Asian parents teach their offspring to close their eyes to what is going on around them. It is safer not to know.

British intelligence sources say many schoolboys know more about the movements of guerrilla gangs in their districts than the police themselves. They are allowed to keep their secrets because British authorities prefer not to deal with children.

Held in Custody

However, some youngsters actively aiding the guerrillas have been held in custody. Schoolboys have been caught acting as couriers and/ food suppliers for terrorists bands. On some occasions, satchels carried by Chinese yodngsters headed for school have been found stuffed with Communist pamphlets.

Emergency regulations recently were amended to provide that boys and girls of less than 17 may be detained in custody at advanced approved schools instead of in detention camps.

One intelligence officer said a number of children of Malayan Communists attend government and private Chinese schools in the hinterland and the towns.

The parents of some have taken to the jungle. Others only see their fathers at night when it is comparatively safe for them to leave jungle fastnesses. Family ties are strong among the Chinese, one officer said and the government social welfare centres are only occasionally told of children abandoned by their terrorist fathers.

Children have been killed in terrorist hand-grenade attacks; but the killers usually spare the younger members of the families even if they deprive them of both parents with one burst of fire.

But one instance was reported to British authorities of terrorists throwing several children into a burning house. A number of Sakai aboriginal children were strangled, too, by one guerrilla band which was responsible for a massacre some months ago.

Adventurer at 96 Enjoys Ocean Hop

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Colyton, Devon, England July (CP) — 'Oldest traveller ever to fly from Canada to England," said newspaper headlines when 96-year-old Mrs. Harriet Richardson of Toronto, arrived in Britain.

Fashionably gowned, with roses in her hat and a brand new permanent wave, Mrs. Richardson impressed airport officials at London and Prestwick with her erect carriage, her youthful manner and her nylon-clad legs.

'Everybody seems to think that life stops at 90, but for me there's a lot of adventure left to be found," she told reporters at Prestwick.

Mrs. Richardson made the trans-Atlantic trip to visit her youngest sister — "she's only 84" —and intends to return to Canada by air September 9.

"Next time I come," she said with a laugh, "I'll pop over a bit earlier in the year to see the daffodils."

Mrs. Richardson was born in Dalwood, near Colyton. Recently her desire has been "to see dear old England again."

"She loves the sea, the honeysuckle, roses and daffodils of England," her daughter, Mrs. Olive Corley, told The Canadian Press. "She is very disappointed to have missed the daffodils."

Eldest of eight children, Mrs. Richardson emigrated to Canada in 1883 and went straight to Toronto. Her sister, Mrs. Anning, is the only other remaining member of the family.

The holiday will be spent motoring, seeing friends and relations and enjoying the English scenery.

Mrs. Richardson returns to an active life in Toronto.

"She helps with the housework, prepares and cooks all the meals, enjoys tea parties and plays bridge," says Mrs. Corley.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Among the stories of this year's class of university graduates in search of jobs, comes the yarn of one grad who when asked by a prospective employer what kind of work he felt he was fitted for, replied, "Something executive, sir." . . . The empoyer then went on to explain that his firm did have 12 executive vice-presidents, but that all those positions were filled at the present time . . . The young graduate quickly made it clear that he personally was not in the least bit, superstitious.

To pit cherries most housewives use the stout old fashioned wire hairpin which makes but one puncture in the skin of the fruit and turns the pit out quickly without damaging the plumpness of the cherry.

A neighbor says she has found an even better pitter. She takes a common pen holder and inserts a new pen point into it backwards. This sharp, hooked pen nib base acts as a quick, efficient tool for pitting large quantities of cherries for canning.

Conversation at a women's luncheon this week got on to the subject of smoking. Why is it that so many men have stopped smoking lately? That was the big question. Everybody admitted knowing several men who have given up the weed. One woman commented that men are now beginning to regard the custom of smoking as "too effeminate" for them.

Others said the current smoking black-out is the result of a recent article in the Readers' Digest which pointed up the dangers of over-indulgence in nicotine. It was agreed that this particular article has had more influence on the curbing of tobacco than any other single effort to date . . . Why, one woman said that after reading that smoking article, her husband had not only cut out smoking, he had stopped reading as well!

Democratic nations are often accused of being war mongers by the Russians. But as long as we continue to snap out with the kind of public retorts which certain top democratic statesmen are using on occasion, we deserve this description. We should keep our own doorstep clean before yelling that others are dirty.

Even some of our comics serve only to antagonize Russian people. Have you read the Steve Canyon strip lately? If not, you will see that this adventure story incredibly stamps ourselves as war mongers.

The enemies referred to in this comic are unmistakably Russians. Notice the appearance of the red star, the hammer and sickle and alphabet letters designed like those of the Russian tongue. As long as we go after world peace with this kind of thing poured out to our youngsters in their daily reading, we fail to see how the Russians could get any other impression than that we are stirring up a war.

It is only by strengthening and improving our democratic way of life that we can ever hope to preserve and maintain it against other forms of government. Such comic strips as Steve Canyon should be outlawed by the United Nations.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's Seventeen; He's Twenty-Four—and Married

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Something over a year ago, I met a man seven years older than myself, who asked me to go out with him. He was then 23, and [illegible]s 16. I asked my brother if he knew him, and my brother told me that he was married. When I asked this man about it, he said he was divorced.

I went out with him once or twice. Then we had an argument, and, without saying anything to him, I went away for a week or two. When I returned home, I heard that he had married a girl he had been going out with before he met me.

Shortly after that, he asked me to go for a ride with him. When I accepted, he told me that he loved me, and that he had only gotten married because of the things I said the night we quarreled, and he thought I had been ignoring him since then. He said he intends to divorce his wife and marry me, but I know that everyone is going to tell me I would be [illegible]ol to marry him. I know, [illegible] that my parents will do everything they can to break us up. What can I tell them to keep them quiet.

D.

Dear D.:

Sorry, but if I were one of your parents, I, too, would do everything I could to prevent your marriage to this man. Any man who would marry a girl as casually as you describe, and then a month later calmly tell another girl he intends to divorce his wife and marry her, is certainly no one with whom I would care to see a daughter of mine involved in any way, especially at the age of 17.

I am as sure as I am of anything that if you were to marry him, or if you even agreed to marry him, he would be off in pursuit of somebody else in a very short time. If you really have any idea of wanting to do [illegible]ensible thing, you will break off any association you have formed with this man, and quickly. A girl of your age is going to do herself no good by letting a married man court her.

Busybodies are upsetting her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a very happily married young wife of 23. I love my husband dearly, and feel he loves me the same. We have two darling children.

Lately, I have been feeling badly because my sister and my sister-in-law tell me my husband and I should have both our names on everything we own. My sister and her husband have both their names on their home and their car, and my brother has his wife's name on these things too. It's never mattered to me before, but they make me feel as though I'm not very important.

We have been married almost five years, and I really don't care whether my name is on anything or not, because I love my husband, and he knows I would not want anything without him. I have told my sister and sister-in-law it doesn't make any difference to me, but what do you think?

Mrs. L.

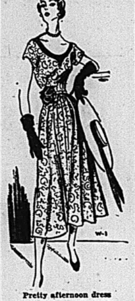
Dear Mrs. L.:

I don't think it makes any difference, either, because if you and your husband care as much about each other as you make me believe, I am sure he feels that your home, your car or anything else you have belongs to both of you. Don't let busybodies get you upset.

If, however, it would make you any happier to have it in black and white, why don't you talk the whole thing over with your husband and tell him so? I'm sure he would want it the way you would like to have it.

If you don't feel that you can talk to your husband about this, though, then make up your mind [illegible] a sensible girl and stop [illegible]ing about it. You are certainly not going to be any happier if you keep mulling it over in your mind without doing anything about it.

Velvet And Cotton



Pretty afternoon dress

By VERA WINSTON

THE touch of velvet gives this simple little cotton dress quite an air that is ready to make it right for almost any but an important event. The velvet is nylon and washable like the fabric which is a neat black and blue paisley print. A black rose is caught at the waist which is belted with self fabric. The sleeves are short and narrow, the neckline is nicely scooped out for comfort and flattery. The skirt is gathered in front and gored in back, all of which adds up to a cotton dress with authority.

Fashion Flashes

TRICKS with scarfs marked the recent mid-season showings abroad. Dresses used long chiffon scarfs as halters, the wide ends completed by a snap so that they covered the entire back like a decollete. Most designers used plain, rather than printed scarfs.

COOLISH DAYS bring out tissue-weight woollens, especially at the race track. Banker's gray flannel, in a very light weight, for a charming coat dress made with si[illegible]rapped closing slanting f[illegible] the bodice to the hipline. The deep, scooped-out neck is filled in with a white dickie.

BIG SEASON for velvet hats, either entirely of the fabric or velvet-trimmed. Black velvet makes a wide-brimmed hat, the edge wired and made so that it can be folded back to serve as a cuff for a head-hugging theatre-cap.

gage for a knitted suit if you intend to travel much. Bright navy blue wool is used for a charming suit, the jacket made with a fancy, open stitch and bound all around. Skirt is all-around pleated.

FAVORITE fashion for warm weather is the sheath dress worn with a full-length, filmy coat. Black linen for a sheath dress, its deep, ovel scooped-out neckline edged with white pique daisies that work to a cluster in front. Over it a filmy black organdie coat.

COMING IN to the stores for the late June and July promotion is the light-weight velvet suit done on softly tailored lines. Low lapels rippled at the base, double pockets at the hips, stitched collar and cuffs, square rhinestone-and-mirror buttons mark a pretty afternoon suit.

BEAUTY

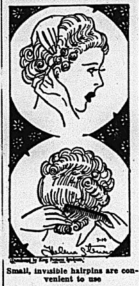
Longer-lasting ringlets

Shampooing in the home seems to have become an institution since so many of the sisters are shorn lambs, have hair not more than three inches long. With the right shampoo medium, diligent effort and a current of water strong enough to scramble one's brains, the hair can be made shining clean. The main difficulty seems to be in the pin wave. It's no fun to spend forty minutes making curly-cues to have them slink out in rag-tags and bob-tails the next day.

Some women have a knack for handling their tresses, coaxing them to behave in an agreeable manner. With a swish of the comb and pressure of the fingers they can produce undulations that are duplicates of the kind that nature bestows upon the lucky Curly Locks. Other women have difficulties. To solve their problem they should have professional services.

A fingerwave should endure from one shampoo to the next, even if that period extends from two to three weeks. The first need, naturally, is a strong permanent wave. If your wave weakens too quickly, seek an operator who employs a different method. While all methods are good these days, certain ones are best for certain types of hair.

Start your waving and ringleting immediately after the shampoo. If the hair dries ever so slightly, keep moistening it. If you employ a wave set solution, have it thin a thick liquid will make the hair difficult to handle. The strands will slip and slide away from your fingers.



Small, invisible hairpins are convenient to use

Hairpins should be inserted in the wave troughs to keep the lines secure. Or, you can anchor them down with wave-combs made for that purpose.

To curl the ends, part off small sections, each one the same size as the others, so the curls will be uniform. Start making the circle with the end of the strand and see that the end is carefully packed away in the centre. If it is on the outside of the coil, you may be disturbed to find that your hair-do has horrid little sprouts here and there.

Small, invisible hairpins can be used more conveniently than bobby pins that are difficult to put in place. Use three or four hairpins for each ringlet and an extra one to connect it with its neighbor. Don't arrange your hair-do until your locks are as dry as a bone.

A good thin lacquer will help your ringlets to last. Use it before you put on your wave cap and sit under the sun lamp for drying. Use an atomizer for a light spray; a strong one is likely to tear your curls apart.

BONARLAW

Bonarlaw — Mrs. A. V. Brown is spending a few holidays in Toronto visiting her daughter, Mrs. Mervin Willert, and other relatives. She was accompanied by Douglas and Doris Morrow, her garnchildren, who returned o nMonday of this week accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Eva Morrow, who will spend a couple of weeks vacation here.

Stanley Kitchener, agent C.P.R. returned on Tuesday of this week from two weeks' vacation at the family summer home, near Lindsay.

A large number of Orangemen and their families from this vicinity spent the 12th of July celebarting at Madoc.

Prehistoric Bird Bath

Bird baths for gardens are made in many attractive designs and have come into happy use everywhere. On the grounds of Canada's National Museum at Ottawa, there's a bird bath that a footprint made in the morning of time. At least, the bath was cast from the footprint of a mighty dinosaur.

GOOD MANNERS

How to write acceptance or regret to reception invitaion

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know you've recently printed in your column the correct form for accepting and regretting a formal invitation to a wedding reception. But will you please repeat this for the information of our group and quite a few other people whom I've heard "wondering" how they should reply to this formal invitation to the reception? For such a small problem, this question seems to cause more difficulty than any I can think of at the moment. Particularly in the popular wedding months!—Alice J.

How right you are. . . . how very right. It seems queer that people should be so confused and uncertain about how to reply to a formal wedding reception invitation. The procedure is really so simple.

Take a piece of your personal letter-paper or note-paper. . . or a piece of plain white double-sheet note-paper. And on the first page write these lines, if you are to accept:

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith
accept with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Clark
for Teusday, the first of June

For the regret:

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith regret that they are unable to accept the very kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Clark
for Tuesday, the first of June

Also five lines, also simple. And with these forms those planning the wedding can check off at once who is coming . . . "accept with pleasure" . . . and who is not . . ."regret that they cannot accept".

The lines should be centred on the page, and spaced carefully, similar to the engraved lines on the invitation.

Concerning parsonage ceremony

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper for a couple to be married in the parsonage of the church, and then invite relatives and friends to a reception?

2. Is it proper for the mother of the groom-to-be to give a shower for the bride-to-be?—M. M.

1. Yes, this is entirely proper . . . and very often it is most convenient arrangement. The reception after the parsonage ceremony may be given in the church parlors, or at the bride's house, or wherever is most convenient.

2. It isn't considered proper for a member of the family of either the bride or the groom to give a bridal shower. . . looks too obviously like a very-definitely-planned bid for gifts for the new home.

Don't eat with gloves on

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I'm eating refreshments at a wedding reception, is it proper for me to keep my gloves on?—S. W.

No! Take off your gloves. To keep them on while you are eating or drinking, looks unattractive, silly, and as if you weren't accustomed to going to wedding receptions.

RAWDON

Rawdon — Mrs. W. B. May of Belleville recently visited her cousin, Mrs. Lorne Gunning, of Pump Street, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon and was guest speaker at the missionary gathering of auxiliary, mission band, and baby band at the church all on that occasion.

About 70 Mount Pleasant folk attended the basket picnic at Anderson's Island. Several enjoyed the races and ball games.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holmes Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holmes Jr., Toronto, spent Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes. They all attended the Holmes' re-union on Saturday last at Crystal Beach at Madoc.

The Spencer families attended the Spencer re-union on Monday at Oak Lake.

Mrs. James Menzies spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Andrew Bird, at Brighton.

Mr. Jerry Melville, Toronto, is holidaying with his grandfather, Mr. Robert Pounder.

Mrs. Earl Ruttan (nee Muriel Sine) is ill with the mumps.

Bethel W.A. are entertaining the ladies of Mount Pleasant, Wellman's, St. Paul's and St. John's, Stirling, St. Thomas, St. Mark's, Springbrook, Salem and Marmora on Friday. Dr. S. R. Taycock, University of Saskatchewan, will be the guest speaker.

Miss Grace Dunham, Mount Pleasant, attended the Bush-Hoard nuptials on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Jeffs and Larry; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jeffs and Marie visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Jeffs and Robert at Beaverton, on Sunday.

Miss Doris Pollock, teacher at the Allen school, is taking a five weeks' Department of Education course for teachers at North Bay. She was accompanied by Miss Thyra Rose, of Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hart and sons were recent guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. Helliwell, Hepworth.

Bob Bateman, a writer in the navy, who has been stationed at Halifax for several months, is now on holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman, Springbrook. He leaves next week to take up his duties at Hamilton where he has been transferred for the present.

Mrs. Carl Clancey spent Tuesday in Belleville attending a committee meeting of Belleville Area W.I., to plan for the coming convention in November.

A large number of Rawdon Orangemen and their families attended the glorious 12th at Madoc on Wednesday. Wellman's, Springbrook and Tanner lodges all marched in the parade along with Stirling, West Huntingdon and over twenty other lodges.

Many Rawdonians spent the day at Madoc which was held under the auspices of Cooper L.O.L. and the hostess lodge served plate lunches.

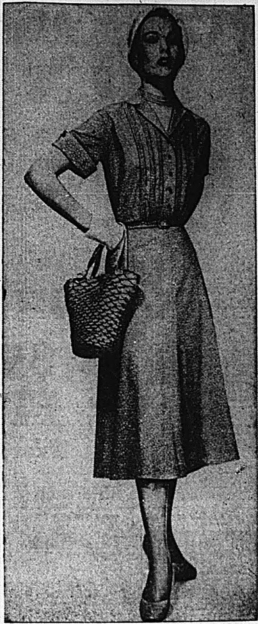
Powder Puff Muslin



By PRUNELLA WOOD

MUSLIN used to be the badge of summer, sharing honors with such obvious harbingers as field daisies, fresh strawberry sodas, and Leghorn hats for Sunday.

In its fresh revival, its sheerness has been charmed with a permanent finish which prevents wilting, and it is also shrinkproof and color proof; it gets into grownup dresses for busy lives, as in this classic shirtmaker with tucks and buttons, and skirt which flares at the hem although neat fitted over the hips. The muslin price is right, as of yore . . . this model you get for pin money.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking ?

Pie crust ordinarily requires a high temperature for baking. Not quite so high, however, as the great fire of London, which raged from Pudding Lane to Pye Corner in 1666. Whether this conflagration was the cause of the tough English crusts which have been served ever since is not definitely known.

The purpose of a hot oven in baking pies is to cause the steam in the dough to expand quickly thus making a light and flaky crust. Ordinarily pies are baked at 425-450 degrees. At this temperature, care must be taken to keep the rim from burning, particularly if the crust is thin.

To prevent charring, you may start the baking at a high temperature—450 degrees, and then lower the heat to a moderate 375 degrees. Or you may place a heavy piece of brown paper over the pie crust which will lessen the possibility of burning.

The exceptions to this rule are single crust pie shells made from zweibach or cracker crumbs. Since the ingredients are already baked, they should be placed in a moderate oven of about 375 degrees or they will burn quickly. Use gingersnaps to make a tasty quick pie crust for a lemon filling.

Lemon Gingersnap Pie

Preheat oven at 375 degrees.

Crush enough gingersnaps to make 1 cup of crumbs. This will take 20-25 gingersnaps. Put crumbs through a wire sieve. In a mixing bowl combine crumbs with 2 tablespoons sugar and 1-3 cup melted butter or margarine. Press mixture into bottom and sides of a 9 inch pie pan. Bake 10-12 minutes. Remove from oven. Cool thoroughly.

In a clean mixing bowl combine a 15 ounce can of sweetened condensed milk, 1-4 cup lemon juice, 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Mix well until filling becomes thick.

Turning filling into baked pie shell.

Beat 1-2 cup heavy cream until thick. Stir in 1 tablespoon sugar. Spread whipped cream over filling. Keep in refrigerator until served.

1 cup of sliced fresh strawberries or 1 cup of crushed drained canned pineapple may be added to lemon filling if desired.

Uncle Dudley's Modern Fables

THE NEW PERSPECTIVE

Once upon a time a great king who lived in a magnificent palace, surrounded by servants and all that wealth could do to insulate him from reality. An unceasing trickle of gaudily dressed nobles, only slightly less resplendent than himself, paraded before his sovereign majesty in a daily spectacle of pomp and pageantry.

When the great monarch took time out from counting tribute his tooking glass revealed only wealth, plenty and contentment. It was thus with a feeling of real surprise and puzzlement that king, who lived in a magnificent mors of discontent from his sub jects. Finally abandoning the advice of his gilded courtiers he disguised himself as a wandering beggar and set out on foot to survey his kingdom and to note the condition of his subjects.

As he journeyed he became mors of discontent from his subsorry condition of the land which he thought he was ruling so wisely. He came to know the injustices of high prices whch took from the undernourished widows and aged workers who could no longer work, the very crusts and morsels of food which they needed to maintain life. He learned for the first time that a tax law was not just a piece of paper but a very blunt instrument for the extorition of a man's lawfully earned money.

Ashamed of Extravagance

After a thorough inspection of his domain the footsore king returned to his throne, ashamed of his royal extravagance and his idle life. He was sorry for the betrayal of the trust which was his in his high office. Repenting of his former folly he stood before his mirror and carefully doffed his splendid purple robes and glittering paraphernalia. Dressing himself in the garb of the people he reascended his throne, had the palace gates thrown open to all his subjects and according to legend ruled his mighty domain with kindliness and charity, himself growing daily in good deeds and piety.

Ever since that time it has been the custom for those in authority to travel about the realms which they govern, on foot and disguised as wandering beggars. Great leaders today do not travel in giant airliners thousands and thousands of feet above their people and their lands where everything, good and bad, where things that need doing and things that have been left undone, where injustices and poor laws, all blend into a hazy elfin-like whole, dwarfed in their reality by the mirage of the far horizon. Today, they go about slowly with their feet on the ground, searching out the sources of disquiet and discontent, learning first hand the needs and wants of their subjects.

No longer do rulers pass laws rashly and in the heat of fervor of persons who are closeted all day in their stuffy cubicles pouring over cold bleak statistics to cut here and slash there in the interests of efficiency at the price of efficacy.

No Longer Dash

Ambassadors no longer dash from conference to conference. They go slowly, on foot, and disguised as beggars so that they might learn again the true reasons for their stewardship. They go humbly, without publicity or fanfare, and slowly, so that they might rededicate themselves to the service of their country and its people.

It is because of this official diligence and personal devotion to the best interests of the nation, that the pious and learned men in authority who continually readjust their vision to the needs and wants of the people by personal investigation have governed so wisely and well that no accents of discord have been heard in official halls in years.

Sleep now, children, and dream of your wise and pious rulers, and Uncle Dudley will tell you another fable soon.

Miss Canada III Will Not Compete In Gold Cup Race

Detroit, July 15 — (CP)—Miss Canada III, Canadian powerboat from Ingersoll, Ont., and an Italian speedboat entry, will not compete in the Gold Cup race here July 22, race officials announced last night.

The officials said that Harold Wilson had notified them he would keep the Miss Canada out of all competition until the Harmsworth race Sept. 1 and 2.

In Ingersoll, Wilson said today: "We may enter, but we want to have the boat in perfect shape for the Harmsworth. That's the race we're really interested in.

"We have entered the Harmsworth and want to be sure that nothing happens to prevent us from doing that."

Admits Part Of Population of Hungary Resettled

Budapest, July 15 — (AP) — Hungary admtted today that a certain part of the population along the Yugoslav border has been resettled but denied emphatically a wholesale shift of people from this area.

A brief editorial in this morning's Szabad Nep, the official answered an "idiotic, provocative news" report from Belgrade which said that Slavs living among Hungary's southern border were being shifted.

A nine-mile zone along the Yugoslav-Hungarian frontier has been closed to free travel as of July 1.

Ducharme Hanged At Vancouver

Vancouver, July 15 — (CP)—Fred (Red) Ducharme, 37-year-old millworker, was hanged at dawn today for murdering a woman he picked up on a rain-swept November night.

His face chalk-white but his step firm, Ducharme dropped through an abandoned elevator shaft at Oakalla prison farm at 6:05 PDT and was pronounced dead 13 minutes later.

Ducharme, whose tangled testimony resulted in one of the longest trials in Vancouver criminal court history, was convicted of the sex-slaying of Blanche Ferne Fisher last Nov. 8.

Roman Catholic priest, Rev. Gerald Hayes, spent the night comforting Ducharme in his barren death cell.

Ducharme didn't sleep, Father Hayes said, but "stood up very well all night long."

He would not divulge his conversation with the millworker, who only yesterday was refused leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The execution was carried out by a man known as Camille Branchaud. Warden John Millman said he was brought here from Montreal.

Ducharme, prison officials said, was refused his request for a narcotic but was given two ounces of cognac shortly before the hanging.

He ate no breakfast. His last supper — a big one, included a breast of turkey, French fried potatoes, cucumbers, tomatoes, ice cream and celery stuffed with cheese.

Bevin Convalescent, Leaves Nursing Home

London, July 15 — (Reuters)—Pale and drawn, his blue suit hanging limply, Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin today reappeared in public for the first time since he went into a nursing home six weeks ago.

It was a much slimmer Bevin than the familiar burly figure before he began the treatment which has meant two rectal operations in the last three months.

Bevin, 69, left the nursing home unassisted.

Tomorrow he leaves for a two-week convalescence at Eastbourne, south coast resort.

REJECTS SUGGESTIONS

London, July 15 — (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee today rejected a suggestion he visit the United States "to consider common plans for the defence of the Far East. "The existing arrangements for communications" between the British government and the United States "enable us to make close and constant contact on all questions."

ACCUSED BULGARIA

Belgrade, July 15 — (AP) — Yugoslavia accused Bulgaria today of sending army patrols across the frontier yesterday in four separate incidents in which shots were exchanged and one Bulgarian soldier killed.

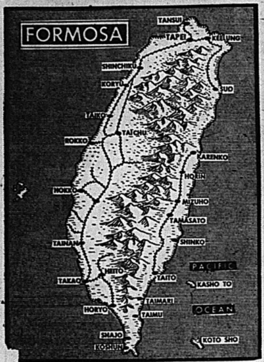
ACTION EXPECTED AT FORMOSA



Possible extension of the Korean war to naval action off Formosa etween the United States Seventh Fleet and a Chinese communist invasion force is foreshadowed in a note from China's communist minister of foreign affairs, Chou En-kai, to the United Nations. The foreign minister vowed "irrevocable determination" to capture this island base, last stand of non-communist Nationalist China. President Truman, on June 27, assigned to the Seventh Fleet the task of preventing such a communist assault on the island. — Central Press Canadian.

WIFE SAYS KOREANS USED TORTURE

U.S. Capt. Ambrose H. Nugent, currently a prisoner of the North Korean communists, is shown here with his German war bride. Capt. Nugent's name made headlines when a voice, identified by the North Koreans as that of Capt. Nugent, read a 1,000-word statement over the communist radio. The voice asserted that he and 70 other Americans captured between Suwon and Osan are being "well treated." The voice also said that "we were sent into battle without knowing it was a plot of Syngman Rhee (president of South Korea) and the American monopolostic capitalists." DRAG LAKE ERIE FOR BODY

Erie, Pa., July 15 — (AP) — Coast guardsmen dragged Lake Erie today for the body of one of two persons who died in a plane crash near North-tast, Pa.

The body of R. G. Cobb, Cleveland manufacturer, was recovered last night fro mthe wrecked cabin of his small plane.

Dr. Elsie Hartman, 34, of Chicago, a cousin of Cobb's, was reported to have been with him. Her luggage was found floating in the cabin alongside Cobb's body.

The plane crashed into the lake Thursday during an electrical storm.

PLEADS INNOCENCE

Fort Erie, July 15 — (CP) — Seizure of jewelry valued at $5,000 was reported in evidence yesterday at the trial of Albert Farber, 42-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., jewelry salesmen. He pleaded innocent to a charge of having goods on which duty was not paid and was remanded a week on $8,000 bail.

Diamonds, sapphires and a platinum wrist watch were seized at a tourist cabin at nearby Dunnville by the RCMP.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Boyd Upper, who has done a marvellous job covering the Commercial Softball League gives forth with his opinion of the loop so far. Here is what Boyd has to say and he should know whereof he speaks:—

* * *

The Commercial Softball League, a healthy blossoming youngster in the city's sports picture, celebrated its fourth birthday this year with its biggest and best season. The growing popularity of softball in this district resulted in twelve teams applying for admission to the league executive this past spring. The executive, blessed with experience in trying to cope with eleven teams in a single league last season, with a single schedule and twice weekly doubleheaders, but unwilling to bar those who were genuinely interested in playing softball, came up with two six team sections, playing a double schedule.

* * *

The new set-up is better for all concerned. The teams, tentatively graded as to playing talent early in the spring when all things are uncertain, have a chance under the double schedule system to meet each other twice during regulation play. This permits readjustment of player talent and provides opposing squads with an opportunity to repay old "scores". The new policy of four nine inning games each week, while filling in the week pretty solidly with softball, is a much better one than twice weekly doubleheaders with the second seven inning contest grinding on under the lights. The nine inning game also brings out the staying power of the various squads and eliminates "cheap" victories.

* * *

The league as presently constituted, has six teams in the A section, which is strong, relatively speaking. The two front runners, Howe and Hagerman, and Brewers Warehouse, were accused of being packed at the start of the season but the present structure of the league makes their ultimate triumph anything but a sure thing. The Brewers, who rolled to two lop-sided wins early in the campaign, had to come from behind to win the hard way 8-7 over a surprisingly strong squad from Ramsay's Paints.

* * *

The shoo-in Brewers ran aground just this past week as the doughty lads of Howe and Hagerman beached them 5-2 in eleven innings. The equally potent plumbers had their hands full earlier, disposing of Point Anne 5-3, and found themselves on the short end of an 8-4 count following their meeting with Ramsay Paints.

The rising Paintmen and the rapidly strengthening Point Anne Cementmen assure the present incumbents on the league's first rung, a rather warm time before the season ends.

* * *

The great disappointment in the A league to date is the performance of the Stephens Adamson team. In years gone by Stephens Adamson has produced high calibre teams and it was hoped early in the spring, when their re-entry into the softball picture was decided that they would again be a power in the sport locally. However it was not to be. Through no fault of the league executive or the plantmen themselves, they have not failed to make the grade in fast company. The strength of the A section was too much for them. In addition, several of their players, who were counted on to stiffen the squad's chances, have departed for places as far away as Newfoundland.

* * *

As for Stewart Warner, who are currently bogged down in fifth place with a single win, all we can say is that they are a better ball team than their position indicates. They have been nosed out twice by one run. In five games two one-run losses can be disastrous to your standing. They have good pitching, an excellent catcher, and some fleet outfielders. They are not as weak at the plate as might appear from their one run losses and it is expected that they will close in on the opposition in the remainder of the season.

* * *

This year the weaker teams in the circuit have been grouped into a B section. The players for the most part are playing for the first time in years and many of the city's junior players are getting their first taste of organized competition. This league serves the double purpose of giving all those who wish to play softball an opportunity to participate in the game, and it gives the younger players a chance to develop so that in the future they will be ready to move up into the A league as some of the veterans drop out.

Play in the B league is spirited and what may be lacking in skill is more than made up for in enthusiasm and drive.

* * *

The Commercial League has grown up from the ashes of a once-flourishing softball house here that burned itself out for a variety of reasons. It has prospered because the present executive and the present league structure is committed to a policy of playing the game for its own sake and for the sake of the players. It will continue to grow and prosper as long as it adheres closely to the protection of the game. One of the props on which the shining new softball house has been erected is a clause in the constitution which bars from league play anyone who has played on OASA-affiliated teams during the previous season. This has led to a great deal of controversy and gnashing of teeth in some quarters. But it has made the Commercial League prosper. It should continue to be enforced in the opinion of this corner.

* * *

If, however, the league executive decides that the strength of the local teams is such that it might again affiliate with the Ontario governing body and enter the hunt for an Ontario title, we would not quarrel with their decision. However it is a decision that should not be made rashly. What would the present league gain in attendance, popularity, player participation, and finances should it decide to do so? What would the present set-up lose in abandoning its "silver collection" policy at games, and its come-one, come-all, attitude in the spring when teams, regardless of strength, start back to the softball diamond.

* * *

Currently serving softball's best interests in the city are President Don Lee, Vice President Bill Dennis; Secretary, Ken Hall; Treasurer, Jack Howe; executive members Harry Rollins, Harry Knott, and umpire in chief Harold Bawden.

Fishing Tournaments

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables

Last spring a letter came to my desk from a man who is one of our leading outdoor photographers. His motion pictures have brightened immeasurable sportsmen's dinners in all parts of the country for a good many years.

His letter was devoted to the subject of angling tournaments and rodeos. He leaves no doubt in your mind. He's against them.

Angling, he claims, is — or should be—a contemplative sport. Properly done, it is a healthful, relaxing pastime, calculated to tone down a set of tired, high-strung nerves and to restore a man to a state of well being.

To reduce this same pastime to the status of competitive sports is, he feels, a mistake. Not only does such a measure rob angling of much of its charm; it opens the way to large-scale commercialization and tends to attract the "mug-hunters" who, heretofore, were content with trap and skeet shoots, bowling leagues and golf tournaments.

Of Two Minds

This department is of two minds in the matter of fishing tournaments. I quite agree that many aspects of competitive angling will rob it of much of its charm.

There is no better way to take most of the fun out of a day of fishing or shooting than to fish or shoot in competition with your companion. Sport suddenly becomes work — hard work — and relaxation goes by the board.

Until two years ago, I had rather fixed opinions about fishing tournaments. I, too, was agin' 'em. Then I went to Florida and found myself, all of a sudden, involved in the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament.

This annual event starts on December 18th and lasts until April 16th, both dates inclusive. Anybody who fishes in the general vicinity of Miami, within the prescribed area, can enter a catch in the tournament. No entry fee is required.

All that is necessary is that the angler take his or her entry to an official weighmaster, of which there are 40 scattered about the tournament area, have his catch weighed and his tackle inspected, and then make out the standard entry form.

If he is lucky, he stands to win a fine trophy or several valuable prizes.

This sort of competition works out quite satisfactorily. You can fish as you choose. Those who wish actively to try for prizes can do so and work as hard as they please.

Those who prefer to fish in leisurely fashion can loaf to their hearts' content — no need to work at it unless they choose.

Some Things Beneficial

This tournament has done several things that are beneficial. For example, the governors have set the standards by which record fish can be taken and later recorded as such, thus establishing a yardstick by which angling achievement can be measured.

The light-tackle requirements are quite drastic, with the result that out-size fish, killed in accord with the tournament specifications, represent angling achievements of which to be proud.

Always the regulations are such that the fish has an even chance and this alone, whether they like it or not, is bound to instill the precepts of sportsmanship in the minds of the competing anglers.

I have been in three such tournaments and have been lucky enough to win places in all of them — one first and two seconds. At no time was my fun spoiled in any way by the sense of competition and the prizes and awards were welcome souvenirs of the various trips.

Each summer there is held on Chesapeake Bay the annual Fishing Fair. The first experimental fair was found to be such a complete success that it is now a fixed annual event.

In addition to the fishing, there are such things as competitive group singing and so on. Hundreds of people attend and they have a whale of a good time.

First in 1938

In 1938 I attended the first International Tuna Tournament which was held at Liverpool, of four nations competed. Cuba was the winner.

While this was definitely competitive — other anglers were requested not to fish during the three days of the tournament — the social and international aspects of the affair were most pleasant.

I enjoyed the entire trip.

As for the fishing rodeos that are being staged here and there about the country, I can't express an intelligent opinion. I haven't attended one of them.

In these you pay your entry fee and then fish your head off trying to get back all or part of your financial bait. I don't think I will indulge in one of these. Sounds like too much work.

Last year the committee in charge of the annual tuna tournament that is held off the coast of Maine wanted to set the dates so that they could be reasonably sure of having good fishing.

Ardent Solunar Fan

Bill Schauffler usually competes in this event and they talked to him about it. Bill, who is an ardent Solunar fan, wrote to me.

I sent Bill what I thought might be the best dates for that particular month and he gave my letter to the committee.

It so happened that some state festival had been assigned those dates, so, despite Bill's warnings, the committee staged the tuna tournament a week earlier than the week I had indicated.

The tuna fishing during the tournament was incredibly mad, even worse than it had been the year before. They had trouble bringing in enough tuna to take care of all the prizes.

The next week — the one I had chosen — produced some excellent fishing. Bill wrote me about it.

Maybe, some happy day, even tournament committees will learn that it pays to pay attention to the daily Solunar Periods.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 14.— (CP)— A cartoon summed up how Englishmen felt after a lowly-rated soccer team from the United States knocked this country's representatives out of the world tournament in Brazil.

It showed a couple of Cockneys in a London pub agreeing how lucky it is that "the foreigners" haven't taken up darts, one of the favorite indoor sports hereabouts.

In a similar, self-disparaging spirit was the comment by a Yorkshire councillor. Asked to give permission for a soccer match in Royston between the two women's teams, Cooke said he didn't see why not.

"It's time we let the women have a go," he said. "The men don't seem to be doing much good."

Other commentators, grimly seeking ways to wipe the grin off the face of the sporting world said there were lessons to be learned from what happened in Rio de Janeiro.

Frank Coles of the Daily Telegraph suggested that the "foremost" lesson is that those who sent the English team to South America hopelessly misjudged the strain that was to be imposed upon the players.

Coles said England's players were "worn out physically" after an exhausting nine-month season at home.

"By the end of the season none of the players was fighting fit," he wrote. "They needed a break."

Instead, they started a continental tour against Portugal, Belgium, Italy and Holland — "a prime mistake on the eve of a world cup test."

Roy Peskett of the Daily Mail drew a different moral. In his opinion, England lost, first to the United States and then to Spain, because her players try to steer clear of rough stuff.

"Our men are too gentlemanly. It's all very well being ambassadors and pukka sahibs, but in a street fight you don't play a violin — you use it as a club."

Peskett also called for a team manager who would be given "supreme control" over organization and discipline. The present committee of selectors should be scrapped and the job given to one man whose job would be to instil "more devil and less science."

Gossip From The Courts of The District

BY "DIG"

Tomorrow sees two tennis attractions in the district. At Point Anne the local club will play host to Cobourg in the second leg of the inter-league play-off between the champions of the Bay of Quinte League and the winners of the Kawartha loop of last year. In the first leg Cobourg just edged out the local racquet wielders. The other attraction is the meeting of the first and second place teams in the league standing when Trenton visit Belleville to take on Quinte Two.

All clubs in the league seem fairly evenly matched this year when they are at full strength, and some very closely contested matches have resulted. The standings up to Wednesday evening are as follows:

Trenton played 6 points 21.
Quinte Two played 7 points 17
Point Anne played 5 points 15
Batawa played 5 points 11
Quinte One played 7 points 11

Last week Madoc visited Point Anne and a very enjoyable series resulted. One veteran was playing for the visitors and was playing with a racquet he has owned for some fifty. He certainly has had his money's worth there. Apparently the raquet strings are of fish twine and he soaks it well before playing.

The Quinte Club ran one of their monthly round-robin tournaments last Saturday. Fifty-five entries were received. The winners were —Senior men's — Alf Wilkes, Senior ladies—Jean Greene, Junior men's — Tom Lynch, Junior ladies — Francis Finkle.

The Quinte Tennis Club draw was made last Sunday afternoon and the winner of the suit of clothes was Ian Scott of Madoc Road. Consolation prizes were drawn by Miss E. Forbes, Vincent Massey, and Rhea Holloway, all of Belleville.

The local tennis stars of the future were on view on Wednesday evening in the first match of the Bay of Quinte League Intermediate series. Holloway St. beat Quinte by five matches to one. Most of the players were youngsters and all were very enthusiastic.

Corner Shots

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

Last Saturday Belleville United though shorthanded put up a very creditable performance in Peterborough against the U.E.W. squad. Though defeated by six goals to three they were by no means disgraced. From all reports it appears that they would have had a good chance of taking the points from Peterborough boys had they been at full strength. Today the United entertain Ottawa Armed Services. Ottawa have a pretty good team who are all 100 per cent team men and go all out for the full ninety minutes.

Monday evening will see the Flyers and Trenton Merchants tie up at the Air Force ground to decide who shall have the right to represent the Bay of Quinte F.A. in the inter district play-offs for the Ontario Intermediate Championships. This match should be quite a battle.

We see from the team list that Tommy Barclay, the hard working treasurer of Belleville United turned out in Peterborough last Saturday and from all accounts he can show the young 'uns a thing or two about the art of soccer.

Besides the Ontario Intermediate Championships district final called for Monday, three Bay of Quinte League games are scheduled for next week. Belleville United have two home games, on Monday against Vets and on Thursday against Batawa. Both these games are evening matches and are being played on the Belleville fair grounds. In the other match scheduled 6 R.D. are at home to Vets on Friday evening.

The Flyers still maintain their unbeaten record at the top of the Bay of Quinte League and the standings up to Wednesday last are as follows:

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Flyers	8	7	1	0	45	9	16
Belleville Utd	4	2	1	1	15	8	10
Batawa	6	4	1	1	21	9	9
6 R.D.	7	3	0	4	19	18	8
Trenton	8	1	1	6	10	26	3
Vets	7	1	0	6	7	47	2

Bob Lemon, 1st Major Leaguer To Win 13 Games, May Pitch Indians to American Loop Flag

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland is coming strong with Bob Lemon, top pitcher in the majors, showing the way.

Success of the Indians' mid-summer American League pennant drive hinges on Rapid Robert the second. No longer is Bobby Feller the key man with the tribe.

The former infielder is one of the best fielding pitchers in the game. At bat, he's a dangerous long-distance slugger with a .278 average, three home runs and 14 runs batted in.

Years ago they decided that Lemon couldn't hit enough to make the majors as an infielder or outfielder. But Tommy Byrne will carry for the rest of the season the bruises of the three-run homer Lemon hit last night.

Lemon became the first major Leaguer to win 13 games this season with a neat three-hit job against New York Yankees last night. The three-run homer in the eighth just added a frill. He didn't need it.

It was a vital victory for the tribe. They trail Detroit by 4 1-2 games but now are only a half a game behind the second-place Yanks. Since the Indians hit their stride June 14, they have won 22 of 30. And Lemon has taken seven, the last five in a row.

Johnny Mize's homer in the ninth ruined Lemon's shutout.

Detroit Stretches Lead

Detroit took advantage of the Yankee loss to stretch its lead to 4 -2 games on Freddie Hutchinson's 2-0 job against Washington. It was the Tigers' seventh straight victory at Griffith Stadium.

The run-happy Boston Red Sox came up with their second 11-run inning of the season while overwhelming Chicago 13-1. Birdie Tebbetts and Vern Stephens homered in the big inning. It was No. 20 for Stephens. Stephen's clout with two on sent him into the league runs-batted-in lead with an 87 total.

St. Louis and Philadelphia remained in a last-place tie by splitting a twilight doubleheader. The A's took the first game 3-2. Homers by Roy Sievers, Owen Friend and Don Lenhardt carried the Brownies to a 5-2 second-game victory.

The Cardinals tightened the National League race, drawing within one game of Philadelphia with a 4-2 victory over the Phils. It may have been a costly victory for St. Louis because Stan Musial left the game with a wrenched knee and pitcher Harry Brecheen retired with a sore left arm.

Erv Pallica pitched his second Brooklyn to shut out Chicago 1-0. Not a Cub reached second base until Andy Pafko doubled in the ninth. It was only the second start for 22-year-old Palica after 22 relief jobs.

Ralph Kiner belted his 25th homer, a double and triple but his Pittsburgh club lost to New York, 7-5.

Weather Man Takes Over for Big Golf Show

By W. R. WHEATLY

Saskatoon, July 15 — (CP) — The weather man is the prospective goat for golfing alibis.

The weather for today's Canfonships and the Canadian junior tussle, he said, will continue cloudy

There were so many clouds bumping into one another yesterday that practice rounds at the Saskatoon golf and country club were literally washed out.

What the prospects might be for Monday, when the week-long Canadian Amateur Championship gets under way with a field of 105, the weather man wouldn't say.

He could provide a setting for Stanley Cup hockey play.

In the line-up would be Johnny Peirson of Boston Bruins, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, Pete Kelly, former National Hockey league player, the incomparable Eddie Shore of the old Bruins days, and a flock of lesser lights who fire shots either by club or stick according to season.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association took such a dim view of the weather prospects that it sent out the tournament committee early today to scuff around in the mud and say everything is okay—we hope

Every province except Newfoundland is represented in both the team and junior competitions at 36 holes of medal play. The New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island players have combined forces as usual for a single provincial entry. Play was scheduled to start a 8 a.m. MDT with the junior away first.

School opens Monday morning in Belleville. Of course we mean the Philadelphia Phillies baseball school which will be held at the Exhibition Grounds Monday through Thursday. Two Trenton teen agers will be attending the four day school and shooting for a chancce at a chance at a major league career. John Jordan who plays with Group Captain Douglas Green's No. 6 Repair Depot Baseball team (which incidentally clipped Belleville Cubs 14 to 4 Wednesday night) plans to attend the four day sessions and Bill Mitts will also be on hand. Bill is just 16 but is already an accomplished pitcher in both baseball and softball, and plays for columnist Dick Bridgeman's Trenton Midgets.

The midgets are handicapped by lack of a home playing field and have to rely on out of town exhibition games until the playoffs start. Monday night they trounced Campbellford Juveniles 7 to 4.

Returning to the Phillies baseball school, the daily workouts start at 10 a. m. and continue until 3 p. m. and the "school" promises to be one of the best baseball clinics ever held in this part of Ontario. Any player between the ages of 16 and 22 is invited to attend, so any young lad in this section of the county who longs for a shot at the big time had better get in touch with Geo. Carver, sports editor of this newspaper right away.

Both Pat Colgan and Dale Jones who are in charge of the baseball screen test have had long and active careers in organized baseball and hope to uncover some future major league talent in this area. There will be expert coaching and instruction in the finer points of the game and it's all for free. Each boy will be judged individually, and given ample opportunity to prove himself before the Phillies' scouts. There's always that prospect of a contract and a chance to work up through the Phillies extensive farm system and even those who fail to impress the big league scouts will benefit from the valuable instruction.

On the local softball scene. Weese Motors got a lucky break last Monday night, when Campbellford helped them out by defeating Frankford 9 to 5. The garagemen had plenty of grease on their fingers as they slipped up on ten Hastings drives and were beaten by the Legionnaires 8 to 5. The Merchants and Chevrolets were tied for first place in the Trent Valley League and after Monday's twin upsets, the two teams are still perched on the top rung.

After attending numerous softball scoring sprees at Bayshore Park this summer, we missed the best game so far this season on Wednesday night. Norm McCue's boys made up for their Monday exhibition of errors by nosing out RCAF Technical Wing 4 to 3 in ten innings. Harry Farr turned in the best all-round hurling feat that has been witnessed here all season as he struck out three successive airmen with the bases loaded in the top of the tenth, then won his own ball game by batting in the winning run with a triple in the last of the tenth.

With Farr back in the pitching line-up after a forced absence while he was working overtime in a local canning factory, the Chevrolets should have little trouble staying on top of the Trent Valley loop, for the rest of the schedule.

The three-team Industrial League is continuing its high scoring ways but last night's game between Hinde and Dauch and Zigman Scrappers had to be postponed to make way for donkey baseball which was rained out Thursday night.

Tonight, Ramsay paints of the Belleville Commercial League are scheduled to play a return engagement with Weese Motors at Bayshore Park. Monday night, the Wooler boys will try their luck at upsetting the Chevrolets here in Trenton, while Hastings will meet Campbellford at Campbellford.

Govt. Will Not Permit Night Harness Racing

(By The Canadian Press)

Premier Frost reiterated Friday that the Ontario government will not permit harness horse or greyhound racing with pari-mutuel betting.

"I have no objection to night harness racing at fall fairs where it is a matter of big business," the premier said in a statement.

Operators of Thorncliffe raceway, who now are conducting a 42-day harness meeting here, have been seeking permission to run races at night. The first race now starts at 4.15 p.m. and the last ends around 6.30 p.m.

The operators twice have run exhibition races at night with no betting permitted to acquaint the public with the sport under floodlights.

Premier Frost said that extending night harness racing into large tracks involves "a principle of great importance and much wider in its implications that at first appears" since in the ordinary course it would have to be extended to flat racing.

The United States Trotting Association Friday disclosed an alleged stimulation of a winning harness horse at Maywood Park last Tuesday night. A hearing for the driver, Pat Harvie of Athens, Mich., was set for next Monday.

A track saliva test showed the horse, a pacer named Jimmy Brooke, presumably was given procain, a stimulant, on the day it won the fifth race at Maywood Park, the Association said.

The 'war' between the International Boxing Club and the New York Managers' Guild was settled Friday when the managers' group accepted the I.B.C. offer of a minimum of $4,500 for the two main event fighters from the club's share of the radio and television receipts.

Because the two were at odds on the amount to be paid the fighters from the radio and television revenue, Madison Square Garden has been without boxing most of the Friday nights this spring and summer.

Last Wednesday's Jake LaMotta-Tiberio Mitri middleweight title bout was held without either radio or television because of the manager's strike.

Second baseman Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn Dodgers Friday was sued for $100,000 damages by a Chicago advertising executive who charged the baseball player with breach of contract.

Stanley Kuttner charged in his Superior Court suit that Robinson violated a contract which gave Kuttner exclusive rights to use of Robinson's name in connection with the sale and distribution of men's clothing.

The Yankees' Joe DiMaggio will be sidelined at least three or four days by strained groin muscles, the club doctor said Friday. DiMag hurt himself in the all-star game in Chicago Tuesday.

No serious injuries resulted on the field Thursday when Brazil beat Spain 6-1 in a world cup soccer game—but among the 200,000 fans in the stands:

One man died of a cracked head.

One died of a heart attack when the first goal was scored. Four suffered dangerous injuries. 251 went to hospital seriously hurt.

Newspapers reported that a young man listening to the game over the radio with his sweetheart beside him ran amok when the Spaniards scored their single goal, and shot the girl dead.

Wilber Enjoys Perfect Plate Record in Game

(By The Associated Press)

How things have changed with Del Wilber, Rochester Red Wing catcher!

Take 1948. That was his second full season with St. Louis Cards. After a poor .232 year in '47, it was to be Wilber's deciding campaign—whether he stayed in the big time.

He hit .190. He was farmed out.

But the St. Louis management saw more in Delbert Quentin Wilber than his impotent bat. They saw a smart, alert catcher, capable of directing a minor league team.

They appointed Wilber manager of the Houston Club in the Texas League.

The responsibility seemed to do something to his bat. He hit .309 for the Buffs, the highest figure in his career. But the stickwork didn't help—the Buffs finished seventh, 38 1-2 games back.

Wilber moved his 200 pound frame to Rochester this year, to play under the leadership of Johnny Keane. He brought his hot Texas League bat with him.

Current batting average? Why, .309—the same as with Houston.

Wilber enjoyed a perfect plate record last night—five hits in five tries—as Rochester pummelled Buffalo 16-6. He drove in six runs with a homer, double and three singles, scoring three times.

Russ Derry, Wilber's teammate also batted 1.000, smacking three singles and his 19th home run—tops in the loop.

It strictly was a case of the rich get richer for righthander Tom Poholsky, who picked up his 11th victory. Already the league's No. 1 hurler, the 20-year-old righthander was helped by a 20-hit attack. Don Richmond and Lou Ortiz each contributed a home run to the assault of three Buffalo hurlers.

Baltimore, meanwhile, stayed 1 1-2 games behind Rochester, nipping Syracuse 2-1 behind Russ Bauers' five hit pitching.

Montreal swept a doubleheader from Toronto, 3-1 and 5-3. Springfield and Jersey City divided a twin bill, the Giants taking the afterpiece 6-5 after losing the opener 3-1.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 15 (AP)—Ted Williams figures his longest hit was one that sailed out of the park in San Diego, landed in a freight train and wound up in Los Angeles, 165 miles away... As of a week ago, the often-abused Chicago Cubs farm system had two of its 15 clubs in first place and only four below fourth.

Larry Jansen, reviewing his all-star pitching performance: "I never would have thought of throwing inside fast balls to Joe DiMaggio, but Campanella ordered them and I threw them. I guess DiMaggio doesn't get around on those fast inside pitches as well as he used to."

Semi-Finals Reached in Millar Cup Competition

Toronto, July 15 (CP) — Two would-be Millar Trophy winners face two former winners today in the semi-finals of Eastern Canada's senior professional match-play golf tournament.

Bill Kerr, a three-time Millar winner from Montreal Beaconsfield, meets Lou Cumming of the Toronto Golf Club. Dick Borthwick of Hamilton Club, who won the trophy in 1938, faces Bob Burns of Cherry Hill.

Survivors of the round, played over the par 73 Islington course meet this afternoon for the trophy.

Kerr Friday survived the two feature matches of the day to qualify for the semi-finals while Borthwick set back two assistant pros who had scored consistent upsets for the first two days of the tournament.

In the morning round, Kerr beat Stan Horne of Montreal Islemere then went on to defeat Joe Noble of Thornhill 4 and 3. He beat Horne 2 and 1 after holding the lead all the way.

Beats Rosedale Pro.

Burns' beat Jimmy Johnstone of Rosedale who won the Millar back in 1928, 5 and 4 and then went on to beat Jules Huot of Montreal Laval 2 and 1. Huot had shot the hottest golf on the course in the morning round to beat Murray Tucker of London Sunningdale 4 and 2.

Borthwick's first victim was Bob Deans of the Toronto club. Deans, who lost 3 and 2, was one of the assistants who surprised spectators by qualifying and surviving the first round. In the afternoon Borthwick defeated Alf Balding of Burlington by the same score after Balding had led the qualifiers and eliminated veterans Willie Lamb of Lambton and Lionel Ross of Cobourg in match play.

Guelph Leafs Out of Cellar In Intercounty

By The Canadian Press

Guelph Maple Leafs are out of the intercounty senior baseball league cellar.

It was a long, hard haul for the Leafs, who have been in the League's dungeons since the first few days of the season. They made it Friday night by scoring a convincing 5-1 win over Galt Terriers, the league's sixth place residents.

It was Guelph's second win of the week, and pitcher Bill McCarthy's second of the year. McCarthy tossed a five hitter at Terriers, and got some solid fielding support from his mates. Chuck Watson paced Leafs at bat with two hits in four trips, but Galt's Andy Garbas stole batting honors with a perfect three-for-three night.

The league's ace picher, Joe Yosurak, dropped his second game of the year, as against nine wins, when Stratford Nationals nosed out the league-leading Waterloo Tigers 2-1.

Gerry Hamm held Tigers to five hits and won his own ball game in the 10th when he singled home the winning run. It was a tough one to lose. Yosurak gave only five hits, walked three and whiffed four.

Despite Fearless Freddie Thomas' one-man batting show, Kitchener Legionnaires dopped a close 5-4 decision to London Majors. Thomas garnered four of his team's seven hits off Stan Slack and Wayne Gottschell, including two doubles.

But the Majors came through in the 10th to break a 4-4 tie. An error by Erv Cott on Danny Fari's double told the tale.

St. Thomas Legion hung a 3-2 defeat on Brantford Red Sox in Thomas. Elmer Cook restricted the Sox sluggers to eight hits for Legion's 11th win of the year. Legion came from behind a 1-0 deficit to score three runs in the seventh and drive starter Tom Quest from the mound.

Sox came back in the ninth, when Gene Patton homered with none on, but they could do no better than come within one run of the winners. Both teams played faultlessly afield.

In a viaduct senior league game, New Toronto Simpson Fords snapped a six-game losing streak 9-0. Johnny Cabot, ex-intercounty pitcher, scattered four Toronto hits and struck out nine.

John Worrall threw a four-hitter in West Seneca Druggists as Niagara Falls Fords hung up a 4-1 victory in a Niagara Falls District Senior League game.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The science of bridge permeates the department of leads. Every lead has a definite meaning. And very little meaning has a lead of its own that gives specific information to partner.

The basis for leads is the order of preference in tops, longies, shorts. When a short suit is led, it denies a permissible long suit lead. When a long suit is led, it denies a top card lead.

Top card leads are in three distinct groups. One is the top of a sequence; as king from K Q J or K Q 10; queen from Q J 10 or Q J 9, jack from J 10 9 or J 10 8, ten from 10 9 8 or 10 9 7.

Thus, the lead of the top of a sequence admits having the card immediately below it and denies having the card immediately above it. The importance of this information is too obvious for words.

Another top is the lead of an ace against a suit contract. This is a signal that says the leader will trump that suit when he stops leading it. He has ace alone or only one other card with it.

The third top in the group of tops is the lead of a king when leader holds also the ace and at least one more card in that suit. The king lead from such a combine guarantees three or more cards.

South is declarer at hearts when the clubs in each hand are as shown here:

When west leads club king, east takes a look at dummy north. What has east discovered? He knows that west has also the ace and at least one more club. So, east flings the jack on the first trick.

The big club thrown by east tells west to lead his ace. West takes the next trick with his ace and leads a third club. He does so with confidence that east will ruff the dummy queen.

Conversational bridge does not determine what players should do. Leads and discards talk across the board.

Hollywood, July 15 (AP)—The man seated behind the desk and looking like a theatrical producer was Gregory Peck.

He gave a performance. He handed letters to a couple of secretaries, interviewed an actor for a role, weighed billing o nforthcoming plays, tossed scripts around and talked to his theatre on the phone.

This is a real-life role for the long-limbed actor. It is the result of his long romance with the theatre.

"I am a co-producer of the La Jolla playhouse, along with Dorothy McGuire and Mell Ferrer," Peck explained in his Beverly Hills office. "This summer we are presenting nine weeks of top plays with star leads and actors' equity casts."

Peck, a LaJolla, Calif., boy who made good, returned to his home town with good theatre. And the home-towners appreciate it, too.

100 Per Cent

"They're behind us 100 per cent," he said.

"We're also getting some enthusiasm here in Hollywood among the actors. A lot of them come to us offering their services. They realize it's a good chance to be seen, to gain experience with experienced casts and capable directors and to do something for the good old theatah.

"Robert Ryan was back for the second time, doing 'Born Yesterday' with Marie McDonald. Dorothy McGuire is doing her fourth show. This year we'll also have Pat O'Brien, Joan Caulfield, Una Merkel, Richard Carlson, John Ireland, Don Defore and others."

PRAIRIE TROUT

Rainbow, brook and lake trout are found in more than 100 Saskatchewan lakes.

AT THE BELLE — John Payne and lovely Gail Russell are the romantic interest in Paramount's sea thriller, "Captain China," featuring Jeffrey Lynn, Lon Chaney and Edgar Bergen, due today.

AT THE McCARTHY — Lovely Maureen O'Hara handles a pair of blazing sixshooters for her role as a frontierswoman in Universal-International's Technicolor "Comanche Territory," now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, also starring Macdonald Carey.

AT THE CAPITOL — "Wake of the Red Witch", Republic film starring Gail Russell and John Wayne, bows into the Capitol Theatre next Monday for two days only. A stirring story of romance and adventure, it is a fine screen version of Garland Roark's great, best-selling novel. On the same program, "Dark Command," starring John Wayne, Walter Pidgeon, Claire Trevor, Roy Rogers and Marjorie "Ma-Pa Kettle" Main.

Little Benny's Note Book

I saw pop getting off the bus and I started to walk home with him for company, and pop said, Now who is this chap coming tords us?

Meening some man in a brown suit, and I said, I dont know him.

Neither do I, but I awt to, pop said. I'm sure I've met him somewhere. Horse blanket to blazes, it'll be just my luck to have him stop and talk to me, and I'll flounder like a fish out of water trying to put up a bluff that I remember who he is. It's going to take all my tact and diplomacy he said.

Which sure enough the man stopped going passed and put out his hand for pop to shake, saying, Well well, how have you been?

Oh, I can't complain more than about half the time, pop said. You're looking quite fit, I must say, he said, and the man said, Well, I'm holding my own, with difficulty. Sometimes I think I'm not getting any younger, he said.

That's nonsense, pop said. I used to have that idea myself, but whenever I look at myself carefully in the mirrer, I notice that everybody gets older except myself, he said, and the man said, By George, that's the same school of thawt that I attend.

And they talked some more about nuthing special and then they shook hands goodbye, pop saying, Well I got away with it, he never sispected I didn't have the slightest idea who he was.

Neither did you, pop, I said. He didn't remember you either. I could tell the way he looked at you, I said, and pop said, By gollies, now that I think of it, I believe you're rite. Yee gods, for all the sense that little encounter had.

Crawford Metals Down Mercuries In Ten Innings

Crawford Metals, as unlikely-looking a lot of giant killers as you will ever meet, piled Belleville Motor Car on the softball scrap heap last evening with a thrilling 9-8 victory in 10 innings. The previously undefeated Mercuries were conceded the Commercial B title after a few starts this season and it came as a great surprise when the Crawford "Scrappers" ran them aground and wrecked the pennant transmission.

Fastballing Lloyd Faulkner, making his first appearance in a Crawford uniform did a commendable job on the mound. Although nicked for thirteen hits, four of them in the fifth inning, which combined with a walk and a home run ball to Emerson for five runs, he was good enough in the remaining nine innings to hold the potent B leaders to three runs, He walked six and claimed six on strikeouts.

The "Scrappers" served notice that an ill wind blows no good in some quarters as they sprayed out two triples, a double and a single in the second inning, which along with a walk and error was enough for six runs.

The ambushed Mercuries counted one in the bottom of the third as Tapp, who walked, took second on a fielder's choice, third on a passed ball, and home on another fielder's choice. The Motormen knotted the count in the fifth. Miller opened with a single. Tapp walked and both runners moved up on a passed ball. Burns popped out to first and Cohane singled to right to drive in two runs. Stone doubled to put Cohane on third, and then Emmerson planted a home run pitch in centre field for the tying counters.

Take Run Lead

The Mercuries took a one run lead in the sixth on three singles and added some insurance in the seventh pushing over one run on two singles.

The "Scrappers" belted out three singles in the top of the eighth for one run with Lally being nipped at home plate with the tying run on a beautiful throw from left field. The Metals kept chipping away and collected the equalizer in the ninth to send the game into extra innings. They wrapped it up in the tenth, when Lally who had singled, raced to third on Dudley's single and came home on Cohane's wide throw. The Metals shut out the Mercuries in the bottom of the tenth to wrap up a thriller.

Line up:—

Crawford Scrappers: Ward, ss; replaced by Ketcheson in the 1st; Speigel 1b; Pappas, cf; Kreh, c; Milligan, lf; Lally, 2b; Muirhead, rf, replaced by Dudley in 7th; Taylor 3b; Faulkner, p.

Hamilton Tigers Hottest Squad In Lacrosse Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton's lacrosse Tigers, hottest team in the Ontario senior lacrosse series, moved another step up the ladder Friday night.

Tabbies trounced Peterborough Petes 15-11 in a hard fought, spectacular tilt before 2,000 Peterborough fans. The win gave the Tigers a tie for second place with the Petes.

It started off like a walkaway for the Tigers, who held a 9-3 edge at the half. But Petes came back strongly to outscore the winners 8-6 in the second half.

St. Catharines Athletics did just the opposite. They trailed Toronto's lowly Riverdales 10-9 going into the last period, but staged a terrific rally for six goals as against the Toronto Club's one hang up a 15-11 win.

McMahon, Bird and Oneschuk paced the winners, each turning in the hat trick. Tony Damico and Croft each scored twice. For Toronto Wimpy Timpson kicked in with three goals and Lorne Howes two.

Minto Mounties stopped the league-leading Owen Sound Crescents' eight game winning streak with a 14-11 overtime win in Owen Sound.

Napanee Wins From Picton By 11-2 Count

Napanee, July 15 (CP)—Napanee defeated Picton here Friday night 11-2 in a seven inning Central Ontario Baseball League game.

The winners teed off on Frankie Dyer for five hits and as many runs in the first inning and coasted along to an easy win. Miller relieved Dyer in the third but was no puzzle.

Lefty Hugh Finlay held Picton well in check with seven scattered hits with his mates giving good support in the field. Walt Gerow had four hits in five tries for Napanee, batting in two runs and scoring three himself.

Darkness halted the game after Picton had pushed over five runs in the top of the eighth.

Hearing Opens On Monday

Simcoe, Ont., July 15 (CP) — Preliminary hearing of charges of murder and bank robbery against Herbert Joseph McAuliffe, 32-year-old army veteran, open Monday in this Southwestern Ontario tobacco - growing town.

McAuliffe's counsel, W. E. Ross, said Friday he will ask for exclusion of the public from the hearing because accused has not had "a fair deal" from newspaper accounts of the case. The hearing will be conducted by Magistrate H. P. Innes.

McAuliffe, mosquito - bitten and unshaved, was arrested June 24, just 74 hours after an armed bandit, fleeing with $22,500 loot from a Langton, Ont., bank, coolly cut down two pursuers with a withering blast of sub-machine-gun fire from the rear window of his car.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting, Bill Howerton, Cards—Drove in three runs in St. Louis' 4-2 victory over Phillies with homer and two singles.

Pitching, Bob Lemon, Indians—Hung up 13th victory, to top major league pitchers, with 5-1 triumph over Yankees. Allowed only three hits, struck out eight and hit three-run homer himself.

Canada Drops Both Matches To Australians

Montreal, July 15 — Canada's slim chances of winning a berth in the North American Zone final of the Davis Cup hinge today on the ability of one of the best doubles tennis teams in the world

The Canadian team dropped both of its opening singles matches to Australia yesterday and the Aussie team today is favored to make it three in a row and thus take the best-of-five event. The tie finishes Sunday with a pair of singles matches.

Today's match sees Frank Sedgman and John Bromwich, two of players, tangle with George Robinson and Henri Rochon, both of Montreal. Rochon, Canadian singles champion, was by-passed for the singles yesterday. Robinson is a newcomer to cup play.

The winner of the matches here will meet Mexico in the North American finals. The top team in that series then takes on the European champions for the right to meet the defending cup holders —the United States.

Canada proved no match for Australia yesterday. Brendan Macken of Montreal was beaten in straight sets by Sedgman, 7-5, 6-2, 6-1. Lorne Main, 20-year-old Vancouverite, bowed 6-1, 6-2, 7-5 to Ken McGregor.

Macken, stock 27-year-old veteran of five Davis Cup competitions, started impressively but weakened after the first set. Sedgman broke Macken's service in the second and scored four aces in all to none for the Canadian.

McGregor had an easy time of it against Main until the third set. Main then forced the score to set point but couldn't come hrough with a victory. McGregor had five aces and Main—like Macken—had none.

Rochon and Robinson will have tough going today against the powerful Sedgman and Bromwich. Last year, Rochon drew a startling singles assignment and lost in straight sets to Sedgman.

Two Records Fall In Opening Day Of Track Meet

Hamilton, July 15 (CP)—It would be hard to convince anybody today that the Canadian senior track and field championships at Civic Stadium are representative of a big time Canadian meet. Athletes from only two of the 10 provinces, with a sprinkling of American track men, are here for the two-day tournament.

Officials invited clubs across Canada but at opening last night, less than 150 of the expected 200 entries showed up and these were mostly from Hamilton, Toronto and London. At that, two Canadian records were broken but times and distances in others didn't compare favorably with the old marks.

Selwyn Jones, 23-year-old draughtsman from the host Hamilton Olympic Club, clipped more than a minute from the six-mile Canadian record with a clocking of 31 minutes, 46 seconds. He defeated teammate Walter Fedorick by nearly a lap. Fedorick held the previous record of 32 minutes, 58.6 seconds.

Vic Frank from Philadelphia's Russbaum College smashed the other record with a heave of 50 feet, 11 inches in the shot put. The previous mark of 50 feet 5½ inches was set by another American, B. Mayer in 1936.

One title went to Montreal when Art Jackes, a point-winner for Canada in the 1948 Olympics and "also ran" in the February British Empire games at Auckland, N.Z., took the running high jump with a leap of six feet 1⅝ inches, nearly three inches lower than the Canadian record.

The biggest upset of the night occurred in the mile, won by Jack Ross of Toronto Red Devils with the highly-touted Rich Ferguson, another Red Devil, second. Ross breasted the tape three yards in front in four minutes 23 seconds.

An expected duel between Bob McFarlane and Philadelphia's Geo. Guida in the 440-yard race didn't come off. The big Londoner, who twice defeated Olympic champion Arthur Wint in his recent tour of Britain and Europe, won easily with Guida following young Jackie Carroll of Montreal to the tape. McFarlane's time of 47.6 seconds was 1-10 second off his Canadian mark for the distance.

CANADA'S BABIES

About 333,000 babies are born alive in Canada each year.

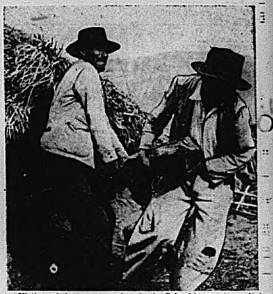
'QUAKE STRIKES COLOMBIA SECOND TIME



Victims of the recent earthquake in Colombia are shown living in huts they constructed from the debris of their former homes. A second earthquake, accompanied by torrential rains, shook another region of Colombia and the people fled into the streets and fiel Authorities estimate that more than 300 persons have lost their lives in the earthquakes. — Central Press Canadian.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

"He babbled a lot of stuff about Tom being jealous of Falter and Nell—he seemed scared to death wanted me to give him police protection. I pointed out to him that it couldn't have been Tom, since he has a foolproof alibi for the time of both murders. He was in Bob Knoxs back room."

Reddy brought out his notebook: "Let's go over all the alibis once more. Suppose we start with Hagar's."

Peter's thumbed through his notes. "Not much use checking that, she's the one who just plain hasn't got an alibi. That's why she's in jail, my boy."

"I'm pretty sure you can rule her out, though, chief."

"Why should I? There's a lot that points right to her. Who was right smack dab in Falter's house just after the murder— maybe right at the time of the murder? Who's studio was Nell O'Neill's body found in? Who was it gave us a big mumbo-jumbo about being down in Dana Point at the barbecue pits when Mrs. O'Neill was killed? Who had the cameo in her possession and claims she didn't know how it got there? Huh? Nobody but Hagar Blair, a tough old gimlet-eyed doll who looks like she'd committ a murder soon's she'd fry an egg!"

Charlie Reddy flushed. "Let's skip Hagar Blair for now, then, and go on to the next suspect."

"Okay." Chief Peters' bright small eyes again flipped up from his appears: The next one is Miss Stephanie Smith."

Reddy's drowsy looking lids snapped open, his long brown fingers clenched the chair arm, and his back stiffened defensively.

"Chief I have an honest respect for you and your methods of running your office—" Reddy spaced his next words carefully "—but, if it's not out of order, I'd like to suggest that we concentrate on the people who might have done the murders!"

Peters drummed his fat fingers on the table. When he met Reddy's challenging eyes, his own narrowed:

"You're a smart boy, Charlie, I like having you work with me. You're gonna be a smart, maybe even famous, lawyer someday. But, let me point out something to you right here and now: In police work—yeah, and in law work, too—it's not smart to get mixed up with one of the principals in the case until the thing is over, finished and resolved. Get what I mean?"

Reddy's shoulders sagged a little and his gray eyes evaded the Chief's face.

"Okay Chief," he said quietly. "Stephanie Smith is next on the list."

Peters hitched his body forward in a businesslike way "Now where was Miss Smith at the time of the first murder? My notes say she was with Hagar in the Three Wishes Shop. Right?"

"Right. So obviously, she couldn't have been at Falter's."

"Apparently she couldn't. Did it ever occur to you, Charlie, that Hagar Blair and Miss Smith consistently have alibied each other?

"Wait a minute! Somebody else knows that they were together in the shop either just before or just after Falter was getting knocked off. Yakov and Mrs. O'Neill were there with them!"

"So they say, Charlie. We never had a chance to check that story with Nell. And, unless Yakov comes out of his coma, we can't check it with him either."

Reddy's face turned dark red. "Yes and we were in process of checking it when the second murder took place. How were we to know that Nell would get knocked off right away? But Stephanie can't be every place at once, either. If she was in the shop with Hagar —and I'm positive she was—how could she also be at Falter's place sticking a bodkin in his back?"

Peters heaved himself out of his chair and clumped up and down the room.

"Bodkin!" he muttered. "Only in Dolorosa could the murder weapon be a bodkin!"

He broke off as a tall nurse rustled starchily into the room.

"Chief Peters, Mr. Trotter would like to know if you can take over now in Mr. Yakov's room?"

The chief sighed gustily, "he hasn't come to, yet?"

The nurse shook her head. "Not yet."

"How is he?"

"No change Chief Peters."

"Tell Mr. Trotter I'll be right there, nurse."

As she rustled out, Peters turned to Reddy placing a heavy hand on the younger man's shoulder:

"Charlie, I'll leave my notes here with you—take a good look at the stuff, will you fella? Try and get an inspiration?" He punched the air with his left fist "Let's crack this thing!"

As he watched the heavy figure plod off down the hall, Charlie's faced turned sympathetic. He picked up the sheaf of papers and sat down near a lamp. His eyes raced over the typewritten words until he was half through the third page. Abruptly he stopped reading and dug into his pocket for his own notes. Leafing quickly through the small book, he checked an item with a few lines in the chief's data. His eyes were glazed with concentration as he returned his notes to his pocket and stuffed the chief's papers in a manila folder.

He lit a cigaret, absent-mindedly puffed at it twice and ground it out in the overflowing ash tray. He stared across unseeingly at a painting while the words he had just read clicked before his mind's eye with teletype clarity and precision. Then, galvanized by a half-formed idea, he glanced at his watch, snatched up the folder and bolted for the door.

Trotter, coming in, drew back from a near collision: "You've got a lot of energy for this time of morning!" He grinned wearily, "Where's the fire?"

"I've got only about five minutes to make it!"

He made a sharp turn near the floor supervisor's desk, nodded apologetically at her reproachful face, and plunged for the stairway. As he clattered down to the lobby, he thought fleetingly of Stephanie, assured himself that she was all right, and jugged out to his car.

The rumble of the engine reverberated through the empty, dark street as Reddy guided his car at high speed to the junction at Ocean Highway. Making a squealing right turn, he roared past summer cottages, real estate offices and motor courts. His watch registered five minutes past 2 o'clock when he pulled up before the palm thatched building that was Bob's Place.

When Charlie Reddy tried the big oak door at Bob's place he found it locked. He hammered on it with his fist. He rattled the iron handle, then pounded once more.

He heard a key turn in the lock. When the door swung open Bob Knox himself stood in the aperture.

"Sorry, friend," he began. "Place's closed—" He paused, squinting. "Well, look who's here! Charlie Reddy, no less, sleuth, barrister and lately, a hermit! Come in sir!"

Reddy walked past the outflung, welcoming arm and Bob closed the door. His voice was going on in genial fashion.

"Law says nothing alcoholic shall be sold after 2 a.m., but it'll be a privilege to play private host to you, Charlie.

Reddy's roving eyes had paused at one of the booths where a white-haired head was noding over the dark gleam of a copper cup.

"Old Tom's a fixture," Bob explained. "I walk him home almost every night after I get things ship-shape."

"Pretty far gone, is he?" he asked Bob.

"Well, yes and no. He's had only five of those mules since about 8 tonight, but since his wife died he seems to be in kind of a stupor that has nothing to do with alcohol. Like he was sleep-walking, kinda."

Reddy climbed onto a stool and glanced down at the perpetual fish among the perpetual coral below the surface of the bar.

Bob poured Scotch into a pony glass: "Thanksgiving's only 10 days off." He passed the whisky across to Reddy, "Water?"

Bob leaned his good elbow on the bar: "Out late tonight, aren't you? Case getting you boys down No solution yet?"

"The police confess they are baffled, but are investigating new evidence in the case."

Reddy gave him a significant glance, quirked an eyebrow and made a concealed gesture toward Tom. Bob came closer and leaned across the bar interestedly.

Reddy narrowed his eyes, spun a quarter across the bar and asked casually:

"How about some nickels for the juke box?"

Bob handed him change and watched him walk over to the machine, insert the coins and punch five buttons at random.

A bolero arrangements spread a screen of music between the bar and the booths. When Reddy sat down again, Bob took an easy stance directly opposite him and went on polishing the stack of tumblers.

Reddy helped himself to another pony of Scotch. He sniffed it and spoke to Bob in a low voice:

"You know for certain that O'Neill was in your back room sleeping it off when Falter was murdered? Between 5 and 7 that night?"

Bob lifted a glass toward the light, squinted through it and wiped off a speck of lint:

"Like I told Chief Peters," he murmured, "I saw him go into the back room about 5:30 and come out again a little before 7 o'clock."

"There's a window in that room isn't there?"

"Yeah, but like I told the Chief it's stuck— been painted over. And it's high and narrow, more like a transom."

"I'd like to have a look at it."

Bob glanced significantly at Tom O'Neill. Reddy's eyes narrowed and he drummed his fingers on the glass above the undulating fish. He slid off the stool and walked over to the booth.

O'Neill glanced up, eyes half closed as Reddy placed a hand on his shoulder."

"Hi Tom. I'm going past your place—like me to drop you off?"

Tom opened his eyes and focused them on the face above:

"Generous of you, my friend. Considerate, kind and generous, indeed. I most certainly accept. Shall we have a stirrup cup before taking the trail?"

"Bar's closed now, Tom. Maybe we could have a nightcap at your place?"

O'Neill slapped the table. "Splendid idea!" He struggled out of the booth and stood up, adjusting his coat and tucking his shirt more firmly into his trousers. He marched quite steadily to the bar.

"Bob, I shall take my leave. My thanks to you for a fine evening, My friend, Mr. Reddy, is driving me home."

"Hasta leugo!" Bob called after the two departing figures. "The door is always open," he added with marked emphasis on the last two words.

Only Gaping Hole Marks Place Of Plane Crash

Lebanon, O., July 14. (AP)—Only a gaping hole in a field and shattered pieces of metal today show a United States Air Force B-50 Bomber crashed, carrying at least 11 men to their death.

The plane was ona routine practice mission and was carrying practice bombs. The plane plunged into the ground on a farm near Lebanon, O., and exploded. The impact and the blast tore a hole in the ground that was about 18 feet deep and at least 75 feet wide.

The big plane was blown to pieces. Bodies and parts of bodies oif the victims were scattered over a wide area.

Meanwhile, at Tucson, Ariz., survivors of another B-50 Bomber crash said today an explosion occured just moments before the plane plunged out of control, carrying at least one crew member to death. Six men parachuted to safety. Three others are reported missing.

The plane crashed on a hillside in the Galiuro mountains, 40 miles northeast of the city. It exploded and burned when it plunged into the ground early yesterday.

Toronto Man Faces Charge of Murder Of Young Wife

Victim Visiting at Home of Parents on Manitoulin Is.

Little Current, Ont., July 17—(CP)—A 22-year-old Toronto man today was charged with murder in the knife slaying of his wife on their second wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Elma Maud Galloway, 22, died of at least six wounds believed inflicted with a butcher knife.

Her body was found yesterday in a bedroom of her father's home at Tehkummah, 25 miles south of this Manitoulin Island town.

The husband, John L. Galloway, was arrested soon after the slaying. He was arraigned today in Magistrate's Court at Sudbury, 50 miles northeast of here, and remanded until July 24.

William Bowerman, a farmer, said a young man staggered to his house, his wrists streaming blood.

"I want to call the police," Bowerman quoted the man as saying. "I have killed my wife."

As the man fumbled with the crank of Bowerman's rural telephone, a five-inch knife fell to the floor, Bowerman said.

Mrs. Galloway's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Armstrong, said they believe their daughter was slain because of jealousy.

The young woman, who has a year-old daughter, Brenda, left Toronto some time ago to care for her invalid parents. Galloway remained in Toronto, where he worked in a washing-machine factory.

Hitch-hiked to Manitoulin

Recently, he hitchhiked to Manitoulin to see his wife and try to persuade her to return to Toronto. Friends said Mrs. Galloway, wishing to remain with her parents for a year, refused.

Mr. Armstrong said he and his family were enjoying a quiet afternoon.

"Boyd, my son, and Bill Gibson, my stepson, and I were working on the car in the yard. Mrs. Armstrong was sitting on the verandah with our granddaughter, Brenda. John and Elma were in the house.

"All of a sudden, John dashed out the front door. As he did, he turned and shouted, 'Elma, hurry and get supper ready.' "

Mrs. Armstrong took up the story:

"I didn't like the way he had run out of the house and started to dash up the road. I went inside and called Elma. When I did not receive an answer, I went upstairs to the two rooms they have been occupying.

"I saw Elma sort of kneeling beside the bed. I went over and shook her. She gasped and collapsed. Then I saw the great pools of blood all over the floor. I screamed and I don't remember much more after that."

Mrs. Armstrong's screams brought Mr. Armstrong and the two boys dashing upstairs.

Cadet James Fires Seven Bullseyes, Wins Bisley Cup

Bisley Camp, Surrey, England, July 17. (CP)—Cadet Clifford James of Hamilton, Ont., today captured the "Gale and Polden" Cup for top rifle shooting by school boys at the National Association meet.

His victory takes the Cup away from Britain for the first time.

James fired seven bullseyes at both 200-yard and 500-yard ranges to win with a perfect 70.

Exhume Remains Of Founder Dead Nearly 300 Years

Montreal, July 17. (CP)—The remains of Venerable Marguerite Bourgeoys, founder of a Roman Catholic teaching order nearly three centuries ago, will be exhumed in secret and no report of body preservation will be made public, church officials said today.

Permission for the exhumation of the founder of the congregation of Notre Dame, who died in 1700, was granted last week by Mr. Justice Hector Perrier of Superior Court.

The ceremony is in connection with introduction of her case before the Sacred Congregation in the Vatican for her beatification. It will be held at the Order's Mother House here where she was buried. A few nuns of the Order, church officials and medical men will attend and reburial will follow immediately.

Condition of the remains has some bearing on any petition for beatification.

Two Men Escape From Penetang Asylum Hayfield

Midland, July 17 — (CP) Four days after their break for freedom from the asylum hayfield, Melville Wilkie and George Herman Woodcox, were still at large today from the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene.

A provincial police search now under Sgt. J. Lewis, formerly of Orillia, continued day and night still is concentrated largely in the bush area of Midland Point, a summer colony between Midland and Penetanguishene.

Both fugitives were judged insane on charges of murder, but residents of the area, some of whom have lived through four previous escapes by Wilkie are more interested than alarmed. Cottage doors are locked at nights and residents no longer go abroad alone after dark. Otherwise, summer holidays are continuing as usual.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS:

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—Synopsis—Numerous showers and thundershowers are occurring over southern and central Ontario this morning. These are included in a broad zone of unsettled weather which extends from the south western United States to eastern Quebec. In some localities the rain has been heavy. Chicago had over 2½ inches during the night.

The warm humid weather will continue through Tuesday in southern regions. In northern regions where it is cooler there will be scattered afternoon and evening showers today and Tuesday.

Stops Clothes Shrinking but Shrinks Or Halts Some Cancers for Time

(By Anton L. Blakeslee)

Paris, July 17—(AP)—A chemical made to prevent clothes from shrinking is able to shrink or halt some cancers for a time, experts from 50 countries were told today.

The chemical is called TEM. It was described to the Fifth International Cancer Research Congress by Dr. C. Chester Stock and Sonja M. Buckley of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for cancer research at New York's Memorial Hospital.

TEM hits at such cancers of the lymphatic tissue as Hodgkins disease and at some cases of leukemia, or cancer of the blood, Dr. Stock said. As with other treatments for these diseases, its effects are temporary.

Dr. Stock's team tested 3,000 chemicals for their anti-cancer value. Only nine were found to stop cancer growth or make cancers shrink in laboratory trials using mice. Such a low average is typical of the myriad problems in cancer research.

TEM was developed originally as an anti-shrinkage chemical for textiles. As a drug it has been used at Memorial Hospital on some humans with Hodgkins disease or leukemia. It is reported as effective against the two cancers as nitrogen mustards, the wartime poison gas chemicals. But TEM can be swallowed as a pill and does not nauseate humans. Nitrogen mustards are given by injection.

Other anti-cancer chemicals, seven known as antivitamins are the kind that interfere with the use of vitamin "B" by cancer cells. In human tests some of these have been of temporary value in treating leukemia, Dr. Stock said.

TAEJON AIR FIELD CEASES OPERATIONS

Commies Hurled Back In Eastern Sections

An American Air Base in Korea, July 17 — (AP) — An American Air Force spokesman said tonight the Taejon air field, three miles north of the city, ceased operations last night.

Tokyo, July 17 — (AP) — Hordes of red infantrymen and tanks bore down on Taejon approaches tonight. But in the east Gen. MacArthur said the communists were handed their two worst setbacks of the Korean war.

The Taejon airfield, three miles north of the one time South Korean provisional capital, was abandoned last night. Leif Erickson, Associated Press Correspondent at American headquarters in Korea, said a spokesman announced the field had been under red artillery fire since Monday noon.

Two Russian-built yak fighter planes were shot down today by American pilots. It was the first time the Red planes had shown any fight since 17 were shot down early in the war.

In the west the Americans, outnumbered 10 to 1 by the North Koreans, were pushed back six miles. The entire 24th American infantry division fell back slowly from the Kum River southwest of Kongju and northwest of Taejon.

Tank-led North Korean infantrymen pushed across the Kum Saturday, MacArthur said.

Held Up 48 Hours

But, the United Nations commander reported, the 24th held them up 48 hours, giving southern elements time to gather men and supplies for "assuming the offensive" against the North.

He said American troops had taken up defensive positions along the north and west approaches to Taejon, the abandoned southern emergency capital.

Once they crossed the Kum, MacArthur said, the reds resumed their flanking and infiltration tactics. This forced the Americans back. But they inflicted losses out of proportion to the ground gained by the North Koreans he said. American losses were "not excessive."

The communist apparently had a twin-pronged drive going south of the river. Both field dispatches and eight army headquarters in Korea said Taejon still was in American hands.

Inflict Damage

American and Australian fighters and U.S. light bombers ranged along the front or just behind it in more than 200 combat sorties. They were credited with destroying or damaging 28 red tanks, 32 trucks and 14 railway box cars.

McAuliffe Identified as Man Who Looted Langton Bank

Simcoe, July 17. — (CP) — Joseph Herbert McAuliffe, 32, today was identified as the man who looted the Imperial Bank at Langton, of $22,500 last June 21.

Harold Thompson, a member of the bank staff, made the identification in magistrate's court as McAuliffe's preliminary hearing began on charges of murder and bank robbery.

Earlier Magistrate H. P. Innes denied a defence move to bar the public.

McAuliffe, an army veteran from North Bay, is charged with the machine-gun slaying of two Langton tobacco farmers—killed as they pursued the bank bandit.

Thompson said he was standing near the teller's cage when he heard a strange voice and looked up to see a stranger "pointing a gun at me over the counter."

Thompson said the robber herded the bank staff into a corner, then ordered Thompson to enter the vault and open the inner door.

He remonstrated with the hold-up man but was told: "You get in there if you don't want a sore head."

Later the robber told him: "I'm coming back to Langton and if you do any talking, I'll kill you."

Thompson told of being forced to fill a paper bag with bills and silver after other staff members had aided in opening the safe.

The whole staff were forced to enter the vault before the robber left.

"He pointed a gun at us and warned us. . .and that was the last I saw of him until I came here," Thompson tetsified.

Magistrate H. P. Innes said in rejecting the defence move for exclusion of the public: "I think it would be highly improper and irregular for me to make any such orders."

At 9:30 A.M., a half-hour before the hearing was scheduled to begin, more than 200 spectators filled the small courtroom. Most were farmers.

First witness was W. C. McDowell, Simcoe surveyor who submitted plans of the location of the Imperial Bank, Langton.

Then G. A. Swainsbury, provincial police photographer was called. He identified pictures of the bank of the Kinglake side road where the murder occurred, and of the automobile in which the two farmers were riddled with bullets from a sub-machine gun.

Mr. Ross yesterday criticized police treatment of McAuliffe, who has been kept under strict guard in jail here. He has not been allowed to exercise or to communicate with other prisoners and reporters have not been allowed to see him.

"They have absolutely no right in law to say who can see McAuliffe and who can't, Mr. Ross said. Police had no right to "treat him as though he were under a death watch."

After an intensive search of this southwestern Ontario tobacco-growing area by police and armed residents, he was found, mosquito-bitten and unshaven, in an abandoned shack 15 miles from the scene of the slaying of Art. Lierman and William Goddyn, slaughtered in a blast of sub-machine gun bullets as they chased the bank bandit.

The bandit escaped into the bushland nearby. Police found a revolver and most of the bank cash in the killer's abandoned car. They later found the rest of the money and a sub-machine-gun near the death scene.

Mr. Ross said the preliminary hearing, to be conducted by Magistrate H. P. Innes, may extend past today. He said 28 witnesses are available to the Crown and he plans to examine them in detail about identification of the killer.

McAuliffe has been remanded three times since his arrest. He has also changed his name three times. When arrested he gave his name as Frank West, later changed it to George Walker, and finally was identified by his father as McAuliffe.

Delicate Diplomatic Move Faces Acheson in Korea Crisis

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, July 17 (AP) — State Secretary Dean Acheson is planning to make one of the most delicate diplomatic moves of the world crisis this week in reply to suggestions of India's Prime Minister Nehru for settling the Korean war.

The New York Times and a New Delhi source reported today that Russian Prime Minister Stalin has replied to these suggestions by asking for the seating of communist China in the United Nations Security Council as a step toward ending the war.

Acheson is expected in his answer to draw a sharp line between peace and appeasement, as those terms are applied here to the Korean situation.

The essential condition to any settlement of the Korean and related for eastern issues to complete withdrawal of the communist invasion forces from south Korea, the United States Secretary is expected to write.

At the same time, associates said, Acheson will not close any door to an international effort to work out a just, permanent solution of the Korean problem in the United Nations since the red aggression has been ended.

Nehru sent personal messages last Thursday to Acheson and Stalin. Stalin's reply was handed to the Indian Ambassador in Moscow Saturday.

The New York Times, quoting confidential sources, said Stalin wrote that he "welcomed Nehru's initiative in trying to restore peace in Korea;" and "reactivation of the security council should be the first step."

The Times noted that this latter reference obviously meant that the Chinese communists should be seated on the U.N. council in place of the nationalists.

Seating of the Chinese Reds on the council would lead to the return of Russia to its deliberations and a discussion of the Korean situation among its five permanent members—the U.S., Britain, France, Russia and China, the Times said.

Acheson is convinced that any compromise on the basic issues of the Korean crisis now would constitute appeasement of an aggressor that would be almost certain to bring on other Communist attacks elsewhere in the world.

Workmen Tied up, $5,000 to $6,000 Taken by Bandits

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Masked bandits tied up two workmen at the suburban East York bottling plant of Orange Crush last night and looted two safes of weekend receipts estimated at $5,000 to $6,000.

A watchman, Rufus King, 59, and a fireman, James Tanner, 30, were bound. Their eyes were taped. Tanner was threatened with a gun by one of the robbers.

They told police there were three or four men in the gang.

Use 25 Balloons Holding Crates To Study Rays

Richmond Hill, Ont., July 17—(CP)—Spectators watched uneasily Saturday night as a cluster of 25 balloons, holding two crates floated to rest in a field near here. They were even more uneasy when one of them said he heard a ticking noise and an alarm clock going off.

Five hundred miles away in Chicago, Professor Marcel Schein of the University of Chicago said it was all "perfectly harmless"—just part of an experiment in studying cosmic rays.

LANDLORD-TENANT FEUD RESULTS IN DEATH, INJURY

One Detective Shot, Another Knifed in Brawl

Winnipeg, July 17—(CP) — A long-standing landlord - tenant feud with a dash of sex thrown in, erupted over the weekend into a knifing and a gunfight that killed one detective and severely wounded another.

Police Chief George MacIver said Henry Malanyk, 48-year-old plumber, will be charged with murdering Det.-Sgt. J. E. Sims, who was blasted in the abdomen by a 12-gauge shotgun at a range of three feet.

Sgt. Sims was investigating a stabbing affray in the shoddy Argyle Street district of Winnipeg's north end. Detectives W. H. Anderson and J. Peachell were with him in the tiny front room of Adolphe Kafka's home.

Stabbed Thrice

Kafka, home from his job at Pine Falls, Man., to visit his wife, had been stabbed three times by an assailant alleged to be Malanyk. His wounds were not serious.

The three were taking evidence, the police report said, when Malanyk walked in the front door, saw the detectives, and fired. The first shot caught Sgt. Sims. A second hit Detective Anderson, 29, in the abdomen and chest.

Sims died on the operating table; Anderson's condition was reported improving. Peachell was unhurt.

Anderson and Peachell opened fire after the first shot, wounding Malanyk in the hand, shoulder and hip.

Chief MacIver said Malanyk was drunk on homebrew. He said he will be charged with murder "if he lives — and he will."

Last spring Kafka and Malanyk—then landlord and tenant in another house — were involved in a shooting fracas. The quarrel in both incidents was said to be over Kafka's wife. Kafka was fined $50 for discharging a firearm.

Reds Cut Food, Goods Prices

Berlin, July 17 — (AP) — Price cuts instituted by Soviet sector ration free stores induced West Berliners today to cross the border and hunt bargains.

As a result, money exchanges did a thriving business swapping west marks for east marks. The activity strengthened the east mark to a point where it was quoted officially at 5½ to 1 west mark. It had been static at 7 to 1 for months. The west mark is worth about 25 cents U. S.

The eastern stores Sunday slashed prices on food and goods up to 65 per cent. Except for china goods and some lace work, however, the Russian sector stores displayed goods observers said was of a quality inferior to West Berlin supplies. Even with the favorable currency exchange, food prices in the east still are higher than in the west.

Taejon Deathly Quiet as South Korea's Temporary Capital Deserted

By William R. Moore

A command post in Korea, July 17—(AP)—Taejon was deathly quiet tonight.

The city that last week was South Korea's temporary capital and the nerve centre for the joint American-South Korean military action against the North Korean Reds appeared almost deserted.

Press correspondents left Taejon last night at a time when sporadic small arms fire was heard in the city.

Lachie McDonald of The London Daily Mail, Bill Sydney Smith of The London Daily Express, Gene Symonds of United Press and I returned on a visit tonight.

We heard no sniper fire. Once or twice artillery or bombs boomed in the distance. We left at 9 p.m. (7 a.m. EDT).

Few signs of life were seen on the streets. Normally the population is 10,000.

There was more activity at the railroad station—now the end of the line of Korean rail traffic from Pusan to Seoul. Pusan is the important supply base on the southeastern coast.

Trains had been shuttling all day between Taejon and points south. Most of them carried wounded and battle weary soldiers back from the newest zone of fighting.

Stalin Reported To Have Offered Views to Nehru

Russian Note Sent to Nehru, Forwarded to Britain, U.S.A.

New Delhi, India, July 17.—(AP)—Generalissimo Stalin has told India's Prime Minister Nehru he considers Red China's admission to the United Nations Security Council an essential step toward ending the Korean war, it was reliably reported today.

A reliable source said the Russian Prime Minister, in a note to Nehru, agreed the Korean crisis must be settled peacefully through the Security Council. But the Council, Stalin was reported to have insisted, must include the Chinese Communists among its "Big Five" permanent members.

Suggest Koreans Be Heard

Stalin's note, delivered here yesterday in reply to a previous communication from Nehru, suggested that the views of the Korean people be heard, the source said.

The Russian message was transmitted to Nehru at Allahabad, where he has been visiting, and was cabled to the British and United States governments. A foreign ministry official said publication of the note would depend on the reaction of London and Washington.

Nehru's note to Stalin, some reports said, proposed that the United States facilitate the entry of Communist China into the United Nations as a step toward solving the Korean crisis. There has been no official confirmation of this, however.

Since last January Russia has boycotted all U. N. groups, including the Security Council, on which Nationalist China has been represented.

'Other Woman' Complicates Charge of Murder

Detroit, July 17. —(AP)—Mrs. Rose Rankin, held as the "other woman" in the slaying of comely Mrs. Vivian Stanley, today stood between 38-year-old Sam B. Sampson and a first-degree murder warrant, police said.

On advice of counsel, she refused to give police a statement. Homicide officers said unless she talked it would be difficult to obtain a warrant against the husky grocer who had a way with women.

Mrs. Rankin, 36, at first provided Sampson an alibi for the period of the killing. Then she clammed up after police said he had confessed.

Sampson admitted under questioning Thursday that he strangled the 37-year-old Mrs. Stanley with his pants belt and threw her out of an automobile onto a weed lot, police said. Her body was found early Thursday.

Saturday Sampson switched his story. He told police he left Mrs. Stanley alive after quarrelling bitterly with her because she hired private detectives to trail him.

Both Mrs. Stanley and Mrs. Rankin had loaned Sampson money to finance his grocery store.

CURRENTS FOIL HILL ATTEMPT TO GO OVER FALLS

By GERRY LOUGHEED
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 17. —(CP)—Another attempt to defy the swirling waters of Niagara Falls has failed.

The Niagara River, filled with eddies and cross-currents, yesterday dashed the hopes of daredevil Major Lloyd Hill, who tried to go over the 175-foot Horseshoe Falls in a steel barrel.

Hill navigated about 2 1-2 miles of river successfully in the 725-pound cylinder but the barrel was caught in cross-currents within a half-mile of the cataract and hurled against a shoreside power station abutment.

Strong Inshore Current

Friends attempted to dislodge the bouncing, tossing barrel with pike poles but failed. A strong inshore current kept pushing the stainless steel craft back against the wall.

After an hour, they attached ropes to the barrel and hauled it ashore.

Hill, uninjured but badly shaken up when the river hurled the barrel about like a matchbox, was bitter about it.

"Why didn't you shove her out again?" he mumbled to his brothers, Red, Jr., and Corky, as they helped him to his feet.

"I could have made it, I know I could have."

Hill said later he is determined to try again. Either next Sunday or as soon as possible.

While Hill himself didn't make the trip over the Falls yesterday, the barrel did. Within minutes after he was dragged out and whisked away in a waiting truck, one of his brothers untied the ropes and shoved the cylinder into the current.

It got into a downstream channel, hurtling over the precipice near the spot where Hill had hoped to go over.

200,000 Spectators

Many of the estimated 200,000 persons lining the Canadian and American shores were unaware Hill had been removed and gave a shout as the barrel disappeared under the spray at the bottom of the falls and then bobbed up.

It was dented badly but apparently remained watertight. Hill said he would use it again without any alterations or repairs.

The riverman hoped to become the fourth person in history to go over the Falls and live. He was making the first attempt in 20 years.

George Stahakis of Buffalo, who made the last try, was suffocated when his 2,000-pound wooden barrel was imprisoned 15 hours by eddies below the Falls.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE RESULTS FROM CRASH

Considerable property damage resulted Sunday evening to two cars which collided at the intersection of Pine and Bleecker. Occupants of the cars suffered merely a shaking up.

Mr. L. Leverton, Yeomans St., was driving east on Pine Street, when his vehicle was in collision with another car proceeding south on Bleecker Ave. Leverton told police that he had stopped for the "stop" sign, but had failed to see the car approaching on Bleecker. The second auto was too close to the intersection and crashed into the side of the Leaverton car.

Blaze in Front St. Apartment Quickly Put out

A bedroom fire in an apartment at 209½ Front Street over the United Cigar Store, created a spot of interest for several hundred spectators Sunday evening as they blocked the pavement while watching firemen extinguish the blaze.

The fire, of undertermined origin, caused roughly $500 total damage to a room in the apartment of Mrs. Susan Hearnes. The blaze started near a clothes closet in a room occupied by Mr. Andrew Reid and the alarm was turned in by a neighbor who smelled smoke. The apartment had been unoccupied since early afternoon, the blaze being noticed shortly after nine in the evening.

Little Water Damage

Fire Chief Gerald Vance stated today that very little water damage resulted in the stores underneath the apartment, and that the $500 estimate would cover damage from the fire, smoke and water.

Two pumpers and the aerial ladder were rushed to the blaze, but although hose was run from hydrants, fire fighters were able to control the blaze with the use of the small booster tank hose.

It was 'business as usual" at the New Service Lunch almost underneath the scene of the blaze as customers continued to be served throughout the excitement. Neither was there little to see from a spectator viewpoint, as only a few wisps of smoke were seen drifting from the street window.

Tenants of the apartment knew nothing of the blaze until they returned to the city shortly after midnight.

Sunday School Demonstrates Bible Study Work

The Daily Vacation Bible School at Fairway Avenue Baptist Sunday School held its closing exercises last Friday evening. Some seventy parents, friends and children gathered to enjoy a demonstration of the work accomplished by the forty-seven members of the school during its two weeks' duration.

The parables of Jesus formed the basis of the Bible study, around which suitable hymns, choruses, Bible memory verses and handicraft activities were arranged to form a varied but correlated unit of work. The program opened with introductory remarks by Rev. H. O. Eastman, chairman of the evening. This was followed by hymns, choruses and Bible memory verses by the children under the leadership of Mrs. W. Davison and a demonstration teaching lesson of, 'The Parable of the Lost Sheep and the Good Shepherd' by Miss Isabel Peters, teacher of the Junior Bible Study Group.

Parables Demonstrated

Mrs. R. Orr, teacher of the Senior Bible Study, introduced her group who presented a dramatization of "The Parable of the Friend at Midnight' and a demonstration of "The Parable of the Foolish Rich Man" to show how they had used their home-made movie machine to illustrate several of their lessons.

Mr. Eastman then presented Mrs. C. Phillips who spoke briefly of the senior handicraft work of which she had charge. The other members of the staff were introduced at this time as follows: Miss Bethel Chatreau, in charge of Junior Handicraft; Miss Pansy Sampson, in charge of refreshments and assistant in Junior Handcraft; Miss Harriet Thompson assistant in Senior Handcraft; Miss Ruth Phillips, in charge of the tiny tots.

Mr. R. Orr, Superintendent of the Fairway Avenue Sunday School, expressed appreciation to parents and staff for their cooperation in the Vacation School effort. The evening came to a close with a tour of the classrooms and the handcraft exhibit which showed excellent children's work with wool, shells, paper and wood.

Tipsy Indian Follows Wine To Police Station

The police station is no place to go searching for a bottle of wine which has been mislaid—especially so if the searcher happens to have imbibed a bit too freely.

Just this was learned over the weekend by a local Indian who had hidden an unopened bottle of wine in the men's lavatory on the market square. The lavatory caretaker found the wine and took it to the police station. The owner of the wine followed the wine across to the police station, but was apprehended outside the building on a charge of intoxication and lodged in the police cells.

Forty-Five District Players Attend Phillies Baseball School

Forty-five young hopefuls, dressed in uniforms of all shades and colors converged on the Exhibition Grounds this morning where the baseball school sponsored by the Philadelphia Phillies got off on its four-day stretch.

The school, or clinic, as it is called, is in charge of Pat Coglan and Dale Jones, Phillies scouts.

The school was representative of the district, and it is expected nearly twice the number which attended the opening day activities will be on hand before the school closes Thursday afternoon. Sessions will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

Large Representation

Players were here from Toronto, Cobourg, Campbellford, Port Hope, Trenton, Wellington, Tamworth, Napanee, Bath, Kingston, Little Britain, Peterborough with a good representation from this city.

Coglan and Jones registered the players on special cards. They were then segregated into their different player capacities and strenuous infield, throwing and other phases of training undertaken. Each player will be given the opportunity to give the best he has and no decisions will be made or selections taken until the school is over.

The weather was muggy and hot, ideal for baseball conditions. The most of the youngsters, they range in age from 16 to 22, appeared anxious to make good on the first day, and they worked like Trojans while they were out there.

Schreider Won Race

Fleet-footed Gary Schreider won a special foot race beating Allen Kellcher, Smiths Falls speedster by a scant foot.

Boys are invited to attend the school whenever they can put in an appearance and all players within the age limits are welcome with partiality shown to none. Some of the outstanding juniors in the district are here and it would not be too surprising to learn that some will get a chance for major league or at least farm team experience.

Quinte Golfers Play to Draw With Cataraqui

Golfers of the Bay of Quinte Country Club and the Cataraqui Country Club, Kingston, finished in a draw following their interclub match played on the Quinte links yesterday.

Harry Ridley of the Quinte Club won the 1st low gross with a score of 79. Dr. Pidutti and Art Bridge were second with an 84 while Ted Parker carded an 87 for third place.

Dr. Maxwell, Cataraqui, won the 1st low net with a 71 with Hugh Gibson a club member and Leo Quinn, finishing second and third with scores of 72 and 74. Bob Hurlbut had the most honest score.

POLICE BLOTTER

The Latchford Grocery store on Ponton Street, was entered some time during the weekend, it was reported to police this morning. Entry to the store was gained through removal of the front plate glass window. It had not been determined if anything was taken.

Saturday evening police apprehended William Chappell, no given address, for panhandling on Front Street. He was booked on a vagrancy court.

Belleville Man Elected V-P Veterans Assoc.

Windsor, Ont., July 17 (CP) — Reg Davey of Hamilton was reelected Saturday as president of the Ontario Command of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association.

The veterans organization, ending its three-day annual convention here, also, elected John C. Lundberg, Belleville, First Vice-President; Albert Baker, Lakeview, Second Vice-president, and C. H. Holt, Ottawa, Third Vice-president. C. F. Johnston of Hamilton is secretary.

25 Resolutions

Among 25 resolutions approved in closing sessions was one asking for a federal government allowance, at age 60 without a means test, to veterans who served in an actual theatre of war.

Other resolutions asked:

Income tax exemption for reserve forces' pay.

Government quarantees of lowrate bank loans to veterans building their own homes, and assistance in reducing rents of veterans' rental homes to bring them in line with average incomes.

A review of the Department of Veterans Affairs of the Canadian Legion's "monopoly" on Poppy Day.

Tax-free cigarets for veterans in hospital.

Discussion with educational authorities on the question of including instruction in "citizenship and patriotism" in public and high schools.

WARSPITE SEES DAYLIGHT AGAIN

Submerged since three years ago when she sank en route to the wrecker's yard, H.M.S. Warspite sees daylight again as engineers raise her bulk in preparation for towing. Though cleared of the rocks at Prussian Cove, Cornwall, the ship will be sunk again until the wrecker's yard at Clyde, Scotland, can handle the task of breaking her 30,000-ton bulk into scrap. — Central Press Canadian.

GEORGE LALONDE
(Formerly of Tweed)

Tweed, July 17. —George Lalonde died suddenly on Friday, July 14, at the Ottawa General Hospital, following an operation. Mr. Lalonde 74 years of age, was a retired C.N.R. employee and during the later years of service he worked on the engines in the Peterborough yards.

The funeral was held from the Gauthier Funeral Home, Hull, Que., and Requiem Mass was said at Notre Dame Church, Hull, on Monday, July 17th.

Interment was at Notre Dame Cemetery, Ottawa.

He lived in Tweed for a number of years and had many friends. Mrs. Lalonde died a few years ago.

LATE MRS. SARAH BOYD
(Campbellford-Marmora)

Marmora, July 17—Burial took place in Marmora Protestant cemetery on Friday afternoon of Mrs. Sarah Boyd, widow of Ezekiel D. Boyd. For many years she was a resident at Moses Lake in the State of Washington.

The body was brought to Campbellford following her death on July 7th to rest at the Bennett Funeral Home there, where on Friday afternoon the funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church who also officiated at the committal services at the graveside.

Mrs. Boyd who was eighty-four years of age was the former Sarah Rutherford of Seymour township. For some years prevlous to her marriage and later she was organist of Burnbrae Presbyterian Church. Surviving her, is one son, Jesse Boyd of Moses Lake with whom she resided and one granddaughter Nadine Boyd, who accompanied the body. Her husband who predeceased her some years ago was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ezekiel Boyd pioneer settlers in Marmora township.

No One Seriously Injured in Crash

Four persons escaped serious injury Saturday night on the outskirts of Frankford when two cars met in a head-on collision west of the Trent River on the 7th concession of Sidney township.

Driver of the one car, Clayton Rose, Marmora, suffered minor leg injury when his car rolled over after the collision. The other persons involved in the accident escaped with a shaking-up.

The accident occurred on top of a hill in front of the George Nicholson farm, the southbound Rose car colliding with a northbound auto driven by Hubert Strong of Trenton. Mr. and Mrs. Strong were driving north to their summer cottage when the accident occurred. Rose, accompanied by his young son, was driving in to Frankford.

The Rose car was badly damaged and after rolling came to rest with its front end on the embankment.

Provincial Constable Tasker of Belleville investigated.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—Prices marked time on the Toronto stock exchange today. A slightly easier tone developed as the session progressed largely the result of lack of buyers rather than increasing selling.

Opening trends pointed higher but leaders settled into easier ground.

Utilities showed a wide list of losses with Union Gas selling at a new low. Papers and textiles also weakened while constructions and steels held firm. Refining oils were strong in early dealings but lost the advantage in mid-session.

Western oils slumped over a comparatively broad front, Piccadilly, a penny issue, was active on the downside and leaders like Pacific Petroleum, Anglo-Canadian and Atlantic Oil dipped.

Base metals were slightly lower in dull dealings. United Keno Hill sold at a new low for the year at $5.05 and International Nickel and Quemont dipped fractions.

Volume for the first three hours was only 545,000 shares.

PRODUCE MARKET

Creamery prints: First grade, 55 cents.

Receipts were light at the Toronto egg market this morning. On the two top grades prices have advanced slightly. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 49-50½; A medium, 48-48½; A pullet, 38-39; Grade B, 32-33; Grade C, 28. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 53; A medium, 51; A pullet, 42; Grade B, 36-37; Grade C, 32-33.

Butter solids: First grade solids, tenderable, 53, non-tenderable, 52, second grade solids (nominal) 48.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 17 — (CP) — Prices were about steady on all grades of cattle this morning at the Ontario stockyards. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle, 3,800; calves, 800: hogs, 620; sheep and lambs, 480. Left from Saturday were 50 cattle.

Good to choice weighty steers sold at $29.50-$31.50 while choice fed yearlings brought $30-$32. Medium to good light steers were $28-$29.60. Good heifers sold at $28-$29. Good cows brought $22.50-$23.50. Good bulls were $24-$25. Good stockers sold at $24.$26.50.

HOG PRICES

Toronto, July 17 — (CP)— Dressed, grade A hogs, delivered, were $32 at Hull, Que., this morning.

At Stratford prices were not established.

Storage Ample For Ontario Winter Wheat

Ottawa, July 17 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe assured Ontario wheat farmers there will be sufficient elevator storage space in the province to hold all their winter wheat crop now being harvested.

The minister said in a statement that he gave the assurance because of reports that farmers who planted 860,000 acres to winter wheat, compared with 805,000 last year, would be unable to find sufficient storage space and therefore would have to sell their crop immediately to millers.

The winter wheat crop in Ontario last year amounted to approximately 24,700,000 bushels and while no official estimate has yet been made of this year's crop, it is expected to total about 25,000,000 bushels or more.

With western wheat now moving in great quantities from the prairie provinces through the lakehead to eastern ports and overseas points, Mr. Howe said there was some question in the minds of Ontario farmers whether there would be sufficient storage space available for their winter crop.

Mr. Howe said the farmers should experience "little or no difficulty" in getting storage space. Most storage points are controlled by the Board of Grain Commissioners which in turn is under the administration of Mr. Howe's department.

Truman Will Talk About Korean War On Radio Wed.

Washington, July 17 — (AP)— President Truman will send a message on the Korean war to Congress Wednesday and report to the people of the United States on it that night by radio.

The White House said today neither the message nor the report to the people has been completed yet. The radio report will be at 10:30 p. m. EDT.

Democratic leaders met with President Truman today and discussed the message. None would say what Truman plans to say.

Scientists, Crew Of RCAF Plane Return Safely

Edmonton, July 17 — (CP) — Members of a nine-man scientific expedition to the north magnetic pole arrived here in an R.C.A.F. rescue aircraft early today. The expedition's own plane is in 20 feet of water in a North West Territories lake.

The men, who spent two nights in the sub-Arctic shivering in wet clothes and taking turns using a single sleeping bag, were picked up last night from the shore of Spitfire Lake, 544 miles northeast of Edmonton.

An R.C.A.F. spokesman gave this acount:

The expedition was headed by Ralph Hutchinson of Ottawa and Kenneth Whitham of Toronto, scientists who were to study the constantly-shifting magnetic pole. Mr. Hutchinson is head magnetician in the Federal Technical Surveys Department and Mr. Whitham is a geophysicist.

In an R.C.A.F. Canso with a seven-man crew, the party took off from Ottawa July 7 for a 43-stop tour of the northland. Friday it landed on Spitfire Lake and set up a magnetic survey point.

Plane Holed

Late in the day it prepared to leave. FO. A. G. Carswell of Ottawa and Toronto, the pilot, said the plane skinned over what he took to be a rock. It left a hole in the forward part of the aircraft. He taxied the Canso to within 100 yards of the shore, then it sank.

Everyone got to shore. Most of the scientific information was saved but all the instruments were lost.

The spokesman said the expedition likely will return to Ottawa, finished for this year.

Other crew members are:

FO. D. L. Munroe, Aylmer, Que., and Vancouver, navigator; FO. F. W. Baril, Ottawa, co-pilot; FO. G. O. Paynter, Ottawa, radio officer; Sgt. A. B. Hillman, Ottawa and Belleville, Ont., flight engineer; LAC. R. A. McLean, Cyrville, Ont., and Moncton, N.B., flight mechanic, and LAC. W. E. Southcombe, Ottawa and Sarnia, Ont., crewman.

Liner Refloated After Hitting Rocky Shoal

Quebec, July 17 (CP)—The ocean liner Franconia is in drydock here today, ready for minute inspection of her hull, damaged when she ran aground near Quebec harbor Wednesday night.

The liner, stranded on a rocky point off the western tip of the Isle of Orleans, was refloated early yesterday by six tugs, her own engines and a flood tide that made the actual job of pulling her off the rocks possible in 32 minutes.

As she clattered noisily off the craggy bottom, several hundred curious Quebeckers applauded.

The Franconia, a 20-ton Cunard Donaldson liner, rammed into the rocks with 850 passengers shortly after leaving Quebec on a trip to Liverpool. No one was injured as the big vessel ground to a stop at Pointe Au Taureau in full view of startled vacationists and island residents.

When the Franconia was pulled out into the river she slid along gracefully, her water line high above the water. A company spokesman said: "We are greatly relieved."

Cause of the grounding has not been announced. It has been reported that a steering mechanism failed. Edmond Lamontagne, veteran St. Lawrence River pilot who was at the helm, said to a reporter: "I haven't got the slightest indication what caused the grounding."

A preliminary attempt to dislodge the liner from the rocks was made Thursday morning but failed and Cunard Donaldson called for the assistance of the Halifax salvage ship Traverse and the Halifax Foundation tug Vera

17 Drownings Among 37 Weekend Deaths

(By The Canadian Press)

Seventeen persons were drowned in eastern Canada during the weekend, almost all of them while swimming.

Fifteen more were killed on the highways as a total of 37 fatalities in the east were reported to The Canadian Press.

Twelve were drowned and eight killed on the highways in Ontario; four were drowned and five killed in motor accidents in Quebec; two were killed in traffic and one was drowned in New Brunswick; and an 11-year-old Glace Bay, N.S., boy, George Donovan, was killed trying to climb on a moving freight train.

Falls Overboard

Among the dead was Reginland H. Dayton of Toronto, Administrator of the Canadian International Trade Fair. He suffered a heart attack while at the rail of a yacht in Port Dalhousie, Ont., fell overboard and was drowned.

Other causes resulted in four other fatalities in Ontario. Toronto police said Erwin Galesner, 23, hanged himself after a quarrel with a girl friend. William Gornan, 43, collapsed and died after running in a race at a company picnic in Toronto. In Sudbury, Albert E. Wellblund was found dead in a garage filled with carbon monoxide. Johnson Dixon, 36, was found lying on the rocks beneath a railway bridge near Ailsa Craig, Ont.

Three of the dead have not been identified. An elderly woman was killed in an accident on Montreal streets and the decomposed body of a man was found in the St. Lawrence River.

An unidentified man was killed near Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., when a truck went off the highway. Nick Arghittu, 65, of Niagara-on-the-Lake, also was killed in the accident.

Several more accidents brought death to more than one person. Near Brampton, Ont., James Cobban, 4, Fergmmus Cassidy, 51, and Edward Haddad, 15, all of Toronto, were killed Friday in a collision between two cars.

Near Riviere du Loup, Que., two three-year-old children, Murielle Levesque and Claude Laplante, were drowned in Riviere du Loup. While sailing a motorboat on Trout Creek, 79 miles west of Port Arthur, Ont., Victor Alto, 48, and his daughter, Sonia, 3, were drowned. Mrs. Abe Levine and her son, Ian, 7, were killed in a collision between a car and a truck near Moncton, N.B.

Trapped In Car

Near Chambly, Quebec, Floretta Caron, 25, and Marie Anne Lavoie, 20, of Montreal, were trapped in a burning automobile and killed. The car caught fire when a driver, whom police refused to identify, took the girls for a ride and lost control of the car.

The other victims of motor accidents in Ontario were: Ira Hamilton, 40, killed near Stratford when his car collided with a freight train; Gordon O'Reilly, 2, run over by a truck at Kearns, Ont.; Howard Campbell, 22, killed near Crumlin, Ont., when his motorcycle hit a car.

In New Brunswick, Paul Williamson, 38-year-old forest ranger from Young's Cove Road, fell out of a canoe and was drowned near Coles Island. Derrick Reed, 18, a member of the crew of the liner Samaria, was drowned while swimming in Quebec harbor and Omer Charbonneau, 20, was drowned while swimming at Ste. Angele de Monnoir, Que.

Mrs. Paul Morin, 46, of Napierville, Que., was killed at Kempton racetrack at Laprairie while watching an automobile stunt driver. A car went out of control smashing a railing and crashed into the spectators. Fred Nolan, 55, was hit by a car while crossing a street in Montreal and died in hospital.

Missionary Plane Found, 15 Persons Aboard All Dead

Bogota, Colombia, July 17 — (AP)— The wreckage of a DC-3 missionary plane, missing since June 9 with 15 Americans aboard, has been found with all aboard dead in the Perija Mountains 70 miles west of Maracaibo, Venezuela. The wreckage and the charred bodies were found by a land search party.

The plane belonged to the New Tribes Mission of Chico, Calif.

THE TURTLE WON

A U.S. navy plane, the Truculent Turtle, set a record for nonstop distance by flying 11,236 miles from Perth, Australia, to Columbus, Ohio, in 55 hours and 15 minutes.

NEW TELEPHONE RATES

The Board of Transport Commissioners has ordered our first general rate increase in 23 years

EFFECTIVE JULY 22, 1950

In accordance with an interim order of The Board of Transport Commissioners, telephone rates will be increased on July 22nd. These rates will apply until the Board makes a final decision on the application for higher rates that we made last October.

No one, of course, wants to pay higher prices for anything. Though our costs have been going up faster than our revenues for some time, we delayed applying for increases until it was clearly evident we could not continue to operate satisfactorily without higher rates.

Most things you buy and the things we buy too, have gone up in price in recent years, and nearly all of them more than the revenue increase we asked for. The temporary rates now ordered by the Board give us only part of the revenue we require. If we are to continue towards our goal of providing service to all who want it, when and where they want it, we must receive the balance of the increase for which we applied.

Although the cost of telephone service has finally gone up, when you think about it, the value of telephone service has gone up even more. In terms of convenience, security and friendly contacts, a telephone is worth far more than it costs!

HOW TO FIND YOUR NEW RATE

Look up your exchange area in TABLE "A". Its rate group appears beside it. Below, under the corresponding rate group column in TABLE "B", you will find the rates for the most widely used classes of service. If you need any information about other rates, please call our business office.

DO NOT OVERDO

The Windsor Star, remarking in its editorial columns that the picnic season is once more the rage, reminds readers that the joy of such gatherings is often marred by tragedy. Stacked up against the taste of food in the outdoors and the battles with mosquitoes and ants is the danger of overdoing.

The Star mentions the races that men over forty years of age get themselves into, and then find that they are exhausted afterwards. "When men get over forty, they may still be filled with beans and pepper, but they cannot run like they used to race," the Star says. "That extra avoidupois is heavy to carry around. And, it is a strain on the heart, if too sudden and too violent exercise is taken."

Men who conduct themselves in this manner are in the same category as those who take up golf, tennis, or some such other sport, late in life. Often the opportunity to engage in athletics comes only when a man has gained a secure position.

Our Windsor contemporary says "It can be bad for the fat man who thinks he is still a sprinter and tries to prove it." We think it might be worse for the man, fat or not, who knows very well that he is not a sprinter, and still tries to prove it.

HIS FAME STILL GROWS

Many thousands from all parts of the world are this summer attending the Shakespeare festival in his hometown, Stratford-on-Avon, England, and the success of this year"s presentations is called the greatest on record. In the three hundred and thirty-four years since Shakespeare died, his fame as master of language and the human heart has been growing steadily, so that today there is no land which does not know his name. So apt was his interpretation of life in the creations he brought upon the stage in that far-away day of the late sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries and so fitting for all time.

The world's admiration for the bard is not mere adulation or worship of fame, it is recognition of a genius who probed deeply the human heart and could delve into the roots of evil in man's heart and could also find in human life so much that is to be admired. For he "saw life steadily and saw it whole" as a fellow English poet has said.

The honors shown the name of the English poet and the dramatist are not a mere imitation of what others have given him from the sixteenth century down to the twentieth. Admirers in every age pay tribute to his sympathetic grasp of human life and knowledge of the human heart, to the limitless range of his conception of life and its possibilities and dignity, as he has revealed it in the characters in his plays which stand out to the glory of England that could produce so wise and so sympathetic an observer of life who wrote for the stage.

Millions of persons in various parts of the world will of course never find it possible to see his dramas produced by master artists in the very setting of life in which he lived. But they can see them elsewhere. Were it possible the whole world would pay tribute in his birthplace to the dignity and glory of life in England that produced so wise and sympathetic an observer and lover of his fellowmen as William Shakespeare.

MESMERISM

Recently two groups in England condemned hypnosis as being dangerous and having strange sequels.

One case cited was that of a clerk who volunteered for stage hypnosis, and was told that he would fall asleep when he heard an orchestra play an aptly-named piece, "So Tired." He did drop into slumber, as scheduled, but he had what might be called a hangover. When one of his fellow clerks whistled the same tune the next day, he was gone again into slumber land.

Beyond the humorous incidents of hypnosis lie serious effects, medical men feel. One girl who was made to cry during a trance followed the performance with a long period of depression and weeping. Mere attendance at the show can cause nervous troubles, it is said.

While the situation is considered serious, it is not felt that it is sufficiently important to require an act of Parliament. What it might warrant is an investigation of the craft, and more duration on the part of audience members. It rather looks as if the "stooge" of the hypnotic act is in the category of the people P. T. Barnum mentioned as being born every minute. And most of them live.

"A country cannot subsist well without liberty, nor liberty without virtue. — Rousseau.

There are two freedoms, the false, where one is free to do what he likes, and tre true, where one is free to do what he ought. — Kingsley.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1950, Edgar A. Guest)

THE WELSH AT CHURCH

I like the way of the Welsh at church.
After service they linger about,
Happily making for friends a search,
Eager to chat with them, in or out;
Sharing the news of the week or year.
So much to tell and so much to hear.

God has been told of their love in prayer;
Hailed by them all with a burst of song.
Now they have time with their friends to share
And the Sabbath is short and a week is long.
Are the old folks happy? The children well?
So much to learn and so much to tell.

"We're a chatter-box group," said a friend to me
As we stood outside on the crowded walk,
"And never in haste to leave are we,
For after the service we like to talk
And always an hour or more wwe stay.
So much to hear and so much to say!"

The Rev. M. W. Maclean, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, is spending today in Kingston.

Mr. James Lowrie left today to spend a vacation at Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The fullest sense of security comes only when security is challenged. That is why rain on the cottage roof is one of the most comforting of all the sounds on earth.

To lie in a dry bed listening to the drum of summer rain on the roof is one of the most gratifying experiences in life. If it is one of those rains that change tempo, that comes and goes, in gusts and floods, the sensation is all the richer. You can lie in almost royal comfort, thinking of the drenched world outside, the trees fairly sodden with it, the earth soaked, all the creatures of the open air crouched and cringed. Down she comes in a sort of roar of drums: your security from it makes your skin tingle with glee. She slackens, fades You can hear the frenzied dripping off the eaves. Then down she comes again, making the cottage vibrate. It is like a symphony. Having money in the bank gives you no such sensation of security as this.

The supreme experience is to be waked from sleep by rain on the roof: to listen to it for a little while, half waking, half asleep; and then to drift off into slumber again during one of the most violent downpours. That must do the very soul good. In such a sleep is a benediction of security that must reach away down into the most harried little corners and pockets of our being.

It is suposed that our generation has enjoyed a lesser sense of security than any that have gone before us. It is hard to say. Maybe we merely think of security more than our predecessors. Maybe we only strive more for it. Where we have wars and the rumor of wars, our ancestors had plagues and poverty and a personal sense of isolation from the rest of society that no longer exist in our large and enlightened section of the earth. Roofs a few generations ago, did not make so pretty a sound under the rain. Most of them leaked, a little.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BURDEN BEARING

Somehow, somewhere, sometime, we all have to cast our burdens upon the Lord, for they are too much for our shoulders. We can carry them but we cannot carry them alone. We may go on year after year with a heart that daily bleeds with sorrow, trying to forget it in a beautiful service to others, but unless we can look up to heaven and say "Thy will be done," the wound will never heal.

If some disappointment has struck you down and all through life you look back on circumstance that marred your finest ambitions and made you put aside everthing in which you had hope, you will have to have something more than a brave heart and an unselfish spirit if you would come to the end of the day without rancor and bitterness. You must be able to say day by day, through all the long weary, disappointing years, "God's ways are my ways, and all things become right and profitable through Him." And if you endure temptation day by day feeling at times that you can never endure it to the end, then above all things you need God's grace in your heart.

God may have given you some thorn in the flesh, some weakness that He will not remove, but He will say unto you as He said unto Paul: "My grace is sufficient unto thee, for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

Mackenzie's Column:

Nehru's Offer Of Mediation In Korean War

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

The offer by India's Prime Minister Nehru to act as mediator in the Korean war isn't surpising, coming as it does from the man who not only is a great exponent of peace but he may be headed for the leadership of mighty Asia.

Nehru has tendered his services to both Washington and Moscow. Whether he is pursuing fruitful tactics remains to be seen.

Actually neither the United States nor Russia is technically the right party to whom to address a mediation proposal. Let's not forget that the United States is operating in Korea at the request of the United Nations. Thus the State Department holds that the U.N. is the "proper forum" for the settlement of the crisis.

However, perhaps Nehru took that into consideration and adopted what looked like the practical course of sending his "try message" to the two countries which actually are most deeply involved—the leaders of the two world blocs.

The United States State Department has said flatly that the minimum condition for solution of the crisis is for the North Koreans to quit fighting and withdrawn to their own territory.

Moscow Wagering World Revolution

But what of Russia? Moscow is the one which is wagering world revolution for the spread of communism. She is sponsoring the Northern Koreans in their assault on their brothers to the south.

Is Russia likely to negotiate now? Well, she might do exactly that if she thought she could put across a great bargain. There have been reports that the Soviet might be willing to call off the war on terms which would in effect give her control of all Korea, and also get the Chinese communists seated in the U.N.

However, there isn't the slightest indication at this juncture that the United States would be willing to embark on any such risky deal. Korea is strategically important to the western powers in their fight to halt the spread of communism in the far east. Abandonment of the peninsula now would not only weaken the democracies militarily but would have a tremendously-adverse influence on the morale of that part of the world.

All these things being so, the chances for settlement of the Korean imbroglio by mediation are not bright.

TAEJON AIR

Superfortress bombers struck deep into North Korean territory. Fifty of them dumped 400 tons on the railroad yards at Seoul, 90 miles beyond the front. Other planes plastered the closer Chungju area.

The North Korean ground forces ran into shattering surprises in two actions on the eastern front. MacArthur said they were "two of the most conclusive setbacks" of the Korean war.

North Yongdok on the east coast, United States planes tore the reds apart. In the critical sector around Chechon it was artillery that mauled them.

Yongdok, 85 miles above the port of Pusan, is the American supply funnel on the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

MacArthur said the reds had been heartened by limited success there in a combined sea and land operation against the South Koreans Sunday. The North Korean force attacked Monday morning and—as MacArthur put it— "received its biggest surprise of the war."

Fighters roared in to support a South Korean regiment. The result was a "catastrophe" for the reds, MacArthur's communique said.

The other North Korean setback around Yechon, 55 miles northeast of Taejon, came Sunday night. A south Korean regiment came up with a unit of U.S. artillery—not previously reported in that sector—and the red force halted dead in its tracks.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Life is something like a gymnasium where men and women exercise to develop their God-given bodies. I have seen weak puny bodies developed into strong rounded ones. But it takes patience, skill, persistence, and sacrifice to become a topnotch athlete. It takes this, as well, to get one's body well developed so that the mental and physical tasks of life may be faced with confidence and without fear.

I like to think of all the various tasks and tests that come to people as those that they face to develop themselves as though they were in a great gymnasium, as this outer life of ours may well be termed. Some can only master the lesser duties, others being more ambitious, with perhaps a good supply of iniative, tackle the heavier and strenuous tasks of life. But it's all a great training world for some definite objective—a brave gymnasium.

Like many athletes who trained faithfully and went far in earlier life, many men and women lose interest fall longer to keep in trim shape, and so give over to abler and more courageous workers. No matter where we stand, sit, or work, we must be brave.

In Germany a gymnasium is a high grade eduational institution. That's what life is—after all the preliminary steps to a rounded education have been left behind. We are in this school for life, and on our own. I like these two words—heroic readiness. There is a silent society in every community that adheres to the meaning of these words, men and women who self draft themselves into every useful enterprise.

So it is with whether the gymnasium be for the development of the body or the mind, or both, it is a challenge to our bravery patience, and will to do. Here it will be that we may discover many an undeveloped muscle of potential might. Here it will be that you will discover yourself, if you ever do. In practical and realistic experiences, in the broad gymnasium of the world, you will either wither your mind or expand it until it touches every silent sympathetic note that binds people and nations together.

ALLERGY IS A NUISANCE AND A MYSTERY

Although allergy is a word which has come into wide usage, I find that many readers are puzzled by it. If the word "sensitivity" were used instead of "allergy" perhaps some confusion could be avoided, because allergy is simply a state in which an individual is unduly sensitive to foods, drugs and other chemical substances to which most persons are not sensitive.

However, the word "sensitive" is not altogether adequate in this description. What is meant is that the person who is "sensitive" or allergic to foods, drugs or other substances responds to contact with these substances with unusual reactions — such as the development of hives, "hay fever" or asthma, among others.

Allergy assumes several different forms. The type which results in hay fever or asthma is well known to most persons. Less well known is "physical" allergy in which a person becomes unusually sensitive to heat, cold and light.

Occasionally, when a person becomes infected with a certain strain of bacteria, he may become "allergic" to these bacteria upon subsequent contact with them — responding with a reaction much more severe than that occasioned by the original infection.

Horse serum, used to treat specific infections, may unduly "sensitize" a person to the extent that further use of the serum may result in severe reactions. To avoid this possibility a physician always makes a preliminary test of a patient's tolerance to serum before injecting it.

Any number of substances — paints, ink, feathers, wool, silk, plants, flowers and dust, for examples, may produce disorders of the skin upon contact — contacts which never affect most persons.

Certain foods to which an individual is sensitive may produce severe digestive symptoms in addition to hives and other remote reactions.

There is reason to believe that many obscure disorders may be essentially allergic. A recent development is the investigation of certain emotional disorders thought to have allergic features.

Perhaps the most effective method of treatment of allergic disorder is that of avoiding the offensive substances which cause it, or rather, which cause the unusual reactions. This is exemplified by the exodus of numerous citizens from their usual haunts during the hay fever season.

Despite the fact that many physicians specialize in allergy, a great deal is yet to be learned about its cause and development.

Treatment of allergy in many instances calls for a series of injections of the offending agent, commencing with minute quantities and gradually increasing the dose to the point where a relative degree of "immunity" to the "allergen" is brought about.

Unfortunately, in many instances, this immunity is short lived and must be renewed at yearly periods—or oftener. While this method of procedure yields good results in many cases, it is not universally successful. Many persons suffer from allergy throughout their entire lives.

The importance of calcium in the diet is well exemplified by the fact that many persons report great improvement in their allergic difficulties by increasing to an optimal level their daily requirements for this mineral. Lack of space here prevents further discussion of this factor but I have a booklet on the subject, titled "The Calcium Shortage," which you may have by requesting it by name and enclosing 25c in coin together with a return, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Hot Water and Soap

I am astonished at your advice that ordinary dishwashing is sufficient disinfection of dishes used by one with tuberculosis. It requires a temperature of 140F. to destroy the tubercle bacillus—that's one reason why 140 degrees for 20 minutes is the minimum for pasteurizing of milk. A dishwasher could not endure water of that temperature. (T. E.)

Answer — Technically you are right. Practically, I believe, washing dishes with ordinary soap and hot water makes the dishes perfectly safe for any one to use, no matter what disease a previous user may have had.

Home Made Bread

Is there any significant nutritional difference between baker's bread and home made bread? (Mrs. A. H. W.)

Answer — No. Home made bread? Why do questions like this come up when it is ten hours since I have taken nourishment? Home made bread. Fresh from the oven, with nice warm milk fresh from the cow. Ow, wow!

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

J-M WATERPROOFING GUARDS NEW SUBWAY

Among the many materials being applied in Toronto's new Subway are several vitally important waterproofing materials made by Johns-Manville.

As in any underground construction, protection against infiltration of water is essential. Johns-Manville, with their many years of experience in the manufacture of Waterproofing Materials, were called in to help with this problem. The result is the use of a giant Asphalt "sandwich" made up of alternate layers of J-M Asphalt Saturated Felts and J-M Asphalt Saturated Fabrics — both thoroughly embedded in J-M Waterproofing Asphalt — protecting the sidewalls and roof of this new subway.

General contractors for this section of the subway are Pitts, Johnson, Drake and Perini and the waterproofing contractors are Dean-Chandler Co. Ltd. Johns-Manville is proud that J-M waterproofing materials were first choice for Canada's first subway!

Crowd Gets Plenty of Laughs When Lions Ride Donkeys In Game of Donkey Baseball

Trenton—(Special)— If Lions playing baseball while riding on donkeys is not the zaniest game on earth, what is? No this is not the newest act dreamed up by a publicity wise circus promotor, it actually happened here Friday night, when the local Lions Club took on the Recreation Commission in a game of donkey baseball.

The Lions won 4 to 1 but everyone agreed the donkeys were the real winners, as the long eared burrows bucked, bumped and bounced their riders all over Bayshore Park. The bleachers were filled to capacity and there was standing room only. Everybody got a whale of a kick out of the game except the donkeys and they did the kicking.

It was certainly a jackass of a ball game but the side sore spectators certainly received their money's worth of mirth as the stubborn beasts sent several donkey-busters soaring skyward. The umpires were not called on to toss any offending players out of the game. The 'jacks' took care of the bouncing duties and did their best to throw both teams out of the park individually and collectively.

Players Star and See Them Too

The braying burrows were all named after famous movie stars and comic strip characters but the players were the funniest characters in the field and no doubt saw the most stars when they popped into the air and grounded out flat on their faces or the reverse side of their anatomy as was true in most cases.

Ron Makin was the best doggone donkey buster in the whole park and scored two round trips for the Lions. Gord Flynn, however, really had tough luck and never got to first base. He hit fairly consistently but the mule train refused to let him aboard before throwing him off either head first or over backwards.

"Doc" Jones who is used to handling animals resorted to bribery and tried to coax his steed with a carrot but with little success, while Lion President Roly Whitley has a couple of cracked ribs to show for his joust with the Oklahoman jackasses.

Grazing Colts Attract Parents

Several colts (one only nine days old) were grazing in the outfield and every time one of the players connected for a hit and tried to stay on donkeyback long enough to get to first, the doting mamma and papa donkeys would turn on the steam and head for their offspring with heals flying to show the crowd what a clever youngster they had.

In spite of the rough treatment, both teams were game to the end and took their punishment standing up, besides it was more comfortable that way.

Council Discusses Civic Centre In Market Square, Passing of Hospital Bond By-Law Postponed

Trenton (Special)—Preliminary plans for a new Civic Centre in the heart of Trenton's main business section were discussed at the mid-month council meeting on Friday night.

Council proposes to develop the Market Square into a modern municipal centre, as a long term improvement program. The proposed centre would take in the entire block between King and Division Streets occupied by the police station, fire hall and bus terminal.

Although no definite decision was arrived at the building of a sidewalk from the corner of the Trent Theatre building along the right of way to the back of Loblaw's was discussed. It was also proposed that when this new sidewalk is built, two-hour parking meters should be installed at the same time.

The possibility of erecting a cement curb along the southwest side of the fire hall and putting meters there also was investigated by the council before the meeting. If parking meters are installed around the police station and east side of the Market Square, it was agreed that they should not be operated on market days.

"With the services people are demanding today, we cannot miss an opportunity to raise money to provide those services," said Mayor Ken Couch.

Since the Ontario Municipal Board will be on holidays until September 1, approval cannot be obtained for the $125,000 hospital debenture by-law until then and final reading of the by-law was postponed.

Korean War Upsets Bond Market

Councillor W. C. Saylor, chairman of finance, said that market conditions are very uncertain at the moment, due to the fighting in Korea and it is impossible to determine interest rates in advance. "Since we are tied up for 60 days anyway," Mr. Saylor said he thought it wolud be advisable to wait until council was certain of the delivery date, and then, the interest rate and maturing date of the bonds could be written right into the by-law when it is given third reading.

The town assessor, J. E. Davis has accepted a position in Peterborough and council decided to engage Charles Rodgerson as assessor for the remainder of this year, at a salary of $2,000 per annum.

It was decided to let the Chamber of Commerce "poll" its members and decide whether or not stores should stay open on Wednesday and close Friday August 18 for Air Force Sports Day.

Children's Aid Society Raises Rates

Third reading was given to the by-law for the widening of Dundas Street east and a draft of traffic by-law revisions was also considered.

A letter from the Belleville Children's Aid Society was read, informing council that their per diem rates would be increased from 85 cents to $1 per day.

MORTARS THROWN FROM KUM RIVER BANK

American soldiers are shown firing their heavy mortar projectiles toward the unseen enemy positions across the Kum River. The mortar is used to advance on this type of terrain to blast out enemy machine-gun nests and mortar positions. Heavy pressure by North Korean invading forces continued on all sectors of the battlefront. Reports said Kum River defence lines are being evacuated and that the reds are shelling to Taejon, vital rail and road hub city through which supplies are funnelling to the front from points on the south and west coasts. — Central Press Canadian.

Good Demand For Farm Produce

Trenton (Special)—A better than average crowd was on Trenton Market Saturday morning, and there was a steady demand for the plentiful supply of small fruits and vegetables.

Red currants were being offered at 30 cents a quart basket, while gooseberries were bringing 25 cents a quart. There were a few early Montmorency cherries on the stands at 30 cents a quart. No raspberries were seen on the market and only one stand had black currants for sale which were disposed of early in the morning at 45 cents a quart box.

Warba and Irish Cobbler freshly dug potatoes were tagged at "5 cents a peck and 50 cents a six quart basket. Head lettuce and radishes were available in abundance at five cents per bunch while shelled peas were selling at 30 cents a pint. Unshelled peas were more plentiful at two quarts for a quarter and 65 cents a six-quart basket.

Cauliflower was priced at from 20 to 25 cents per head depending on the size, and a few small heads of cabbage were seen on two stalls selling at 10 cents each.

Eggs were selling at 55 cents a dozen and young chickens brought 60 cents a pound dressed.

Late season asparagus was seen on one stand at 15 cents a bunch, two for a quarter and cooking onions were selling at 5 cents per bunch.

Four Cars Entered

Trenton (Special)—Four cars were broken into in the west end residential district Frdiay night. Entrance was gained by prying open the 'no draft' ventilation windows.

Police report that the only articles stolen in the four breakins were a coat and some cigarettes. Several other valuable articles in the cars were not touched.

Kidney Transplant Case Leaves Hospital

Chicago, July 17—(AP)— Mrs. Howard Tucker, 49, the woman with the only transplanted kidney in medical history, yesterday walked cheerfully out of hospital. She said further tests must be made in about three weeks to determine whether the new kidney is functioning properly.

Shortly after the operation June 17, surgeons said Mrs. Tucker's other kidney might be doing the work of both.

The transplanted kidney was taken from another woman shortly after she died of a liver ailment. Physicians had said that without the operation, Mrs. Tucker herself was doomed to die.

Music of Great Music Halls Still Echoes in Quiet Home

By GILBERTO FORTI

Milan, Italy, July 17 — (AP)— The applause has died away but the music of yesterday's great concert halls still echoes in a quiet home here where famed musicians of the past still play and sing and teach.

There are 70 of them — 40 men and 30 women passing the twilight of their careers in Milan's "House of Rest for Aged Musicians." Most of them are in their 80s.

The home was founded by Giuseppe Verdi, composer of Rigoletto, La Traviata, and Aida. He is buried there. In his will he left his operas, his fortune and his body to the home for those who have loved music and given their lives for it.

Signora Giannina Russ, one of the greatest who ever sang Bellini's Norma, is teaching there now —at 76.

Riccardo Pettinella, 81, famed Italian conductor and teacher, still has pupils who come daily.

He listens to the songs of young hope — and smiles.

"Music is an illness that has no cure; we old ones have the love of it still."

Since the original trust fund set up by Verdi for the home, It has received support of many musicians and music lovers in Italy and abroad. These include Toscanini, Beniamino Gigli, Giacomo Lauri Volpi, Giulio Gatti Gazsazza.

Before the war, funds were sent once a month by the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York.

Now times are harder. Lira devaluation has cut heavily into the trust funds in reserve.

Crop Conditions Generally Good

Toronto, July 17 — Below-normal rainfall has resulted in poorer-than-average crop prospects in a few sections of Ontario, but in general the outlook is good.

The June crop report of the Ontario Agriculture Department says crop conditions are below normal in the southern half of Southwestern Ontario and in Prince Edward County, Muskoka, Parry Sound and Renfrew because rainfall was less than in other counties.

This is the outlook for some specific field crops and fruits:

Tobacco—A good stand of plants throughout Southwestern Ontario's tobacco belt and prospects are bright.

Sugar Beets—The crop in general is looking well.

Potatoes—Sizing of the early crop is good; average yields are reported slightly above normal.

Apples — The crop, although spotty, gives promise of an average or near-average yield. McIntosh is the most promising.

Plums—The crop is a near failure in Eastern Ontario.

Grapes—Show prospects of a substantial increase in yield over last year.

SECOND DUEL VICTIM DIES

Mineola, Tex., July 15 (AP)— The second victim of a gun duel between two peace officers died yesterday. He was Mineola Police Chief Wesley Taylor.

Taylor and Constable Will Whittle Wednesday shot out their differences over the handling of a minor accident. Whittle was killed instantly.

TO BRIDES-ELECT

Brides-elect desiring publication of the accounts of their weddings and affairs held in their honor before the event, are advised to consult the Women's Editor when the engagement is announced, or at least to get a write-up form. Owing to the large number of weddings scheduled for coming weeks, accounts coming in after the date of the wedding will, of necessity, have to be curtailed. —Ed.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, Stirling, Ontario, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Joan, to Allan Carleton, son of Mrs. William Fisher, Tweed, and the late Mr. Fisher, marriage to take place at Stirling on August 1st.

• • •

Mr. Alec Gordon and Mr. Douglas Vandewater have returned from their two weeks' vacation in the Northlands.

• • •

Misses Eleanor and Joyce Blackburn are holidaying at Burk's Falls.

• • •

Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Dales, Tweed and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Harron, 183 John Street, Belleville, are weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Bowdish, Ogdensburg, N.Y.

• • •

At the last meeting of the combined W.M.S., and W.A., of Cannifton, held at the home of Mrs. J. Williams, a presentation was made to Mrs. J. W. Madden, by the two presidents of the societies, of an electric teakettle in appreciation of her many kindnesses.

• • •

Mr. Mike Hanley of Read, who has been a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, for the past four weeks, returned to his home on Sunday, much improved in health.

• • •

A group of young people from the Alliance Tabernacle, Belleville, Rev. Robert Gray, Mr. Robert Brown, Mrs. R. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. R. Perkins, Mr. Gordon Brown, violinist, and Mr. Kenneth Dixon, pianist, visited Mountain View United Church, yesterday afternoon and rendered some fine musical selections, vocal and instrumental.

Fashion Flashes

COOL AND CRISP cotton lace is registering for nice afternoon-into-evening numbers. White cotton lace, set off by a red velvet belt, makes a nice frock, the deep neckline coming up in two points, the very short sleeves set off by turn-back cuffs with flared points.

HERE AND THERE we notice a new and lovely shade, a sort of rosy brown. It is appearing in chiffon dresses for afternoon and evening as well as for some high-style short-skirted evening dresses. It is also seen in accessories, such as chiffon scarfs.

WEDDINGS

CASS—CASSELMAN

A pretty garden wedding was held on Saturday, July 15th., at 4 p.m. at the home of Mr. Eric Casselman, Chesterville, Ontario, brother of the bride, when Charlotte Olive Gertrude, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Casselman, of Kingston, Ontario, became the bride of Frederick McIntosh Cass, of Winchester, Ont., son of Mr. W. J. Cass, K.C., and Mrs. Cass, of Winchester, Ont., with the Rev. W. S. Atchison, of Cornwall, officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Eric Casselman, was becomingly gowned in a smart ankle length white pique gown with matching gloves and shoes. Floral color scheme of white, yellow and blue was carried out in the bride's headdress and nosegay.

Mrs. W. E. Leggett, of Toronto, was matron of honor, wearing an ankle length gown of yellow pique cut on similar lines to that of the bride's. Her floral headdress and nosegay complemented the bride's in yellow, white and blue.

Mr. Ronald W. Cass, brother of the bridegroom, of Belleville, was groomsman.

The reception was held in the garden immediately following the ceremony, during which Mr. G. W. Thom, of Cornwall, sang a group of three songs, "I'll Walk Beside You," "Through the Years", and Greig's "I Love Thee".

For travelling, the bride wore a dark green gown of silk print, with full length dark green linen coat, panama cloche and white accessories. After an extended holiday touring the Great Lakes, Mr. and Mrs. Cass will reside in Chesterville, Ont.

Out-of-town guests included Dr. H. W. McIntosh; Misses Patti I. Cass; Helen K. Jones; Mr. and Mrs. W. Leggett, and Susan; Dennis Morgan, all of Toronto; Miss M. I. Cass; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Cass, of Belleville; Miss Marion Casselman, of Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Thom, of Cornwall, Ont.

POWERS—ELMY

On Saturday, July 15th., at 2:30 p.m., a quiet wedding was solemnized by the Rev. H. H. Hillis, at the parsonage, William Street, Belleville, when Velma Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Elmy, Belleville, became the bride of Harry Alexander Powers, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Powers, Allisonville, Ont.

The bride wore a street length gown of becoming pale blue taffeta with lace insertion, and a corsage of red roses with white and black accessories.

She was attended by Miss Rhea Powers, of Allisonville, sister of the bridegroom, who wore pale pink taffeta with corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Ronald Elmy, of Belleville, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, with the immediate families present, the young couple left for a short wedding trip to Toronto and points west. The bride travelled in a wine ensemble with matching accessories. Upon their return, they will reside on the Kingston Rd.

Princess Margaret Centre of Rumor In Mayfair

London, July 17. (Reuters)—Vivacious Princess Margaret, who reaches her 20th birthday next month, is again the centre of rumor and speculation about the possibility of an early announcement of her engagement.

Rumor in Mayfair, London's Society centre and focus of the theatre and night-club life for which the Princess has shown some taste, is that the engagement announcement will come with her birthday, Aug. 21. But others of the social set are inclined to believe such an announcement most likely will be delayed until Margaret is 21.

With Princess Elizabeth's second baby expected this Autumn, Buckingham Palace was expected to avoid the additional excitement of announcement of the bethrothal of the King's younger daughter.

There is an ancient tradition of Glamis Castle, Scottish Highland home of Queen Elizabeth where Margaret was born, that daughters of the house always choose their husbands before their 20th birthday.

But Margaret, even if she has made her choice, does not necessarily have to announce it.

Latest of the prospective husbands selected for Margaret by her public following is Walter Francis John Montagu-Douglas Scott, Earl of Dalkeith, only son and heir to the eighth Duke of Buccleuch. Age 26, educated at Eton and Oxford, he is lieutenant of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve.

Beautiful Coats Of Handsome Fabrics Displayed

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, July 17. (AP)—This winter American women are going to be sitting around in their coats, because they are too beautiful to be hidden in the check room.

Philip Mangone, the old master tailor, outdoes even his own distinguished record this season with a collection of coats and suits of such handsome fabrics and skillful cut that visiting fashion editors sat on the edge of their chairs at his Fall preview.

Most spectacular of the coats are in bulky imported fabrics, often two-faced, used in dashing great-coats of loose and ample cut that look as if they were designed to be worn in a blizzard. One such is a dramatic coat of almost circular cut, in an important double-woven fabric that is gray fleece on the outside, red-and-gray bold plaid inside. The coat is made with the plaid side out on the collar and on the huge buttonback double cuffs.

Mangone also uses the season's pet doormat fabric for a number of greatcoats, and shows a series of town coats in dark woollens completely lined in nutria or mink. His suits accent the nipped waistline and rounded hip that is typical of the new silhouette.

Winding up the crowded week of fashion previews was the showing of Cecil Chapman, famous for frothy dance dresses for the younger set. This Fall Chapman goes all out for billowing skirts of nylon net topped by strapless bodices of taffeta or satin cut as low as the law allows and further spiced by petal effects about the bosom.

For less formal wear she likes short strapless taffeta sheaths in ash blonde, black or white taffeta, draped to dramatize the figure, with cover-up boleros.

Women's Activities

ROSLIN W.A.

Roslin—The July meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Bates with a fair attendance.

The president, Mrs. H. Sills, presided and the meeting was opened in the usual way. The scripture reading was given by Miss Mary Bates. The roll call was answered with a verse containing the word "Kingdom".

A letter of thanks was read from the Mohawk Institute Residential School for the bale they had received. It was decided to send the other food parcel to a clergyman in England immediately.

Plans were made to hold a dinner and quilting in the hall on July 20th.

The program opened with the hymn "Thy Kingdom Come, O Lord", followed by a reading, "Good Cheer", given by Miss L. Wilson; Miss Margaret Bates favored with an instrumental; Mrs. A. Bates gave a reading, "The Last Dollar."

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The monthly meeting of Shannonville W.A., of the United Church, was held at the home of Mrs. Claude Clarke on Thursday afternoon, with a good attendance of members and visitors. The president, Mrs. Sam Elliott opened the meeting, and extended a welcome to all.

Mrs. Ross Shetler, group leader, had charge of the worship service, and Miss Winnifred Eckardt gave the Scripture reading. Miss Betty Mastin read, "Lesson Thoughts". The theme for the month was, "Ye Shall Receive Power". Mrs. Shetler gave a helpful and interesting reading entitled, "The Kingliness of Kindness", which closed the devotional part of the meeting.

The secretary read a letter of thanks from Mrs. George Fraser for remembrance when she was in the hospital. Mrs. Fraser has moved to Trenton, and will be greatly missed in the W.A. as she was the pianist and always willing to help in any way she could. A letter from Mrs. A. Goodfellow expressed regret for her absence due to the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. B. Kimmett.

Mrs. Claude Clarke read a letter of thanks from the Salvation Army for help in their work.

It was decided to make Mrs. Shetler a member of the film library as she has been kind enough to provide entertainment by showing pictures rented from the film library. Sixty-five dollars was voted to be paid on the minister's salary and $10 to the Riverside Cemetery Board. It was also decided to have the church floor painted. The August meeting was cancelled.

Mrs. C. Clarke reported for the sewing committee that Mrs. C. Howard had made four aprons last month, and that a number are on hand ready for sale.

The guest speaker, Mrs. M. B. Weese of Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, took as her subject, "The 25th Anniversary of Church Union". In an inspiring address, Mrs. Weese appealed to each one to use her influence to help keep the Christian Sabbath day, and to contribute in every way possible to assist in making the next 25 years of church union a success in every phase of Christian endeavor.

Mrs. Shetler, on behalf of the ladies, moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Weese. The president also expressed her appreciation, and thanked Mrs. Clarke for opening her home for the meeting.

After the meeting closed, the hostess and her assistants served refreshments and all enjoyed a social time.

The next meeting will be held at the church hall on September fourteenth.

Senior Unmarried Officers Scarce, Set Sights Lower, Girls

Ottawa, July 17. (CP)—Gals, it's no use baiting your hook for an air marshal, air vice-marshal—or even an air commodore.

They're all married.

In fact, from a matrimonial point of view, the fishing is exceptionally poor in the air force. And there are absolutely no big trout—senior officers to you—to be had.

Today, in a tongue-in-cheek statement giving a statistical breakdown of the marital status of its personnel, the RCAF didn't even present a hope of catching group captains, wing commanders or squadron leaders.

Ninety-five per cent of them already are married.

Even flight-lieutenants are scarce. Barely 10 per cent of them so far have slipped the hook.

A bit of fresh bait, said the RCAF, might catch a pilot officer or a flight-cadet—only 13 per cent of these have been caught so far. You might even get an occasional nibble from a flying officer or leading aircraftsman. Some 35 per cent of these are still on the loose.

And it should be easy as catching minnows to bring in an aircraftsman because only three per cent of these are family men. But eight-five per cent of the corporals are family men and it's no use looking for sergeants, flight sergeants or warrant officers. They're 93.4 per cent grabbed already.

CHANGE OF SCENERY

Halifax — (CP) — Two of the world's leading travel oragnizations — The American Express Company and Thomas Cook and Son — have inaugurated Nova Scotia tours this season. Travelling by bus, the tourists spend a week in the Annapolis Valley and the province's south shore district including Lunenburg, returning to the United States by ferry via Yarmouth.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

"Give us this day our daily cocoanut," can be repeated by over 300 million people. Although Americans know cocoanut mainly in candy bars and cakes, a large part of the world's population eats cocoanut as a daily food in some form or other.

Cocoanut might become a daily habit if you could eat it freshly grated. But the agony of splitting a cocoanut shell with a hatchet and then painfully grating each hard morsel of meat is more than most cocoanut lovers will endure.

When using canned cocoanut, try to serve it as soon as possible after removing it from the can. When freshly opened, it is moist. When exposed to the air too long, it becomes hard and stale tasting.

Cocoanut lemon tarts are made of pie dough, filled with lemon pie filling, cocoanut and cream. The same filling may be used for a single crust pie shell. When used in a pie, the filling should be chilled for three or four hours in order to cut neat slices. When the filling is poured into tart shells, it may be served at once.

Cocoanut Lemon Tarts, Serves

Prepare enough pie dough for a regular 2-crust pie. Use any standard recipe calling for 2 cups of flour, or use your favorite pie mix.

Roll out dough to 1-8 inch thickness. Cut dough into rounds to fit over backs of large muffin tins or fit pieces of dough into 3 1-2 inch fluted tart shells.

Pierce dough with fork in several places.

Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, 15-20 minutes or, until brown. Dough baked over backs of muffin tins will take less time than dough baked in fluted tart shells.

Prepare 1 package of lemon pie filling following manufacturer's directions. Cool filling. Beat 1-2 cup heavy cream until thick. Sweeten cream with 2 tablespoons powdered sugar and 1-2 teaspoon vanilla extract. Fold whipped cream into lemon filling. Fold 1 cup of shredded cocoanut into filling.

Pour filling into tart shells. Sprinkle additional grated cocoanut over filling in shells or top with whipped cream, if desired.

MARMORA

Marmora—Miss Jean Simpson, of Bannockburn, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Empey.

On Wednesday evening at Joseph Clairmont's cottage, Crowe Lake, a stag party was given in honor of Joseph Murray, whose marriage to Miss Reta Deacon takes place next week. The bridegroom-elect received a purse of money from his friends and a social evening was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Drew and family are holidaying at Mrs. H. A. Burwash's cottage at Crowe Lake.

Messrs. W. Pearse and C. Lanniger and party of Cleveland, Ohio, arrived on Friday to spend a vacation at Thompson Lake Lodge.

Mr. A. M. Jones has purchased the residence of Mrs. S. McWilliams of Forsthe Street.

Robert Gawley has purchased the residence on Main Street occupied by Wilbert Moffatt from the brothers Clarence and Ralph Campion.

Rev. J. E. Stiles and party, of Oakdale, Calif., are holding services at the Pentecostal Church from Thursday until Sunday.

ROSLIN

Roslin — Around nine o'clock Wednesday evening smoke was noticed by neighbors coming from a barn owned by Mr. Walter Bradshaw who resides about a mile east of the Shannonville road on the eighth concesion of Tyendinaga.

The barn which was built of logs was completely destroyed. Some machinery stored in the barn was saved. Some trees in the swamp near by caught fire and had to be put out.

Around noon on Thursday fire again broke out in the swamp and a stump fence. The Belleville Fire Department answered the call for help, and with the police directed the fire fighters and the fire was soon under control. Later in the afternoon a thunder shower brought further relief.

Anti-Mosquito Drive Follows In Wake of Flood

Winnipeg, July 15. (CP)—Greater Winnipeg and the Red River Valley, hit by floods this spring, are receiving another soaking but this time it's beneficial.

In a battle against mosquitoes, the Provincial Health Department has almost completed DDT spraying or "fogging" of the flood area.

In Winnipeg and its suburbs, all back lanes have received a fogging from a jeep and two trucks equipped with special spraying apparatus.

In the Red River Valley, such flood-battered towns as Letellier, Morris and Ste. Jean were sprayed from the air.

Head of the department's anti-mosquito committee is Dr. Hugh Malcolmson, director of its sanitation section. The other members are H. E. Wood of the Department of Agriculture and E. J. Stansfield of the greater Winnipeg anti-mosquito campaign committee.

Normally the drive starts much earlier. Workers and equipment spent ten days fighting the flood and mosquito control was set aside.

Fortunately, cold weather delayed development of mosquito larvae.

But one flight of mosquitoes got loose over Winnipeg district. Within two weeks the area had been sprayed at least once and many sections twice.

Approximately 1,200 miles of lanes and streets have been treated in greater Winnipeg. Dr. Malcolmson reported about 2,000 gallons of spray used at a cost of $5,000.

Twelve miles of the Red River's banks, six miles along the Assiniboine and 400 feet along the Seine were fogged from the air.

Two R.C.A.F. Dakotas from Churchill, Man., covered 20 square miles where flooding was worst—St. Norbert and Fort Garry, south of Winnipeg; Charleswood in the west; and east and west Kildonan in the north.

All that remains now is spot-fogging where many mosquitoes are reported.

Manpower Crisis Faces Britain's New Coal Mines

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July (CP) — Britain's coal mining industry which 20 years ago tottered on the brink of collapse, with thousands of miners unemployed and on the dole, is confronted with a new problem. This time it is a manpower shortage, particularly in the newly-developed areas, with a possible threat to long-range domestic and export production targets.

Since nationalization in 1947, the industry has recovered sharply from the depression depths of the '30's. Technical improvements at the collieries and introduction of high-powered, modern mechanical equipment in the pits combined to boost per manshift output in 1949. But production has not risen at the rate expected and is still only a fraction above the output of 1936.

Latest statistics show the country's stockpile at slightly about 10,500,000 tons, or about 5,000,000 tons below the estimated safety margin. Meanwhile, production figures have reflected a recurring decline within recent weeks.

The lure of other industries, where working conditions are more congenial and the pay higher, is held mainly responsible for the manpower drift. By the end of June this year the total number of working miners had declined to 699,000. This compares with a weekly average of 736,900 in March last year, the peak strength attained following the fuel crisis of 1947.

The most serious drain has occurred in the Scottish mining areas where an average monthly loss of 1,000 men has been reported since the beginning of the year.

But the story is much the same in South Wales, the West Midlands, Manchester and Yorkshire.

Young Men Quit

What is causing the gravest concern, however, to officials of the National Coal Board — the controlling authority — is the persistent defection of young men between the ages of 18 and 26, the men most needed to further the long-range program of re-organization.

In 1931 the younger age group represented about 31 per cent of the total force laboring in the country's mines. Today they have dwindled to around 18.6 per cent.

Furthermore, many of the older, more experience workers have joined the migration to other industries.

As one miner put it: "With me it's been years of grovelling in dust-laden pits, groping through the dark and stifling heat. I feel I've done enough down there. I want a rest. Anyway, the missus earns as much as me in the mill and she starts clean and comes home clean."

The wages question has been a major handicap. At present the national minimum rate is £5 ($15.50) a week for surface workers and £5 15s for those employed underground. But an increase of 15 shillings a week is being sought for the lower paid categories.

At a recent miner's rally, P. J. Noel-Baker, minister of Fuel and Power, said "if we could get another 10 per cent output per manshift, it would give us 10,000,000 more tons of coal this year. The men who won it would render an immense service to themselves, to the nation, to Europe and the world."

Tass Says Albania Charges Yugoslavs Violated Border

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 15 — (AP) — Albania has sent Yugoslav a note charging her with border violations "aimed at starting a war," the Russian news agency Tass said in a dispatch published here today.

The dispatch, from the Albanian capital of Tirana, said the Albanian legation handed the note to the Yugoslav foreign ministry in Belgrade yesterday.

The communication was quoted as saying that in June 'the Yugoslave were guilty of seven provocations on land and two in the air against the Albanian People's Republic."

This was the latest move in a series of exchanges between communist Yugoslavia and her neighbors linked in the Cominform, which ousted the Yugoslav communist party in mid-1948.

Wednesday the Yugoslav party's organ, Borba, alleged Bulgaria was moving troops toward the common frontier and that Hungary was shifting her Yugoslav minority from the border in a "state of emergency" measure.

UNITED NATIONS FLAGS GO TO KOREA

Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A.

The July meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A., Mission Band and Baby Band was held on Thursday afternoon in the church, with a good attendance.

The program, prepared by Mrs. Bert Reide was presided over by Mrs. Hugh McMullen.

Rev. M. G. Clarke, Mrs. H. Clarke and Miss Gladys Clarke were in charge of the worship period. Mrs. Warren Harlow W.A. treasurer gave report of the ice cream social. Mrs. Maurice Clancy W.M.S. treasurer reported $50.10 sent to branch treasurer.

The children sang the hymn "Birds are Singing."

Mrs. Harlow read a story "The Greater Gift."

Mrs. Clancy read a poem "Do You Wish." Mrs. Bert Reide gave a splendid paper on "A Visit to Korea", and Marlene Madill and Joanne Reide each gave a reading about Korean children.

A lively sing-song followed with Mr. Clarke leading in singing and playing the accompaniment on his guitar and all the children singing several choruses.

It was decided to have the secretary send for the new Study Book.

Several offered to bring cake or sandwiches as refreshments for the August meeting.

Collection $3.51 for Baby Band. Refreshments were enjoyed following the close of the meeting.

Scots Clans Rally For 1951 Festival

Edinburgh, Scotland, July 17—((Reuters) — Scotland is planning the greatest gathering of the clans since Bonnie Prince Charlie rallied them in 1745 as her contribution to the 1951 Festival of Britain.

Clansmen representing 20,000,000 Scots throughout the world will march to the skirl of massed pipe bands along the capital's famous Princess Street and be greeted by their chiefs, it has been announced.

The gathering will last from August 16 to 19, and the reunited Scots will join in a grand ceilidh (Gaelic gathering) a Highland ball, and other festivities.

Famous pipe bands from overseas will join the leading Scottish pipers.

Invitations to join the celebration will be issued soon, chiefly through the 4,000 Scottish societies established in many lands.

Details of Scotland's part in the festival were announced by Thomas Johnston, former secretary of state for Scotland and chairman of the Scottish festival committee.

CATTLE FOR BERMUDA

Halifax — (CP) — There is a growing demand for Nova Scotia cattle in the West Indies, Angus Rose, manager of a cattle farm near here said recently, because "Nova Scotia Guernseys have been able to withstand the heat of the island better than other breeds and are increasing the quality of milk produced there."

TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — Rocky Newfoundland will need the time extension granted by the federal government for completion of her portion of the Trans-Canada Highway. Construction of the highway will involve the building of 39 large bridges, the longest being across the Exploits River, 500 feet.

Broadway Baron Didn't Get Far With P.M. Attlee

London, July 17 —(Reuters)— The self-styled "Baron of Broadway," who wants to buy Northern Ireland for $19,600,000 and hand it over to the Republic of Ireland, had the door of Prime Minister Attlee's house shut in his face.

He called recently at 10 Downing Street — Attlee's official residence — "to protest against the partition of Ireland" and talk business.

Still smarting under the rebuff he received in Belfast two weeks ago when police seized two Irish Republican pennants from his car Irish-born John J. Hanley of New York drove up to the Prime Minister's house with the pennants fluttering on the car's radio aerial. The 56-year-old "baron," who claims to be a multimillionaire, heaved himself out of his car and mounted the steps.

That was as far as he got. His request for a talk with Attlee was politely but firmly refused by a servant.

Hanley drove away with the promise that he would be back.

"I'll certainly write for an appointment," he said in a brogue as thick as peat smoke.

Hanley began his one-man campaign to unite Ireland a month ago.

"I've offered Sir Basil Brooke (Northern Ireland premier) £1,000,000 for each county (of six) and I stick to that offer."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

What does the umpire say to the irate player, coach or manager? Usually it isn't much, just a sentence or two accompanied with the well-known jerk of the thumb symbolizing the end of the game as far as the loquacious one is concerned.

However here's a delightful little story which comes from a small book of those cheerful diamond reminiscences of the good old days. It has to do with Johnny Evers whose name ranks with the immortals of the baseball diamoond, who was called in some parts the "Crab" because of his tendency toward umpire baiting.

In an interview Evers said after he had acquired his reputation as a "Crab" he imposed on the customers just to make them howl. Pointing out to the player who was just now stamping and jerking his arms at the umpire at second, Johnny said it was no sure thing that he was protesting at all, although the patrons were booing him on the assumption that he was.

Sometimes, Mr. Evers said, he would go into the bag in a slide, knowing he was out from here to yonder, and pop up like a terrier and stick his chin out in Hank O'Day's face and with sharp, jerky motions of his head yell: "Henry, you're dead right, I was out a mile."

Mr. O'Day would turn his back in that majestic way of umpires, walk a few steps with Johnny pursuing him, and then whirl on him with a measuring gesture of his arms and say, "Yes, John, he had you by that much."

Evers would stomp the ground and, with wider gestures of his arms, yell in Henry's face: "Oh, more than that, Hank. At least twice that. I didn't have a chance."

By this time the crowd would be all over Johnny for his very poor sportsmanship in crabbing over a decision which even to the naked eye of the customers and from a distance, was obviously fair.

Johnny would start away, dusting himself off, and then whirl and walk back to Henry.

"Hank," he would say, "how's the folks? Everybody well, I hope."

"Fine, fine, couldn't be better," Henry would say, towering over John and shaking his head. "Everybody okay with you?"

"No complaints, no complaints, thank the good Lord," Johnny would say.

John would start away again, stop, pick up a little dirt from the base line, wheel and flinging the dirt to the ground, again would stick his chin into Hank's face and say, "Mighty glad your folks are well, Hank. Mighty glad to hear it."

Running out of small talk, Mr. Evers presently would drag himself back to the bench, turning once or twice on the way to yell back at Henry little remarks about the folks and the correctness of his decision on him just now.

Johnny said it was very funny the way a crowd could be monkeyed with and touched off into rages without cause. The customers, especially in New York, would want him thrown out of the game for chabbing, but Henry, or whoever the umpire was, couldn't very well heave a man for agreeing on a decision and inquiring after the family in the friendliest way. The umpire might turn his back and try to shrug him off but a player must be allowed a little latitude on the field and the mere turning of the back wouldn't stop Mr. Evers' courteous praises and inquiries. The alternative was to enter into the spirit of the thing and jaw back at him in the same cordial vein as thousands jeered. McGraw was in on the play but we don't believe he ever joined in because in a ball game he was always strictly a fighter and fraternizing with the enemy was outside his code.

Western Kids Tied for Junior Golfing Title

Saskatoon, July 17—(CP)—A couple of tow-headed western youngsters today carried into an 18-hole play-off their tight battle for the Canadian golf championship.

It was still a toss-up between Roland Laurie of Vancouver Marine Drive and husky Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Alta., who yesterday finished deadlocked at 152 for the 36-hole route.

Laurie at 17 is ranked one of the best junior prospects in Canada. Doug, 18, surprised the field of eight contestants but not himself.

They talked it over afterwards and decided each should have done better. Silverberg blamed his putting — he three-putted eight greens — but credited Roland with some fine recovery shots.

Even so, it was a missed putt on the last hole that cost Laurie a clean title. There was nothing trick about the 3½-footer; he just failed to click.

It was another last-hole jinx for the Vancouver boy. Last year at Saint John, N.B., he weakened on the last few holes of the Junior Semi-final but still had a chance on the 36th. He did everything wrong and wound up three strokes away from the 158 winning score made by Bob Hall of Montreal.

Hall, over age now, played yesterday with the Quebec team in the Willingdon cup interprovincial four-man competition, won for the second successive year by Ontario. British Columbia was second and Quebec third.

'Lively' Ball Favors Batters But Pitchers Take Terrific Lacing in Weekend Games

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Here is the dope about the lively ball from the Sunday box scores. The appalling one-day total—37 home runs, 377 base hits, 188 runs and 68 beat-up pitchers in 15 games.

In Pittsburgh a little guy named Ted Beard who hit .277 for Indianapolis last year, hit one over the right-field stands. No one did that since Babe Ruth in 1935. And this Beard is no Ruth.

Walt Dropo of Boston Red Sox lashed three homers and two doubles in a doubleheader. Duke Snider of Brooklyn went five for five against St. Louis Cardinals—one a homer.

New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds slashed away at one another for a total of 58 hits including 12 homers. There were seven homers in the first game, five in the second.

53 Hits in Fenway

A total of 53 hits splattered off the walls of Fenway Park Where Cleveland and Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader. In Washington, Bucky Harris sent six pitchers single file after the Brownies.

By some peculiar combination of events there was one shutout. But Walt Dubiel of the Cubs kept in tune with the times by making it a perilous nine-hitter.

Dubiel's shutout was a bitter blow at Philadelphia Phillies who dropped two to the Cubs and fell into second place.

Dubiel did his stuff in the 8-0 first game when the Cubs chased Russ Meyer with six runs in the seventh inning. In the second game, the Cubs ended rookie Bob Miller's eight-game win streak with a 10-3 wallop.

Brooklyn pounded four Cardinal pitchers for 19 hits, winning 10-2 as rookie Chris Van Cuyk coasted home in his major league debut. Despite the loss, the Cards held first place by a half-game.

Ted Wilks making his first appearance of the season after an arm operation, was hit solidly in the ninth. But Red Munger was the loser.

Miss Chance

Boston missed a chance to close in on the leaders by losing the second game to Pittsburgh 6-5 after taking the opener 9-5 for Vern Bickford's 10th win. A flurry of four homers brought reliefer Hank Borowy his first victory of the season in the second game.

Hank Thompson's error on Bobby Usher's grounder with the bases loaded in the 12th gave Cincinnati an 11-10 win over the Giants and a clean sweep of the home-run battles. The Reds took the opener, 16-4, with Ted Kluszewski hitting two homers and Johnny Pramesa, Grady Hatton and Lloyd Merriman one each.

Everybody split in the American League, leaving Detroit with its four-game lead over New York Yankees.

Homers by George Kell, Hoot Evers and Jerry Priddy enabled the Tigers to take a second game from Philadelphia 7-6 after the A's whipped Art Houtteman 5-2 in the first.

Just when the Yanks were ready to move in on the Tigers, Bob Cain stopped them. Cain beat the Yanks for the third time 5-2 in the second game. Gene Woodling's two-run double won the first 2-1 for Vic Raschi over Billy Pierce.

Dropo hit two homers in Boston's 13-10 opening victory over Cleveland and added another, No. 22, jin the second game which the Sox lost 8-4. The day's slugging sent Dropo into a tie with teammate Vern Stephens for the league RBI lead. Each has 90.

Sid Hudson limited St. Louis to seven hits for a 5-1 Washington victory in the first game but six Senators couldn't stop the Brownies who earned an even break with a 10-8 verdict.

Brockville Loses To Kingston 5-3, Falls Edge Picton

Brockville, Ont., July 17 — (CP) — Brockville Memos outhit Kingston Leafs 11-10 Saturday but dropped a 5-3 decision to the Leafs in a Central Ontario Baseball League game. Levdenoski swung the big bat for Kingston with three hits—one of them a home run. Turner got a single and a home run for Brockville.

Big Jim Bagby Hurls Galt To 5-0 Victory

By The Canadian Press

When Big Jim Bagby is hot, he's very, very hot.

The ex-major-leaguer was hot as a firecracker Saturday when he pitched his Galt Terriers to a 5-0 intercounty senior victory over Kitchener Legionnaires.

Not content with twirling a neat three-hit shutout, he stroked two singles, batting in a run in his only two official trips to the plate. He was backed up by some sensational fielding.

During the last 4 2-3 innings, Bagby was matched pitch-for-pitch by Yank Lipka, who relieved Nick Martinovich for Kitchener in the fourth. Lipka allowed nary a safety as he goose-egged Terriers in a brilliant relief stunt.

Stiff Duel

A terrific pitching duel between two of the league's top lefties—Oscar Judd of Guelph and Bob Whitcher of Brantford — ended with Whitcher on top by a 4-3 count. Whitcher pitched six-hit ball to Judd's nine-hitter.

Dick Osmer, Guelph leftfielder, shone at the plate with a double and triple in four trips. Stan Lipka and Hodara hit triples for the winners.

The league-leading Waterloo Tigers stretched their lead to three games by nosing Stratford Nats 8-5 in a see-saw struggle at Waterloo. The second-place Nats came back twice to tie the score before Tigers exploded for three runs in the last of the eighth for their edge.

Mike Kvasnak and Al Dumouchelle held Nats to seven hits between them, with Dumouchelle, who relieved in the eighth, getting credit for the win.

In London, the Majors finally won a Saturday night game at home. They trounced St. Thomas Legion 6-2 behind Ted Alexander's six-hit pitching. Alexander aided his own cause with two hits in four trips

Joe Bechard homered for the winners in the second inning, and Majors added two runs in the fourth and three more in the sixth to salt down the decision.

Doug Plunkett struck out 11 men in his three-hit, 4-3 victory over Toronto Staffords in a viaduct game in Peterborough. The youthful Pete hurler had to be good to edge Pete Wright of Staffords, who allowed the winners only seven hits.

Welland Stones scored a 2-1 win over North Tonawands Dodgers in a Niagara District Senor Baseball League game in Welland Saturday. Pitcher Roland Larouche and catcher Bill Sherk each hit bases-empty homers for Welland.

North Tonawanda came back Sunday to win a 7-2 victory over St. Catharines Stags. Jerry Ramocki, 16-year-old southpaw, hurled the first six innings to receive credit for the win although his uncle, Mac Kisiel, fired the last three.

In another viaduct league game battled to a 5-4, 10-inning win over Toronto Aces. Hill drove in the winning run with the bases loaded in the 10th on a deep fly to centre.

Aussies Blank Canada 4-0 In Cup Tie

By VIC MORRIS, JR.

Montreal, July 17 (CP)—Australia's classy tennis team left here today for Mexico city after blanking Canada 5-0 in the North American zone Davis Cup tie.

The Australians breezed by the Canadians without losing a set in four singles and one doubles match. The Australian-Mexico winner will meet the European zone champion for the right to face the cup holder, the United States.

Sunday, the Aussies swept through two meaningless singles matches following flawless performance Friday and Saturday. On Friday they took the opening singles tilts and on Saturday they wrapped up the cup tie with a doubles triumph.

In the opening games, Australia's No. 1 player, Frank Sedgman, 22, walloped Montreal's Brendan Macken in straight sets while his lanky team-mate, Ken McGregor, 21, duplicated his feat in disposing of Lorne Main, 20, of Vancouver.

There was no let up in the doubles as veteran Jack Bromwich and Sedgman whisked through Montrealers George Robinson and Henri Rochon 6-2, 6-4, 6-5.

An estimated 3,000 Sunday saw the best display of the three-day affair when McGregor out-distanced Macken 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, in a bitterly-fought singles match. The tousled-haired Australian slapped seven service aces and 36 placements past the Canadian.

Main was no match for the fleet-footed Sedgman, who coasted to a [illegible], 6-1, 6-3, triumph.

The Australians made few mistakes and recovered easily with brilliant placements and bullet services.

Belleville Wins Over Ottawa By 3-2 Score

Belleville won their first Eastern Ontario Soccer points when they defeated Ottawa Armed Services at the Fairgrounds on Saturday by three goals to two. Belleville won the toss and elected to kick with the sun in their favor. Both teams were under full strength due to holidays etc., but the game was a good one with the local boys having a slight edge on the play. Curry opened the scoring for the visitors after about fifteen minutes of play with a lovely drive taken from outside the penalty area. After a further Gemmell equalised for Belleville and the score at half time remained at 1-1.

After the changeover both sides went out to take the lead with the decision going to Belleville when Gemmell got his second goal of the match from a brilliant solo run. Ottawa had an opportunity to equalise ten minutes later when they were awarded a penalty kick for an infringement by one of the Belleville players, but Kinsella hit the goalpost with the spot kick. With about twenty minutes of play remaining, Giles of Ottawa unfortunately put the ball through his own goal when attempting to clear a shot from Cathcart. Two minutes from the time Currie reduced the lead when he scored his second goal of the match for Ottawa after Blaker in the Belleville goal had missed a return from Lane.

Teams: Belleville United — Blaker, Lane, Dale, Williamson, Findley, Carter, Scott, Gemmell, Cathcart, Cox, Alexander. Subs—Moody, Barclay.

Ottawa Armed Services — Birrell, Diamond, Kelly, Giles, Kinsella, Wilde, Bailey, Lockwood, Currie, Gallinger. Laing.

Referee—Les Digby. Linesmen —Tom Sneddon, Bill Harvey.

Royals Tumble Leafs for Two, And Third Place

(By The Associated Press)

"The spoiler."

That's what International League pitchers are calling Cy Block, veteran infielder with Buffalo Bisons.

Block ruined a no-hit no-run bid by Syracuse's Jim Prendergast April 23, when he pinch-singled with two out in the seventh and final inning after an error permitted him to bat.

Yesterday Block spoiled a no-hit bid by Rochester's George Copeland with another two-out pinch-hit single in the seventh and final inning of the second game of a twin bill which the Red Wings won 5-1. Block batted for losing pitcher Jake Wade.

Wings Win Two

The pace-setting Wings also won the opener 6-5 winning out in the 10th inning on Russ Derry's two-out double and Don Richmond's single.

Baltimore's second-place Orioles tumbled two games back of the Wings by dividing a double-header with Syracuse Chiefs. The Orioles snared the nightcap 10-7 after losing the opener 6-5.

Syracuse jumped on Bob Raney for five runs in the first inning of the lid-lifter and were never headed. The Chiefs piled up a 7-1 lead entering the sixth inning of the nightcap when the Orioles exploded for nine runs. Anse Moore sparked the game-winning rally with a grand-slam homer.

Montreal Royals took both ends of a doubleheader from Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 and 1-0 and supplanted Jersey City Giants in third place. The Giants divided with the Springfield Cubs, winning the first game 14-5 but losing the second, 10-2.

Jack Brittin had the Royals blanked on one hit going into the ninth of the opener when he was cuffed for three singles and two runs. Jocko Thompson came on and yielded a game-winning single to Jack Lindsay.

Carl Erskine blanked the Leafs on three singles in the finale in winning a mound duel from Ken Trinkle. Damon Phillips drove home Don Thomson with the lone run in the sixth inning.

Nap Reyes belted two homers and Joe Bracchitta and Chet Laabs one each to spark the Giants to victory in the opener with the Cubs.

The Cubs turned the tables in the nightcap as Sepkowski hammered out two homers and Bob Talbot, Ed Ehlers and Randy Jackson one each to allow Lefty Al Porto to coast home.

May Operate On Williams' Ailing Elbow

(By the Canadian Press)

Ted Williams says he has been informed another operation may be necessary on his elbow and that the odds are against him playing again this season.

Williams is in hospital where he underwent surgery Thursday. His left elbow was fractured in the All-Star game in Chicago.

The slugging outfielder said Sunday in an interview that Dr. Joseph Shortell, orthopedic surgeon, told him he would be as good as ever after a sufficient rest.

Manager Leo Durocher of New York Giants has been fined $100 and second baseman Eddie Stanky assessed $50 by National League president Ford C. Frick for their argument with umpire Dusty Boggess in Pittsburgh Saturday.

Durocher, however, appealed his case and has been granted a hearing, the date of which has not yet been set.

Uruguay Sunday won the world soccer championship by defeating the favorite Brazilians 2-1 in the last match of the final pool before a Rio de Janeiro crowd of nearly 200,000.

Denmark completed its conquest of Italy Sunday in the European zone Davis Cup semi-final tie and gained the right to meet Sweden for the continental title.

The Danes captured both singles matches for a surprising 4-to-1 edge over Italy, the 1949 European champion.

The Danes captured both singles matches for a surprising 4-to-1 edge over Italy, the 1949 European champion.

Sweden finished its sweep of Poland Saturday and the two Scandinavian forces will meet later this month with the winner going to the United States for a tussle with the North American zone winner.

Sir Strome Saturday won the 97th running in Montreal of the Quebec's King Plate for a purse of $4,000 plus the customary gift of 50 guineas from the King. Nephisto, the favorite, was second and Maplewood third.

Bernard Johnson, whose baritone voice is known to CBC listeners, was hitting the high ones Saturday as he captured the Western Ontario Golf Association Championship at the Thames Valley club with a 73.

Playing out of Hamilton Glendale, Johnson succeeded Tony Matlock of Kitchener Rockway, who didn't defend his crown. Johnson had a clear four-stroke margin over Moe Norman of Kitchener, the runner up.

Toronto Mahers won the Ontario final of Dominion Soccer competition in Windsor Saturday night, defeating Windsor Sterlings 3-0 in a sudden-death game. The victory ran to Toronto team's winning streak to 15 consecutive games.

Tommy Turner Kilmore, N.Y., in Rebel, won the 135-inch open while Jack Langmuir of Brockville was the winner in the 135-inch Canadian race. Frank Ramsay of Rideau Ferry, Ont., was the winner in the Canadian-I design class.

Harold Archer of Port Perry, Ont., won the service runabout class and Sherman Crickfield of St. Petersburg, Fla., came home first in the racing runabout division.

Bill Kerr Wins Millar Trophy For Fourth Time

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—For the fourth time in seven years, Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield has the Millar Trophy, the Eastern Professional match play golf championship and the $500 prize money that goes with it.

He won them at the Islington Club Saturday by staving off two last-minute rallies by his opponents. He set back veteran Lou Cummings of Toronto Golf Club 3 and 2 in the semi-finals then defated Bob Burns, pro. at the Cherry Hill Club near Ridgeway, Ont., 2 and 1 in the afternoon.

Ontario Team Wins Willingdon Golf Trophy

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon, July 17 — (CP) — Ontario today can thank Dick Weslock and Jerry Kesselring for a fast return shipment of the Willingdon Cup, coveted trophy that represents provincial golf team championship of Canada.

For the annual 36-hole medal play competition, the four-man Ontario team yesterday came through with an aggregate score of 581 — only three strokes off the record.

The score was five strokes better than British Columbia's 586 and retained for Ontario the cup won last year at Saint John, N.B. with a 601 score.

Quebec pulled into third place yesterday with 608.

Weslock, the powerful swinger from the Essex Club of Windsor, was the only golfer in the field of 32 to beat par over the distance.

He was one under with a 69 on the morning round, and an even par 70 in the afternoon for a total of 139. A heavy shower in the second round failed to upset him.

Kesselring, the lanky youngster from Kitchener, Ont., posted the low 18-hole score of the day with a 68 in the morning. He slipped in the afternoon to a 75, but his 143 was second to Weslock.

Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver, playing with a bandaged left thumb, led the British Columbia team with 71-73 for 144.

Quebec's low man was Don Doe of Granby, who shot 75-72 for 147.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When it is your opening lead you may get any one of the 635,013,599,600 different hands. You must make the correct lead from any one of them. It must promise partner what you have and what you lack.

Even if you are already an expert, do you expect to accomplish this without rule? Or with spot judgment that spontaneously comes out of your brilliant brain? Silly boy. Can't be did.

Suppose you did pick out a clever lead. Would your partner know what it meant? Unless you and he had some advance agreement on the subject, he would be floundering around to discover its meaning.

What a pair needs is a mutual understanding of what each lead means. How can they get such a mutual fitting of ideas? By learning a rule that is familiar to each and common to both.

The basic lead rule is: The order of choice follows tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contact, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

South and north have bid spades and diamonds before ending at a contract of four spades. It is your opening lead from the west hand shown here:

♠Q 6 3
♥Q 9 5 3
♦9 5 2
♣K 8 4

Review the suits that opponents have bid and do not lead them. These were spades and diamonds. Review the other suits which contain either a king or an ace and do not lead them. Such as your clubs.

Having thus determined what suits not to lead by this process of elimination, what is left? Only the heart suit without a rule objection. Consequently, your correct opening lead is a heart.

Players who lead wrong select their lead because it looks good to them. They give no consideration to whether it gives partner any information. They expect partner to guess what they have.

Your results are very tragic when you hope to win by magic.

Hitherto he has been Canadian High Commssioner to the Republic of Ireland.

Track Officials Deplore Turnout At Tournament

By JACK SULLIVAN

Hamilton, Ont., July 17 —(CP)—The amateur Athletic Union intends to do something— fast— about the sad state of affairs in the Canadian Senior track and field division.

That was the word after the Canadian seniors ended their two-day championships Saturday, but the A.A.U. may be a trifle late to do much this year. There is only one national tournament remaining on the 1950 calendar—the women's senior at Toronto, July 29.

The Friday-Saturday meet produced six records—two by an American, but the entry list of fewer than 150, one from western Canada and the remainder from Ontario, Quebec and the eastern United States—has officials worried. Probably half the entries were in the junior brackets.

"Steps will be taken to rectify the situation," Tom Lord of Montreal, the A.A.U.'s national track and field committee chairman, said in a post-meeting interview. "We must get full representation from all provinces—not just two or three—in our national championships."

Small Representation

Some officials thought athletes from widely-scattered parts of the country may be given help in the form of travelling expenses. It would be a tough proposition for the nearly-broke A.A.U.

Four of the six records went to seniors. Vic Frank of Philadelphia looked after the new marks in the discus and shot. Selwyn Jones of the Hamilton Olympic Club posted a record in the mile and Bob MacFarlane of London came through as expected in the half-mile to clip his own record of 54.6 seconds by 1.4 seconds. Juniors looked after the others. Rich Ferguson, 19-year-old whizz kid from Toronto Red Devils shattered the mark in the three miles and 17-year-old Dave Joyce of Hamilton Olympic Club knocked 1-10th second off his own record in the 100-yard sprint for boys under 18.

100 yard.s Ted Haggis, London, 10.1 (9 6); 220 yards, Ted Haggis, London, 22.2 (21.4); High jump, Art Jackes, Montreal, 6' 1 5-8" (6' 4 1-2"); 120-yard high hurdles, Gordon Crosby, Toronto, 15.4 (14.4); Pole vault, Eric Bretta, Toronto East York Track Club, and Ron Miller, Toronto Red Devils, 12' 6" (13' 3 5-8"); Mile relay, London University Track Club, 3:24.6 (3:17.1) 440-yard relay, London University Track Club, 43.4 (42.2); Javelin, Leo Roininen, Sudbury, Ont., 182' 7 1-4" (214' 2"); Broad jump, Bob Pierce, London University Track Club, 21' 1-2" (24' 11"); Hop, step and jump, W. Robinson, Niagara Falls, Ont., 44' 11" (48' 5").

BRAMPTON DEFEATS WESTON 30-9

Brampton, July 17. (CP)—Brampton Excelsiors snapped out of a three-game losing streak Saturday to run up a 30-9 win over Weston Lions in the highest scoring Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior game of the season. Brampton picked up 59 scoring poinfs.

Al Garbutt fired six goals for Brampton and Harv Madgett got four. Whitey Severson, Harry Graham, Archie Browning and Gordie Steele got three each. Ted Downer got three and son Rowntree got two for Weston.

Betty Grable Hands out Advice To Show Business Hopefuls

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 17 — (AP)— When Betty Grable dishes out advice to show business hopefuls, it pays to listen.

In the first place, the beauteous blonde rarely waxes reflective about her career. Secondly, her advice should be worthy, since she is the most successful female star in Hollywood today. Still the leading woman in the box-office poll, she has been in the top 10 for eight years and was the only glamor-type star to rate No. 1 (in 1943).

Betty, who is starting "Call Me Mister," her 20th big musical in 10 years, cautions youngsters to start early.

Betty's Tips

"I started when I was five," she related. "By the time I was 14, I was singing with a band. Experience like that is invaluable. With few exceptions, it takes years of hard work to learn the business.

"I think the best way for a girl to prepare herself for a career in show business is to start at the bottom and work her way up. Join a chorus line and learn that. As you learn, you will advance.

"I always wanted to be a dancer, so I went to dancing schools and danced whenever I could. I didn't bother with dramatic lessons, because I never wanted to be an actress. That part just happened to me."

Movies at 14

At 14, she won a movie contract, lying to the studio about her age. She did a specialty number in one film and spent a year in the studio chorus. Then she was dropped.

Eventually she signed up as a torch singer with Ted Fio Rita's band. Within eight months she was signed for films. But after one leading role, her parts dwindled. She joined another band.

Again she was snapped up for pictures and this time Paramount gave her more important roles. After four years, she decided her career needed another shot in the arm. She went to Broadway and made a hit in "Dubarry Was a Lady." That did it. Betty was signed by 20th-Fox and started her string of box-office boffos.

Brooklyn Police Captain Shoots Self

New York, July 17 — (AP) — Brooklyn Police Capt. John G. Flynn died in Hospital today—less than 24 hours after he shot himself in the head.

Flynn, a precinct commander, had been a recent witness in the grand jury investigation of Brooklyn gambling rackets.

In a suicide note, he denied any connection between the investigation and his action.

It read in part. "I am just tired of the headaches in this precinct and the travelling back and forth to my home - - - -"

Brewers Defeat Point Anne 7-6 In Overtime Game

Hard-charging Jack Whiting battered his way home with two away in the bottom of the twelfth, Saturday evening, as Brewers Warehouse nosed out the Point Anne Cementmen 7-6 in the longest game of the season. The win put Brewers back out in front in the Commercial A race.

The game, the third overtime contest of the week, was tied at 6-6 in the fourth inning and it wasn't until the twelfth that either side could break through the invincible pitching of Green on the mound for Brewers and Maracle doing the chores for Point Anne.

Hurrie led off in the bottom of the twelfth with his third single in six trips. He was forced by Whiting and then Wood flied out to right field. Wannamaker singled and then pitcher Green singled to right field. The throw in to the plate had Whiting beaten by three steps but he came on, crashing into catcher Brant with such force that the Point Anne backstop dropped the ball. And that was the ball game.

In the top of the twelfth Point Anne had a runner on third with the winning run before Green retired the side on strikeouts.

Open Scoring Early

The Cementmen opened the scoring in the top of the first as Sword who walked and was sacrificed to second, came home on errors to the shortstop and the catcher. They added another in the second on an error, a sacrifice and a single.

Brewers cut loose with five hits in the third for six runs to chase Point Anne starter, Jim Hunter. When the side had batted around, Maracle came in to relieve with one away and retired the side on strikeouts. He then proceeded to handcuff the potent Brewers striking out ten and walking three over the rest of the route. He was touched for single hits in the eighth, ninth, and eleventh, and gave up three hits in the fateful twelfth.

Point Anne knotted the count in the top of the fourth. Logue opened with a single and moved up as Baldwin walked. Maracle flied out to centre field and Sword walked to load the bases. Jack Hunter then smashed a clean single to centre field that skipped by centrefielder Fitzgibbon for a three base error as four runs scored. Bob Green settled down limiting the Cementmen to just two hits over the next eight innings.

Green Wins Second

Green won his second game of the year in going all the way for the Brewers. He struck out ten, walked eight, and gave up eight hits.

Best at the plate was Brewer rightfielder John Hurrie with three singles in six trips. First baseman Reid had two for five and no other member of either team had more than one hit during the marathon contest.

Line Up: Point Anne Cementmen: D. Sword 3b; Jack Hunter lf; Finlan rf; Everett cf; L. Horwood 2b; Brant c; Logue 1b, replaced by D. Whalen in 9th. Baldwin ss, Hunter p replaced by Maracle in the third.

replaced by Maracle in the third.

Brewers Warehouse: Barriage lf; Henn 2b; Reid 1b; Goyer c; Hurrie rf; Whiting 3b; Woods ss Fitzgibbon cf; Green p. Carson batted for Fitzgibbon in 8th, and Wannamaker went into centrefield in the ninth.

Governor-General Square-Dances At Stampede

Calgary, July 17 — (CP) — Canada's Governor-General, Viscount Alexander, added another accomplishment Saturday. He learned to square-dance.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was standing outside Mary Watkins's house talking to her about different subjects sutch as how it would feel to be a famous movie star when you're still only 10 years old, like Maribell Dugan in her different pictures, and I said, Hay Mary, did anybody ever tell you that you look like Maribell Dugan?

Why no, certainly not, how silly, why I never heard anything sillier, Mary Watkins said.

Sounding as if she was glad to hear it just the same, and I said, Well, you look like her rite, you can ask anybody.

Oh, how can you talk so rediculiss? Mary said, Why Maribell Dugan is perfectly bewtifull, she said, and I said, I dont care, you look just the way she does.

Oh, I do not, stop talking so crazy, how can you say sutch a thing? Mary said, and I said, Because it's true.

Oh, it is not, you're just a big flatter, Mary said. I dont look like Maribell Dugan any more than you do, she said, and I said, G, that's rite, how did you guess? Maribell Dugan looks through her eyes and so do I and so do you and so does everybody, so everybody looks like Maribell Dugan, including you, I said.

Being a old joke, and Mary Watkins said, If you want to know what you look like, you look like a dum goofy guy with no sense and no manners and no branes, and no wonder, because that's exactly what you are, and I'm going in the house.

Which she started to, and I quick said, Hay, wait, you really do look like her for real, only you're prettier.

Oh hush up and keep quiet, Mary Watkins said.

And she went in and banged the frunt door, proving no matter what's funny and what's not, gerls object to not getting compliments.

FIRE KILLS SEVEN IN FIVE MINUTES

Five minutes of fire and seven of 10 Desgagne children near Rouyon, Quebec, were burned to death. Looking at the ruins are Raymond, 17, and Jean Claude, 12, two of the surviving children. They were all sleeping on the second floor of the Desgagne frame farmhouse at McWatters. "All I could think of was my children, screaming and dying up there," said Lionel, the father, a dazed and stricken man, in a Rouyon hospital. Wife Eva is suffering fromshock. — Central Press Canadian.

2ND THURLOW

2nd Thurlow — Mr. and Mrs. Stan. Mitchell, Oshawa, Mrs. R. M. Mitchell, were Monday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. F. Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brockhurst, Buffalo, spent the dinner hour on Tuesday with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Atkins, enroute from Lake Mazinaw, where they spent the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer French, Belleville, called on Mrs. George Conners, on Sunday evening.

Mrs. F. Henderson, and daughter, Mrs. Cliff Barney, and Mr. Barney and family of Rochester, visited with her niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. B. Whalen, on Thursday.

Mrs. Harry Thomson attended the Firemen's Convention in Toronto, on Wednesday and Thursday.

Serious Fire Averted

What might have been a serious fire on the farm of Mr. Dan Whalen on Thursday afternoon was quickly brought under control. Mrs. Whalen noticing a blaze coming from a pulley on their barn floor, called for help. Also put in a call for the Belleville Fire Department which answered the call immediately.

Probably the fact that water and hose in the basement of their barn helped to keep the fire from spreading too quickly, although the blaze had run up the side of the mow in the hay above. The fire was soon extinguished on the arrival of the fire department.

The fire started from hay being wrapped around the pulley, which became hot and broke into flames while the hay was drawn up into the mow.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. William Leslie and family through the death of Mr. Leslie's sister, the late Mrs. Edith Donaldson. A large number of friends and relatives from this community attended the funeral from the Grant Funeral Home, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. F. Putman has returned to her home in Cannifton after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Eric Leeming.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken. Bush and family, of Sidney, spent the supper hour and evening on Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mitchell and Mrs. L. Gummer.

Mrs. B. Sayer and Joyce of Whitney, have returned home after spending the past three weeks with her sister and husband, Mrs. Gordon McNeil and Mr. McNeil.

Mrs. G. Woods and Dawn of Sidney visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mitchell on Saturday night.

About 60 members of the Roslin and Quinte W. I. and several visitors were entertained at the home of Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, and Mrs. R. M. Mitchell, on Tuesday afternoon, July 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, Joan and Beverly, of Stonboro, Penn., Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Goodfellow, Belleville, were Monday night visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Atkins. The above friendship developed between Isabelle Atkins and Joan Harrison through pen pal correspondence several years ago, but had never seen each other in persons which proved a very happy occasion for both.

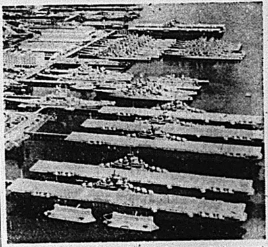
U.S. NAVY COMES OUT OF "MOTHBALLS"



The U.S. navy announced that it is taking an undisclosed number of small aircraft carriers out of the "mothball" fleet to ferry men, airplanes and equipment to the Korean front. Pictured is an airview of the mothballed fighting ships of the U.S. battle fleet at Bremerton, Washington. The vessels include battleships, cruisers and carriers.—Central Press Canadian.

BODY FOUND IN NIAGARA R.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 17 — (CP) — Police today attempted to identify the body of a woman found in the lower Niagara River. The body was clad in a red cotton print dress and has been in the water about three weeks. She is believed to be around 30.

Capt. R. Hampton Named Winner With Score of 99

Bisley Camp, Surrey, England, July 17—(CP) — Capt. R. W. Hampton of Ottawa today was named winner of the £10 first prize for the Clementi Smith Memorial event with an aggregate score of 99 at the National Rifle Association meet.

Prizes are awarded to the competitors whose scores in the "Donegall," or the "qualifier", and the "Conan Doyle" events, make up the highest aggregate. These two events were run off Saturday.

Four other Canadian marksmen drew £1 prizes in the Clementi Smith, including S. Sgt. M. Ostergaard, Calgary, 95, and CQMS. J. A. Draper, South Porcupine, Ont., 95.

Hampton also won the "Saturday' aggregate first prize of £5 with a score of 194.

Canadians winning £1 in the "Saturday" aggregate included Ostergaard, seventh with 189; and Draper, 186.

In the "Alexandra"—10 shots at 600 yards—Cpl. G. H. Emperingham of Montreal won the £2 fourth prize with a 48. Canadian winners of £1 prizes included Hampton with 48, and Maj. A. J. F. Roberts of Winnipeg, 47.

"JUST ONE OF HIS JOKES"

Philadelphia, July 17 — (AP) — Michael Hearon, 50, liked to hide from his wife, Loretta.

"It was just one of his little jokes," she explained.

Yesterday, she told Detective William Stone, her search led her to a second-floor halway closet after returning home from a picnic. There she found her husband's body hanging from a clothesline.

UNDER ONE ROOF

A $2,000,000 government building is under construction in Edmonton to house offices now scattered throughout the city.

FIND BODY IN RIVER

Brockville, July 17 — (CP) — The badly-decomposed body of an unidentified man, believed to be about 50, was found floating in the St. Lawrence River two miles east of here. Glen Rosenberg, a bus driver, found the body while sailing in the river in a pleasure craft. Only a few fragments of clothing remained on the body when it was found.

HEAVY FRUIT STOCK

Ottawa, July 15 (CP)—Canadian stocks of fruit, frozen and in preservatives at July 1 totalled 18,877,000 pounds, compared with 17,188,000 at June 1 and 30,080,000 a year ago, the bureau of statistics reported Friday.

Stocks of vegetables, frozen and in brine, totalled 4,727,000 against 5,401,000 and 5,441,000.

A TRUE STORY . . . .
OF TRUDEAU TRUE VALUE

A TRUE STORY: One day last week a gentleman and a very bright looking young man, (obviously his son), stopped their car outside our Station St. Showroom. They walked over to our display of True Value Used Cars and proceeded to look them all over very carefully and critically. After this very thorough inspection they inquired what the prices were and then asked to have a very choice 1948 Plymouth Sedan demonstrated to them. After a couple of miles of driving over both smooth and rough roads, they returned and pronounced that particular car was a very good one. Then they inquired if the original owner lived here and upon being told "yes" — they asked if we had any objection to their going to see him. This gentleman and his son were given the name and address of the original owner, who, incidentally, turned out to be a very well known Civil Servant, an executive in a local Government office. Several hours later, the gentleman and his son returned to our showroom. They told us a most interesting story (to us). They had looked at Used Cars in different towns and cities —tried them out, priced them, and checked them thoroughly, just as they had done with our Trudeau True Value Used Cars. Their verdict was that not at any Used Car Display that they had visited had they seen such Clean, Well Reconditioned Cars as the Trudeau True Value Cars — nowhere had they seen such outstanding Value for the Money and nowhere had they been met with such courtesy and genuine desire to serve them, and best of all—though, was the recommendation by the original owner for his "old car", for our organization, for the reconditioning job we had done and the courteous, efficient service he had always received from the Trudeau Organization and highly recommended both his "Old Car" and the Trudeau Organization. Now, here is the "New Twist" to a very old story around the Trudeau Organization and their very satisfied True Value Used Car and Truck Owners: This gentleman (with the bright looking son) turned out to be a RETIRED AUTOMOBILE DEALER, who—in his days in business was well and favorably known and really knows Used Cars, in fact, he knows "all the answers" when it comes to valuing a used car. His valuation of Trudeau True Value Used Cars was simply this: He wrote out his cheque for $1650.00 and thanked us most sincerely for the service we had rendered. The story of YOUR purchase of a Trudeau True Value Used Car, Truck or Tractor can be just the same as this Gentleman, and you, too, will become an enthusiastic member of the Trudeau True Value Booster Brigade.

Now Here are the Same Kind of True Value Cars That You Should See Right Away — TODAY!

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Tom stopped outside to inhale the cold, salt-freshened air:

"The sea air keeps life in a man," he declared. "Wonderful place, Dolorosa. Clean." He climbed into Reddy's car and settled himself with one elbow out the window. He nodded his white head, "Clean," he repeated.

Reddy put the car in gear, made a U-turn and headed back toward Tom's studio.

"Town'll feel a lot cleaner to me," he commented, "when these murders get cleared up."

"Murders?" Tom mumbled. "Oh, yes, murders." He leaned his white thatch against the back of the seat, "What're you doing these days, Charlie?"

Reddy turned startled eyes toward O'Neill. Now the white head was sagging forward, the chin resting on the chest. Reddy returned his attention to the road, two deep creases of concentration appearing between his brows. As he turned the car onto Dolorosa's main street, his passenger lurched against him and remained there until the car came to a stop in front of the O'Neill studio.

Charlie Reddy roused his sleeping passenger, Tom O'Neill, whose white head came up with: "Where are we? Oh, home. Home, sweet home. Home is where the heart is. Home is the pigeon. Clay pigeon. That's me, clay pigeon. Come in, Charlie. Nightcaps all around."

Reddy followed him out of the car. O'Neill fumbled for his key, found it and inserted it without too much difficulty in the lock of the blue door. He stood aside:

"Enter, my friend. It's been a long time since a guest has crossed this threshold. I've been a lonely man, Charlie. A sad, lonely man."

Reddy walked in and remembered to take the door to the left that entered the O'Neill living quarters. The one to the right, he recalled, led to the potter's studio.

There was a small lamp burning in the living room. Tom moved around lighting the others and the place took on a warm, cheerful look. Reddy glanced around — everything was in order, but there was a heavy layer of dust on the table tops.

Tom backed toward the kitchen, waving Reddy to a chair:

"I'll fix up the nightcap, won't take a minute. Scotch for you, isn't it? Little soda? He caught Reddy's nod.

Reddy shifted around in his chair, trying to overcome a sensation of uneasiness that seemed to be constricting his stomach muscles. He realized that, although hoping his newest theory was correct, he actually was, at the same time, banking on the fact that it was not. Because if he had hit on the right answer, there was something he should be doing at this very moment — something other than sitting here waiting for O'Neill.

O'Neill brought the Scotch and soda. For himself, he had concocted a tall, clear drink in which a squeezed lime floated.

They raised their glasses in salute and sipped.

"Doing anything in the [illegible] line lately, Tom?"

O'Neill shook his head. [illegible] put my mind on art. So many other things, lots of other things to think about. Think all the time. Thinking's a curse. Yon Cassius, that's me, thinks too much."

* * *

Tom was staring into his glass. Reddy gave him a searching look, then up-ended his glass and drained the Scotch and soda. He rattled the ice suggestively and Tom glanced up:

"Another before you go?"

Reddy's tone was brightly enthusiastic: "Fine idea! One more."

Tom took his glass and disappeared into the kitchen.

Reddy sprang silently to his feet and padded across to the French doors leading to the patio. Stealthily, he turned the key in the lock, tried the knob to make certain the door was open and then darted back to his chair where he settled himself in a comfortable attitude just before Tom re-entered the room.

Reddy drank his second drink slowly, and made several studiedly dull remarks in a monatonous voice. He was rewarded when Tom fell into a doze.

"I'll be going now, Tom," he said at last.

Tom looked up sleepily, "Find your way out, can you? Lock the door behind you, will you?"

Reddy reassured him, walked to the door quietly, and snapped the lock decisively as he closed the front door. He stood for a moment outside, getting his plans into careful order. When he started his car, he raced the motor noisily several times and roared off down the street. Several blocks away from the O'Neill place, he turned a corner and slid the car to a stop in front of the post office.

He glanced at his watch, switched on the radio, and settled himself to wait out the half-hour he'd allotted himself before returning to Tom's house. He closed his eyes and rested his head against the upholstery. He supposed he should go back to the hospital and tell the Chief what he had in mind, but he decided against that — it was too possible he was chasing a wild goose.

"It is written," he muttered wryly, "that he who chases the wild goose saves himself a heck of a lot of embarrassment by doing it alone."

* * *

Charlie Reddy's head jerked up as he came out of his doze. He flipped the light switch on the dashboard and consulted his watch — it was time to go back to O'Neill's, the old boy was sure to be pounding his ear by now.

He got out of the car, locked it and started off in the direction of Tom's studio, his rubber-soled shoes making no sound on the sidewalk. He grinned slightly as he impersonally took his own snapshot: Gumshoe Reddy, the Sam Spade of Dolorosa, gliding through the shadows, hot on the trail of murder. Cloak and dagger stuff!

He turned into the alley that cut through behind the main street, the road was gravelled and he frowned as his steps set up a steady crunching sound. He passed backyard fences, garages and garbage cans and finally paused at a frame shed which he knew was part of Tom's workshop. He stared at the house — it was reassuringly dark.

Keeping close to the shadowed side of the shed, he made his way around to the door and tried the iron latch gently. It was locked. But he had expected that. The studio-workshop had two doors, this one and the one that entered from the house. Reddy crouched down and picked his way through a thicket of bushes to the low wall surrounding the patio. He peered over it. Everything was silent. A fragment of moonlight picked out the gleam of water in the big goldfish pool and threw an eerie highlight on the giant pottery frog squatting on the centre pedestal.

Charlie Reddy darted silently across the patio to the French doors. The handle turned with only a slight click and he pulled the door open an inch at a time. He stepped inside and drew the door closed. The room was dark, and Reddy identified a few shadowy furniture outlines and began to pick his way through them, praying that he wouldn't collide with an unremembered footstool

He reached the hall and turned to the left, feeling ahead of him for the door to the studio. He found the knob and turned it. Locked! Anxiously, his fingers fumbled downward. There was a key in the lock! Before turning it, he stood tense, listening for even the slightest stir from the remainder of the house.

Slowly and delicately, he turned the key and opened the door.

He took out his flashlight, directed its beam to the floor and stepped cautiously only where the small circle of light showed uncluttered space. Reaching the storage end of the studio, he beamed his flash over the shelves containing the rows of glazed and bisque-fired pieces. Tom had said he hadn't been doing any work lately, which would mean that the two peculiar-looking female figures might still be unglazed. Concentrating on the chalky bisque pieces, he inspected the contents of the top shelf and worked down: vases, jugs, three tigers, two Balinese busts, more vases. Reddy snapped off his light in disgust and stood in the darkness wondering what had become of the two sorrowing women.

He could recall exactly how the pieces looked. About 12 inches high, about eight inches at the base, the femininity of the figures just barely suggested by the drapery around the lower body, an egg-like head, with one rather gross arm bent around it resting on what might be the knees. The whole piece had the bulky blocklike quality of an Epstein sculpture. Reddy remembered that he had thought the things were pretty good, pretty well-done. In spite of their vague outlines, he had immediately concluded that they represented a pair of weeping women.

A weeping woman! Why hadn't he thought of the connection before? His weariness and puzzlement disappeared instantly. He snapped on his light again and directed its beam searchingly around the room. He had to find those figurines!

Tom's modelling bench was over there in the corner. Tools, stained rags, a segmented mold. Up above was a broad shelf, and on it—Reddy stepped closer excitedly — on it was a blocklike figurine, light reflecting from its satiny blue glaze. One of the weeping women!

Reddy propped his flash on the bench and reached up both hands for the figurine. Reddy picked it up, balancing it with great care on the palm of one hand. With the thumb and middle finger of his other hand, he thumped it for what would be the answer to whether he was here on a wild goose chase.

* * *

The pottery gave a low, clear ringing sound. An expression of intense disappointment spread over Reddy's face. He was about to return the figurine to the shelf when the lights in the studio snapped on.

He whirled around to face Tom O'Neill!

"It was my impression, Charlie that you had left my house and gone home. I should've asked you if you'd like to come out and visit my workshop. I'm a very poor host, leaving my guest to stumble around out here by himself without any lights." He advanced slowly to the work bench, "Do you like the blue figurine?"

Reddy found himself idiotically nodding and patting the surface of the figurine.

Tom smiled faintly: "Take it home with you. It's yours." He placed a hand on Reddy's arm, slowly tightened the fingers.

Reddy tried not to wince—the man's hand seemed about to crush the muscles of his forearm! Reddy's astonishment at Tom's strength almost obliterated the sensation of pain. Tom's eyes lacked depth, the lids were stretched wide apart and the pupils were dilated, giving back the light as flatly as the surface of a well. He hardened the muscles of his arm against Tom's fingers and gradually pulled away from the grip.

Search for Men Trapped in Burning Mine

Lark, Utah, July 17 — (AP) — Rescue crews groped through 400 miles of smoke-filled tunnels today searching for five men trapped in a burning lead mine.

The men have been missing since early Sunday when fire broke out in the Lark mine of the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company.

They were engaged in maintenance operations at the mine, which has been shut down since July 1 by a strike of United Steel Workers.

Because of the dense smoke, workers weer unable to determine the source of the blaze and location of the men. However it was believed they may have reached any of a number of fresh air zones in the mine.

Some 50 rescue workers, including a number of crews from narby mines, made repeated attempts yesterday to locate the men but were driven back to the entrances by heavy smoke.

Air was pumped into the mine yesterday and fans were started in an effort to clear the main tunnel of smoke.

REMAINS IN COMA

Hartsdale, N.Y., July 17 (AP) —General Evangeline Booth, 84-year-old retired chief of the Salvation Army, remained near death in a coma during the weekend at her home here.

The General, daughter of the Army's founder, has been ill and bedridden during the past year. A Salvation Army officer said her death might come at any time.

British Labor M.P. Raps United States

Merthyr-Tydfil, Wales, July 17 — (AP) — A labor member of parliament who frequently criticizes his party's foreign policy Sunday accused the United States of turning the United Nations into "something like a tragic farce."

The member, S.O. Davies, told a political meeting that the U.S. deliberately violated the U.N. charter by setting up military bases outside its own territory. He demanded that American air bases "be cleared off British soil."

"When the Ump called '3 STRIKES' he could have meant me

"I remember how I'd looked forward to that game . . . how I'd prayed for just one afternoon's relief from miserable, sluggish, half-sick feelings. But even before I started for the park, I felt 'all in'. When the Ump called the first 'Out', he could have been looking right at me.

"But on the way home I saw Kruschen Salts displayed in a drug store window. Next morning I took my first small dose of Kruschen. Right from the first, it quickly brought me the relief I needed. Now I'm regular with Kruschen . . . enjoying my meals again . . . and every day, I'm 'right in there pitching'!"

If bad digestion, "irregularity" and that worn-out, listless feeling have '3 strikes' on you—try a little Kruschen Salts with your morning fruit juice, tea or coffee. Helps you get and keep "regular" . . . helps knock out sluggish, "liverish" feelings . . . gives you pep that wins! Ask your druggist.

U.S. DEFENDERS HALT REDS NORTH OF TAEJON

All Oil Shipments To Red China Stopped by Britain

British Services Require All Stocks for Own Uses

London, July 18 (AP)—A foreign office spokesman announced today Britain has stopped all oil shipments to Red China.

British services operating in the Far East decided to take over all stocks of oil there for their own uses. Their needs have increased due to operations undertaken in carrying out the United Nations Security Council resolution for bringing back peace to Korea, the spokesman said.

Britain earlier this month turned down an American suggestion that oil shipments to Red China be limited. The foreign office spokesman at that time said only oil for civilian consumption was going to Red China.

Not Large Supplier

The spokesman said only one British company—Shell — has been selling oil to the Chinese communists. In the first six months of this year, he said, total supplies amounted to 26,000 tons —less than a tenth of China's civilian requirements.

The spokesman added:

"The question of the future supply of oil products to China has, however, become academic, since the British service departments (army, navy, air force), acting in terms of the United Nations Security Council resolution on Korea, have decided to take over all stocks of oil held by the Shell Company in the theatre."

The fuel in stock in the Far East will be used by the British fleet and, presumably, by British airplanes.

Washington, July 18. (AP)—The United States Commerce Department reported today it has blocked shipment of more than $150,000,000 in war-potential goods to Russian-dominated Eastern Europe in the last two years.

Commerce Secretary Sawyer told President Truman and Congress the action was aimed at preventing export of American materials and equipment that would bolster Soviet military power.

His report showed that stop-orders blocked shipment of 36 per cent of the $530,000,000 in goods which the Soviet Bloc sought from this country after the U.S. adopted "security" restrictions on exports in March, 1948.

For Russia alone, they prevented movement of 74 per cent, or $38,000,000, of the $52,700,000 in goods for which export licences were asked, Sawyer said. Shipments were permitted only where the goods were plentiful here and lacked war potential value.

Claims Jackass Asks for Drink

Long Beach, Calif., July 18—(AP) — Officer John Logan, who believes every man has the right to choose his friends, didn't interfere when he saw George Brown Hayes, a cook, talking spiritedly to a burro in a beachside zoo.

But when Hayes nodded his head and tipped a wine bottle into the burro's throat, Logan exercised his authority.

"That jackass asked me for a drink," protested Hayes, booked for intoxication. "He said he just got in from the desert and he was terribly dry."

Franconia Ready September 6th

Montreal, July 18. (CP)—The 20,000-ton liner Franconia, damaged when she grounded in Quebec harbor last week, is expected to resume her Trans-Atlantic sailings from Quebec, September 6, Cunard Donaldson Limited officials announced today.

The liner now is in drydock at Lauzon, Que., where permanent repairs will be made.

BURU ISLAND TAKEN

Jakarta, Indonesia, July 18 — (AP) — The Indonesian Defence Ministry announced the capture of Buru Island from the rebellious "Republic of South Moluccas" today.

Buru is a jumping off point for Amboina, key island of the Moluccas and stronghold of the 11-week-old revolt. Buru is 50 miles east of Amboina. The defence ministry said earlier there were about 200 rebel soldiers on Buru.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS:

Toronto, July 18 (CP)—Synopsis: Cooler, drier air moved into northern and western Ontario during the night preceded by showers and thundershowers and will advance to the eastern boundary of the province by noon today. Showers and thundershowers were general in the Thunder Bay area last evening and will pass into the Kirkland Lake region by this evening.

Wednesday will be mainly sunny and a little warmer.

Drenching Rains Fall in Ottawa And Montreal

Ottawa, July 18 — (CP) — More than an inch of rain fell on Ottawa streets in 20 minutes when a violent electrical storm broke over the capital Monday afternoon. Two homes were struck by lightning and set a fire at nearby Aylmer, Que.

Montreal, — (CP) — Sewers were blocked, cellars flooded and transport held up last night as a one-inch rainfall in a few hours flooded sections of greater Montreal. There was no estimate of damage available.

Children played hip-deep in water and cars and trucks were abandoned on St. James Street West when the rain exceeded the capacity of sewers to carry it off.

Chatham — (CP) — Soaking rain which fell across western Ontario Monday may hold back Kent County wheat harvesting but it will benefit every other crop. Tomatoes, corn, tobacco, sugar beets, soybeans and white beans will all make better progress. Continued heat will also speed crop development. Pastures, which have been burning out, are much fresher today.

Thousands of Lampreys Trapped But Control of Pest Unsolved

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 18—(AP)—A progress report on the all-out war against the sea lamprey invasion of the Great Lakes showed some successes in preliminary skirmishes.

Capture of the eel-like parasites by the thousands was reported, thanks to control measures taken within the last year. But this is only a small start in the grand strategy.

Attacks by lamprey on commercial fishing in the Great Lakes are still unchecked, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service reported. Damage, it said, amounted to an estimated $2,500,000, and is increasing to an alarming extent, with lake trout suffering the greatest hard.

The lamprey attaches itself with its suction mouth to a fish and feeds by rasping the flesh with horny teeth.

General headquarters for the all-out war against the lamprey have been set up here. Universities in the Great Lakes area have assigned some of their most skilled biologists to devise means of wiping out the pest or at least controlling it.

Among the methods so far used in the war are traps placed at mouths of streams in the lakes. Lamprey are caught when they attempt to run rivers to spawn. Reporting on this, the Fish and Wildlife Service said that, as of June 9, 20,251 spawning migrants have been captured in the Northern Michigan area. Capture of 13,406 lamprey in Wisconsin tributaries also was reported.

The scientists are considering turning loose American eels on the lamprey. Aquarium experiments have shown such eels devour baby lamprey. But the biologists want to find out whether the American eels harm good fish.

A research vessel to pry into all the secrets of the lamprey's life is to be built. It will be a 60-foot vessel that will make possible an experiment on possible methods of capturing and destroying lamprey during their lake life.

The Fish and Wildlife Service also reported it had let an engineering contract for the developing of electric, sonic, light and electro-magnetic devices. It said these may serve to block or destroy spawning-run migrants or kill young sea lamprey downstream to the lake.

4 U.N. OFFICIALS AND 18 OTHERS DIE IN AIR CRASH

Brig. Angle, Kelowna, B.C., Among Victims

New Delhi, India, July 18 (CP) — Brig. H. H. Angle of Kelowna, B. C., Chief of the United Nations Military Observers in Kashmir, and 21 other persons were killed yesterday in the crash of an Indian National Airways plane. The twin-engined aircraft fell in the Himalayan foothills near Kashmir during a heavy rainstorm.

Gen. Courtney Hodges of the United States — adviser to the U. N. Kashmir mediator, Sir Owen Dixon of Australia — was scheduled to make the flight but cancelled his passage at the last minute.

Five other Americans, three attached to the Kashmir Mission, died.

Cause Not Determined

Cause of the accident has not been determined. The plane was missing for 12 hours before villagers found wreckage in a river bed near the town of Pathankot in the 12,000-foot high Banihal Pass. It was on a non-stop flight from New Delhi to Srinigar, capital of Kashmir.

Angle, former fruit farmer, magistrate and military man, was to return to New Delhi Thursday for a meeting on the thorny Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan.

After serving as an observer for a year supervising the truce between India and Pakistan in Kashmir, Angle was appointed chief military observer last Jan. 10. During the Second World War he commanded the British Columbia Dragoons in Italy and later was General Staff Officer (1st grade) at 5th Division Headquarters. He leaves a widow and two children.

Lie's Tribute

At Lake Success, N. Y., Trygve Lie, Secretary - General of the U. N., said he was "deeply grieved" at the news of the deaths of Angle and the other members of the U. N. Secretariat.

"The high quality of their work, their devotion to duty, their spirit of co-operation will long be remembered in the annals of the United Nations," Lie said.

The dead included Dr. Karl Pereira, Charge D'Affaires at the Austrian Legation in New Delhi and K. Kachru, one of Prime Minister Nehru's private secretaries.

Ottawa Opinion Believes Canada Will Not Send Airborne Brigade to Korea

By DOUGLAS HOWE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 18 — (CP) — High-level opinion appears to be firmly against committing Canada's Airborne Infantry Brigade to Korean action and some informed quarters have expressed doubt that cabinet, under present circumstances, will want to send any ground troops at all.

The government's top military advisers met Monday and will meet again today to consider proposals to place before cabinet Wednesday as a result of the call for more aid, particularly ground troops, to strengthen the United Nations' forces in Korea.

Official circles said a series of alternative proposals are under consideration but these factors appeared to be shaping up:

1. It now appears unlikely that the cabinet would seriously consider sending the one regular army formation available, the three-battalion, airborne brigade that constitutes the country's main ground bulwark against attack.

2. People in key positions expressed doubt that cabinet will agree to send any ground troops at all but the army has come up with a suggestion that it recruit a new brigade to be trained for some months and dispatched to Korea. This is under preliminary consideration but has its sceptical opponents in those key positions.

3. If the plan is jettisoned or postponed as far as Korea is concerned, the brigade may still be raised to be ready for action elsewhere if a long siege of world tension is planned by the communists. This would mean a manpower increase for the army of 2,000 to 3,000 and some such form of manpower expansion is reported under consideration.

4. The government would probably place no bars in the way of Canadian enlistments for an international legion for Korea but no such formal proposition has reached here from U. N. headquarters where it is reported under consideration.

5. It is possible that the government will offer some further Korean aid, say transport aircraft, but that it will suggest to Washington it would be wise to keep Canadian troops at home in case of a communist attack on the northern areas the brigade is designed to defend.

Stalin-Nehru Letters Show Agreement on Peace Issue

Moscow, July 18—(AP)—Generalissimo Stalin and India's Prime Minister Nehru were agreed today that Communist China must be admitted to the United Nations before a settlement of the Korean war can be negotiated.

In an exchange of letters published today by the official Russian News Agency Tass, Stalin told Nehru a peaceful settlement should be reached through the U.N. Security Council, but "with the obligatory participation of the representatives of the five great powers, including the people's (communist) government of China."

The Soviet Union has boycotted all U.N. meetings since January because of the presence of Chinese nationalist delegates.

Nehru, in his reply, said he was communicating with "the other governments concerned" and hoped to communicate with the Russian prime minister again soon.

In his earlier letter opening the correspondence with Stalin, Nehru suggested this procedure for settling the Korean question:

1. The representative of communist China would be seated in the U.N. Securtiy Council:

2. The Soviet Union would return to the council;

3. "Within the framework of the council or outside the council through unofficial contact, the U.S.S.R., the United States and China. . . could find a basis for the cessation of the conflict and for a final solution of the Korean problem."

Stalin, in his reply, also said he felt it "would be expedient to hear in the Security Council representatives of the Korean people."

Meanwhile, Britain's Ambassador to Moscow, Sir David Kelly, continued discussions on the Korean situation with Andrei Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister. The two met last night for the third time in two weeks.

The British Embassy would say only that the latest meeting, held at Gromyko's request, was "a continuation of talks on Korea."

Jacket Leads To Capture of Alleged Killer

New York, July 18 — (AP) — An accused holdup killer was caught yesterday because, after he lost his jacket in a scuffle, he went to buy a new one — at the same store.

Police told this story:

Charles P. McCauley, 25, held up a cab driver, took $38, and tried to escape in the cab. But it wouldn't start.

He jumped into another car, in which two men were seated.

Then McCauley told the second man, George Siffri, 25, to take the wheel, but Siffri tackled him.

In the scuffle McCauley's jacket was torn off. He fled.

The label in the abandoned coat read: "Todd's Men's Shop."

At 1 p. m. McCauley walked into Todd's Men's Shop in Brooklyn to replace his lost jacket. A policeman stepped out and told him:

"You don't have to buy a jacket, Mac. Here's your old one."

GRAB $600 IN SILVER

Gatineau Pointe, Que., July 18 — (CP) — Thieves during the night ripped a hole in the side of a large steel safe in the Caisse Populaire Offices and escaped with more than $600 in silver.

The offices are located in the basement of St. Francis Xavier Church.

Gatineau Point is four miles northeast of Ottawa.

24 Passengers Injured as Bus And Tram Collide

Montreal, July 18. (CP) — Twenty-four passengers were injured, none seriously, when a Provincial Transport Company bus collided with a street car today during the morning rush hour in east-end Montreal.

Most of the injured were on the bus, bound for Granby, Que. Several were expected to be X-rayed later for possible fractures.

Dr. Eugene Lapointe, dentist near the corner of Papineau Avenue and Demontigny Street, gave first aid to the injured on the verandah of his home.

Both the street car and bus were heavily damaged.

It was the second transit accident in Montreal in 24 hours. Yesterday afternoon seven persons suffered cuts and shock when they tried to scramble through broken windows of a street car after a motor explosion.

Feeds Circus Animals 2 Old Horses Weekly

Toronto, July 18. (CP)—George J. Keller, professor of fine arts at Pennsylvania State Teachers' College, is the wild-animal trainer in a circus that arrived here yesterday. His three lions, three pumas, one jaguar, leopard, black panther and tiger eat a total of two horses—old, worn-out work horses—a week, the 42-year-old professor said.

KOREAN WAR MAY HALT PROGRESS TO WELFARE STATE

Situation Depends on Events of Near Future

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 1b— (CP)— The Korean war, in addition to its many other ramifications, may have tipped the scales against any further Canadian advance into the welfare state at this time.

It is considered doubtful here that the federal government, faced with the prospect of mounting defence costs and months of world tension will seriously consider a sharp increase in old-age pensions costs as recommended by a joint parliamentary committee last month.

It is a point that will depend a lot on what happens between now and the autumn dominion-provincial conference that will get the committee's report for consideration.

Political Climate Changed

But, in Ottawa at least, it is apparent that Korea has notably altered a political climate that appeared to be quite favorable to step forward in pension legislation, with all major parties backing it.

The committee's recommendations—for a $40-a-month pension to all at 70, a means-test pension for the needy from 65 to 69—would cost the public more than $385,000,000 if fully implemented. The federal budget now runs to roughly $2,400,000,000.

There is no sign that the federal government is preparing any proposal on pensions to place before the conference or that it intends to do more than table the committee's report.

It is conceivable that one of the provinces will project pensions into the forefront of conference discussion. Several have already suggested that the question should be on the agenda.

However, if the situation arising from Korea and other communist potentialities is as serious then as now, it is doubtful whether the discussion will do more than air opinions for action on some happier future date.

Whether Ottawa could have been prepared to expand the pensions setup if Korea hadn't come along is mainly a matter for conjecture. The fact is that Korea struck before any serious consideration could be given.

There has been for some time a tendency to rivalry between defence and health costs, each large, each tending to want to grow larger. Korea has entered that fray with a truculent emphasis.

KAMLOOPS TROUT

London, Ont., July 18 — (CP) —A Department of Lands and Forests biologist will investigate the possibility of stocking district waters with Kamloops trout. A cross between British Columbia salmon and Steelhead trout, the Kamloops is said to be an exceptionally fine game fish. It requires very cold water, however, and there are not many suitable spots in this area. Provision of the proper fish food is another problem.

New Blood Test Almost 100 P.C. Accurate in Detecting Human Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Paris, July 18 — (AP) — A new blood test has so far proved almost 100 per cent accurate in detecting cancer in humans, three Swiss physicians reported today.

They told the fifth international Cancer Research Congress the test is based on a chemical that appears in the blood of persons with cancer. The chemical breaks down a certain kind of sugar, pentose sugar. The test is made by adding blood serum from the person to a solution of the sugar.

The method was described by Dr. Georges Menkes, Dr. P. Rentchnick and Dr. S. Steenmf, of Geneva

The test was tried they said, on 200 persons with various kinds of cancer. It was 95 per cent right. An improved version was employed on the second hundred. Dr. Menkes said it was almost 100 per cent accurate.

The sugar-destroying chemical seems to be a constant and probably peculiar property of the blood of cancer patients, Dr. Menkes concluded.

The congress also heard a description of a new injection technique in which hollow tubes pushed through human arteries, wind as far as five feet through the body to deliver cannon shots of drugs against cancer growths.

Dr. Michael B. Shimkin of San Francisco's National Cancer Institute said the tubes can carry large amounts of drugs to the site of the cancer. Twice as much of the drug injected into a vein would be greatly diluted before it reached the same site, he explained.

The drugs used in tests were nitrogen mustards, made from wartime poison gases.

Enemy Columns Move by Night To Avoid Attacks

Three Tanks, 28 Trucks Knocked Out by Planes

Tokyo, July 19 — (Wednesday) — (AP) — The communist invasion of South Korea was at a standstill north and west of Taejon today, apparently jarred to a halt by the opposition of the outnumbered American defenders.

The situation on the whole Korean front was so quiet that Gen. MacArthur did not issue his usual early-morning comunique. His public information officer said there was nothing new to report and there was "little enemy activity."

The Americans standing firm before Taejon sent out patrols in quest of information. American and Australian planes roamed the skies Tuesday and reported three enemy tanks and 28 trucks knocked out. They sighted two enemy planes which fled.

Still Hold Key Point

U.S. 24th Division troops battling against overwhelming odds still hold positions north of Taejon. That rail centre, once considered the key to South Korea's defence, remains in American hands, a U.S. Eighth Army spokesman reported.

To the west, South Korean troops attacked on the central sector Tuesday night (Korea time) and then withdrew to defence positions after inflicting heavy casualties, the spokesman said.

The Reds were taking a battering from the air by jet fighters, Mustangs and light bombers. Heavy bombers struck behind the lines in strategic attacks which sooner or later should show up in a slackening of communist supplies at the front.

Heavy Air Attacks

So heavy was the air beating that fighter pilots reported the Reds moving their armor and motor columns only by night and lying low in daylight.

U.S. Far East headquarters informed the defence department at Washington that the defenders were holding all along the line and that enemy pressure has eased. A Washington spokesman said there is more tactical support for the Americans from artillery and air.

Magistrate Pays Normal Fine For Motorcyclist

Cornwall, July 18—(CP) — A sympathetic magistrate Monday paid the one dollar nominal fine for 19-year-old Benjamin Booker, convicted of failing to stop at a stop street.

The lad had his leg amputated below the knee one week after his motorcycle collided with a car last April 17. Magistrate Raoul Labrosse of L'Original paid the fine, saying he believed young Booker had been penalized enough.

U.S. Field Headquarters Leaves Taejon

An American outpost in Korea, July 18 — (AP) — Advanced United States field headquarters completed its withdrawal from Taejon today. The once bustling city has the appearance of a ghost town.

But north and west of Taejon, American troops are dug in awaiting the next North Korean assault. The northerners made no major attack in force Tuesday.

Taejon now is just another Korean town next to the fighting front. Its population once was 150,000, but none knows how many remain.

Within the city, houses and shops are shuttered. Streets virtually are empty.

But on the outskirts, families continued to cook their meals over open fires and eat them while squatting on dusty streets.

Most South Koreans afraid of retaliation by invaders have fled. Presumably this includes most of the city officials.

Err in Allowing Red Leaflets To be Printed

Berlin, July 18 — (AP) — An embarrassed spokesman admitted today that the British Control Commission had erroneously granted permission for the printing of 10,000 communist leaflets in allied-occupied West Berlin.

The leaflets promoted the communist - inspired "Stockholm peace resolution" and called for outlawing of the atom bomb. East Berlin communists planned to distribute them in West Berlin in a drive for signature for the resolution.

The British spokesman said the licence was revoked as soon as the error was discovered. But it was discovered only after the communist press proclaimed the legality of the signatures campaign.

RESCUED IN TIME

Kingsville, Ont., July 18 —(CP) — Gary Vanpelt, 15, of Toledo, O., was rescued from the waters of Kingsville harbor yesterday by two coal company workers, Robert Crowder and Russell Doan, as he was being carried into the lake.

BASEBALL SCHOOL IS CALLED OFF

The Philadelphia Phillies baseball school was called off today on account of the conditions of the Exhibition Park diamond and the fact the Batawa-Smiths Falls' game is scheduled for tonight. The school will resume operations tomorrow, weather permitting, and will wind up on Thursday afternoon.

S.-A. EMPLOYEES ENJOY TWEED PICNIC

The sixth annual picnic of Stephens-Adamson Co. was held on Saturday at Tweed Memorial Park. Two buses, together with employees' cars, took a large crowd to the park. The weather was perfect and many took advantage of the fine bathing facilities.

Various races were run, but the most interesting was the small toddlers' race, where everybody won a prize of a sand pail and shovel or a windmill. The committee in charge of the events saw that all the youngsters were well provided with ice cream, candy and milk.
